THE LIME JUICE CLUB

REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING OF THIS CHASTE SOCIETY.

Still Another Attempt to Destroy the Hall of Wisdom—An Awful Warning to the Wicked to Mend Their Ways—A Very Large Amount of Important Business Despatched.

Some three months ago, owing to various and repeated attempts to destroy the Hall of Wisdom, Putty Conal asked leave on open meeting to protect the Hall by an invention of his own. Leave was granted, and the result was seen as the janitor opened the place on Friday evening to make room for the usual weekly meeting at night. Mr. Konnal's invention consisted of a pound of powder innocently stored away in an old nail keg, and the keg placed where a stranger would use it to look through the transom. A pressure of a few pounds on the head of the keg would scratch a match and explode the powder. Some men would have grown weary of waiting, but Putty knew that if he fished long enough he was certain to catch a whale.

Sometime during Thursday night a person, whose name will never be known, unlocked the street door with the crack of a coffee mill, and slid up stairs with murder in his thoughts. Perhaps he expected to find Bro Croft asleep up there, and was prepared to despatch him without mercy, or he may have simply intended to damage the Hall about $30,000 worth, and then go away and secretly chuckle over his dastardly work. Be that as it may, he reached the ante-room and paused for a moment to cast a glance of contempt at the stuffed porcupine (which had been shot by Bro Tom Rutherford in mistake for a bear last fall) over the door leading into the lodge. There stood the innocent nail keg and the transom was open.

The human hyena probably cackled with delight as he saw the easy way prepared for him, but it was his last cackle on earth. As he mounted the keg there was a dull explosion, which was heard by many people on the street, and supposed to have been caused by the blowing up of a locomotive on the Grand Trunk Railway.

When the Hall opened Friday evening Putty had all the remains spread out on the top of Bro Meldrum's white plug hat. There was a button, seven hairs, the heel of a sock, a finger nail, and a part of a document beginning with: "To the Mayor and Council." A hole in the roof through which twenty-seven stars looked placidly down, indicated the direction taken by the balance of the remains. The force of the explosion knocked the safe over and broke one hinge, and the pictures on the wall were more or less damaged.

THE LESSON.

"Let this be a warning to the wicked to pause," said Sir Richard, as the meeting opened. "Let it be a further warning to the wicked not to be wicked. Wickedness don't pay. If you turn gambler you may hide the Joker up your sleeve, win a few dollars, but the first thing you know some man will hide the four aces in his hat and scoop you blind. If you turn robber you may stop some plumber on the highway, and make a haul of three hundred dollars, but the next thing you know you bet on Bro Ed. Brown's horse and lose the pile. We have the proofs before us that while the wicked are chuckling and grinning and growing fat, death is waiting at their elbow to lift them higher than a kite. The Committee on Privileges and Refuse will see to the repairs of the Hall, and we will now ambulate towards the regular order of business."

AMONG THE APPLICANTS FOR MEMBERSHIP

Among the applicants for membership was the "Society of Smart Alecks" of Campbellford, Ont., composed of twenty seven of the most celebrated men in this part of the country. The Club was organized seven years ago, and at one time numbered three hundred members. The letter forwarded by the Secretary stated that the Club had decided to dissolve, because the President had run away with a strange woman, its treasurer had skipped with the funds, and the Secretary was in jail on a charge of having thirteen shovels hid away under his wood shed.

THE PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY.

"I have received a letter from Toronto," said the President, as he adjusted his spectacles, "asking the Club to unite in giving me a send-off on the 54th anniversary of my birth, and suggesting that the occasion be made a public holiday. While I am grateful to the writer for the honor which he proposes, I cannot permit it. If any of the members of this great club think that the occasion calls for a splurge, let them splurge. I am, however, of the opinion that the man who chews up turkey on Thanksgiving, hangs up his stockings on Christmas, glorifies himself on New Year's, eats a handful of hard boiled eggs on Easter, parades on the Queen's Birthday, and bursts the glory out of the country on Dominion Day, has about all the business he can manage on an income ranging from $3 to $7 per week. We will lend them our flag and water pail, and keep the Hall of Wisdom open all day for the weary, but they needn't look for anything farther."

MUSIC.

The members of the Harmony Club could not sit still under the excitement of the hour, and upon receiving a wink of encouragement from the President, they jumped in on the following:

Blow the horn! Beat the drum!
Hear the bugle blowing!
Five millions true Canadians here,
And still the country's growing!

CORONAS—Let that school question alone, Mister Bowell.

Sound the Gongs! Strike the bells!
See the people smiling!
Everybody's on the make,
And politics are boiling!

CORONAS—If you don't you'll get hurted.

FROM NOBACAVGION.

The Secretary announced a communication from Wallace Wells, writing that the people in that vicinity had formed a "Saw-Dust Club," and desired to affiliate with the Lime Juice Club.

Tired but Sleepless

Is a condition which gradually wears away the strength. Let the blood be purified and enriched by Hood's Sarsaparilla and this condition will cease.

"For two or three years I was subject to poor spells. I always felt tired, could not sleep at night and the little I could eat did not do me any good. I read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before I had finished two bottles I began to feel better and in a short time I felt all right and had gained 21 pounds in weight. I am stronger and healthier than I have ever been in my life." JOHN W. COUGHLIN, Wallaceburg, Ontario.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the Only

True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the public eye today. Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's. Do not be induced to buy and other.

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Indigestion, etc.

The President ordered the Secretary to open correspondence with red ink and corn-colored envelopes, and in case it was found that the "Saw Dusters" were composed of not less than sixteen members, and were provided with a three hooped water pail, a thermometer and a stove with regular hinges on the door, to say that the Lime Juice Club would affiliate up in the 27th degree.

WILL INVESTIGATE.

A letter was received, signed, "The Great Unknown," stating that General Metherral, who is to deliver a lecture on "The Habit of Lying," before the Club at an early date, should not be permitted to do so. The writer made several charges against him, amongst which were, beating everybody he could and mistaking a candy shop for a saloon.

The President ordered the committee on credentials to investigate and report, and if the charges are sustained Brother Metherral may prepare himself for a standing jump of thirty-two feet.

NOT YET.

A letter was read from Bro. Jones and Billyjin, who were sojourning in Keene for a few days, asking if it was true that the Lime Juice Club had passed a resolution asking the Dominion Parliament to rob the treasury and divide up the money between them and go home and have done with it.

The President said that such a resolution was now on his desk, and might be presented at the next meeting.

THE CLOSE.

All the unfinished business was piled in the refrigerator and the meeting went home for one week.

A Historic Elm Shoot.

Says the Philadelphia Record: "A direct descendant of the old elm tree which cast its shadows over William Penn and the Indian chiefs during the famous session when the Penn treaty was drawn up has been planted by Chief Eisenhower of the bureau of city property directly on the spot which the old tree is supposed to have occupied. The old treaty elm stood on the Vandusen estate, which has since been formed into Penn Treaty park, and shoots from the tree have been carefully treasured by the Vandusen family. This particular shoot was donated by Paul A. Oliver of Oliver's mills, Luzerne county, who came into its possession through marriage into the Vandusen family. The shoot is healthy, and is expected to thrive in its appropriate situation."

Lincoln on His Re-election.

Commenting on the result of the election of the day before, Lincoln said, with great solemnity: "I should be the vilest shallow and self conceited blockhead upon the footstool if, in my discharge of the duties that are put upon me in this place, I should hope to get along without the wisdom that comes from God and not from men."—Noah Brooks in Century.

Concerning Mr. Ashford.
The Honolulu Daily Bulletin of April 12 contains the following in reference to Volney V. Ashford, a former resident of Fort Hope: "V. V. Ashford has been pardoned but he has not left the country never to return. The reason is that if kept in prison he would soon die from malady contracted before his commission. In the opinion of impartial minds the Military Committee convicted Mr. Ashford on testimony that would not be given a moment's respect by a jury. It is a pity that justice is not given as a group of his release as well as humanity. What he had to do with former plots has nothing to do with the late uprising. Many of his co-conspirators and judges were his faithful followers in the plot that started the revolutionary era in Hawaii. Besides, in all the intervening movements in which he is believed to have had a hand, his avowed motive was to promote the cardinal policy of 1893-annexation of Hawaii to the United States."

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 20 1895.

The report of the royal commission on prohibition is being delivered as fast as the available freight cars in the country will permit. Part 42 of volumes 4 has arrived in Peterborough. This brings the story up to page 1452.

Outrages on little girls have again become chronic. Flogging is not a sufficient deterrent for this most despicable class of crime. It never will be checked until the heroic remedy once recommended by a York grand jury is applied.

The papers laid before Parliament in regard to the proposals for the admission of Newfoundland show that Canada has made the best offer she can afford to make. If the Newfoundlanders are not satisfied with what has been tendered they had better stay out.

The three factory inspectors employed by the Ontario Government all refer to the depression existing in manufacturing industries when their reports for '94 were being prepared. It is satisfactory to know, however, that the depression is passing away and that all over the country are signs that confidence and prosperity are returning.

Russia's answer to Great Britain's practical alliance with Japan for the purpose of preventing undue interference by the Czar in Jap-Chin settlement is immediate order to push Russian railways and forces toward the Indian frontier. The bear and lion may very soon be engaged in death grapple for supremacy in the East.

The neglect of Congress to vote the $25,000 which the United States Government has acknowledged to be due the Canadian sealers, and refusal of Great Britain to assist in compelling Canadian vessels to keep all arms under seal when hunting in Behring Sea, creates an unfortunate complication in the Pacific which may result in a state of friction similar to that which existed a few years ago and which so nearly caused the most serious consequences.

The case of the Toronto motorman, Bond, has been promptly decided by the supreme court of Canada, in favor of the motorman, and one of the judges did an unusual, but just, thing when he severely censured the weakly Toronto street car company for dragging the poor employee through court, to choke him off. The street railway company will now hand over $1,500 supreme court costs. Whether it will take the case to the "foot of the throne" remains to be seen.

If there were any lingering doubt about the value of the diphtheria antitoxine as a specific, it should be dispelled by the facts and statistics recently reported by Dr. Valentine Brown, health officer of Yonkers, and published in the Medical Record. The supply of the remedy was insufficient until the beginning of February, although a few cases were treated with the serum in November. During the two years immediately preceding 1893 the mortality from diphtheria in Yonkers was 50 per cent; in 1893 it was 47.36 per cent; in 1894 it was 34 per cent, the new remedy having been used during the last two months of last year. But in January the death-rate fell to 16.66 per cent, and it was only 12 per cent in February and March.

BY-LAW No. 1

Passed the.....day of.....1895

A By-law to Raise the Sum of $3,000, for building a Bridge at Auburn.

WHEREAS it is necessary to build a Bridge across the River Otonabee at Auburn in the Town of Peterborough, and for that purpose to raise by way of loan the sum of Three Thousand Dollars and to issue debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough therefor as hereinafter provided;

Electrical Treatment

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

Dear Sir:- We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment. When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the nape of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

Knights of Pythias Coming.

Baseball on May 24th.
The Danforth baseball team of Toronto, will play two games with the Peterboroughs on Queen's Birthday in Peterborough. It is understood that the P.A.A.A. grounds have been engaged for these matches.

A Cruel Act.
Some individual, who ought to be summarily dealt with, buried a large stone at Dr. Beatty's valuable setter dog, striking the animal and breaking one of its legs. The animal was greatly valued by Dr. Beatty, and he is justly indignant at the cruel and wanton deed. The perpetrator will be prosecuted if found out.

Burtch's Circus.
Burtch's new sensation pitched tents south of the custom house on Saturday and gave two performances, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. Owing to the wet weather they played to poor business. The show has several good acrobatic features. A high rope avocation in the afternoon was a daring piece of work and drew a crowd.

Anniversary Sermons.
Large congregations, both morning and evening, attended the anniversary services in St. Paul's Church yesterday. Both services were conducted by the Rev. G. M. Milligan, D. D., of Toronto, who delivered two powerful and intensely interesting sermons. Rev. Dr. Milligan is one of the most eminent divines in the Queen City, and his sermons yesterday were greatly edited and instructed.

The Trent Canal.
The Trent Valley Canal comprises Lake Simcoe, Balsam, Cameron, Sturgeon, Pigeon, Buckhorn, Stoney, Clear and Rice lakes, and when completed it will save a distance from Sault Ste. Marie to Kingston of 700 miles. It begins at Matchedash on the Georgian Bay, and outlets at Trenton. Its entire length when completed will be 354 miles, of which 164 miles is now completed and navigable, leaving only 190 miles. Of this 30 miles is now under contract, leaving only 160 miles to let.

A New Band.
A Tramp representative was invited up to the comfortable lodge rooms of Lansdowne Lodge, S. O. R. on Saturday night and had the pleasure of listening to the new band composed of the members of that flourishing lodge. The band consists of 15 instruments, and although only organized about two months ago already play several selections in excellent style. Mr. Pennington, an old and highly respected townsmen, is the able leader, and the progress the band has made is due largely to his indefatigable efforts. The lodge purchased the instruments with money contributed by the members, and in this respect, Mr. Wm. Taylor, who has taken a great interest in the new musical aggregation, is deserving of much credit for the effective aid rendered in securing the necessary amount. The Lansdowne band will be a prominent factor in musical events this summer.

AN ELOPEMENT.

A Married Man of Forty Ships Out with a 17-Year-Old Girl.

This town harbored an eloping couple last week, and it is possible that the entire pair—one a man, married and with a wife and three children, and the other, a 17-year-old girl—are still in Peterborough.

James Lindsay is the name of the man who eloped with his wife and family. He is well known in Peterborough, in business circles at least, for until 10 days or two weeks ago, he carried on the business of a general store in the village of Appleton. The girl, whom he induced to leave a comfortable home to go with him, is a Miss Wilson, the daughter of Hotelkeeper Wilson, of Appleton. She is also known in Peterborough, having visited here frequently.

The elopement took place on Sunday night, a week ago. On that evening the girl in the same building to a young man, who for several years had been an admirer of hers, that she would like to go for a drive. This young man joyfully acquiesced, and securing a rig presented himself at the hotel at the appointed hour. Several miles from Appleton Miss Wilson has a married sister living. On the drive out to the sister's place, and when they reached there, Miss Wilson declared she would remain there all night. The young man had no choice but to drive back to Appleton alone.

On the Saturday previous Lindsay came to Peterborough and from here he went to Lakefield. At Lakefield he hired a rig and drove to the home of the sister of the young man, and reached there shortly after Miss Wilson had arrived. The latter made her sister believe that she was going back to Appleton with Lindsay and the two left together.

Where they were between Sunday and Thursday is not known, but they reached Peterborough on Thursday and put up at one of the hotels in town. Lindsay took the rig around to Mosely's livery stable and left instructions to have it returned to its owner at Lakefield. It since transpires that he did not pay one cent for the four day's hire of the rig. The couple remained at the hotel until Friday and then left, but whether they took a train for other parts or secured private lodging in town, could not be learned.

The elopement was undoubtedly premeditated and well planned. About two weeks ago Lindsay sent out a young man, and transferred everything into cash. He left his wife without a cent and in most desolate circumstances to struggle on with the three children. The wife is in a delicate condition and is soon to become the mother of a fourth child. Mrs. Lindsay is the daughter of school trustee Brown of Appleton, and is now at the home of her parents.

THEY FISHED FOR BASS

And Inspector Breese Bore Down Upon Them With Their Catch.

Two well known young men in town, disregarding the fact that the close season for bass fishing was on, went fishing down the river Saturday afternoon, and it being a splendid afternoon for the purpose, they soon succeeded in landing a good mess of bass. When their bait gave out they wound up their lines and started back to town.

But if it was a good day for fish it proved to be a very unlucky day for fishermen. Inspector Breese, who by the way, is making a most vigilant inspection, happened to reach the locks at the same time as the young men. They were caught redhanded, for the bass lay uncovered in the bottom of their boat, and the eagle eye of the inspector took in the situation at a glance.

Both young men will appear before the magistrates this week and no doubt will be made to pay for their sport.

Inspector Breese reports that there is very little fishing being done in the day time, but considerable at night. He is making nightly trips down the river and the poachers had better beware.

SHARP CONVICTED.

He is the Man Who Was Shot by an Officer at Hastings.

Henry Sharp, the man who has at different times been the subject of stories at Hastings, a great deal of trouble, has been tried and convicted before Judge Benson at Cobourg.

Constable Wright, who is also a member of the Council, was the first to give evidence for the Crown. He told a story that at times was quite thrilling. When he saw Sharp coming out of the hotel, on the first of April, he went to him and attempted to arrest him. Sharp drew a knife, with a blade between three or four inches long, and made several passes at Wright, to keep him from making an arrest. The knife struck Wright across the wrist, cutting through his clothing to the skin, but did not make a serious wound. Sharp ran to his brother Sidney's house, with Constables Wright and Pellyblank following him. Before the constables could get an entrance to the house, Sharp had taken refuge in the attic, from which he refused to come down. He threw down some bricks, which he took from the chimney, one of them striking constable Wright on the head, and another striking constable Pellyblank on the forehead. Sharp's father, who was in the house, tried to get him down, but he refused to come out and give himself up, but he refused to shoot him, but intended to wound, fired at his left arm making a flesh wound, still Sharp would not come out and defend the constables to shoot again. Wright fired the second time, grazing the thigh, and yet Sharp refused to give himself up. Wright then fired the third shot striking him in the thigh, and the wound caused him to weaken and he surrendered.

From the time Wright first undertook to arrest Sharp until he gave himself up, was about two hours. The constables, on appeal from the prisoner's counsel for leniency, gave the prisoner some sound advice, and told him also, that if he had sufficient money to meet his wife and children, he would have given him the full penalty of the law. The Judge sentenced him to six months in the Central Prison at Cobourg.

Wright. He was also charged with resisting and wounding constables Shapier and Londerville, in June of the same year. (It was for this offence that constable Wright was trying to arrest him), for each of the two latter offences he got three months, to run concurrently with the first six. Mr. J. W. Kerr, for the Crown; Wm. Kerr, Q. C., and Mr. W. P. Kerr for the defence.

Warden Pearce, of Peterborough, and County Engineer, John Belcher, were in the city on Monday evening. They were making an inspection of the bridge—Bobbycayon Independent.

Robert Orde, drunk and disorderly, was fined two dollars and costs, amounting to $5.50 Saturday morning by the magistrate. A revolver was in the man's possession when arrested, but as he had merely brought it into town in order to get some cartridges for it, and the report of one of his sons, no charge was laid against him on this ground.

The Union Bank of Newfoundland is defunct, but a rather shabby dressed stranger of the day tendered a $10 bill of that institution in payment for a five cent drink to a bartender, and received $9.95 in good Canadian money. As there may be more of these bank notes around, it would be well to carefully examine all money received from strangers.

The woodchuck out into the sunshine crawls; the tom cat scales the woodshed roof and the rooster struts about his partner and are woe; the old hens rake the last year's lettuce bed; the wife wails out the winter's smoke and dust; the husband tumbles on the kitchen pot; the house fly comes out from his warm retreat; the tramp starts out for his weary way to beat; all nature too new life now seems to rise and a loudly yell, "It is time to advertise."

The present cold weather brings to mind the terribly cold time in June, 1890—a frost on the nights of the 5th, 6th and 8th of June. It was a very unusual occurrence on the 6th; the execution was public and those who attended it suffered most extremely and will remember it all their lives. Another cold one on the 17th. Everything was blighted—apples were as large as walnuts and all fell off the trees; clover in bloom, and fields of waving grain were in a few days like plowed fields, and wheat never matured. It was a terrible year for the farmers and fruit growers.

Illegal Fishing.
Mr. Fitzgerald the Fishery Inspector, was in the neighborhood during the week, paying his attentions to the parties who are operating maskinonge. A visit to Noyaga Creek was productive of several fines of $5. The Inspector might well organize a special raid upon Emily Creek, and Pleasant Creek. There is not the slightest doubt that illegal fishing is being carried on to a very large extent. Some years ago a raid was made around these lakes, that cleared out the maskinonge and illegal appliances so clearly that for several seasons after there were scarcely any infractions of the law. Through absence of any patrol the appliances have been renewed again, and another thorough raid is much needed.—Bobbycayon Independent.

IS HE A MURDERER?

A Tramp who Claims he Killed a Chinaman and Knows who Shot Cressley.

McDonald, the name of the last of the four tramps captured last Friday afternoon, it is thought, is wanted in Hamilton county on none less than the serious charge of murder. A Chinaman was the victim, and McDonald is believed by some to be the man who committed the deed. He has been hanging around Peterborough for some time and has told a certain party in town that he once killed a Chinaman, but he said he done it in California. The story he told was that he was stealing a ride on a train and espied a Chinaman riding on the brake beam. He immediately commenced kicking the poor hostler in the head until the latter became insensible and relaxing his hold fell underneath the wheels and was killed to death. He told this story with great gusto and boasted that he had killed several Chinamen.

McDonald also claimed that he knew who shot Cressley, who was shot by a tramp about a year ago. At the time the police were driving a large number of the weary Willies out of town.

McDonald came from Pembroke and the police are keeping him in custody, pending an investigation into his life in that place. No doubt the information contained in this item will be of value to them.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

The Weather.

Probe: Moderate west to north winds; fair and cool today; fine and a little warmer tomorrow.

Rural Denary.

The rural denary met yesterday in St. John's. Last night the Rev. Mr. Gibson, of Norwood, preached to a large congregation in St. John's.

Deputations to Toronto.

Deputations from the town council and Board of Trade will go to Toronto at 7:30 this morning in the interest of manufacturing industries for Peterborough.

At A. Clegg's.

Pillowcase holders, the best made. Carpet stretchers that you can use, easy working and satisfactory. Mattresses, spring beds, pillows, &c. A full stock in every line of furniture at bottom prices. A. Clegg, 472 George street.

Yesterday Afternoon's Fire.

The fire brigade yesterday afternoon was called to a fire that broke out at the corner of King and Louis streets, which was found to be in a frame house, occupied by Mr. Joseph Young and owned by Mr. George Edmondson. The fire was in the ceiling, but by what means it got there it is not known. The loss was small.

Will Be Tried Thursday.

McDonald, the tramp, who has been in police custody for some days, and who, as intimated in yesterday's issue, is thought to have a very bad record, will be given a hearing before the Police Magistrate on Thursday. A large number of witnesses have been summoned for the case. If McDonald is the man the police think he is, they have made a clever capture.

Here's a Hog Trick.

Whitby Chronicle.—Considerable indignation was manifested in Port Perry last Friday when it became known that the G.T.R. had issued a time table ordering Conductor White, Engineer Hamilton, and Messrs. Drummond, Elliott, Campbell and Babcock, to Lindsey, to enable the company to start an early train from that town to run through by Port Perry to Toronto. Our citizens find no fault with Lindsey people getting all the favors they can, but we do not desire it to be done at our town's expense, and it practically means about 20 people removing from Port Perry. It is said some of those with families intend to remove for a time, waiting to see if the new arrangements work satisfactorily to all concerned.

Railway Notes.

On Wednesday a Grand Trunk detective arrested a lad named Edward Myers, charged with driving a spike in the metal which might have thrown a train off if it had not been discovered. The lad was taken to Barrie for trial. The Grand Trunk Railway smashed all previous records of live stock from Chicago to Buffalo. A train of eight cars of horses left Chicago at 6:30 p.m., eastern standard time. Thursday, and arrived in Buffalo at 9:30 a.m., Friday, making the run of 500 miles in 15 hours and 25 minutes. The train ran from Chicago to Port Huron in 9 hours and 10 minutes, and from the Canadian side of the tunnel to Buffalo in 6 hours and 53 minutes. The one hour and 40 minutes was due to car and customs inspection at Port Huron and Bridgeburg (International Bridge).

BOARD OF TRADE.

A largely attended general meeting of the Board of Trade was held last night in the Council Chamber at which the newly elected president, Mr. B. Shortly, presided. Among the principal business transacted was the appointment of the following deputation, which will go to Toronto this morning, and with a deputation from the Council will visit several manufacturing industries with a view of entering into negotiations for their removal to Peterborough. The deputation consists of Messrs. Davis, Fair, Carnegie, Shultz, Ackerman, Meldrum, McWilliams, Manson, Dennistoun and Stratton.

A communication was received from the Montreal Board of Trade requesting the Board to lend its aid in securing the appointment of Customs experts, by sending a petition to the member to Parliament for this district. The matter was referred to the mercantile committee with power to act.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

To the President and Members of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

GENTLEMEN.—Your Committee appointed by the Board of Trade to strike the standing committees and Council for the year 1895-96, beg leave to report that the following members are recommended for that purpose.

COUNCIL.—W. Mason, chairman, and Messrs. P. Campbell, H. Lefran, R. Gough, D. H. Moore, H. Fair, G. Schofield, H. S. Macdonald, MacFarlane Wilson, R. Mulholland, T. F. Matthews, Dr. A. Rose, Robert Innis, D. W. Dumble and W. H. Hamilton.

MANUFACTURERS.—Mr. Robert Fair, chairman, and Messrs. G. McWilliams, J. Carnegie, J. Kendry, J. M. Irwin, B. F. Ackerman, T. Brook, R. H. Hamilton, W. H. Meldrum and J. D. Gough.

COMMERCE AND MUNICIPALITY.—Mr. D. W. Dumble, chairman, and Messrs. R. H. McKee, T. E. Bradburn, R. Hamilton, W. G. Morrow, H. Cash, H. Mulholland, and J. H. Burnham.

RAILWAY AND CANALS.—Mr. R. Mulholland, chairman, and Messrs. T. F. Matthews, J. R. Stratton, J. M. Irwin, J. K. Belcher, G. W. Ranney, and R. B. Rogers.

BOARD OF ARBITRATION.

Mr. J. M. Irwin, chairman, and Messrs. H. S. Macdonald, D. W. Dumble, P. Campbell, J. R. Stratton, D. H. Moore and R. H. Kells.

The Board of Arbitration was formally elected by ballot and the report was adopted as read.

A WEDNESDAY MARKET.

The matter of urging upon the railroads the desirability of a reduced rate for a Wednesday market was again discussed at some length. It was deemed expedient to treat direct with the head offices of both roads at Montreal, and on motion of Mr. G. McWilliams a petition will be circulated amongst the merchants, shopkeepers and importers of the town for signature; this petition, accompanied by a letter from the Board will be presented to the proper officials at Montreal by Mr. T. F. Matthews, who will be in Montreal next week. It was further urged upon the Board who did extensive shipping, when in Montreal, to call upon the passenger agents and press the matter.

MACHINERY EXEMPTION.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum brought up the question of the exemption of machinery from taxation. He thought the Board should treat with the Council. The question was discussed at some length by the members, and by Councillor Sprague and Dawson who were present. On motion of Mr. H. S. Macdonald, the matter was referred to the Council of the Board and it was understood it would meet with their immediate attention.

A SUCCESSFUL CONCERT.

Praise Service in Connection with St. Paul's Anniversary.

A most pleasing and thoroughly enjoyable affair was the praise service and concert held in St. Paul's church last night. A large audience was welcomed with the splendid singing and instrumental music. The program rendered was as follows:

Doxology—Congregation. Prayer—Rev. Dr. Torrance.

Mrs. Hanson (of New York).
Anthem: "How long wilt thou forget Me?" Phoenix.
Misses Montgomery and Peterson and the choir.

A BUTCHER ON ICE.

A Lindsay Meat Merchant Locks Himself in a Refrigerator.

Mr. Sam. Williamson, butcher, had an unpleasant experience yesterday when he locked himself in the Lindsay Post. When the hour arrived for closing he began removing the meats to the cold storage room in the rear of the shop, and after making a couple of visits to the door, fitted with a spring lock, happened to close behind him, making him a prisoner. For the first quarter of an hour he waited patiently, expecting one of his customers to return; after that he elevated the collar of his vest (his coat was in the front shop) and wished to heaven it was July; half an hour later, when chilled to the very marrow of his bones, with his face glued to the small window looking out towards the sidewalk, he espied Dr. Lynch in conversation with a friend directly in front of the shop window.

Chastened by the sight and feeling certain of a speedy release, he uttered a shrill "halloo!" but the sound failed to penetrate the walls of the refrigerator—at any rate Dr. Lynch did not hasten to his rescue. The desire to get out at last triumphed over his fear of ridicule, and he shouted at the top of his voice, uttering yells that would have put a Comanche scalping party to the blush, but still Dr. Lynch talked away unconcernedly and never turned his head to look inside. Finally our young friend, realizing that it was a question of life or death, smashed the window sash and crawled through. He is now willing to wager any amount that if he could escape in three minutes, his refrigerator can do the trick in about half the time.

Paine's Celery Compound Saves a Well-Known Norfolk County Farmer

Completely Cured After Four of the Best Doctors had Failed.

Few men in Norfolk County, Ontario, are better or more favorably known than Mr. Joseph Holston, of Nixon. This gentleman, some time ago, was in such an extremely alarming condition of health, that relatives and friends were fearful of results. Four skilled physicians did all that for the sick man that could be done, but a cure was beyond their best efforts. Providentially, Mr. Holston was induced to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial, with the result that sickness and disease were banished, and a valuable life saved to the community. Mr. Holston, who writes for the benefit of suffering men and women, has statements rendered for by two well-known Methodist ministers, Rev. T. H. Clark, of Delhi, and Rev. D. Williams, of Nixon.

Mr. Holston says:—"It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony to the ever increasing popularity of your preparation known as Paine's Celery Compound. It is now a year past since I had a severe attack of nervous prostration caused by chronic dyspepsia, and for a year I could not sleep at night. This condition of sleeplessness brought on delirium. I was attended by four of the best doctors of the country, and took a great quantity of medicine, but all failed to me any good. Having been persuaded to read your book I thought I would try your Paine's Celery Compound; and after I had used four bottles the nervousness and dyspepsia left me. I have done more work since than for years past. I now enjoy excellent health and consider myself completely cured. I have highly recommended your Paine's Celery Compound to others, and I know of several persons who are now using it."

IT WILL BE A BIG AFFAIR.

With 15,000 Orangemen in the Procession Unlimited Enthusiasm Will Prevail.

There is every prospect that the biggest Twelfth of July celebration ever held in any district will come off in Orillia on the 12th of July. District Recorder Fletcher says 300 lodges have been invited to celebrate the Twelfth in Orillia, and replies accepting the invitation are pouring in from all points. Among the districts which will have signified their intention to be there are Lindsay and Peterborough, which contain from 70 to 80 lodges; Bracebridge, Huntsville and Gravenhurst districts will also turn out in force. South Simcoe, it is expected, will be well represented. It can be safely estimated that from 13,000 to 15,000 Orangemen and True Blues will take part in this monster procession. Nothing will be left undone by the local lodges to provide accommodation and contribute to the comfort of the visiting Orangemen. Special excursion trains will be run from all central points, and reduced rates will be given on all regular trains.

An American college baseball team will make a tour in Ontario this summer, and will likely strike Peterborough in July next.

Page's fence colored baseball players will be in Peterborough on June 18. The date having been changed on account of the bicycle races on the 17th of that month. JEWELL, CITY, N.J., May 18.—The cases against the Gutterburg "Big Four," who were sentenced to one year's imprisonment and a fine of $500, were finally settled in the Hudson County Court house this morning. Justice Dixon stated that the fine of $500 would have to be paid immediately or the men would be committed to jail. William McDermott then handed the check for $2,700 to the clerk of the court. This now ends the case.

CANADA'S FAVORITE PIANO.

The old adage, that an article of reliable manufacture is always the cheapest in the end, holds good in anything purchased, but it is especially true when the purchase involves a lot of dollars. Take a piano: If a mistake is made, and an instrument is bought that gives out in a short time, the amount lost by this unwise purchase is considerable. Does not the hint come home to every sensible reader of THE TIMES, when the name of the reliable house of Heintzman & Co., of Toronto, there will be no after-regrets for the step taken. This house has had nearly fifty years of practical experience in piano making. Every member of the firm is a practical piano manufacturer. The firm is one of the most up to date concerns in the country, constantly adding improvements to their instruments. Indeed the piano command themselves, as already over twelve thousand are in use in Canada today. We can hardly say more in answer to the enquiry that frequently comes to us. Where can I get the best piano?

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED

to kneading dough on the old-fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has having some means and plenty of activity, invented a metal breadboard, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is made of metal, and is so constructed as to adhere to it and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble breadboard it is much easier to handle, and of course, far lighter and easier to use. It is a complete revolution in the way of kneading dough, and will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturer, 101 Bury Street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

D. F. MCCARTHY'S STORY.

AN ENGINEER WHO HEARD SOUNDS IN THE HYAMS' CELLAR.

Spoke About Them—A Witness Gives Good Evidence for the Defence—Heard Through a Hole in the Wall Which Divided Two Cellars.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, May 21.—A good day's work was done by the defence to begin with, the medical evidence being better than that of the Crown in a number of particulars.

The evidence of the men who testified left nothing to be desired. All were surgical experts in constant practice at the hospital, and they all agreed in their evidence. Their opinion was that all the injuries were inflicted by one crushing blow, and that there was no evidence showing that Wells had received two blows. One of the peculiarities of the case is that both prosecution and defence claim that the blows were struck by the former held that the blows were struck by some instrument which stretched Wells senseless on the ground, where the weight was dropped over onto his skull, killing him. The defence says that the weight fell on Wells while he was looking up at the ceiling, and that the weight was actually seen and heaved the weight up hanging by the point of the hook. When in this position it stuck in the weight shaft.

MODEL OF THE ELEVATOR.

The model of the fatal elevator was the first thing which caught the eye as one entered the court room this morning. Geo. Moyer, the man who built it, was called to tell about it. He did so and was afterwards examined by Mr. Oler, who elicited the fact that the principle of the elevator was exactly the same as the one in the Hyams' cellar.

David Collier, Moyer's foreman, followed, and in the door, drew from the pocket a small piece of wood, which he said was made by himself and said that in width the elevator was half size, but in height it was of course out of proportion. He went on to describe the details of the machine with the manner of one who glows over his creation.

SAW THE DEAD BODY.

Robert O. Preston was the next to kiss the book. He is an elderly, clever-looking man with a clean-shaven face and a very grave of a Scotch overcoat. He stated that he was a bookkeeper by calling, but was out of work. He had worked in that capacity for 15 years, for the Montreal Telegraph Company, three years at the Hyams' hotel, where he afterwards kept the cigar store. He testified that he was with his son on Sunday, January 15, and remembered the visit to the warehouse. He waited outside for sometime after his son went in, then being cold he went inside and saw a man lying on the floor. He saw a young man with strong spectacles, came from somewhere. Upon being shown a likeness of Wells, he said that he was very like the man he saw.

A STRANGE STORY.

Then the defence sprung another surprise in the Crown in the evidence of D. F. McCarthy, who told a strange story. He said that in 1902 and 1903 he was engineer and stockkeeper for J. D. Nashe, a man who lived in the Hyams' cellar next to that occupied by Hyams. The wall about 18 inches thick divided the cellar and in that wall was a hole about three feet wide near the top. It was boarded over by a board and had been made to admit Nashe's steam pipes.

Having described his hours, duties and the hours of the help, he said that on the morning of the accident he was in the cellar getting out stock somewhere about nine o'clock. He heard sounds in the Hyams' cellar as he often had before. He was sure that he heard whistling and a sound like that of a steam locomotive. He did not know how long it was afterwards he heard a quick, dull thud followed by a crash.

HEARD NO WHISTLING.

After that he heard no whistling. Fifteen minutes later he heard a loud cry which sounded like "Willie, or 'Wells," he thought.

Sometimes he again heard footsteps. When he went upstairs he spoke to Manager Haggie and James Rosevear after hearing about the accident. Having given a history of his movements and occupied whenever he looked across.

He did not prove very tractable under cross-examination, being either dull or incoherent on the evidence. He returned to Toronto from Detroit last March to see his family, his wife being sick and has been doing but little since, not having earned more than $10. The first person to come to the attention of the jury was the father-in-law. After this Mr. Oler began to test his memory which did not return to a good one. He did not remember the accident, when he left the Hyams' cellar, when he started up in the grocery business, when he failed, or how much the estate paid on the dollar.

As the cross examination proceeded however, his memory grew better and finally the Crown dropped that line and took up the cellar incident.

Mr. Oler led McCarthy over his story from every point—north, south, east and west, beginning, middle or end, but he did not shake the witness in his former statements or change the chronological sequence of the events.

THERE WERE YEARS IN MCCARTHY'S EYES.

The Crown's counsel finally changed his tactics and asked McCarthy if he had been dismissed from Nashe's for drunkenness and received a flat denial for an answer. Then Mr. Oler left him alone and it cannot be said that he made much of him

SCHEMES OF PAWNROKERS.

How a Barber Paid a Quarter to Lock on a Glass "Diamond."

A young knight of the razor in Lexington avenue told me that he had been swindled out of $3 by one man and out of $5 cents by a pawnbroker. He was having a customer a week or so ago when a seadily smiling man, named "Diamond," came in and offered him a watch, a diamond ring and smaller amounts on other articles.

"He offered to let me have the tickets for $3, and I thought if a pawnbroker would advance $30 on a watch it must surely be worth three times as much. Pawnbrokers, I know, only advance one-third of the value of goods at most. So I paid him the $3, and the next day I went to the pawnbroker's shop."

"I may be green, but that watch couldn't be fake. It was of brass, thinly washed with gold and worth about $4. That pawnbroker must have hired the man to take the tickets around, for he wouldn't have given $1 on that timepiece. I wouldn't pay $30 and interest to get it out, and I am out $3."

"It wasn't long after that that I had evidence these pawnbrokers stand in with these men. A shabby individual came in here and told a story of misfortune. He had been compelled to pawn a diamond ring, he said, for $35. It was half a carat diamond, he said, and he showed me a ticket. He said I could inspect it, and I wanted before buying the ticket, so I went with him to a pawnbroker's near Seventy-fifth street."

"Here's a man to see that ring," he said to the pawnbroker, handing him the ticket.

"I'll show you the ring if you give me 50 cents," said the pawnbroker.

"I told the pawnbroker I wouldn't give 50 cents to see the ring, but I offered him a quarter, and he showed me the ring. It was one of those glass affairs that you can buy for 10 cents in the Bowery. I wouldn't buy it and left, but he had my quarter, and I have heard of other quarters he has made in the same way. It's a pretty easy way to make money—exhibiting 10 cent rings for a quarter a light."

While I was in the barber shop a man entered and wanted to sell a pair of tickets for a pair of trousers for $1, but no one would buy.—New York Herald.

THE TEA HABIT.

Tea Drinking Causes Neuritis, Dyspepsia and Reduced Complexion.

Tea drinking as a habit is very much on the increase throughout the country, and women who have fallen into the way of taking a cup three or four times a day would do well to be warned in time against the insidious influence, says the New York Sun. Two cups of good tea in all the average feminine system can readily assimilate in 24 hours, and the usual result is to the woman of overacidity in her daily cups is apt to take the form of neuritis and common dyspepsia that injures the best complexion.

In extreme cases very frequent among women of the lower classes in England and Ireland, where thousands of pounds of very inferior grades of tea are always bottled long and hard before considered fit for drinking, effects as serious as from alcohol have been discovered, and yet the medical commissioners who inquired into this lamentable state of affairs contend that tea as a steady tipple would be robbed of half its ugly effects if always properly brewed and drunk hot, with very little sugar. It is more difficult to see, without any salt or cream, and the whole secret of its proper making lies in never permitting the boiling water more than an instant's contact with the leaves.

Nothing, if women only know it, is more indigestible than the cups of tepid oversteeped fluid they sip at contentedly during a half dozen receptions of an afternoon in winter, that, shame be it to hostesses, is too often the only refreshment they offer.

Chinese Street Smells.

The foul smells of the streets of Canton are to my mind greatly exaggerated. But it is no doubt a city of many odors, strange and various. The houses being generally open to the streets for almost their whole front and the greater part of the town being roofed in, vapors from cooking continually fill the covered ways. Strictly speaking, few smells from the process of food preparation are pleasant, and to European nostrils the odors from Chinese cook pots are certainly unpalatable. Imagine Shore-dish, White-cash and Wapping composed into the narrowest avenues, covered in overhead, with all the houses open at the front, with cookery going on in every house at the same time within a few feet of the pavement where every one walks. Conjure up, as a setting for these culinary vapors, a moist, sweltering heat, an atmosphere heavy with the mingled odors of incense, joss sticks, opium, sandalwood, Chinese cabbage, strange roots and vegetables, which fill the place of our onions and garlic, wood smoke and vapors from fried fish shops, and add to the conglomerate smell thus obtained an occasional reek of a stagnant drain or a public latrine, then possibly it will be understood how in Canton there are strange pervading odors which are perhaps more trying to a foreigner than would be any definite nastiness.—In the City of Canton in Century.

Queen Victoria's Sham Rubies.

Real rubies are scarce. Most of the stones in use are shams. Even the queen of England cherished a pair of imitations. They were, after great trouble and large expense, exhibited in the London exposition of 1863 and proved to be merely spinels. When a customer goes to a reliable dealer and asks to see some rubies, he is asked, "How much are you willing to pay?" There is one ruby in a New York shop. It weighs most of the beauty in the safe. Anybody with $5,000 can have it. Rubies are full of sentiment. It is the supposition that they give the wearer health and a happy frame of mind. Rubies were among the delights of King Solomon. Lapidaries say that he got hold of all the fine stones, and since his day the supply has steadily diminished.—Philadelphia Times.

The Jeweler's Curse.

The curse is a standard used by the jeweler to express both weight and fineness. When it is used as a weight, it is equal to four grains, or the one hundred and twentieth part of an ounce troy. In determining the fineness of precious metals 24 carats is considered the highest standard of purity. According to this standard, an 18 carat gold ring contains three parts of gold and one of some base metal.—St. Louis Republic.

Delaware river and bay were named after Lord de la Warr, who was the first governor with Captain Samuel Argall on a voyage of discovery about 1610.

IT WAS A FAKE.

A Stuffed Figure and Not Toronto Red Did the Bridge Jumping Act.

Special to the Times.

New York, May 22.—The Sun this morning says:—John Thomas Tremaine, known on the Bowery as "Toronto Red," the Buffalo newsboy, who once before made a desperate effort to convince people that he had jumped from the Brooklyn bridge, made a huge bluff at going through the performance yesterday morning. At 5:10 o'clock somebody threw a stuffed figure from the bridge and it fell into the river with a splash. It looked about as much like a man as a hat rack might, but, nevertheless, in a few seconds the men in the row boat pulled Toronto Red out of the river. He was wet, and the reporters were asked if that was not evidence. The police did not think it worth their while to arrest "Red." A friend of "Red's," named Hoolahan, started across the bridge in a cab about ten minutes before the object fell, and he was suspected of having thrown it over, he was arrested.

LUCKY OSCAR.

He Will Probably Not Be Tried Until the Next Criminal Court.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, May 22.—Well filled was the Old Bailey Court today at 11 o'clock when Justice Wills, accompanied by the Lord Mayor of London, Right Hon. Sir Joseph Bessant, and several Aldermen, took his seat upon the bench, preparatory to the commencement of the second trial of Oscar Wilde, who is charged with serious misdemeanors. Wilde had previously been driven to the Old Bailey. He was accompanied by Lord Douglas, of Hawick, and the Rev. Stewart Headlam, his two bondsmen.

Sir Edward Clarke, Q. C., counsel for Wilde, immediately made an elaborate argument in favor of having Wilde tried separately. The judge agreed to this and decided to try the first case.

It is now probable that Wilde's case will go over until the next session of the Central Criminal Court, and there is evidently but a slight chance of his conviction.

A COSTLY FIRE.

An International Wharf and Freight Shed Destroyed.

Special to the Times.

HALIFAX, May 20.—Fire early this morning destroyed the long wharf, freight sheds and coal pier at Richmond. Since the international terminus was burned Richmond has been the busy center, and now that the international property there is gone it means great inconvenience to shipping. The pier was repaired only a few years ago at a cost of $75,000. The cause of the conflagration is unknown, but there are indications of incendiarism. The total loss is estimated at a quarter of a million dollars. Being Dominion property there was no insurance. The Canadian Co. lost $4,400, without insurance. Besides cattle they lost two cars of hay and two of feed.

A BLOODY CONFLICT.

Mexican Army Which Ends in the Slaughter of 20 Men.

Special to the Times.

EL PASO, May 20.—Information was received here last night of a bloody revolt which broke out in a settlement between the two towns Cuervo and Tarragona, in the state of Chihuahua. Merely a few days ago. The trouble began when the natives attacked a surveying party under C. P. Morrison, and killed 20 men. The affair was reported to the commander of the Mexican troops at Parral, who started a detachment of 100 men to the scene.

TWO ASSENTMINDED INDIVIDUALS.

One Forgot His Invitation, and the Other Forgot His Wife.

An absentminded person can spread chaos all around, but when two absentminded people try to work together may heaven help the poor creatures upon whom the consequences fall. A prominent lawyer from an inland city met in London a distinguished British author, whom he invited to visit him during a tour of America, already planned. The lawyer came back home and shortly forgot all about his English friend and his own invitation, but was reminded of both, in good time, by a letter announcing the date of the celebrated Briton's arrival. This, too, he forgot in a few minutes, and when the appointed day came it found him living in a shut up house, getting his meals where he could, while his wife made an extended round of visits among her relatives.

When the distinguished visitor drove up to the house on the evening of the day set in his letter, he met a single servant, who explained that the master was at a club meeting, over two miles away, and would be back about midnight. Sending his wife, who was tired and ill, back to the railway station, the Englishman started in pursuit of his delinquent host. The latter was found with a company of pleasant people, to whom the great author was promptly introduced, and the two absentminded friends finished up the evening at the club meeting, forgetting all about their lack of suitable quarters for the night and poor Mrs. Distinguished Author sitting in the railway station.

When the meeting broke up in the small hours, they recalled those awkward circumstances and rescued the weary woman, whose comments upon the situation did not reach me. Then they drove to the home of one of the lawyer's relatives, who kindly got them all to bed before dawn.—Kate Field's Washington.

The Tongue.

The perfectly healthy tongue is clean, moist, lies loosely in the mouth, is round at the edge and has no prominent papillae. The tongue may be furrowed from local causes or from sympathy with the stomach, intestines or liver.

The dry tongue occurs most frequently in fever and indicates a nervous prostration or depression. A white tongue is diagnostic as a sign of the feverish condition, with perhaps a discolored stomach. When it is moist and yellowish brown, it shows disordered digestion. Dry and brown indicates a low state of the system. When the tongue is dry and red and smooth, look out for inflammation, gastric or intestinal. When the papillae on the end of the tongue are raised and very red, we call it a strawberry tongue, and that may mean scarlet fever. A sharp, pointed red tongue will point to brain irritation or inflammation, and a yellow coating indicates liver derangement.—Family Herald.

Dinner.

"I hear," said the clam, "that you are going in for Claret and champagne." "You have been misinformed," averred the oyster. "It is church socialism that I expect to figure in."—Indianapolis Journal.

Concord, N. H., was originally called by an Indian name, Musketacook, "Dead Stream." It was changed to Rumford in honor of a prominent settler, then to the present name in honor of the settlement of an old land dispute.

Cleaning Pots and Pans.

A woman naturally hates to clean up a bread or cake bowl after the dough has got hard. They should be cleaned as soon as used, but if necessary to leave them for a time run the tray or bowl full of cold water and let it stand so. When you get ready to clean it, the dough will be in the bottom of the utensil as a general thing, and you will only have to rinse and dry it. The same is true of kettles and skillets. I do not approve of setting any utensils aside when the dishes are washed, for if you keep an oyster shell with a thick, smooth edge at hand you can clean the roughness out of anything in half a moment, but if you don't want to do it just then you will find that an iron pot in which potatoes have been boiled to the bottom, or a skillet in which meat or gravy has simmered to a crust, will be easy enough to clean after standing an hour or two filled with cold water.

Worry and Cooking.

More than half of a housekeeping woman's time is spent in worrying and a good share of the other half in preparing food, as though the stomach were the immortal part of us. Take one-quarter of the time a woman devotes to making pies, preparing puddings, putting up preserves, baking cakes and frying, etc., and let her devote it to rest and recreation, and she would not look like a slave of parchment paper at 40. It is the nonessentials that kill us. We must learn to simplify before we can escape the doom of premature age. Nature never intended us to live as we do. If she meant us to eat puff pastry, she would have given it to us on some other tree. She has provided simple food in the shape of cereals, fruits and vegetables, and if we conform ourselves more closely to her established order of diet we should be a happier and harder race.—New York Telegram.

Filling Up a Window.

An excellent way of filling up an unnecessary window, or one that looks out on an ugly view, is to have the lower part built out into a small alcove, lined with plush, with a small shelf running round it and brackets for china. At the back a little window is covered with gilded fretwork, and in the front a space is left which can be filled up as the owner desires. One of the advantages is that light is not excluded from the top of the window or from the top of the alcove, so that it would be especially suitable for the small libraries where the back window looks out on a meadow, and yet where light is distinctly needed.

Keeping Young.

American women might learn an advantageous lesson of their French sisters in the art of keeping young. But it is no recipe for cosmetics that they would acquire. First of all, French women do not worry, or if they do, they conceal the fact admirably. They are apparently on the crest of the wave of good fortune perpetually. Next, and almost equally important, they decline to hurry. They take life moderately, perform their duties without haste and linger over their pleasures. And in these two simple rules lies a mine of wealth for her who is wise enough to appropriate it.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Black Rope Design.

Black rope is often used to embroider the designs stamped on pillows and tablespreads of colored linen or denim. It is particularly effective on old pink or shades of olive, and if the articles are to be used in a sitting room is often preferred to white embroidery silk or linen floss. Outlining the design thus worked in black, a fine gold cord or thread is sometimes added to brighten the work.

READ WHAT PHYSICIANS SAY OF POND'S EXTRACT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29, 1894. I have used "Pond's Extract" for many years and always insist upon my patients getting "Pond's," not the ordinary Extract, which is often a very poor article. W. K. BROWN, M. D.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, 1895. I use Pond's Extract a great deal in my practice. I think it very valuable in all venous enlargements. J. L. BRADFORD, M. D.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894. I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of druggists insisting they can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. I use Pond's Extract a great deal as an antiseptic in combination with glycerine and carbolic acid. I think it far superior to any antiseptic known. F. G. FLOURNOY, M. D.

COLUMBIA, PA., Jan. 18, 1895. I have been a constant user of Pond's Extract since 1852, and do not expect to discontinue it while I live. S. ARMOR, M. D.

CHELSEA, MASS., Nov. 8, 1894. I have made diseases of the skin a specialty for thirty years, and am free to say I know of no remedy that has given me such perfect satisfaction as Pond's Extract in cases for which it is recommended.

G. W. BABCOCK, M. D. ASTHMA'S INSTITUTE, Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 8, 1894. I know Pond's Extract to be a valuable remedy, and shall continue its use whenever the opportunity offers.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 13, 1894. I am pleased with the purity and strength of Pond's Extract. J. L. DURYEE, M. D.

SATISFACTORY REPLIES.

A marked increase in the sale of the New Specific Remedy.

DETROIT, Mich., May 21.—City druggists here report a great number of enquiries with regard to the specific remedy for Bright's disease, diabetes and all forms of kidney complaint, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. A partial investigation has shown that in every case the reply of the druggists to the questions of their customers have been highly laudatory of the remedy, and that they have been able to cite many cases from their own personal knowledge where the most fatal ailments have been derived from its use. The result has been a very marked increase in the number of sales made, and several unusually large orders have been given.

LATEST FROM MONTREAL.

What is Transpiring in Canada's Big Metropolis.

MONTREAL, May 21.—Mr. Napoleon Tarte, a well known farmer of Lanoraie, and a brother of Mr. J. Israel Tarte, M. P. for L'Islet, died yesterday morning at his home under somewhat painful circumstances. Mr. Tarte was a man of robust constitution, about 40 years of age, and enjoyed generally good health. He had lately been troubled with a bilious trouble, and his friends advised him to take a course of purgative medicine. He consulted Dr. St. Germain, the local physician, who prescribed for him. Mr. Tarte, suffering becoming more intense, Dr. Beausoleil, of Montreal, was sent for, but when he arrived it was found impossible to do anything for the patient, who continued to suffer until he was released by death at an early hour yesterday morning. Mr. Tarte, M. P., was at his brother's bedside until the end.

THE UNKNOWN DEAD.
The morgue contains the body of a woman awaiting identification. At 13 minutes to ten she was crossing Charlotte street at St. Catherine, when she was seen to fall to the sidewalk. The general hospital ambulance was sent for and the woman placed in it, but before she could reach the institution she expired in the vehicle. The body was at once taken to the morgue. It is supposed that the woman died from heart disease. She body is that of a somewhat tall woman, apparently about 40 years old and rather thin. It was attired in a dark dress with a black hat and a black waterproof. The coroner has been notified.

STREET RAILWAY CONVENTION.
Mr. Granville C. Cunningham, manager of the Montreal Street Railway Company, returned yesterday morning from New York, where he had been attending a meeting of the executive committee of the American Street Railway Company. He told a Times reporter yesterday that the prospects for a large attendance at the Street Railway convention, to be held here this year, were up to the mark. "There will be fully eleven hundred people present," said Mr. Cunningham. "This, of course, includes friends of the delegates." Colonel Partridge, of Brooklyn, has been appointed secretary pro tem. The final appointment to be made when the convention meets. The Association will open for business on October 15th, and continue until the 18th.

THE PROPOSED BIG FAIR.
A meeting of the executive of Canada's proposed international exhibition, to which the Government has recently refused to grant a bonus, has been called for Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Stiles, in speaking to a representative of the Times yesterday, said that personally he was in favor of going right ahead, but then, as he put it, he was only one member of the committee. He also felt sure, he said, that the Government would award the medals and diplomas, they would cost but little and would only have to be awarded a year hence. The committee meeting this afternoon, however, will decide as to what course will be pursued.

The convicts in the penitentiaries of Canada numbered 1,223 at the close of the last fiscal year.

Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and disease had gone so far that her weight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. PETERBOROUGH, MAY 20 1895.

THE LEECHES O COMMERCE.

Men who admit publicly that they lend money at the rate of two per cent. a month and upwards says the Toronto Telegram, seem to have no idea that they are in a business which ought to be forbidden by law and punished with severe penalties.

Toronto has too many of these money lenders. They pretend that the timely aid they render at exorbitant rates of interest helps many a troubled fellow-man to turn a corner. The jail, or the poor house or the cemetery is round the corner which men are able to turn with money borrowed at two, and three and four and five per cent. a month.

No law can be passed which will effectually protect fools from the consequences of their own folly. Money loaned on poor security at high interest is the pan in which fools fry. If there were no pan the fools would fall into the fire firstly instead of finally. As it is their agony is merely prolonged for the profit of usurers who class themselves with legitimate financiers.

There is an individual in Peterborough, who has grown rich in bleeding poor people after the above fashion. He has a reputation for never loaning money under two per cent. a month, and it is to do away with such leeches as these that legislation is urgently needed. This journal cordially endorses its Toronto Contemporary.

MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

From one source it is reported that this Manitoba difficulty may be settled if the Greenway Government will but consent to relieve Roman Catholics from taxation for public school purposes.

We agree with the Toronto News that if this concession is granted to Roman Catholics, on the ground that the public school system is not used by them, how can a like concession be refused individuals who send their children to private institutions? And, if Roman Catholics are relieved in this way, how can relief be denied Anglicans who desire to establish parochial schools in connection with their church? In fact, just as soon as one class is exempted from any responsibility for the cost of maintaining common schools for the common benefit there is no logical stopping place short of the system they have in Newfoundland where there are no public schools and each denomination assumes the task of providing a secular education for its own children and performs that task in a most unsatisfactory manner. The Newfoundland system would, however, be simply intolerable in Canada and to prevent the establishment thereof there must be the most rigid insistence on the continuance of national schools where they now exist and a movement towards the nationalization of those that are at present sectarian.

Because of differences between doctors many a man has lost his life. But it is not improbable that the lives of the Hyamses will be saved because the doctors differ.

The evidence in the Hyams trial goes to show that doctors turned out of the same factory are as liable to be wrong as right in guessing at the cause of a broken skull.

Are you tired out, do you have that tired out head or sick headache? You can be relieved of all these by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

MINIFEE'S FAST MAIL TRAIN.

Has Over Crossings Full Till—Interior—ing Switches Were Later Developed. There is an old engineer on the Vandalia road who is to some extent responsible for the erection of interlocking devices at railroad crossings throughout Illinois. It was he who opened the eyes of a good many interested people to the fact that fast government mail trains would not multiply until the laws regarding the stoppage of trains at crossings were repealed.

In 1886 one of Uncle Sam's "hammers" was run from the east to St. Louis and thence to Kansas City over the Missouri Pacific, at which time the writer was one of a party making the initial trip on the train. The train from Indianapolis to St. Louis was hauled via the Vandalia line, and the first engineer to take a jerk at the string of postal cars was Tom Minifee with engine No. 183. There was one thing about Minifee's big iron horse that the people living within ten miles of the line will never forget. It had a whistle that would make a fobhorn feel sick.

Illinois people always know when No. 7, as the fast mail was called, was on the rails because of the continuous deafening snort of 183 upon nearing the numerous crossings. The capers that Tom Minifee cut with this train laid the foundations for a safe system of railroad crossings. The engineer had an utter disregard for such a trifle as a crossing when he had hold of the government's train and he went over it at a speed little less than that at which he approached one. On the slightest provocation he would do up 25 miles in 23 minutes, and he kept it up until a certain event took place.

The Ohio and Mississippi officials began to make strenuous objection to the manner in which Tom with 183 jumped over the track at Altamont. Repeated complaints were sent to the Vandalia officials, who always replied that there must be a mistake, as their engineers were required to stop at that crossing. But there wasn't any mistake about it, and the upshot was that Ohio and Mississippi people invited the Vandalia officials to meet them at Altamont on a certain day and "see what they would see."

"Well," said an Illinois railroad and warehouse commissioner who tells the story, "the two sets of officers spent a certain day agreed upon around the Altamont depot. Each of the Vandalia trains came to a full stop before going over, and the 'Van' people were continually asking 'What are we here for?'"

"Finally No. 7 was sighted, and the shrieking steam whistle made out at short intervals proclaimed to the Vandalia man that Tom Minifee was pulling the big load of Uncle Sam's mailbags. It happened that the train had dropped a little time and Tom was making it up. It was after midnight, and the big white eye, which 183 was casting between the rails, came nearer and nearer, passing the 800 foot post without the slightest hesitation, and in a moment had swept past the depot like a cyclone."

"Of course Tom got a chance to take a little rest, but there was not a man in the crowd who didn't admire the color with which Minifee hustled the mails."

Soon everybody began to see that the word "fast" connected with a train that was required to stop at crossings was a misnomer. There was a movement toward the erection of safety devices that would enable a train to go over without stopping. Laws passed in 1887 and 1891 permit a train to cross at a certain speed where there are interlocking devices approved by the state railroad and warehouse commission. Within the last six years over 100 of such crossing plants have been put up. In every portion of the state they are operated jointly by the roads that cross each other, under rules and regulations formulated by the consulting engineer of the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners.—Chicago Tribune.

A Chain of Persecution.

George—No matter how things go, the poor always suffer.

Jack—Yes, the nabobs who own railroads think nothing of running over a poor man's horse.

"Yes, and the man who can afford to own a horse runs down a poor fellow on a bicycle."

"Just so. And the poor fellow on the bicycle runs down the poor fellow who has to walk."

"That's it. And the man who walks stumbles against the cripple who goes on crutches."

"That's the way. And the cripple on crutches spends most of his time jamming his sticks down on other people's corns. It's really a selfish world."—Clipper.

Mr. Parnell and His "Push."

Somebody once said something about a certain Irish member to Mr. Parnell. I well remember the reply attributed to Mr. Parnell. "Don't believe a word he says," were his words; "he's about the faintest little bound in my pack."—Westminster Budget.

BUILDING NOVELS.

Mrs. Southworth Describes Her Methods, Which Are Fairly Realistic.

"My stories always have a foundation in fact," Mrs. Southworth says. "To show you how they are evolved from small beginnings I will give you a history of the manner in which the 'Hidden Hand' was produced. I was in wretched health at the time, my sister was dying of consumption, and yet in the midst of these depressing circumstances the brightest and gayest of my novels came to me. One day, in the year 1857, my eye chanced to fall upon a paragraph in a New York paper, which stated that a little 9-year-old girl, dressed in boy's clothing and selling newspapers, had been arrested in that city. This item fell like a seed into my mind and germinated there. The little girl of newspapers was Capitola, but I must find an origin for her."

"Suddenly an incident which occurred in my childhood just across Benning's bridge came back to me. An old nurse was met and blindfolded one night by two masked men and carried into a house, where, a few hours later, a child was born. Brutes were offered the woman to destroy this child, but she refused them. The young mother was also bent upon the preservation of her infant, the result being that, braving the displeasure of her family and being discarded by them, she brought up her child. It lived and thrived, and was afterward well known in Washington. This was the fact upon which Capitola's birth was founded, and almost every adventure of her life was similarly obtained. Her sparkling speeches to Old Hurricane were taken from conversations which occurred between my sister and a Mississippi uncle. Her duel was suggested by a like adventure of a Mississippi girl, who was misunderstood and offended by a British officer. The girl appealed to her brothers to avenge the insult which she had received. They treated the matter lightly, and she challenged the officer to a duel. Her challenge was received with contempt, and meeting him later and being armed she fired at him—not with dried peas, as Capitola did, but with bullets. He was severely wounded, and the girl gave herself up to the authorities, but when her case was investigated she was released."

"As to Old Hurricane—liberal, kind hearted, but blustering and overbearing in manner—you might meet him any time among Maryland and Virginia plantations. It was when at work upon the 'Hidden Hand' that I contracted the habit of writing at night. My invalid sister lived in the extreme east end of Washington, I in the western part of Georgetown. My visits to her were made in the morning, so that I never got to my desk until noon, and I generally remained at it until midnight. Anxious as I was about my sister, when I took up my pen I became possessed of the spirit of Capitola, and care and sorrow left me. Although I have been such an indefatigable worker, writing every day for many years from 12 o'clock in the morning until the same hour at night and scarcely taking any time for my meals, I have never had a threat of pen paralysis. I have avoided it by increasing the size of my holder every year."

"I have used a typewriter to a limited extent, and it has relieved me as a tired child on a long walk is relieved by getting astride of his father's cane for a ride. I have taken my seat at this instrument sometimes to make a few notes, and the change from my pen has been so grateful that I have frequently roughly jotted down as much of a story as would ordinarily have occupied me for several days. For 30 years I wrote exclusively for the New York Ledger, producing a novel for every one of those years. During that time I adapted my style to the tastes of its readers, but when my connection with it was severed—which occurred when the paper passed into the hands of Mr. Bonner's sons—I wrote with less embarrassment. I have never written a play, but many of my works have been dramatized, and the 'Hidden Hand' was played in three London theatres at once, with profitable results."

The Ideal Nursery.
The ideal nursery should be on the top floor if more quiet, air and sunshine can be had there. It should, to be artistic, be done in light colors, but first be clean. Matting on the floor, with a carpet rug tacked over it, should cover the floor. The windows should have white curtains, and the walls should be papered with sanitary paper, which can be wiped off with a damp cloth. The beds—single iron ones if possible—should be placed away from the walls and have bed mattresses and very low hair pillows. Light, warm blankets are better than heavy comforters or quilts, healthier and more comfortable. As little gas as possible should be used in the children's sleeping rooms, and that little should be carefully shaded. Nothing is worse for a young child than a light shining in its face while sleeping. Cretonne is the prettiest material for nursery furniture, and cleanliness, sunshine and air the best medicines for the nursery's occupants. In winter a grate fire is a boon. It keeps the room warm and gives perfect ventilation."

Characteristics of European Cities.
An observer, says a correspondent of the Leeds Mercury, has drawn up a little table in which he arranges the principal cities and towns of the world according to a classification which has at least the merits of novelty. Each town is considered from the point of view of the trades which are carried on in it. According to these statistics, in Paris there reside the most tailors, upholsterers, bonnet makers, barbers, advocates and men of letters, men or women. In London we find the most cab and carriage proprietors, engineers, printers, booksellers and—though most people would scarcely credit it—cooks. In Amsterdam we find the most dealers and money lenders. Brussels is celebrated as the place where the largest number of boys smoke. It is in Naples that we find the most street porters. We see the largest number of beer drinkers in Berlin. Florence possesses the most flower sellers, and Lisbon is celebrated as containing the most bullfights."

How He Read It.
The other day Mr. Toole entered a dairy, and in his most solemn manner addressed himself to the man as follows:
"I will take a boy," looking round at the shelves.
"A boy, sir?" asked the dairyman, fairly puzzled.
"Yes, or a girl," answered the actor.
The man, thinking him some lunatic, said, "Pardone me; this is a milk shop."
"Come outside," said Mr. Toole, and taking the man by the arm he led him to the door and pointed to the sign.
"I'll take a boy and a girl," repeated the humorist, with not a ghost of a smile.

TAYLOR FOUND GUILTY.

His Trial at the Old Bailey Decided by His Own Evidence—Sentences Deferred.

Special to The Times.
LONDON, May 21.—The trial of Alfred Taylor was resumed in the Old Bailey Court this morning. Taylor was called to the stand, and repeated the statement he made in the witness box at his previous trial. In reply to questions in regard to the visitors at his rooms, Taylor asked to be allowed to write their names. The judge said: "If the names are written, I will read them aloud. I do not approve of mystery."

Taylor did not write the names, but mentioned a few which have already been connected with the case. There were no notable names among them. He denied that he had gone through a marriage ceremony with a man named Mason. After the libel trial of Wilde against Lord Queensberry, the latter's solicitors, he said, had asked him to make a statement against Wilde, but this he had refused to do. He admitted that he wrote a letter to the man Mason signing himself "With love." The evidence was concluded with Taylor's testimony, and counsel began their addresses to the jury.

The judge, in summing up the evidence, directed the jury to acquit Taylor on all charges except the one in which he was charged with the three charges in which Taylor is alleged to be directly guilty. The jury retired at 3.25 p.m.

IN A MURDER CASE.
Hypnotized into Telling the Truth—A New Factor in Evidence.

Special to The Times.
ANDERSON, Ind., May 21.—A scene believed to be without parallel was enacted here yesterday. A judge of the Circuit Court, attended by the court stenographer, took down the statements of a dying woman under the influence of hypnosis. Should the judge accept the statements as true, they will cut a great figure in a murder mystery. George Hires was sentenced by Judge Killison to 13 years in the penitentiary on conviction of the murder of William Faust on July 1st last. The principal witness against him was Mrs. Maggie Boulton.

After the trial she said that her testimony was false, and that she herself had done the deed. Dr. J. H. Callen, who claims to have hypnotic powers, was granted permission to place the woman in the hypnotic state to ascertain which of her statements was the correct one. Judge Killison, the official stenographer, and Dr. Callen, went to the hospital where Mrs. Boulton is said to be dead from consumption, and in the presence of two witnesses Dr. Callen soon had the woman in the hypnotic state. Mrs. Boulton spoke in a loud, clear voice, though heretofore, on account of her weakness, she was scarcely able to whisper. She said the shot that killed Faust was fired by Hires, who said the authorities suspected her son. After she had been brought out of the hypnotic trance, she said she did not remember anything that she had just said. Judge Killison was greatly interested, but he declined to state what effect it would have in the case. A motion for a new trial for Hires is pending.

POND'S EXTRACT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29, 1894.
I have used "Pond's Extract" for many years and always insist upon my patients getting "Pond's," not the ordinary extract, which is often a very poor article. W. K. BROWN, M. D.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, 1895.
I use Pond's Extract a great deal in my practice. I think it very valuable in all venous enlargements. J. L. BRADFORD, M. D.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894.
I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of druggists insisting they can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. I use Pond's Extract a great deal as an antiseptic in combination with glycerine and carbolic acid. I think it far superior to any antiseptic known. F. G. FLOURNOY, M. D.

COLUMBIA, PA., Jan. 18, 1895.
I have been a constant user of Pond's Extract since 1852, and do not expect to discontinue it while I live. S. ARMOR, M. D.

CHELSEA, MASS., Nov. 8, 1894.
I have made diseases of the skin a specialty for thirty years, and am free to say I know of no remedy that has given me such perfect satisfaction as Pond's Extract in cases for which it is recommended. G. W. BABCOCK, M. D.

I know Pond's Extract to be a valuable remedy, and shall continue its use whenever the opportunity offers. GEO. H. CALKINS, M. D.

FATHER AND SON QUARREL.
The Marquis of Queensberry and His Son's Heir Appear in Court.

Special to the Times.
LONDON, May 22.—Yesterday's report that the Marquis of Queensberry and his son, Lord Alfred Douglas, were engaged in a fight in Piccadilly was corrected by the report of the younger participant in the fray. It was the Marquis's elder son, Lord Douglas, of Hawick, who was his antagonist. Both were arraigned in the Marlborough street Police Court this morning and placed in the dock to answer a charge of disorderly conduct and fighting on the street.

The Marquis said his son was the aggressor, having first assaulted him, and that he only struck back in self-defence. Lord Douglas, of Hawick, said he merely insisted on his father's assurance that he would cease writing obscene letters to his (Hawick's) wife, and that he was not to meet her in the street.

Both the Marquis and his son were bound in sureties of £500 each to keep the peace for six months.

The Marquis, who wore a fresh boutonniere and presented a very jaunty appearance, admitted that he had offered to fight his son, Lord Douglas, of Hawick, anywhere or at any time for £10,000.

Lord Douglas showed a very black eye as the result of his encounter with his father, but the latter did not show a mark.

The crowd cheered the Marquis as he drove away in a cab, and as earnestly hissed and hooted Lord Douglas. The Marquis went directly from the Marlborough street police court to the Old Bailey court where he was an attentive listener to the trial of Oscar Wilde.

SATISFACTORY REPLIES.
A Marked Increase in the Sale of the New Specific Remedy.

DETROIT, Mich., May 20.—City druggists here report a great number of enquiries with regard to the specific remedy for kidney complaint, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. A partial investigation has shown that in every case the reply of the druggists to the questions of their customers have been highly laudatory of the remedy, and that they have been able to cite many cases from their own personal knowledge where the most signal benefits have been derived from its use.

The remedy has been a very marked increase in the number of sales made, and several unusually large orders have been given.

A Railroad's Prayer.
A railroad man is responsible for the following prayer:

"O Lord, now that I have stepped Thee, lift my feet from off the road of life and plant them safely on deck of the train of salvation! Let me use the safety lamp known as prudence, make all couplings in the train with the strong link of thy love, and let my lamp be the Bible! And, Heavenly Father, keep all the switches closed that lead on the siding, especially those with a blind end! O Lord, if it be Thy pleasure, have every semaphore block along the line to show the white light of hope, that I may make the run of life without stopping. And, Lord, give us the Ten Commandments as a schedule, and when I have finished the run and have, on schedule time, pulled into the station of death, may Thou, the Supreme Engineer of the Universe, say with a smile, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant, come and thou the pay roll and receive your check for eternal happiness.'"

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. HYAMS' MURDER TRIAL

THE FATE OF DALLAS AND HARRY HYAMS WILL SOON BE KNOWN.

An Alibi For Dallas—Witnesses Swear That He Was Shaved at the Time of the Accident—The Twins Had plenty of Money—They Were in Receipt of $200 a Month from Their Brother.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, MAY 22.—EVIDENTLY interested in the evidence brought forward by the defence, whose witnesses have told a story in court which is as complete as that told by the Crown and meets it at all points. Following the strong medical testimony, which was more unanimous than the prosecution's and came from equally reliable men, the defence showed that the weight could fall off, that it had fallen off, and that Wells was all by himself in the warehouse at the time of the tragedy.

D. M. McCarty said that about nine o'clock he heard whistling, and he thought of a man, followed by a third, then a fourth, and after an interval there was a call and footstep. Mathewson said that about twenty minutes to nine on January 16, 1893, he walked down to the warehouse with Harry Hyams and Willie Hyams, who carried a parcel in his hand. Wells entered the warehouse, while Hyams and Harry Hyams walked to Gardiner's, the barber's shop, which Hyams entered. Add to this the testimony of Mathewson, that the weight stuck and did come off in his time and the story is complete.

HOW THE ACCIDENT MIGHT OCCUR.

Wells went into the warehouse down in the cellar, where he took the coal into a scuttle and went up the hoist, whistling the while. The weight stuck, he looked up the shaft, shook the pulley rope and dashed the mass of iron from the hook. Harry Hyams, who was at the bar, called out, in, called and getting no answer, descended into the cellar, where he found the flattened boy.

Each was the story told by the defence's witnesses, which has driven a wedge right through the Crown's case. The men who testified to it were as reliable in appearance and demeanor as the Crown's witnesses, and were unshaken in their testimony. Mr. Oler got admissions upon side issues, from which he certainly will be able to draw conclusions, but he utterly failed to make those men contradict themselves in any one particular. It was a bad day for the Crown and its officers showed it by the efforts to discredit the character of one witness and impugn their veracity. H. B. Oler cross-examined on this line more than any, and he did it in a manner which made K. P. B. Johnston appear to the jury with the remark that "the Crown was not looking justice but a verdict."

Mr. Oler retorted that he would take respect from the judge only and not from his learned friend.

The case closes today and Mr. Johnston will address the jury late in the evening.

BEGIN IN 1892.

James Langdon, auctioneer, was called first at the resumption to show that the Hyams took the warehouse with bona fide intentions of carrying on business. He said that by arrangement with Hyams in 1892, a year before the accident, he took Aylesworth in hand to teach him the auctioneering business.

C. J. Palin, his partner, gave similar testimony and then stated on the day of the accident that he met Miss Latimer, who asked him if he had heard that Willie Wells was killed, the weight having fallen on him.

In her evidence Miss Latimer denied this point blank.

Palin further stated that it was by his advice that the Hyams came up the warehouse, as the elevator was useless for hoisting up furniture. A number of auctioneers took place there, of which Palin identified the fact.

To Mr. Oler the witness said that the first big sum of money he got from the Hyams for selling furniture for them was in March, 1893. After that there was plenty of money, some of which he borrowed.

ABOUT A MERCANTILE AGENCY.

Joseph Taylor, bookkeeper for Storey & O'Brien, identified a circular received by his firm in November, 1892. It was headed City and Suburban Mercantile Agency, dated November, 1891, and signed H. P. Hyams, manager, and E. C. Straker, reporter. It set forth the why and wherefore of its existence and asked for the patronage of the firm.

The importance and significance of the evidence lies in the fact that it shows that long before the date of the insurance, before the Wells came to Toronto, the Hyams were running a mercantile agency.

Octavius White testified that he fronted and lettered the door of the warehouse, after which the defence sprung another surprise on the Crown.

AN ALIBI FOR DALLAS.

John Neill, a photographer, swore that he saw Dallas Hyams leave his office at 11 King street, on January 16, between 8.30 and 9 a.m. Rodney Westcott, now a barber at the Palmer house, took the stand.

He swore positively that on January 16 he went down to his shop at 8 a.m. He always went at that time and was never behind. He cleaned up, which took him about twenty minutes or half an hour. He then went up stairs he found Dallas Hyams sitting in a chair. He knew him well, as he was shaved every morning by the next barber, Mathewson. He is now dead. As Mathewson was engaged, Westcott asked Dallas to sit in his chair. He did so and witness cut shag, shampooed his hair and shaved him. He was in the shop about fifty minutes, leaving it about 9.20 a.m. He did not see him for three or four days afterwards. That was the only time that Dallas ever sat in his chair and he did not come in for three or four days.

The defence put John Collins, stenographer, of 11 King street west, in the box and he swore that he saw Dallas Hyams come up stairs between 9 and 10 a.m. on January 16.

A MAN WHO STAYS WITH HIS BREAKFAST.

Joseph Robert Jessiman, a tailor, piece of story said, as he says, a man who stays right with his breakfast, was the last alibi witness. He testified to having seen Dallas Hyams in his office between 9.30 and 10 o'clock.

No amount of cross-examination shook these witnesses in their statements, and when Jessiman stepped down the Crown's officers, including the Deputy Attorney General, looked very serious indeed. They had utterly failed to break a link in a very complete chain accounting for Dallas' whereabouts.

RECEIVED $200 A MONTH.

The defence turned its attention to the Crown's motive evidence. In order to show that the Hyams did not need money, as the Crown claims, they put Will T. Murphy in the box. He is money clerk at the Canadian Express office and with the books in front of him he read a long list of money packages received from the States. During the past five years the brothers have received $200 a month from their brother, Chapman H. Hyams, of New Orleans. During that period they have received a sum of $20,000. Mr. Oler tried to make the figures equate so as to appear as if the prisoners only received $150 during that time, but the effort was a failure.

LA GASCOGNE AGAIN.

The French Line Steamer is Once More Overdue—There is not so Much Anxiety This Time.

Special to the Times.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Up to 11.40 today the French line steamer La Gascoigne had not been sighted and it is now the general opinion that her machinery has again been deranged. At the French line office it was learned today that just before La Gascoigne started on her last trip from Havre one of her piston rods had been replaced by a new one. This may be the cause of her delay. However, there has been so far very little anxiety on the part of the friends of the passengers, because the experience of last winter showed that Captain Baudelon and the crew of La Gascoigne knew well how to manage the steamer. At the office, the officials said that only a few people had called to inquire and none of them seemed to be at all nervous. The steamer has on board 500 passengers and a crew of 210 men including officers.

PLENTY OF PROVISIONS.

The officials of the French line are not in any way alarmed at the fact that La Gascoigne has not arrived in time. They claim that the steamer is perfectly ready, well provisioned and that they would not be in any way alarmed if she was not to be heard from for several days to come.

OVER 500 PASSENGERS.

PARIS, May 21.—Enquiries made here today at the office of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique show that La Gascoigne, which sailed from Havre for New York on May 11 and which is now about two days late, has on board 500 passengers and 400 stevedores.

LONDON'S BIG WHEEL.

Thirty Six Feet Higher Than the Ferris Structure at the Chicago Fair.

Special to the Times.

A bigger wheel than the Ferris wheel of the Chicago Fair, has been built in London. It is to be known officially as the "Gigantic Wheel and Recreation Tower," and is at the noted exhibition grounds of Earl's Court, where it will be one of the features of the Empire of India Exhibition which is to open on May 25.

The highest point of the London wheel will be 300 feet from the ground. The difference in height of 36 feet may not seem much but it adds very considerably to the size of the wheel. The Ferris wheel carried 36 cars; the London wheel will have forty. All the cars of the former were alike, of democratic simplicity and severity in furnishings. Ten of the cars on the London wheel have been upholstered and furnished luxuriously for first class passengers, five reserved for smokers and five for non smokers. The remaining thirty cars will be less richly fitted out, and will carry class passengers.

The full capacity of the wheel will be 1,200 passengers.

The novelty of the wheel is two prominent saloons, perched atop of the two towers on which the wheel revolves. The towers are each composed of four columns four feet square. The towers of the Chicago wheel were each in one piece, and only five feet square at the top. The saloons extend a considerable distance outward from the towers, and on each side parallel with the wheel, and have balconies around them. They will be fitted with restaurants and with various attractions to supplement the view. Elevators running up and down the towers will carry people to the saloons.

An odd feature of the wheel is its hollow axle, a steel tube, 35 feet long and seven feet in diameter, through which people may pass. The axle of the Ferris wheel was of solid steel, and was one of the notable features of the structure, from an engineer's viewpoint, being the largest steel casting ever made. It was 33 inches in diameter and weighed 50 tons.

The last two bolts in the rim of the wheel were screwed in place two weeks ago by the wife of the constructor. With several other ladies she was hauling an ordinary chair by a steam winch, to a height of 25 feet from the ground.

FATHER AND SON QUARREL.

The Marquis of Queensberry and His Heir Apparent in Court.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, May 21.—Yesterday's report that the Marquis of Queensberry and his son, Lord Alfred Douglas, were engaged in a fight in Piccadilly was erroneous in respect of the participants. It was the Marquis' elder son, Lord Douglas, of Hawick, who was his antagonist. Both were arraigned in the Marlborough street Police Court this morning and placed in the dock to answer a charge of disorderly conduct and fighting on the street.

The Marquis said his son was the aggressor, having first assaulted him, and that he only struck back in self defence. Lord Douglas, of Hawick, said he merely insisted on his father's assurance that he would cease writing obscene letters to (Hawick's) wife reviling her husband. His aim in meeting his father was to stop these foul and obscene communications.

Lord Queensberry objected to the letters in question being called obscene. Hearing that Oscar Wilde was residing with Lord Douglas, he went to the latter's house and obtained the assurance of his daughter-in-law that his younger son, Lord Alfred Douglas, was not there. He thereupon ceased writing letters to Lord Douglas.

Lord Douglas' lawyer wish to read the letters in question, but the magistrate would not allow it. The lawyer said that as the construction of Taylor's trial the Marquis of Queensberry had sent a telegram to Lord Douglas and his wife.

Both the Marquis and his son were bound in sentences of £200 each to keep the peace for six months.

The Marquis, who wore a fresh boutonniere and presented a very jaunty appearance, admitted that he had offered to marry his son, Lord Douglas, of Hawick, anywhere or at any time for £10,000. Lord Douglas showed a very black eye as the result of his encounter with his father, but the latter did not show a mark.

The crowd cheered the Marquis as he drove away in a cab, and as earnestly booed Lord Douglas. The Marquis went directly from the Marlborough street police court to the Old Bailey court where he was an attentive listener to the trial of Oscar Wilde.

THROWN FROM A WAGGON.

A Young Lad Badly Hurt on Sussex Avenue.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, May 21.—While Arthur Jeffrey, a 12 year old boy, who lives at 335 Huron street, was driving a horse and wagon on Sussex avenue about 9.30 this forenoon, the bolt came out of the shaft. This caused the horse to run away, throwing the lad to the ground. He received a severe scalp wound, and some severe contusions. It was at first thought he had received concussion of the brain, but when the boy was removed to the ambulance to the Hospital for sick children it was ascertained that his injuries were not of a serious nature.

INDIGESTION AND ITS TERRORS

Paine's Celery Compound Restores Perfect Digestive Vigor

Nature's Great Medicine Will Give You a Healthy and Natural Appetite, Pure Blood, a Clear Head and Sound Sleep.

The most miserable mortals in our communities are those who are weighed down by indigestion and its attendant troubles. The digestive organs are all out of gear, and the sufferer is tormented every hour of the day. The greatest distress is experienced after eating; there is heaviness or weight in the pit of the stomach, almost continual headache, want of appetite, palpitation of the heart, sluggish and torpid bowels and constipation.

The common cathartics and medicines of the day only aggravate the sufferer's troubles, and cause him to sink deeper in the mire of suffering and despondency.

Nature's wondrous remedy, Paine's Celery Compound, is the only medicine now generally prescribed by the best physicians. It acts directly on the nerves, it cleanses the blood, and removes all obstructions and distressing matter from the digestive organs, and gives the perfect vigor of body that only the healthy can enjoy. After using Paine's Celery Compound, eating becomes a pleasure, sleep is undisturbed and sound, and life is worth living.

Mrs. H. McCormack, of Halifax, N.S., who suffered for years, writes as follows:—"It is with pleasure that I give my testimony to the value of Paine's Celery Compound. For a number of years I have suffered greatly from indigestion and palpitation of the heart. It was perfect misery for me to go up stairs or up a hill, as my breath was so short and weak; and eating a meal was something I dreaded, as I suffered such agony afterwards. I could only get temporary relief from doctor's medicines and purgatives. Last summer my heart troubled me so frequently, that I became weak and miserable—so miserable that I felt like a burden. I had heard a great deal of Celery Compound but had no idea it would benefit me in any way. At last I was persuaded to try it, and by the time the first bottle was used I was greatly benefited. I have used five bottles of the Compound, and say with truth, that no other medicine has ever given me such wonderful results. The palpitation of the heart has not troubled me for some months; I can now eat a hearty meal, and do not experience any pain afterwards.

"Paine's Celery Compound cannot be too highly spoken of, and I trust all who suffer from the complaints which I have had, will use it without delay or fear, for I am certain they will receive great benefits, and will soon be convinced that Celery Compound is the safest, and best of remedies."

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

Wedding Bells.

Mr. J. Meis and Miss Minnie Jamieson were united in wedlock Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Davidson at the home of the bride.

Narrow Escape.

While out on Rice Lake a few days ago, the newly appointed Fishery Inspector Eggleston had a narrow escape from drowning. His canoe upset, and Mr. Eggleston succeeded in making his cries heard, when he was rescued.

Foresters will Parade.

The members of County Peterborough, Langton and Littleton, C.O.F., will attend a service Sunday afternoon, June 3rd at 3.30 o'clock. They will march in a body to the Charlotte street Methodist church, where the Rev. J. J. Rae will deliver the annual sermon.

Was the Race Crooked.

A man bet $12 on the LeBar-Hedden race Saturday last, and now claims the race was "fixed." He is seeking to get his money returned to him on these grounds, and will have the matter ventilated in the Division Court. Both sprinters, however, claim the race to have been run on its merits.

Sudden Death.

Mr. William Hubbard, who resided in the north end of the town, died very suddenly of heart disease, on Tuesday evening, immediately after eating his tea. The deceased leaves a wife and daughter to mourn their loss. The funeral will leave the family residence, 185 Harvey street, Friday afternoon.

Fined Thirty Dollars.

Messrs. Ames Shearer, of Alnwick, and Trover, of Cobourg, were found by Deputy Game Warden Wedlock, of Keene, shooting ducks out of season, on Rice Lake, near Shearer's Point. On information given to Game Warden Smith, of Belleville, the two men were taken into custody, pleaded guilty and were fined $30 and costs. The ducks, 19 in number, were forwarded to the Nicholls hospital.

A Social Event.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Lech entertained a large number of friends at their beautiful residence, Hill street. About forty couples were present and a most delightful evening was spent. The party broke up about 2.30 a.m., all being impressed with the charming entertainment furnished by their host and hostess.

A Shameful Sight.

At about a quarter to eight Wednesday a woman was seen staggering up George street in a most distressing manner. She was in that disgraceful condition vulgarly termed "drunk," and was being assisted by a man, who was also in a state of intoxication. The woman, while the men cursed down her cheeks, "I can't bear it! I can't bear it!" Judging from all appearances, it was indisputably evident, that she had been about all she could carry, without running the risk of a short sojourn in the "Hotel de Rome."

Northumberland Denies.

The Denary of Northumberland and Peterborough held its regular meeting at St. John's church Wednesday evening. Rev. Geo. Warren, Campbellford, presided and Rev. Geo. Warren, Lakeside, was secretary. There were present Revs. C. McInnis, Hastings; John Gilman, M.A., Norwood; G. H. Webb, Cobourg, and the residing clergy. Holy Communion was celebrated at 8 o'clock and the meeting was taken up in attending to routine business.

The Case Enlarged.

At the police court Wednesday morning Mr. M. T. Ostrom was charged with attempting to defraud Mr. Thos. Bradburn and his other creditors by removing his goods, etc., from the store of George street which he rents from Mr. Bradburn. Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. W. A. Stratton for the defendant. Owing to the absence of an important witness, the case was enlarged until Tuesday of next week.

Electric Railway to Bewdly.

We see by the Port Hope papers that ex-Mayor Randall, of Port Hope, recently appeared before the council of the Town of Hope, on behalf of the company which proposes to build an electric railway from Port Hope to Bewdly, on Rice Lake, a distance of nine miles. Mr. Randall is endeavoring to arrange for the right of way. When this road is constructed, as it assuredly will be sooner or later, it will afford a new summer route between Peterborough and Port Hope, by way of the Otonabee river.

Here's a Hog Trick.

Whitby Chronicle.—Considerable indignation was manifested in Port Perry last Friday when it became known that the G.T.R. had issued a time table ordering Messrs. Drummond, Elliott, Campbell and Babcock, to Lindsay, to enable the Company to start an early train from that town to run to Port Perry to Toronto. Our citizens find no fault with Lindsay people getting all the favors they can, but we do not desire it to be done at our town's expense, and it perfectly means about 25 people removing from Port Perry. It is said none of those with families intend to remove for a time, waiting to see if the new arrangement works satisfactorily to all concerned.

A Life Insurance Change.

Mr. John F. Ellis has resigned his position as managing director of the Manufacturers' Life and Manufacturers' Guarantee and Accident Insurance companies, in order to resume control of the Barber & Ellis Company, and he has been succeeded by Mr. J. F. Junkin, of Montreal, as general manager. Mr. Junkin is generally recognized as a first class insurance man, both in theory and practice. He began his insurance career about 12 years ago with the Sun Life, as general agent for Eastern Ontario, jointly with his brother, Mr. R. Junkin. A few years he was promoted to the Montreal general agency, with the result that the city business of the Sun was largely increased. Mr. Junkin's connection with the Manufacturers' Life dates from November, 1892, when he was appointed Provincial manager for Quebec, and, later, in addition to that position, was appointed manager of the foreign department, of which he has made a special success. Mr. Junkin is a native of Verulam, where most of his relatives reside.

BOARD OF TRADE.

The Standing Committees Appointed for 1895-96.—A Deputation to Toronto.

A largely attended general meeting of the Board of Trade was held Tuesday in the Council Chamber at which the newly elected president, Mr. E. Shorty, presided. Among the principal business transacted was the appointment of the following deputation, which will go to Toronto this morning, and with a deputation from the Council will visit several manufacturing industries with a view of entering into negotiations for their removal to Peterborough. The deputation consists of Messrs. David Fairs, George Shorty, Ackerman, Meldrum, McWilliams, Macdonald, Dennison and Stratton.

A communication was received from the Montreal Board of Trade requesting the Board to lend its aid in securing the appointment of Customs experts, by sending a petition to the member to Parliament for this district. The matter was referred to the mercantile committee with power to act.

The Board of arbitration was formally elected by ballot and the report was adopted as read.

A WEDNESDAY MARKET.

The matter of urging upon the railroads the desirability of a reduced rate for a Wednesday market was again discussed at some length. It was deemed expedient to treat direct with the head offices of both roads at Montreal, and on motion of Mr. McWilliams a petition will be circulated amongst the merchants, shippers and importers of the town for signatures; this petition, accompanied by a letter from the Board, will be presented to the proprietors of the railroads at Montreal. Mr. T. E. Matthews, who will be in Montreal next week. It was further urged upon the Board who did extensive shipping, when in Montreal, to call upon the passenger agents and press the matter.

MACHINERY EXEMPTION.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum brought up the question of the exemption of machinery from taxation. He thought the Board should treat with the Council. The question was discussed at some length by the members, and by Councillor Sprague and Dawson who were present. On motion of Mr. H. S. Macdonald, the matter was referred to the Council of the Board and it was understood it would meet with their immediate attention.

MR. COOK PROTESTS.

Mr. Cook protested against rule No. 1 of the Board, which reads as follows: "All cheese shall be subject to inspection at the place of shipment (except when otherwise agreed upon at the time of sale), no allowance of shrinkage to be made in October cheese." Peterborough, Mr. Cook claimed, was the only Board having such a rule, and he would not agree to it. Mr. Galvin, of Lakeside, favored leaving the rule the same as last year, as they must fall in with the majority of Boards. He moved that the rule be changed the same as last year. This was seconded by Mr. Edwards and carried.

THE OFFER MADE.

Mr. Cook began the bidding with 6c for selections and chose Norwood, Westwood, Waraw, Lakeside, Keene, Shearer, Ormonde and Lang, all declining.

Mr. M. E. Anderson wanted to know if they could dispose of the April cheese by itself, but this was not favored.

Mr. Cook wanted to know what the factories wanted for their cheese. Lakeside asked 4c and Westwood 3c. Mr. Cook then offered 4c for Westwood, Ormonde, Lakeside and Norwood, but they would not accept it, and the board adjourned for one week.

He was a prize winner in the competition that closed 30th December. Through some inadvertence his name did not appear in the list, but he will get his mortgage bond copy of the history all the same.—Independent Forester.

A WARNING TO DOG OWNERS.

Fifteen Citizens Who Did Not Buy Tags Appear Before the Magistrate.

Wednesday morning a large batch of careless dog owners were up at the police court to answer the charge of neglecting to buy tags for their dogs.

Of the fifteen summoned, seven had secured tags before the session opened, and escaped with an additional fine of 25 cents costs. Five others were assessed the cost of the tag, with $2.10 added. Three delinquents escaped by having disposed of their canines since being notified by the assessors.

It will be well for our citizens to bear in mind that the magistrate cautions all owners of dogs that disposing of their animals after the 1st of May, will not answer in future, and a fine will be imposed in every case where a tag has not been taken out before that date.

June 12.—Farmers' picnic, from Peterborough and all points on Rice Lake.

IT WILL BE A BIG AFFAIR.

With 15,000 Orangemen in the Procession

Unlimited Enthusiasm Will Prevail.

There is every prospect that the biggest Twelfth of July celebration ever held in this district will come off in Idylwild on the 12th of July. District Recorder Fletcher says 300 lodges have been invited to celebrate the Twelfth in Idylwild, and he expects the invitation are pouring in from all points. Among the districts which have signified their intention to be there are Lindsay and Peterborough, which contain from 70 to 100 lodges; Brantford, Huntville and Gravenhurst. South Simcoe, it is expected, will be well represented. It is safely estimated that from 15,000 to 15,000 Orangemen and True Blues will take part in this monster procession. Nothing will be left undone by the local lodge to provide accommodation and contribute to the comfort of the visiting Orangemen. Special excursion trains will be run from all central points, and reduced rates will be given on all regular trains.

A special excursion will be run from Toronto to Peterborough on Dominion Day, under the auspices of the Sons of England. It is expected that about 1500 visitors will visit the plate glass city on that excursion.

A dead dog has been lying at the back of William Hamilton's foundry for three or four days now, and the stench is becoming intolerable. The chief was informed of the matter for the first time last night, and promised to give it his immediate attention.

A soldier of the legion Lay dying at Aggers, Who could not move beside him With a platter full of beer. He reached out quickly for them And swallowed eight or nine, Then lit right on for Bingen, Fair Bingen on the Rhine.

An Oregon Judge has set a good example by discharging from custody a man who had been guilty of counterfeiting, but who had proved that a detective spied him on to commit the crime. The silly fellow pleaded guilty, but the judge dismissed the case and said that he would not allow the man to be tried under such circumstances. The decision is right. There are altogether too many detectives who persuade others to commit crimes in order that they may get the credit of the arrest and conviction of their dupes.

The Amounts Which Have Been Paid to Government Officials and for Public Works—Interesting Reading for Our Citizens.

A CLOSE CALL.

A Citizen Narrowly Escaped being run over by No. 7 Car.

What might have proven to be a fatal trolley accident was narrowly averted Wednesday, the some of which was in exactly the same spot where one of our citizens lost his life last August. As the No. 7 car came up George street at 8 o'clock, a man was seen standing perilously near the rails on Simcoe street crossing, immediately opposite China Hall. Instantly watching the Salvation Army, the band of which was playing at Fairweather's corner. Apparently he could not hear the going, which the conductor of the car energetically rang, on account of the noise the Army band was making. The people on the sidewalk, recognizing the man's danger, united their voices with that of the conductor, and finally succeeded in attracting his attention. On seeing his danger he became terribly excited, made a bound from his perilous position, just as the car touched his shoulder, and ran in the way of a riot coming from the opposite direction, barely escaping being trampled under the horse's feet.

THE LEECHES O COMMERCE.

Men who admit publicly that they lend money at the rate of two per cent. a month and upwards says the Toronto Telegram, seem to have no idea that they are in a business which ought to be forbidden by law and punished with severe penalties. Toronto has too many of these money lenders. They pretend that the timely aid they render at exorbitant rates of interest helps many a troubled fellow-man to turn a corner. The jail, or the poor house or the cemetery is round the corner which men are able to turn with money borrowed at two, and three and four and five per cent. a month.

No law can be passed which will effectually protect fools from the consequences of their own folly. Money loaned on poor security at high interest is the pan in which fools fry. If there were no pan the fools would fall into the fire firstly instead of finally. As it is their agony is merely prolonged for the profit of usurers who class themselves with legitimate financiers.

There is an individual in Peterborough, who has grown rich in bleeding poor people after the above fashion. He has a reputation for never loaning money under two per cent. a month, and it is to do away with such leeches as these that legislation is urgently needed. This journal cordially endorses its Toronto Contemporary.

MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

From one source it is reported that this Manitoba difficulty may be settled if the Greenway Government will but consent to relieve Roman Catholics from taxation for public school purposes.

We agree with the Toronto News that if this concession is granted to Roman Catholics, on the ground that the public school system is not used by them, how can a like concession be refused individuals who send their children to private institutions? And, if Roman Catholics and patrons of private seminaries are relieved in this way, how can relief be denied Anglicans who desire to establish parochial schools in connection with their church? In fact, just as soon as one class is exempted from any responsibility for the cost of maintaining common schools for the common benefits there is no logical stopping place short of the system they have in Newfoundland where there are no public schools and each denomination assumes the task of providing a secular education for its own children and performs that task in a most unsatisfactory manner. The Newfoundland system would, however, be simply intolerable in Canada and to prevent the establishment thereof there must be the most rigid insistence on the continuance of national schools where they now exist and a movement towards the nationalization of those that are at present sectarian.

If there were any lingering doubt about the value of the diphtheria antitoxin as a specific, it should be dispelled by the facts and statistics recently reported by Dr. Valentine Brown, health officer of Yonkers, and published in the Medical Record. The supply of the remedy was insufficient until the beginning of February, although a few cases were treated with the serum in November. During the two years immediately preceding 1893 the mortality from diphtheria in Yonkers was 50 per cent.; in 1893 it was 47.35 per cent.; in 1894 it was 34 per cent.; the new remedy having been used during the last two months of last year. But in January the death-rate fell to 16.66 per cent., and it was only 12 per cent. in February and March.

Because of differences between doctors many a man has lost his life. But it is not improbable that the lives of the Hy-amites will be saved because the doctors differ.

We have the information that yellow fever is again in Cuba, and that the fatality from it is unusually large, partly by reason of the prevalent disorder and the presence of over 20,000 unacclimated Spanish troops, who are under constant exposure in the eastern parts of the island.

The report of the royal commission on prohibition is being delivered as fast as the available freight cars in the country will permit. Part 42 of volumes 4 has arrived in Peterborough. This brings the story up to page 1,452.

Outrages on little girls have again become chronic. Flogging is not a sufficient deterrent for this most despicable class of crime. It never will be checked until the heroic remedy once recommended by a York grand jury is applied.

The papers laid before Parliament in regard to the proposals for the admission of Newfoundland show that Canada has made the best offer she can afford to make. If the Newfoundlanders are not satisfied with what has been tendered they had better stay out.

Russia's answer to Great Britain's practical alliance with Japan for the purpose of preventing undue interference by the Czar in Jap-Chin settlement is immediate order to push Russian railways and forces toward the Indian frontier. The bear and lion may very soon be engaged in death grapple for supremacy in the East.

In Philadelphia a number of Baptist churches having valuable properties are about to sell out and build a large central church with a substantial endowment. The Canada Baptist refers to the project in a deprecating strain as an effort toward the "combine" system in religious work.

Dyspepsia is a more frequent product of the free-lunch than is drunkenness. Even the most hardened free luncher hesitates to take his meal with the deliberation that insures proper digestion, and nine men out of ten bolt the highly seasoned fare at the free lunch counter lest the cold eye of the barkeeper be fixed upon them in disapproval.

And now the Toronto Globe is flatly in favor of the abolition of the senate. To abolish the senate, the Canadian constitution—the B. N. A. Act—would have to be amended. And yet the Globe said not long ago that separate schools in Ontario could not be abolished because their abolition would involve an amendment to the Canadian constitution.

The meeting of the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America, which should take place this month, has been postponed until the end of July. It is done for the purpose of preventing the members from pronouncing further upon the Manitoba school question until after the Federal elections are over.

The Globe is in line with the more advanced section of its own party in demanding the abolition of the Senate. The slower members of the Opposition should hasten to catch up. The abolition of a useless chamber which requires every year the produce of over 8,000 acres of wheat for its maintenance would be one of the most popular planks that could be placed in a party platform.

It is a cruel and foolish thing for the Spanish Government to send to the dreary regions of eastern Cuba 30,000 or 40,000 young Spaniards, the flower and hope of Spain, to be destroyed in the swamps, hunted and slain by the patriots, or sent to their graves by the yellow fever, all in order that Spain may retain, as a mere matter of vanity, a small and distant island which is of advantage to her only as a means for the enrichment of a few official corporators.

The neglect of Congress to vote the $425,000 which the United States Government has acknowledged to be due the Canadian sealers, and refusal of Great Britain to assist in compelling Canadian vessels to keep all arms under seal when hunting in Behring Sea, creates an unfortunate complication in the Pacific which may result in a state of friction similar to that which existed a few years ago and which so nearly caused the most serious consequences.

The case of the Toronto motorman, Bond has been promptly decided by the supreme court of Canada, in favor of the motorman, and one of the judges did an unusual, but just, thing when he severely censured the wealthy Toronto street car company for dragging the poor employee through court, to choke him off. The street railway company will now hand over $1,500 supreme court costs. Whether it will take the case to the "foot of the throne" remains to be seen.

Reports come from Arkansas of a strange condition of things in some of the southern counties of that state. It appears that a wholesale kidnapping and stealing of negroes by the white men of Louisiana has been going on. When laborers were needed they crossed into Arkansas, selected the negroes they wanted and took them to Louisiana by force. A special grand jury has been convened in Quebec county to investigate these outrages. It is a little late in the nineteenth century for the revival of the system of American slavery.

Experiments on the feasibility of using homing pigeons for vessels in distress at long distances from land will be made on a large scale next June. The British Admiralty has sent 100 English pigeons to the West Indies, where they will be taken on board the cruiser Blake, now about to return home, and let loose, with exact indications of the time and place, at intervals on the passage. At the same time the Paris Petri Journal, which has taken up the matter since the accident to La Gascogne last winter, will send out a number of French pigeons on a steamer sailing from St. Nazaire, to be set free at different times as the vessel draws away from land.

THE LIME JUICE CLUB

REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING OF THIS CHASTE SOCIETY.

The President Gives a Brother Some Whole-some Advice—The Committee On The Trent Valley Canal Reports—Other Business.

When the triangle had ceased to sound, the President slowly arose and rapped for order.

"Will Whalbone Johnston please step this way," said Sir Richard, in his blandest voice, as Brother Henroost Bell entered and sat down on Bro. Mozart Dunn's plug hat.

"Brother Johnston," continued the President, "you are past the noonday of life, and it grieves me to have to call you up here and tell you that your neighbors find fault with the carryings on around your house. They complain that you fight with your wife, keep late hours, drink too much whiskey, and that you never have a good word for any man. What have you to say?"

The old man hung his head and was silent.

"You have much to learn. If you didn't marry for love you have no business living with a wife. If you did, then why do you quarrel with her? If you can't agree—if you can't be all to each other—living together keeps your temper up, the best thing you can do is to walk right out of that house. The Lord sends intended that man and wife should call names and pull hair and indulge in midnight battles with feet, fists and broomsticks."

The old man raised his head to speak, but the words would not come.

"And so you drink whiskey? Old man you are laying up a heap of sorrow for your last years. Better put powder under your shanty than whiskey down your throat. It is a hole in your pocket, summer and winter; it is an evil voice constantly urging you to misdeeds, it is a gaunt wolf drinking your blood; it is the voice of misery and poverty—the clods on the coffin (furnished by charity! Let it alone! (Sensation). And so you slander folks? Whiskey and slander go together. Have you lived fifty long years without knowing that the sunshine of life is in speaking good words to and of your fellow men? All men have their faults and weaknesses, but slander won't work a change. If we expect men to condone our faults we must excuse theirs. Go home and speak well of your neighbor and he will speak well of you. Speak kindly to them, and kind words will come back. There are five millions of souls in this country, Bro. Johnston, but yet the person who is determined to be an enemy to the rest will soon come to feel that he is all alone here. Make a change, Bro. Johnston—make it tonight. This Great Club has got helping hands for any man who wants to be man."

THE TRENT CANAL.

The Committee on Agriculture, to whom was referred the subject of the Trent Valley Canal, reported as follows:

"This committee didn't stop for any fried claims on the whole shell, but went right to business. A butcher in Lakeside said he thought the canal would be pushed right through, as it would lower the price of lightning rods. One of the City Fathers said he was opposed to it, as it would raise the price of nags. A dryer said that he was in favor of the canal because he expected to run for Parliament. Bro. T. Fitzgerald said he was in favour of all kinds of canals, because they made good places to fish in. A hardware man said that he could not favour the Trent scheme, because his uncle was drowned in a canal. A leading clergyman likewise opposed it for fear that it would tempt him to drown cats on Sunday. A great many people were spoken with. Some were pro and some were con, but the majority favoured the idea. This committee also favors the idea. It believes in encouraging all public enterprises, from the building of a steeple on a meeting house to the uniting of the great upper lakes with the lower lakes by a canal full of water."

THE SICK.

The committee on the sick reported that Bro. Jamfed Jones had sent for them on the previous evening, and when they arrived at his home they found him out of his mind and evidently drawing near to death's door. They recommended that he be allowed five dollars from the relief fund, and that two members be detailed to sit up with him.

"Brother Jones didn't send for me," observed the President as he placed the report on the window sill, where it would blow into the street. "But I went over there just the same. I arrived there about half an hour after the committee had left, and I found Bro. Jones licking the children with his hand and eating cold corn beef with the other. His mind had got back and so had his better half, and the way she was raking him down made me weak in the knees. During the afternoon Jamfed had eaten nearly all of Bro. Ed Brown's free lunch, and then went a cross to Bro. Fairman's and finished up what was there. He then went home and tackled rubarb pie, a loaf of bread, four boiled eggs and a quantity of Bro. Mervin's sausage, and the strain on his constitution was a little too much. He won't get any relief here, and the next time he shows up in this hall I am going to talk to him in a way that will make him lose six pounds of fat in five minutes."

TIEDUP GARLEY TO THE FRONT.

During the last two or three meetings Bro Garley had managed to keep away most of the time by keeping a piece of ice on his head and permitting the melting stream to trickle down the back of his neck, but this occasion he had slept sweetly for twenty minutes when he suddenly arose and offered the following resolution:

"Resolved—That this Club do hereby express sympathy for the cause of liberty in Cuba."

During the deep silence which followed the reading of the above Bro. General Methebral was plainly heard chewing slippery elm, and a sudden sneeze from Bro. Puffy Konnal rattled along the ceiling and brought down hundreds of pieces of plaster.

"Bro. Garley, what do you know about Cuba?" asked the President.

"Nothing, Sir."

"Who asked you to present that resolution?"

"Tom Fortye, Sir."

"Bro. Garley, you can go out and soak the back of your neck in cold tea! You have been made a fool of! You are a pretty middling average member, but the more you sleep while present at our meetings the more benefit you will derive from the proceedings. And as for you, Bro. Fortye, you are hereby fined nine hundred dollars and costs for disturbing our regular proceedings. I may add this time that the costs are about four hundred dollars."

Tiedup fell to the floor in a dead faint, but was immediately drawn out of the Hall by the left leg, and business went right on.

JUNE 6TH.

The President said that he had received a strong invitation to attend the annual excursion of the Olympic Club to Idylwild on June 6th. He had concluded to do so, and desired to say that if he was not on deck at the subsequent meeting of the club, it was because the waters of the Otonabee did not harmonize with his digestive works. In such an event he nominated Bro. Fairman as acting President.

THE CLOSE.

The Harmony Club struck up, "Who Stole that Dog of Mine?" and a collection was taken up for the benefit of the theological students who are about to start for Lindsay. The balance of the business was stacked away in the refrigerator, and the meeting went out with the cool night.

When losses recently drove a retired storekeeper back to his old business, he found conditions sadly changed for him. The system of great retail shops covering the whole field of ordinary human needs had sprung up since he had quit business, and had imitators in the neighboring county towns. It came about from this that he, as a country storekeeper, could no longer make his old-fashioned profits, and to content himself with very moderate percentages, while many old customers now bought at the county town or by post of the large city shops. Prices were lower to him as a dealer than they used to be, but the volume of business had shrunk along with the profits, and he realized that it would take a long while to lay up his old competence.

Purified Blood

Saved an operation in the following case. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail. It makes pure blood.

"A year ago my father, William Thompson, was taken suddenly ill with inflammation of the bladder. He suffered a great deal and was very low for some time. At last the doctor said he would not get well unless an operation was performed. At this time we read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before he used half a bottle his appetite had come back to him, whereas before he could eat but little. When he had taken three bottles of the medicine he was as well as ever." FRANCIS J. THOMPSON, Peninsula Lake, Ontario. Remember.

SATISFACTORY REPLIES.

A Marked Increase in the Sale of the New Specific Remedy.

DETROIT, Mich., May 20.—City druggists here report a great number of inquiries with regard to the specific remedy for Bright's disease, diabetes and all forms of kidney complaint, known as DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. A partial investigation has shown that in every case the reply of the druggists to the questions of their customers have been highly laudatory of the remedy, and that they have been able to cite many cases from their own personal knowledge where the most signal benefits have been derived from its use. The result has been a very marked increase in the number of sales made, and several unusual large orders have been given.

Case of La Gascogne's Delay.

NEW YORK, May 13.—It was learned that the La Gascogne's delay was due to the same cause as the long one last February, when he was given up as lost. On May 16, while proceeding under full speed of 17 knots, the intermediate piston rod broke. An examination showed that the break was identical with that which occurred in February. The rod which broke was the one which was put in at Havre to replace that broken by the former accident.

Business Improving in the U. S.

Despatches are received from all points in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia on the business situation. These despatches show that business is booming at every point heard from, and that confidence in the future seems fully restored. Not since the spring of 1893 has such activity been noticed. The revival is not confined to any one line of industry, but all classes of manufacture and trade feel the good effects. Old works that have been idle for two years or more are reopening, plants that have been operating on part time have increased working forces and numerous mills have advanced the price of labor. In the vicinity of Pittsburgh alone over 10,000 workmen have received an advance in wages during the past week.

Twenty Thousand Roses.

There are nearly 20,000 roses in bloom now at Dunlop's conservatories. Bloom-st. west, Toronto. Visitors are always well come. Mr. Dunlop is proud of his establish ment and takes pleasure in speaking of his beauties. He ships them by sea and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. Sale room, 45 Yonge-st., and 45 King street west.

LATEST FROM MONTREAL.

IMPORTANT EVENTS TRANSPERING IN OUR BIG METROPOLIS.

World's Fair Postponed One Year—Father and Son Dead—The Coal Strike—Other Matters of Interest.

Special to The Times.

MONTREAL, May 22.—Montreal will not have its World's Fair in 1896. That was practically the decision reached at a meeting of the committee of organization held yesterday afternoon at the Board of Trade to discuss the situation. The meeting was attended by Sir Donald A. Smith, Mayor Villeneuve, Ald. Hartman, J. A. Cantle, H. Laporte, George Harnue, G. W. Stephens, Senator Murphy, J. X. Perreault and J. H. Stiles, director general. A general discussion ensued as to the advisability of holding the fair, and the general consensus of opinion was that in view of the shortness of the interval between now and the proposed date, it would be better to postpone the fair to a future date. The members were unanimously of the opinion that the holding of such an exposition would prove of the greatest benefit, but the feeling was that all arrangements should be such as to assure its success and to leave no doubt of its being a credit not only to Montreal, but to the Dominion. The idea will not be abandoned and it is probable that steps will be taken to have the fair within the next three years. Mr. Stiles's efforts elicited general praise, and it is not likely that his services will pass without some mark of appreciation.

FATHER AND SON DEAD.

Today's funeral will take place of Messrs. P. J. Foley, father and son, who died under sad circumstances at their late residence, 80 Drolet street, on Tuesday and yesterday morning respectively. Mr. Foley, sr., who has been for a number of years superintendent at Chanteloup's brass foundry, contracted pleurisy in December last, from which complications set in and finally resulted in phthisis. Mr. Foley, jr., who also worked in Chanteloup's foundry, has been suffering from the effects of malarial fever, contracted while on a visit South some years ago. In hearing of his father's death on Tuesday afternoon he grew worse and died yesterday morning at the early age of 24 years. Both gentlemen were widely known and respected and the members of Antiquity lodge, A. F. & A. M., will attend the funeral in a body.

A COMPROMISE SUGGESTED.

L'Electeur, of Quebec, in discussing the Manitoba School question, strongly advocates a compromise, and suggests that the Roman Catholics accept the plan as suggested by Hon. Mr. Masson in Quebec, viz., that all of the Catholic teachers pass an examination before a regularly constituted board of examiners.

THE COAL STRIKE.

There is nothing new in the position of the coal strike. Last night fifty police were on duty at the Turret Bell, and the work of striking ironing. Kingman, Brown & Co. have surrounded the towers with a stout fence some 8 feet high, and within the enclosure is being erected a building house for the men. There was no hostile demonstration yesterday, and the police think the trouble is about over. Mr. McKenzie, superintendent for the company, told a reporter last night that they had all the men they wanted, and had turned over one hundred applicants away that day.

SWALLOWED CARBOLIC ACID.

A woman named Mrs. Adler, 35, residing in rear of 45 St. Famille street, swallowed an ounce of carbolic acid yesterday afternoon, expiring shortly afterwards. She is supposed to have had some trouble with her husband. She died at the General Hospital where she had been removed immediately after she had taken the poison. The inquest will take place on Saturday.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO.

FORTY-YEAR ANNUITIES.

The undersigned will receive TENDERS for the purchase of Term Annuities running for a period of forty years, issued by the Province of Ontario under authority of an Act of the Provincial Parliament (47 Vict., cap. 21).

The Annuities will be in the form of certificates approved by the Provincial Treasurer guaranteeing half-yearly payments at the office of the Provincial Treasurer in Toronto of sums of $100, or larger sums, on the 30th day of June and 31st day of December in each year for forty years from 30th day of June next, the 31st day of December being payable on the 31st day of December next.

The total amount of Annuities to be issued in 1895, and for which Tenders are asked, is $500,000 annually, but Tenders will be received for any part of the same not less than $200,000 annually.

Tenders will be required to state the capital sum which will be paid for either the whole Annuities offered or such portion as may be tendered for.

Tenders will be received up to the 15th day of July next. Notification of all tenders will be given to the tenderers on or before 18th July and payments from accepted tenders will be required to be made within ten days thereafter.

Tenders for the whole amount offered, if preferred, may be upon condition that the annuities be payable in Great Britain in sterling.

The highest or any tender not previously accepted unless otherwise satisfactory.

Provincial Treasurer.

Provincial Treasurer's Office, Toronto, May 23, 1895.

NOTE.—Illustration of calculation on interest basis:—At the rate of 4 per cent per annum (on $1,000) 5 per cent, half yearly) present payment of $1,000.50 would represent an annuity of $104 for forty years, payable half yearly, while the actual yearly payment for forty years would be a fraction above 5 per cent, on the principal sum.

N. B.—No unauthorized advertisement will be paid for.

CHANDOS.

Correspondence of The Times.

Several of our young people journeyed southward on Sunday last to the Free Methodist meeting at the Huff School House. The Chandos practical joker got left.

We believe that a young lady has undertaken to tame a crow. She has succeeded so well that it is now an accomplished talker. We would advise her to clip its wings lest it take flight on some unexpected occasion.

Will the person who appropriated Mr. Doxey's boat please return it before Sunday, as Jonas wishes to make a trip up the lake.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

The frost, although severe, has not done much harm. The outlook for a good crop this season was never better.

NEW MEDICAL MAN.

Dr. H. W. Miller has removed to this place from Orillia, and has commenced the practice of his profession. The Dr. assumes a practice in a field formerly occupied by the late Dr. Mark. Dr. Miller is a graduate of Toronto University. He is already very popular with the people here, who are sure to give him plenty to do.

SLOPEVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

"A good run is better than a bad stand," is an old saying that was acted upon by two young men from the north of Douro about a week ago. It seems they were acting the part of escorts, and their destination was in the vicinity of Quinn's Corners. It was coming on the "wee sma' hours" and the old man was laying for them, but when he gave chase, as the two were both young and active and not overworked, they soon outstripped him; but the gentleman says—"Oh, ya, ya," you ought to hear them pound the road.

Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles, and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realized more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier. Mrs. C. CAMPBELL, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario."

A BIG BLAZE.

Two Dwelling Houses Destroyed by Fire Last Night—Inmates Narrowly Escape with Their Lives—Valuable Property Saved by the Energetic Work of the Firemen.

At fifteen minutes to twelve last night flames were seen issuing from the windows of an empty rough-cast house immediately south of Mr. B. Morrow's residence on McDonnell street. The alarm was given, and the firemen quickly responded, but before they could reach the scene the flames, which had secured a good hold on the building before discovered, mounted heavenward with an angry roar and enveloped the sheds in the rear of the building. Fanned by a gentle breeze the fire quickly spread, and in a few minutes Mr. T. Fletcher's house on College street was in flames, and that occupied by Mr. Stanton in danger of destruction. Mr. Fletcher was awakened by the roaring of the fire, and recognizing his danger hastily called his family, who were sleeping soundly, and who barely had time to escape with their lives, attired only in their nightgowns. Mr. Stanton and family, who live in the second house from the corner of College and McDonnell streets, noticing that the rear of their dwelling was burning, immediately proceeded to remove their goods and chattels; but fortunately this did not prove necessary.

When the brigade reached the scene they paid particular attention to saving the surrounding buildings, and no doubt, by their energetic labors in the fire, they saved the house on the corner of McDonnell and College streets, occupied by Miss Atcheson, from the devouring element, and also Mr. B. Morrow's residence. In about fifteen minutes they had the fire under control, but it was not fully extinguished till 1.30 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Fletcher's house, of which he was the owner, is irreparably destroyed, and the one in which the fire originated burned to the ground.

Mr. Fletcher managed to save some of his furniture in the front room, and the ground floor from the flames, although it is considerably damaged by water. Fortunately both the house and furniture were fully insured.

Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Fletcher, who has been ill for two months, and only left her bed on Sunday last. As might be expected, the unfortunate woman is prostrated through the terrible disaster. Mrs. Fletcher and children were taken in by Mrs. Tighe, and made as comfortable as circumstances would permit.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is attributed to incendiaries.

WHERE TO SPEND THE 24TH.

A List of Attractions in Town and Out of Town—Fine Weather Predicted.

Today all loyal Canadians will celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of Her Majesty's birthday. Many of our citizens took advantage of the cheap railway rates and left town yesterday on holiday trips, and many more will follow today. The only attraction at home will be two baseball matches on the P.A.A.A. grounds—one in the morning at 9.30; the other in the afternoon at half past two. The contesting team will be the Danfries, of Toronto, and the Peterboroughs.

A monster celebration will be held at Campbellford, at which the local increase of teams will be present.

The non-coms. of the 57th Battalion will exhort down the river on the City of Peterborough to Jubilee Point. As the weather promises to be fine, this event should be largely attended.

St. Paul's church, Lakeside, will hold their annual picnic at which the Hon. J. J. Curran, Solicitor General of the Dominion will be present and deliver an address.

The dedication of a new Orange hall will take place at North Smith, which the local orangemen will attend.

A CASE OF DESTITUTION.

The Children's Aid Society Asked to Rescue Five Children.

A sad case of destitution and neglect was laid before the Secretary of the Children's Aid Society yesterday by County Coroner Mitchell, of Victoria. It appears that a man and woman by the name of Grooves have failed for some time past to support their family of small children—three girls and two boys—under the tender care of eleven years. The mother is reported to be a woman of ill repute, who has left her home and family for the society of Italian laborers and such like. The consequence is they are growing up more like savages than young Christians. The secretary who cannot take active steps in the matter, it being outside of his jurisdiction, will lay the case before the Government at once.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers.

The Dauntless baseball club of Toronto, arrived in town last night on the midnight train, and registered at the Grand Central.

A few of the Knights of Pythias arrived in town from the Queen City at midnight last night. They report that a large excursion is coming down this morning.

Quite a few complaints have been made of drunkenness breaking the law by riding on the sidewalk. We would intimate that a breach of the law in this respect is liable to lead to a fine.

The Peterborough Board of Trade is circulating a petition among the business men with a view to petitioning the railway ways for Wednesday market fare. Let our Board of Trade take a similar action. It would be a very useful and good thing both for the town and the railway company.

The new Presbyterian minister, J. U. Tanner, son of Prof. Tanner, Moore College, Quebec, will be inducted in the charge of St. Pleasant, Lakeside, and Omeme congregations, at Omeme, Tuesday, the 28th of May and it promises to be a very interesting event. Mr. Tanner bids fair to be a very useful pastor. Just what the people want after so long unsettled.

A balloon equipped with self-registering instruments to measure the temperature and pressure of the atmosphere at high altitudes was recently let loose in Berlin, and came down, with the instruments in good condition, in Bosnia. The instruments showed that the balloon had reached an elevation of 53,872 feet, over sea level; the thermometer had fallen to 32 degrees below zero, the lowest it could record. Another balloon sent up later reached 72,000 feet above the earth, or thirteen and a half miles.

The new hook and ladder truck ordered some time ago reached town on Monday evening and has been the centre of attraction for many citizens ever since. The truck is certainly substantial throughout, and it is equipped with all that goes to make up a good outfit. Two fine chemical engines, ladders, hooks, etc., are all in first class style, and with a good team of horses in front of it will facilitate matters greatly in connection with improved fire protection.—Lindsay Watchman.

THE MOST POPULAR BACHELOR.

The voting contest inaugurated by the SATURDAY TIMES for the most popular bachelor in Peterborough is closed. As will be seen by glancing at today's list Mr. Ernest Mason, the genial George street grocer, and able captain and adjutant of the 57th Battalion, has been voted the distinguished honor, and consequently will be the recipient of the prize offered by THE SATURDAY TIMES—a new hat. The house has been well bestowed, and THE TIMES sincerely congratulates Mr. Mason. He will no doubt wear the honors—and the hat—with becoming modesty.

It is a most fittingly been chosen the most popular bachelor in Peterborough. He is a young man of sterling integrity, and splendid business capacity, and none have a wider circle of warm friends than he.

Just a word about the voting contest. It was conceived as a fitting climax to the list of eligible bachelors which became so popular while a special feature of THE SATURDAY TIMES, and as a source of amusement to the young men of Peterborough whose names have appeared in the list. It was not intended to ridicule or reflect on any, and in this spirit it was accepted by our large mass of readers, with whom it became intensely popular from the start. The large vote polled is sufficient evidence of the interest shown.

MAMMOTH EXCURSION.

Editor Morning Times.

DEAR SIR,—I notice in your paper of the 21st inst. an editorial stating that the Orangemen of the County of Peterborough have signified their intention of visiting Orillia on the coming 12th of July. It is not the intention of the Peterborough brethren to do so, but they are at present trying to arrange for a mammoth excursion to Toronto on that day, provided they can secure reasonable rates from either of the Railway Companies. Therefore the editorial in question is misleading. Thanking you for your valuable space I remain

Yours Truly,

W. J. GREEN,

District Secretary.

Six Months in the Central.

At the Police Court, yesterday morning, the three tramps who were remanded a week ago, pending an investigation of their previous career, were brought up before the Magistrate to answer a charge of vagrancy laid against them by Chief Constable. They all pleaded "not guilty," and a number of witnesses were called to give evidence against them. Nothing of a very damaging nature being forthcoming against the three, they were all dismissed, on the understanding that they would leave town immediately. In the case of McDonald, alias McLaughlin, however, it was shown that he did not believe in working under any circumstances, and that he had also appeared before Magistrate Dumble before under the name of Devine. He was accordingly sentenced to six months in the Central Prison.

Piles! Piles! Suffering Piles.

Symptoms:—Itching; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue in this form, which often does, it will become a very serious and painful disease. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals the ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumor. At drug stores, or by mail for 50 cents. and thin clothing of every sort. Our constituency is by no means limited. We figure on the trade of all Canada and make it worth your while to trade here by charging less than anyone.

Baby Carriages:

The baby carriage price argument is all on the side of where baby's mother buys. You can guess the prices of our baby carriages by knowing the price of anything else the store over. We'll stand by the makes—none but the best. We stand by the prices, too.

Stylish Clothing:

We don't care where the next best clothing is—we've the best for the money. Men and boys can be clothed from head to foot in any desired style in a few minutes. We're just that quick.

Toilet Articles:

Have you noticed the development of our "drug store," right near books? The man at the head of that department knows the difference between good soaps and perfumes and toilet articles and the poor. He's well trained to his work. That explains the good values he offers.

Parasols:

All there is to think of when you get among the parasols is "which to pick?" What we sell at $1 to $6.50 keeps things from being an extravagance to the most economical.

Ladies' Underwear:

A home-like place for showing and selling proper underwear for ladies. It's an interesting part of the store at all times, more particularly just now with goods coming from our own workroom. That'll give us a trade advantage beyond a doubt.

To know the stock you'll have to come inside and not hurry out.

A Metal Breadboard
THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to "breading" dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are.

When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease.

It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and she has done so by inventing a metal breadboard which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable.

It is not a breadboard, but a metal plate, and it is not a metal plate, but a metal breadboard. It is a metal breadboard, and it is a metal breadboard.

THE JURY DISAGREED.

AFTER BRINGING OUT EIGHT HOURS COULD NOT AGREE.

A Glimpse of the Closing Acts in the Great Hyam's Murder Trial - Incidents of the Court Room - Another Trial in the Fall.

Special to The Times.

TORONTO, May 25. - ESTERDAY morning about half past eight the crowd had begun to gather both in Adelaide street and at the south door of the court room.

By a quarter to nine there were hundreds vainly endeavoring to obtain entrance and by nine o'clock the crowd had begun to get impatient.

The jury members were elbowing each other with faces upturned to the windows and weird looking in the glare of the lights. Nine struck and his Lordship ascended the bench.

The jury members were elbowing each other with faces upturned to the windows and weird looking in the glare of the lights. Nine struck and his Lordship ascended the bench.

It was a disconcerting sight. Directly under the old chandelier sat the prisoners with faces drawn and terrible to look upon.

Harry Hyam's brow was contracted, his nostrils dilated as he held his breath and waited with every nerve strung to its utmost tension for the words of life or death.

Out in the little room where they have been confined in the court house the other prisoners passed most of the day. Up and down they walked incessantly and talked to each other continuously in low earnest undertones.

Every now and then a few inmates would go to the window and grasp the iron bars that marked their sharp black lines across the blue sky that reddened with the rays of the sun as it sank into the west.

They almost seemed afraid to lose sight of the daylight which they might see again only with the knowledge that their days of life were numbered.

With his coat thrown off he strode up and down the room his mind evidently in a whirl of excitement that was near akin to madness.

Harry, too, was laboring under the fearful strain but he showed it less than his brother. As he passed in his head on his arms against the grating bowed as though a weight lay upon his shoulders and apparently making a great effort to retain his composure.

When at the summons of the sheriff they were brought in they walked like men in a trance. Harry preceded his brother, stepped into the dock and stood up while the jury walked hesitatingly past him. Then both sank down upon the seat where for fifteen long days they have listened to the proceedings of the court that held their lives in its hands.

Their excitement had reached its climax, and they trembled visibly as their anxious eyes turned upon the jury who sat in their faces. The look of horror on the blanched face of Dallas Hyam's brother, the look of every man who had been in the dock, the look of every man who had been in the dock, the look of every man who had been in the dock.

When the jury retired and brought back a verdict of "guilty" Wilde was sentenced to two years imprisonment.

TAYLOR OVER THE SAME DOOR. Alf Taylor, Wilde's associate, was also sentenced today to two years imprisonment. Both the prisoners' terms are to be worked out at hard labor.

TRIED TO SAVE HIS SON
And Loses His Own Life - A Double Drowning Accident.

Special to The Times.

HAMILTON, May 25. - Robert Walker, a farmer, living near Onondaga Township, about ten miles from this place, and his son John, the latter a young man of about 25, were drowned in the Grand River yesterday afternoon.

The father and son were crossing the river above the mill dam in a scow when the boat upset. The river is only about four hundred feet wide and they were not far from the shore.

The father was a good swimmer, but his son could not swim a stroke and sank almost instantly. The father went to his rescue, and it is supposed that the drowning son caught the old man around the arms and prevented him from doing anything.

Both disappeared before help could arrive. The bodies were not found until eight feet of water shortly afterwards.

DOUBLE LYING IN ILLINOIS.
A Mob Afraid Alford Would Pardon Two Brutal.

Special to The Times.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 25. - Early this morning, a mob, which had been in possession of Vermillion county's jail for several hours, succeeded in locating John Hall, Jr., and William Boyce, in their cells, took them outside and hanged them for assaulting Miss Laura Barnett.

Judge Bookalter made an earnest plea to the mob to let the law take its course. He assured the men that Hall and Boyce would receive severe punishment if found guilty, and that the trial jury would do its duty. The leaders, who were among the most prominent men in the county, replied:

"Yes, we know the jury will convict them and give them a severe sentence, but Governor Alford will pardon them out. He recently pardoned three brutes you sent up from Champaign county for 20 years, and he will pardon these men. If any other man than Alford was governor we would not lynch these men. But we are determined he will never have a chance to turn them loose."

Gold Reserve Almost Replenished.
NEW YORK, May 25. - Gold amounting to $1,000,000 was received today for account of the bond syndicate. It came by the steamship Campanella, and is expected to put the Government reserve to about $20,000,000, within $750,000 of the $20,000,000 mark.

Five Drowned in Buffalo.
BUFFALO, May 25. - Connolly's steam yacht, Trilby, employed by the city to convey passengers across the creek at the foot of Michigan street, capsized Saturday morning. The craft was loaded to the gunwale with passengers, and all were thrown into the water. Five persons have been drowned.

British General Elections at Hand.
LONDON, May 25. - Speaking at a meeting of the Conservative Union, Right Hon. A. J. Balfour said that the time was near when an appeal to the country would be inevitable. He urged the party organizations everywhere to be ready for a general election.

KILLED HIM!

Michael Rogers, a Well-known Expressman, The Victim of a Trolley Smash Which Took Place on Queen Street.

Special to The Times.

TORONTO, May 25. - In the busy traffic on Queen street this forenoon, opposite the new Court House, Michael Rogers, an elderly expressman whose home was at 242 Claremont street, was struck by a west-bound trolley car, sustaining fracture of the base of the skull from the effects of which he died at St. Michael's hospital at one o'clock.

Rogers was driving and turned across the track to avoid an approaching car. A second car, which he had failed to notice, bore down upon him, demolished his wagon and threw him to the ground.

DEATH A TERRIBLE BLOW.
He was picked up and taken into the grounds of the new Court House and Dr. Garrett summoned. The injured man had been dealt a terrible blow on the back of his head and was quite unconscious. The police immediately took him to the hospital, but his life weakened gradually, internal hemorrhage ensued and in three hours after the accident he breathed his last.

Every expressman in the city knew Rogers, and he and his horse were very familiar figures at the stand on Melinda street.

An inquest will be held.

ELECTION IN JULY.
That is the General Opinion in Great Britain - Rosebery Doomed.

Special to The Times.

LONDON, May 25. - It is now freely predicted that there will be a general election in Great Britain during the coming month of July. On all sides it is admitted that Lord Rosebery is in a bad way, and the very atmosphere of the House of Commons emphasizes the sense of coming disaster to the Liberal party.

WILDE FOUND GUILTY.
SENTENCED TO TWO YEARS ON HIS SECOND TRIAL.

Final Step in the Dethroning of the Aesthetic Apostle - The Second Jury Was Sure of His Guilt.

Special to The Times.

ONONDAGA, May 25. - In the Old Bailey this morning, when Sir Frank Lockwood resumed his speech he dealt very severely with the reference to his prisoner's intimacy with Lord Alfred Douglas.

Referring to the much commented-upon letters which Wilde wrote to Lord Alfred Douglas, counsel said that the jury had been told they were too low to appreciate such poetry, and he, Sir Frank Lockwood, was going to show them that they were not.

"Sir Frank Lockwood warned the jury to render a verdict which would preserve a detestable and abominable vice to rear its head unabashedly in this country."

Justice Wills began summing up at 1.30 p.m. The tenor of his address to the jury was favorable to Wilde. The jury retired and brought back a verdict of "guilty." Wilde was sentenced to two years imprisonment.

TAYLOR OVER THE SAME DOOR.
Alf Taylor, Wilde's associate, was also sentenced today to two years imprisonment. Both the prisoners' terms are to be worked out at hard labor.

And Loses His Own Life - A Double Drowning Accident.

Special to The Times.

HAMILTON, May 25. - Robert Walker, a farmer, living near Onondaga Township, about ten miles from this place, and his son John, the latter a young man of about 25, were drowned in the Grand River yesterday afternoon.

The father and son were crossing the river above the mill dam in a scow when the boat upset. The river is only about four hundred feet wide and they were not far from the shore.

The father was a good swimmer, but his son could not swim a stroke and sank almost instantly. The father went to his rescue, and it is supposed that the drowning son caught the old man around the arms and prevented him from doing anything.

Both disappeared before help could arrive. The bodies were not found until eight feet of water shortly afterwards.

DOUBLE LYING IN ILLINOIS.
A Mob Afraid Alford Would Pardon Two Brutal.

Special to The Times.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 25. - Early this morning, a mob, which had been in possession of Vermillion county's jail for several hours, succeeded in locating John Hall, Jr., and William Boyce, in their cells, took them outside and hanged them for assaulting Miss Laura Barnett.

Judge Bookalter made an earnest plea to the mob to let the law take its course. He assured the men that Hall and Boyce would receive severe punishment if found guilty, and that the trial jury would do its duty. The leaders, who were among the most prominent men in the county, replied:

"Yes, we know the jury will convict them and give them a severe sentence, but Governor Alford will pardon them out. He recently pardoned three brutes you sent up from Champaign county for 20 years, and he will pardon these men. If any other man than Alford was governor we would not lynch these men. But we are determined he will never have a chance to turn them loose."

Gold Reserve Almost Replenished.
NEW YORK, May 25. - Gold amounting to $1,000,000 was received today for account of the bond syndicate. It came by the steamship Campanella, and is expected to put the Government reserve to about $20,000,000, within $750,000 of the $20,000,000 mark.

Five Drowned in Buffalo.
BUFFALO, May 25. - Connolly's steam yacht, Trilby, employed by the city to convey passengers across the creek at the foot of Michigan street, capsized Saturday morning. The craft was loaded to the gunwale with passengers, and all were thrown into the water. Five persons have been drowned.

British General Elections at Hand.
LONDON, May 25. - Speaking at a meeting of the Conservative Union, Right Hon. A. J. Balfour said that the time was near when an appeal to the country would be inevitable. He urged the party organizations everywhere to be ready for a general election.

FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

JOCKEY DUNLOP JAILED FOR ASSAULTING JOCKEY NOEL.

Special to The Times.

TORONTO, May 25. - THIRTY days in jail is what Leslie Dunlop, one of the Woodbine jockeys, is doing because he came into collision with law and order at the races yesterday. He was riding Sayona in the Street Railway Handicap, when he became enraged at the manner in which Jockey Noel, who was riding Pat Oakley, was crowding him out of his course, and drawing his whip, he struck out with the butt end and inflicted a gash in his rival's scalp.

ANALYST REBURN.
Sergeant Detective Reburn, who witnessed the assault, undertook to arrest Dunlop, but the two went into the sculler room to first verify the latter's claim that his arm had been broken in a fall. Here they met the Clerk of the Scales, W. P. Fraser, usually a clerk in the Dominion Bank, who ignorant of the law, advised Dunlop to resist arrest unless a warrant was produced. Dunlop took the advice and made a vicious but unavailing attack on the sergeant, who finally arrested Dunlop and took him to the police station.

Today in the Police Court Dunlop pleaded guilty to the charges of unlawfully wounding the jockey and of assaulting a police officer. He was given 30 days in gaol without the option of a fine.

Much amusement was caused in court by Fraser's appreciation of the importance of his position and his reference to the "sacredness of the weigh scales."

THE MAJESTY OF THE LAW.
Col. Denison made it very clear that the police were not at the race course by courtesy merely, but by right, and that no rules laid down by a private association of gentlemen could override the law. The Magistrate said he overheard some conversations at the races yesterday about the rights of the police which made him squirm.

"Upon my word," said he, "the ignorance of many of the public on this matter is simply ludicrous."

Crown Attorney Curry thought an information should be laid against Fraser.

ROUGH ON MR. FRASER.
"Oh, hardly," said his Worship. "This man's ignorance of the law is so perfect and he is so imbued with the sacredness of the weigh scales and the

TWO ABSENTMINDED INDIVIDUALS.

One Forgot His Invitation, and the Other Forgot His Wife.
An absent-minded person can spread chaos all around, but when two absent-minded people try to work together upon the consequences fall. A prominent lawyer from an inland city met in London a distinguished British author whom he invited to visit him during a tour of America, already planned. The lawyer came back home and shortly forgot all about his English friend and his own invitation, but was reminded of both, in good time, by a letter announcing the date of the celebrated Briton's arrival. This, too, he forgot in a few minutes, and when the appointed day came it found him living in a shut up house, getting his meals where he could, while his wife made an extended round of visits among her relatives.
When the distinguished visitor drove up to the house on the evening of the day set in his letter, he met a single servant, who explained that the master was at a club meeting, over two miles away, and would be back about midnight. Sending his wife, who was tired and ill, back to the railway station, the Englishman started in pursuit of his delinquent host. The latter was found with a company of pleasant people, to whom the great author was promptly introduced. A while the tongue-tied friends finished up the evening at the club meeting, forgetting all about their lack of suitable quarters for the night and poor Mrs. Distinguished Author sitting in the railway station.
When the meeting broke up in the small hours, they recalled these awkward circumstances and rescued the weary woman, whose comments upon the situation did not reach me. Then they drove to the house of one of the lawyer's relatives, who kindly got them all to bed before dawn.—Kate Field's Washington.

The Tongue.
The perfectly healthy tongue is clean, moist, lies loosely in the mouth, is round at the edge and has no prominent papillae. The tongue may be furrowed from local causes or from sympathy with the stomach, intestine or liver.
The dry tongue occurs most frequently in fever and indicates a nervous prostration or depression. A white tongue is diagnostic of croup of the larynx and condition, with perhaps a disordered stomach. When it is moist and yellowish brown, it shows disordered digestion. Dry and brown indicates a low state of the system. When the tongue is dry and red and smooth, look out for inflammation, gastric or intestinal. When the papillae on the end of the tongue are raised and very red, we call it a strawberry tongue, and that may mean scarlet fever. A sharp, pointed red tongue will point to rain irritation or inflammation, and a yellow coating indicates liver derangement.—Family Herald.
Pat's Romance.
A distinguished instance of a complete revolution of feeling over one's first impression is said to be afforded in the case of Miss Adeline Part. Some years ago she took a pronounced dislike to a Frenchman, allowing her unfavorable impression to influence her professionally to the degree that she refused to sing with him. Gradually, however, she grew able to tolerate, then grew fond of and finally, when she added Nicotini to her name, married him.
Physiology and Portents.
Mr. Verifresh—I weigh 154 pounds, and do you know that in a person of that size analysis has shown that there are 66 pounds of water, 3 pounds of albumen, and then 1 pound of pure glue, 14½ pounds of fat, 8½ pounds of phosphate of lime, a pound of carbonate of lime, 3 ounces of sugar and starch, 7 ounces of fluoride of calcium, 6 ounces phosphate of magnesia and a little salt. What do you think of that?
Miss Kew—It is all right except in this instance in the matter of the salt.—Detroit Free Press.
Why She Never Married.
When a man tempts fate by reminding a spinster of her condition, his punishment is generally swift and sure. In a county of Ireland where the Quakers were numerous the entire body on one occasion gathered together for one of their quarterly meetings.
After the exercises of the morning a public luncheon was held, at which all the Friends attended. The conversation turned to matrimony.
"Bridget," said an unmarried youthful member of the society, speaking across the crowded table to a prima, elderly maiden lady, "with them tall men why then have never married?"
"Certainly, Friend William," responded the ready Bridget in a voice audible over the room. "It is because I am not so shy as they are."—London Tit-Bits.

The Edible Bird's Nest.
In the Andaman Islands the principal industry is that of collecting, cleaning and preparing edible birds' nests for shipment. The species of bird which builds this queer nest arrives in the islands about the 1st of December and immediately commences to build its nest, which is constructed almost wholly of a gelatinous substance, which is a secretion from the salivary glands of the bird's mouth. The finest quality of these edible nests resembles pure isinglass. They are worth their weight in silver in many countries of the Orient, especially in China, Borneo, Korea and Japan. They are usually built in caves and cliffs along the coast, but are frequently found in trees.—St. Louis Republic.

WANTS HER DOWER.

The Young Widow of Old John Kidd Suing the Estate's Executors.

Special to the Times.
ORANGEVILLE, May 25.—Lawyer W. J. L. McKay has issued a writ on behalf of Eva Gertrude Kidd, widow of the late John Kidd, of Morris Mills, against W. L. Walsh, executor of the estate. Mrs. Kidd claims a third of the estate as her dower, and as the beneficiaries of the will have given notice that they will not recognize her claim, a big lawsuit will likely be the result. If Mrs. Kidd is successful in the action she will get about $4,000.

DROVE RAIN THROUGH ROOFS.

A Terrible Wind in South-West Texas—Chimneys and Roofs Wrecked.

Special to the Times.
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 25.—The following reports of yesterday's storm in South-West Texas have been received: At Rockport forty houses were blown from their foundations and the Catholic Church and the St. Mary and Commercial Hotels were wrecked. Vessels in the Bay dragged anchors and three came ashore. The force of the wind drove rain through roofs on the subject, when it is said Mr. Greenway made it pretty clear to his Excellency how far he is prepared to go in the interest of peace. It is said that Lord Aberdeen is now devoting himself to the Federal authorities. Mr. Greenway and his colleagues are now awaiting a second summons to Rideau Hall in order to learn what action the Government proposes to take regarding the ultimatum.

Two bridges on the Arkansas Pass near Yorkum and one at Kerville were washed away.

Reports placed the rainfall at from 2 to 3 inches along the San Antonio river are under way.

There has so far been only one interview at Rideau Hall on the subject, when it is said Mr. Greenway made it pretty clear to his Excellency how far he is prepared to go in the interest of peace. It is said that Lord Aberdeen is now devoting himself to the Federal authorities. Mr. Greenway and his colleagues are now awaiting a second summons to Rideau Hall in order to learn what action the Government proposes to take regarding the ultimatum.

A FIRE AT ARVA.

What Was Left From the Previous Fire Almost Completely Wiped Out.

Special to the Times.
ARVA, Middlesex, Ont. 25.—Two months ago fourteen of the business buildings of the village were destroyed by fire. On Tuesday evening another fire started in Edward McNab's blacksmith shop and destroyed that, together with Chase Smith's workshop. Wm. Thompson's shoe shop, dwelling and stables, and Wm. Wyatt's paint shop.
The village presents a forlorn appearance, only a few dwellings being left. Losses: E. McNab, $1,000, insured for $200; William Thompson $400, partly insured; other losses not ascertained. Cause of fire uncertain.

SATISFACTORY REPLIES.

A Marked Increase in the Sale of the New Specific Remedy.

DETROIT, Mich., May 25.—City druggists have reported a great number of enquiries with regard to the specific remedy for Bright's disease, diabetes and all forms of kidney complaint, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. A partial investigation has shown that in every case the reply of the druggist to the questions of their customers have been highly laudatory of the remedy, and that they have been able to cite many cases from their own personal knowledge where the most signal benefits have been derived from its use. The result has been a very marked increase in the number of bottles made, and several unusually large orders have been given.

STRAUSS AND HIS DOG.

A Story of the Waits King, a Retriever and His Feminine Admirers.

"The Strauss jubilee," said a New York impromptu reporter, "reminded me of an incident of the visit of the great composer to Boston at the time of the Gilmore jubilee which I do not remember ever to have seen in print. At that time Johann was in the full blaze of his glory, and the 'Blue Danube' waltzes were as well known in this country as 'Yankee Doodle,' and so when the composer was found to be a handsome, dapper little man, with lovely eyes and a mass of wavy black hair that was almost as extravagantly long as Paderewski's, the Boston musical women went wild over him. He was courted and caressed and fêted and followed until it was a wonder his head—hair and all—was not turned, but Strauss had too much good business tact to lose control of himself, and he accepted everything—civility and compliment—with a smile that was as comprehensive as it was stereotyped.

"Strauss was a great dog fancier at that time and was accompanied by a magnificent black retriever. Toward the last of the great concert days some enthusiastic young woman sprung the idea of getting a lock of Strauss' hair for her locket—lockets were worn by everybody in those days, you remember. The fashion grew into a fad, and from a fad blazed up to a fury, and with his comprehensive smile Johann promised every applicant a moment. And in due time the locks were distributed—how many hundreds of them I don't know—each one accompanied by the compliments of the waits king. Some statistical cuss said that enough had been cut off and distributed to make Strauss look as though he had been and was a great dog fancier, and he was indeed, for when he left Boston for New York his locks were as bushy and profuse as ever. It was remarked, however, that when Johann's beautiful black-haired dog was put into the baggage car the poor creature looked like a shorn poodle."

Jumping Hurdles.

In jumping hurdles the one thing which is imperative is not to jump them. Hurdle racing has become entirely an artificial sport. It was discovered that, by taking off from one foot and landing on the other, and by covering the ten yards between each hurdle in three strides, a high jumper could be run over, instead of jumped, and it was also discovered that the man who couldn't perform this acrobatic feat was not in the same hunt with the man who could. A long jumper, with a turn of speed, has a much better chance of becoming a good hurdler than a high jumper. It is a pastime which requires much practice. You must harden your shins and keep as near to the top bar of the hurdle as you can. If you are clearing the hurdles by too much, you must practice leaving part of the skin of your leg on the top bar.

A famous hurdle racer, H. K. Upcher of Oxford, who, by assiduous practice, brought the surmounting—one could hardly call it the clearing—of hurdles to the highest point of perfection, was in the habit of bumping each hurdle in practice to make sure he was not going too high, and of going through the top rail when it was movable, and sometimes when it was not, in order to be quite certain that there was nothing unnecessary to spare.—Fortnightly Review.

Cleaning Pots and Pans.

A woman naturally hates to clean up a breed or cake bowl after the dough has got hard. They should be cleaned as soon as used, but if necessary to leave them for a time run the tray or bowl full of cold water and let it stand so. When you get ready to clean it, the dough will be in the bottom of the utensil as a general thing, and you will only have to rinse and dry it. The same is true of kettles and skillets. I do not approve of setting any utensils aside when the dishes are washed, for if you keep an oyster shell with a thick, smooth edge at hand you can clean the roughness out of anything in half a moment, but if you don't want to do it just then you will find this an iron pot in which potatoes have been to the bottom, or a skillet in which meat or gravy has simmered to a crust, will be easy enough to clean after standing an hour or two filled with cold water.

Worry and Cooking.

More than half of a homekeeping woman's time is spent in worrying and a good share of the other half in preparing food, as though the stomach were the immortal part of us. Take one-quarter of the time a woman devotes to making pies, preparing puddings, putting up preserves, baking cakes and frying, etc., and let her devote it to rest and recreation, and she would not look like a shred of parchment paper at 40. It is the nonessentials that kill us. We must learn to simplify before we can escape the doom of premature old age. Nature never intended us to live as we do. If she meant us to eat puff pastry, she would have grown it on some of her trees. She has provided simple food in the shape of cereals, fruits and vegetables, and if we conformed ourselves more closely to her established order of diet we should be happier and harder more.—New York Telegram.

Filling Up a Window.

An excellent way of filling up an unnecessary window, or one that looks out on an ugly view, is to have the lower part built out into a small alcove, lined with plush, with a small shelf running round it and brackets for china. At the back a little window is covered with glided fruit-work, and in the front a space is left which can be filled up as the owner desires. One of the advantages is that light is not excluded from the top of the window or from the top of the alcove, so that it would be especially suitable for the small libraries where the back window looks out on a meadow, and yet where light is distinctly needed.

Keeping Young.

American women might learn an advantageous lesson of their French sisters in the art of keeping young. But it is no recipe for cosmetics that they would acquire. First of all, French dames do not worry, or, if they do, they conceal the fact admirably. They are apparently on the crest of the wave of good fortune personally. Next, and almost equally important, they decline to hurry. They take life moderately, perform their duties without haste and linger over their pleasures. And in these two simple rules lies a mine of wealth for her who is wise enough to appropriate it.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Black Rope Designs.

Black rope is often used to embroider the designs stamped on pillows and table-spreads of colored linen or dentine. It is particularly effective on old pink or shades of olive, and if the stitches are to be used in a sitting room is often preferred to white embroidery silk or linen floss. Outlining the design thus worked in black, a fine gold cord or thread is sometimes added to brighten the work.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

IN A HYPNOTIC STATE.

THE JUDGE BELIEVED HER IN THAT CONDITION AND DISCHARGED THE SUBJECT.

Mrs. Kelly Swore that she Fired the Fatal Shot. She now Denies her Former Statement. A Motion for a New Trial is Pending.—Hires Believed to be Innocent of Murder, Special to The Times.

ANDERSON, Ind., May 23.—Wm. Kelly has been discharged from jail. He was arrested as an accomplice to the murder of Wm. Foster at the house of Margaret Bolton, in Elwood, a year ago. George Hires was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to thirteen years in prison as the murderer.

Then Mrs. Bolton, who witnessed the killing, made a statement that she had sworn falsely on the witness stand, that she herself fired the fatal shot in the presence of Kelly. Kelly was arrested. Last Saturday Judge Ellison consented to have Mrs. Bolton put in a hypnotic state which was done, and while in this state she said her former statement was not true and that Hires is the murderer, hence the discharge of Kelly by the grand jury.

A motion for a new trial for Hires, growing out of the complications, is pending.

Case of La Gacogne's Delay. New York, May 13.—It was learned that the La Gacogne's delay was due to the same cause as the long one last February, when she was given up as lost. On May 16, while proceeding under full speed of 17 knots, the intermediate piston rod broke. An examination showed that the break was identical with that which occurred in February. The rod which broke was the one which was put in at Havre to replace that broken by the former accident.

Unnecessary. Judge Brown, whose boyhood's home was in a small New England village, had and deserved the reputation of being a most liberal and kind hearted man. He was always glad to see his old friends, no matter how rustic they might seem, and gave them many good times in his beautiful city house.

On one occasion the judge had some legal business in the capital of his native state, and shortly after his arrival he met an old farmer from his birthplace who was taking an unwelcome holiday and trooped straight to the hotel. The judge instantly invited the old man to dine with him at the hotel, and the invitation was gladly accepted.

When the farmer took his seat at the table, one of the waiters laid a bill of fare before him. The old man looked at it for a moment, and then, facing around to look the waiter squarely in the face, he said in a tone that rang through the dining room: "No need to gimme that, young feller. Judge Brown calls to settle my bill. He come from our town, and I know his ways!"

Little as the judge probably enjoyed this public announcement, he showed no annoyance, but nodded to the waiter, who removed the offending sheet, and the old man sat beaming with pride as the judge ordered a dinner to which he did full justice.

Swore Himself In. General Sir Evelyn Wood, in his reminiscences of the Crimean in 1854 and 1855, tells a story of a fighting general who, during the conflict, was seen whenever bullets fell most thickly. When not visible, his voice was heard encouraging his men with "a vocabulary borrowed from the army in Flanders," which Sir Evelyn says will not bear repetition. "Years after we were appointed to the Aldershot command, and her majesty happened to ask, 'Has the new general yet taken up his command?' 'Yes, your majesty,' was the apt reply; 'he swore himself in yesterday.'"

SATISFACTORY REPLIES.

A Marked Increase in the Sale of the New Specific Remedy.

DETROIT, Mich., May 26.—City druggists
here report a great number of enquiries with regard to the specific remedy for Bright's disease, diabetes and all forms of kidney complaint, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. A partial investigation has shown that in every case the reply of the druggists to the questions of their customers have been highly laudatory of the remedy, and that they have been able to cite many cases from their own personal knowledge were the most signal benefits
have been derived from its use. The result has been a very marked increase in the number of sales made, and several unusually large orders have been given.

"SICK OF BEING A CATHOLIC."

TORONTO, May 27.—Jennie McCann, a woman whom Col. Denison thought "a little out of her head" appeared in the Police Court this morning on a charge of disorderliness. She had created a disturbance in St. Patrick's church and had been evicted. On the street her antics attracted the attention of a crowd, including a policeman, and the latter took her in custody. Her wild prattle and prancing in the doctor led to a remand until next Wednesday to allow the doctor a chance to examine her mental condition.

A CYCLIST SHOT AT.

TORONTO, May 27.—Leroy Archer, a clerk in the Rossin House drug store, told the Parkdale police at 9.30 Saturday night that he had been shot at by some party unknown. About an hour before the young man had had a slight disturbance with some others on the corner of King and Dufferin streets. Accompanied by a on of John Chambers, Park Commissioner, he went down to the grounds, across them masterly and was leaving the eastern gate when the incident occurred. Bill of Dissolution - Harcourt Wants to Oust Rosebery-He Talks Freely in the Lobby of the House.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, May 27.—The Unionist leaders have decided to postpone a decided trial of the strength of the Government until after Vitsautide. The Ministry will accept the challenge half-heartedly. The rank and file of the Liberal party are sick of the uncertainty of the situation and desire the resolution of it.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, talks freely in the lobby of the House of his desire for dissolution, and of his wish for a general election to take place at the earliest possible time. It is an open secret that he is confident of the retirement of the minister Rosebery, when the present Parliament is ended, and that he wants to expedite the moment when he can seize the leadership of the party. On the other hand, Lord Rosebery, as he gradually recovers his health, becomes more reluctant to be shelved. He tries to persuade his colleagues that the best interests of the party will be served by holding on. To this course most of the materialists are opposed, relying on the consensus of opinion of the political agents throughout the country that the longer a general election is delayed the better men who should be his best friends. He

HOW TO CLEAN HOUSE

THE WAY ONE WOMAN MAKES HARD LABOR SEEM EASY.

The learned to housewife in strength and has a system—taking up carpets and scrubbing floors—batting with kerosene and getting rid of rubbish.

I always begin to clean house at the top—in the attic, which is the storeroom for the things of the year in clothing and furniture. In the course of six months an awful lot of rubbish accumulates there, and at housecleaning is a good time to get rid of it. In a house where there are children there is always considerable castoff clothing to look over. Some of it will do very nicely to cut over for younger children, and that should be brushed and aired, then folded away in a box kept for that purpose. The garments that are outgrown and cannot be remodeled should be put in another box, ready to bestow on some worthy person less fortunate than yourself.

Do not board up old garments against possible need "next year." If you do not see a possible chance of making use of them in the next six months, put them in the storeroom. They will bring you a staler blessing there. Examine the broken furniture that has been stored away. If it can be mended, have it done at once, before knocking about has destroyed the usefulness of a piece to which you are attached. If you find that it is too worn and shabby for your own house, perhaps you know some deserving person who is ingenious enough to fix it up and would be very glad to do so for the gift of it. Otherwise throw it into the kindling wood heap. There isn't a particle of sense in cluttering up a house with a lot of useless old rubbish. Unless you are sure that dilapidated furniture can be fixed up it is best judgment to send it to the attic any-how.

Look over the old papers and magazines and make a package of those you do not intend to have bound to send to the hospital or some institution, where a bit of reading material is a perfect boon. After sorting over and putting away all the trash in the attic you have a heap of litter that it is useless to try to put away. Dump it on the ash heap or bribe your scrubwoman to relieve you of it. Then sweep and dust the top of the house, and try to receive the stores that will come up from the lower part of the house. It will probably take you a whole day to go over the attic properly. If you discover any signs of that terror of the housewife—bedbugs—make war on them at once. A machine oil can of gasoline is a good companion in such an emergency. Use it freely on infected spots. It will kill eggs and insects instantly and evaporates almost as soon as applied. Do not have a lighted lamp or gas around when you use it, though, not for some time after, unless you have raised the windows and aired the attic.

If you have found moths, take all the infected clothes out into the sunshine. Beat and shake them well, then brush and if practicable dampen and run a hot iron over them. Moths are the meanest pests that ever got into a house. They do more damage in a day than can be repaired in a year, and there is absolutely no way known yet, except vigilance, that will keep them out of woolen clothing and furs. After you have everything cleaned and sweet smelling in the attic, get a pint of sulphur and put in an old iron kettle and set it over an old stove or charcoal fire in the attic. Close the windows and doors and let it burn itself out.

Then you may be reasonably sure that there are no microbes or bedbugs lurking around to descend upon and destroy the family. Be sure to remove all clothing that sulphur will be apt to discolor. It will injure nothing else. After cleaning the attic I go through every closet in the house next and give each the same treatment. Then I begin on the house proper. In cleaning the other rooms of the house I seldom attempt more than two at once. I select one room on the floor to be cleaned—that I want for a workroom—and have the carpets taken up and the furniture covered. Into this room I have all the pictures, bric-a-brac and furniture carried and piled up on the lawn's way. The walls of the two rooms are carried out to be shaken and dusted, and then I have the dusty floors sprinkled with bits of torn paper that have been dampened. When swept, no dust is raised to penetrate the pores of the walls. The walls are swept down with a broom, over which a flannel cloth is pinned, and an application of elbow grease.

If there are grease spots, I take them out with an application of pipe clay made into a paste and applied damp. The grease is generally extracted by the time the clay is dry. Where there are smoke stains from gas or from the register I have the places rubbed with a rag and corn oil or kerosene. This will not remove the smoke stains always, but will as a general thing I have taken such stains off with a rag saturated with gasoline, but that has to be done very carefully, or you will smear the paper. After the walls are cleaned the woodwork should be washed with ammonia water, or kerosene if you like. I use kerosene for everything because I like its action better. If you have soap used, see that it is not lye soap, because that will take the life out of the paint and make it look dead. It will soon wear off, too, after being washed with strong soap.

Then have the floor scoured with good strong lye water unless it is stained or oiled; then of course you will have it wiped up with hot water only, as anything else would exhaust both color and oil. If you have feared that there might be moths in the edges of the room, the hot water should be used freely and then a train of gasoline put around all the cracks. As soon as the floor is dry have the carpets put down.

While the carpets are being put down you can be cleaning the pictures. Remove the backs and wash the glass and dust the picture, then clean the frame carefully and hang as soon as the carpets are down. Dust and rub up the chairs, using some good furniture polish if necessary, or if there are no acids a rubbing with a kerosene rag and an after polish with a flannel cloth will benefit almost all kinds of wood. Clean the bedstead and other furniture the same way. Clean everything before you carry it back into the room, and for this purpose you will find the workroom quite handy. Put up your curtains and disperse the last thing. Some housekeepers do not take up their stair or hall carpets till the lower floor is finished in the process of cleaning, preferring to cover them with linen. I always take mine up the first thing and wipe up the halls and stairs, for the tramping and dragging of heavy furniture over the carpets wear them out.—Washington Star.

WILDE FOUND GUILTY.

SENTENCED TO TWO YEARS ON HIS SECOND TRIAL.

Final Step in the Dethroning of the Aesthetic Apostle—The Second Jury Was Sure of His Guilt.

Special to The Times.

ONONDAGA, May 25.—In the Old Bailey this morning when Sir Frank Lockwood resumed his speech he dealt very severely with Wilde in his reference to the prisoner's intimacy with Lord Alfred Douglas. Referring to the much-commented-upon letters which Wilde wrote to Lord Alfred Douglas, counsel said that the jury had been told they were too low to appreciate such poetry, and he, Sir Frank Lockwood, "thanked God it was so, as it showed that they were above the level of beasts." Sir Frank Lockwood warned the jury to render a verdict which would prevent "such a detestable and abominable vice to rear its head unobscuredly in this country."

Justice Wills began summing up at 1.30 p.m. The general tenor of his address to the jury was favorable to Wilde. The jury retired and brought back a verdict of "guilty." Wilde was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

TAYLOR GETS THE SAME DOWD. Alfred Taylor, Wilde's associate, was also sentenced today to two years' imprisonment. Both the prisoners' terms are to be worked out at hard labor.

TRIED TO SAVE HIS SON

And Lost His Own Life—A Double Drowning Accident.

Special to The Times.

HAMILTON, May 25.—Robert Walker, a farmer living in Onondaga Township, about ten miles from this place, and his son John, the latter a young man of about 25, were drowned in the Grand River yesterday. They were trying to cross the river above the mill dam in a scow when the boat upset. The river is only about four hundred feet wide and they were no more than 50 feet out from shore. The old man was a good swimmer, but his son could not swim a stroke and sank almost instantly. The father went to his rescue, and it is supposed that the drowning son caught the old man around the arms and prevented him from doing anything. Both disappeared before help could arrive. The bodies were found in about eight feet of water shortly afterwards.

DOUBLE LYNCHING IN ILLINOIS.

A Mob Afraid Alford Would Pardon Two Brutals.

Special to The Times.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 25.—Early this morning, a mob, which had been in possession of Vermillion county's jail for several hours, succeeded in locating John Hall, Jr., and William Royce, in their cells, took them outside and hanged them for assassinating Mrs. Laura Barnett. Judge Boone made an earnest plea to the mob to let the law take its course. He assured the men that Hall and Royce would receive severe punishment if found guilty, that the trial jury would do its duty to the leaders, who were among the most prominent men in the county, replied: "Yes, we know the jury will convict them and give them the sentence, but Governor Alford will pardon them out. He recently pardoned three brutes who sent up from Champagne county for 20 years, and he will pardon these men. If any other man than Alford was governor we would not lynch these men. But we are determined he will never have a chance to turn them loose."

A MARYLAND HOME.

FAMOUS WYE MANSION, WITH ITS GRACIOUS MEMORIES.

A Sturdy Domicile and an Outbuilding and "Quarter"—A Land of Mist Jaleps and Winesap Malters—Fred Douglas Visits His Boyhood's Home.

If one might be frisked by the mere magic of a wish away from the vulgar scrambling and the din and all the heartless impertinence of this impatient time back to those ways of pleasantness and paths of peace which were the familiar conditions of old Maryland, he might choose to find himself trundling in an antiquated gig through the long, dim stretch of woods and the double colonnade of locusts and beeches which formed the approach to the "great house" and ended in the gravelled drive that belted the noble lawn—from five to seven acres of close, clean sward, dotted with fine and cedars and terraced from end to end. Here stood the sturdy domicile, broad and square, built of bricks brought over from England in the ships that came for tobacco. It was flanked on each hand with offices and strong out to the very edge of the woods with outbuildings—kitchen, dairy, ice-house, overseer's lodge and the "quarter" for the dusky colony of slaves. This latter might be either a group of cabins or a single spacious tenement of logs or stone, affording one big sitting room below, floored with earth and rude dormitories, bunked and blanketed above. On the ground floor the negroes loved to lie around the great hearth, with their feet to the fire, and to sleep, till of a sudden, the loud wailing which was broken only by the familiar cry of warning, "Some fool nigger's heel a-burnin'!"

In the distance was the dumpy windmill for the grinding of the maize which was presently to be either of calum or a single spacious tenement of logs or stone, affording one big sitting room below, floored with earth and rude dormitories, bunked and blanketed above. On the ground floor the negroes loved to lie around the great hearth, with their feet to the fire, and to sleep, till of a sudden, the loud wailing which was broken only by the familiar cry of warning, "Some fool nigger's heel a-burnin'!"

Here was a land flowing with mist jaleps and blooming with delectable damms. Mistress Rebecca Lloyd, beautiful and gracious, greeted the newcomer with a winsome courtesy on the broad piazza, and the grizzled butler, who had "toted" his young missus around so long that there were still times when he forgot himself and called her "honny," brought you the beguiling beverage on a silver salver engraved with the family arms and was distressed if your straw refused to draw. That broad piazza was burned, with the rest of the noble house of Wye, on March 18, 1781, when a British marauding party looted the plantation and the mansion and carried off plate, jewelry and watches, swords, spurs, sashes and cocked beavers, muffs, turbans and tippets, wigs and embroidered waistcoats, plumed hats and cardinals, the whole splendid plunder of brave apparel and dainty bedeckings. The fair Rebecca had long since been abashed among the angels, and the grizzled butler sleeps with his toes turned up to the main, but when I crossed the lawn one kindly day in December I was greeted as graciously by Rebecca's later kinswoman and conducted into the great hall, which never yet, whether in the parent house or in this, was big enough for the hospitalities it has harbored. The grand old manor house gave its body to the flames, but its soul survives in the later mansion, where its traditions of courtesy and kindness are proudly cherished.

Near the site of the historic domicile, a fragment of which still remains, stands the beautiful structure, impressive by its proud simplicity, which invites the eye, far away today in the name of eight generations of Maryland worthies who have kept home there since Edward Lloyd, 1st, of Puritan, in 1668, set up his son Philemon to be lord of the manor of Wye and master of Wye House—incumbent majorem. The main building of two lofty stories, including the hall, drawing room, parlor, dining room and chambers, all of noble proportions, is connected by corridors with one storied wing, which are the library on one side and the domestic offices on the other, presenting a pleasing facade of 800 feet, looking out upon the lawn and the leafy avenue, and over the woods to Wye river and the bay.

In Governor Lloyd's time there was a certain steward, or hallif, at Wye, one Captain Anthony of St. Michael's, at one time master of a bay cart in the service of the governor. This man was the owner of a likely negro boy who came from London, and by his remarkable powers, acquisitions and address became known to the world as Frederick Douglass. In 1881 Mr. Douglass, being then marshal of the District of Columbia, was moved to revisit the scenes of his childhood and his youth, and one day found himself on the porch of Wye House, where he was received by the sons of Colonel Lloyd, their father being absent, with that courtesy which is extended to every stranger who finds his way thither. When he had made known the motive of his visit, he was conducted over the estate, from spot to spot that he remembered and described with all their childish associations—here a spring, there a hedge, a lane, a field, a tree. He called them by their names or recalled them by some simple incident, and all the glowing heart of the man seemed to go out to the place as he passed from ghost to ghost as in a dream. And then a strange thing happened. Standing mute and musing for awhile, he said slowly and low, as one who talks in his sleep, "Over in them woods was whar mo and Mars Dan uster trap rabbits." "Mars Dan" was the governor's son. Was it the man's half playful, half pathetic sense of the grotesque incongruity of the situation, or was it glamour—all the tremendous significance of a phenomenal life connected into the homely reflection and phrase of a barefoot "darker"?

He plucked flowers from the graves of dead Lloyds he had known and at the table drank to the health of the master of the old house and of his children, "that they and their descendants may worthily maintain the character and the fame of their ancestors."—Dr. John W. Palmer in Century.

His Son-in-Law.
Figs.—They say that Dr. Capelle has made a fortune within the last five years.
Gags.—Gracious! What a lot of people he must have cured!
"You're away off. He didn't cure anybody. He discovered a new disease."—New York Tribune.

Keweenaw Point, in Michigan, was so called by the Indians. The word means "a portage."

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—Lord Sholto
Douglas last night, in a burst of confidence party of friends that he was only awaiting a favorable reply from his father, the Marquis of Queensberry, in order to marry Loretta Addis, the young music hall girl with whom he became infatuated at Bakersfield and on whose account he was arrested some time ago. It appears that an engagement to marry has been made with her upon the condition of his receiving parental consent. This he says was effected since Miss Addis returned to the city from Bakersfield. He fully expects that the Marquis will smile upon the union, and says that as soon as he is married he will leave this country and go to some place under the British flag, as he does not like Americans or American ways. The Addis girl opens an engagement at a music hall here tomorrow night despite the prospects of Lord Sholto.

Detroit, Mich., May 21.—City druggists
here report a great number of enquiries
with regard to the specific remedy for Bright's disease, diabetes and all forms of
kidney complaint, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. A partial investigation has shown that in every case the reply of the
druggists to the questions of their customers have been highly laudatory of the
remedy, and that they have been able to cite many cases from their own personal knowledge were the most signal benefits
have been derived from its use. The result has been a very marked increase in the number of sales made, and several unusually large orders have been given.

THE MANIWAKE MURDER.
His Jones Supposed to have been Killed by a Jealous Married Woman.

Special to The Times.

MANIWAKE, Que., May 21.—Miss Jones, who was murdered at Maniwake on Friday morning last, was a quiet and inoffensive girl, 24 years old. Her skull and arm were broken and her body horribly mutilated.
A bloodstained poker was found near by, showing clearly the weapon used in committing the deed. She was alone in the house at the time of the tragedy.

Suspicion points strongly to a married woman living in the vicinity and who has been a neighbor of Miss Jones for a number of years. Jealousy is the alleged motive for the deed.

Why She Never Married.
When a man tempts fate by reminding a spinster of her condition, his punishment is generally swift and sure. In a county of Ireland where the Quakers were numerous the entire body on one occasion gathered together for one of their quarterly meetings.

After the exercises of the morning a public luncheon was held, at which all the Friends attended. The conversation turned to matrimony.

"Bridget," said an unmanly youthful member of the society, speaking across the crowded table to a prim, elderly maiden lady, "will thou tell me why thou hast never married?"

"Certainly, Friend William," responded the ready Bridget in a voice audible over the room. "'Tis because I am not so easy pleased as thy wife was."—London

The Edible Bird's Nest.
In the Andaman Islands the principal industry is that of collecting, cleaning and preparing edible birds' nests for shipment.
The species of bird which builds this queer nest arrives in the islands about the 1st of December and immediately commences to build its nest, which is constructed almost wholly of a gelatinous substance, which is a secretion from the salivary glands of the bird's mouth. The finest quality of these edible nests comes from pure island birds. They are worth their weight in silver in many countries of the orient, especially in China, Borneo, Korea and Siam. They are usually built in caves and cliffs along the coast, but are frequently found in trees.—St. Louis Republic.

Physiology and Portance.
Mr. Veryfresh—I weigh 154 pounds, and do you know that in a person of that size analysis has shown that there are 98 pounds of water, 3 pounds of albumen, less than 1 pound of pure glue, 3 1/4 pounds of fat, 8 1/4 pounds of phosphate of lime, a pound of carbonate of lime, 8 ounces of sugar and starch, 7 ounces of fluoride of calcium, 6 ounces phosphate of magnesia and a little salt. What do you think of that?

Miss Keene—I think it is all right except in this instance in the matter of the —Littell's Free Press.

De Castelle in Blowing Himself.
PARIS, May 21.—Count Boniface de Cas-telle, who married Miss Anna Gould, has bought for $120,000 the ground on the Avenue de la Bourdonne in Paris on which he will build a palace. He is buying race horses in England and is forming an unrivalled stable.

Purified Blood

Saved an operation in the following case. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail. It makes pure blood.

"A year ago my father, William Thompson, was taken suddenly ill with inflammation of the bladder. He suffered a great deal and was very low for some time. At last the doctor said he would not get well unless an operation was performed. At this time we read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before he used half a bottle his appetite had come back to him, whereas before he could eat but little. When he had taken three bottles of the medicine he was as well as ever."—

Trinity to be Rebuilt.

The contracts for rebuilding the Trinity College School at Port Hope have been awarded. Mr. Cannon of Toronto has secured the brick work, and Scott of the same place, the carpenter work. They were each $3,000 under the other tenders. The painting and tin-smithing have not yet been awarded. The building is to be ready for occupation by Sept. 15.

A Fish Yarn.

While fishing on Friday in the locks two local sports had their strength and ingenuity taxed to the utmost. While standing on the bridge their attention was attracted by a ripple on the surface of the water, near the shore, and upon investigation they discovered that a monster fish was disputing himself in the sun. He immediately made for deeper water and the fishermen decided to tempt him with the glittering spoon. The trawl had scarcely struck the surface when he greedily grasped it and the sport began. Being armed with but a golf hook the capture of Mr. Fish was no trivial undertaking. He plunged and frothed for nearly an hour before exhausted nature claimed a respite and he was tugged slowly to shore. When landed it was found that he weighed 27 lbs. and measured 3 feet 6 inches in length.

Peter's Fishing Poles.

Symptoms:—Mild itching, intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue it causes sores, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWARTZ'S Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulcers, and in most cases removes the tumor. As directed, or by mail for 50 cents. Dr. Swaine & Son, Philadelphia. Lyman, Ross & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents.

The annual report of the board was read, and Rev. H. F. Laflamme, of Yellamanchilli, India, followed with an address.

The convention proper opens today in the same place and will continue until Friday night. Officers will be elected just after the opening and vacancies on the Foreign Mission Board will be filled at the afternoon session.

ATE BINDING CORD.

The Cause of the Death of Many Cows—A Discovery Made.

The death of very many cattle in this county and neighboring ones has caused considerable uneasiness in the farming community as it is now transpires that the binding cord mixed with straw has been the cause of death. One man in Ontario has lost seven cows out of eight afflicted, and several others have suffered like loss.

One of the cows was opened and in its stomach was found a ball of twisted cord, which had probably been accumulating there for a year or two, as the ball was very large. It is now said that the cord must be removed from the straw and to do this one farmer suggests having a man at the threshing machine to remove the cord as soon as the band is cut, another suggests having men do the binding in the field.

CHEESE FACTORY BURNED.

Two fires at Brighton—One Caused by a Small Boy.

At noon yesterday Hugh Strong's cheese factory, situated about six miles north of Brighton, was totally destroyed by fire with the exception of 80 cheese. Insured in the Per Mutual for $800. Cause, a spark from the smoke stack.

Yesterday afternoon Owen Davies, residing two miles east of Brighton, lost his drive barn by fire, together with a top buggy, a new set of harness, cutter and some seed corn. No insurance. The fire was caused by his grandson playing with matches.

HE LIKED BOATING.

And Was Arrested on the Charge of Stealing a Skiff—Scrivener in Limbo.

At the instance of Mr. George Moncrieff Robert Scrivener of Smith street was arrested at Hastings yesterday. The former says Scrivener stole a skiff from him, about two weeks ago, and on which he will appear before the magistrate this morning.

Mr. B. Chambers, of Bridgenorth, has a daughter just one year old who tips the scales at 55 pounds. Her waist is 32 inches in girth and her wrist seven. It is probable that a game of baseball will be played in town on Saturday between the Peterboroughs and a team from Lindsay.

Page's bird Wild Rose won the race of the Eastern Homing Club from Cobourg to Toronto on the 24th. Seventeen birds started, and there were eight prizes awarded.

The York Messenger Pigeon Club's race on the 24th was flown from Tread to Toronto on the 24th. Seventeen birds started, and there were eight prizes awarded.

At the games on the Inter Collegiate Association at Berkeley Oval, New York, on Saturday, Yale won with a score of 30 points. Geo. W. Orton, of the I. of P. 30 mile run. His time was 4:23.25, which beats both the college and inter-collegiate records.

The Peterborough cricket team goes to Port Hope to play the first eleven of the Trinity College School, on Wednesday, by the 11.45 a.m. train. The team will be one of the strongest which has ever gone out of Peterborough and should have no trouble in winning the match, although this year the school has a bowler with whom no liberties can be taken. It is simply a question of waiting until he is off the wicket, as his bowling is all very close up and dangerous in the extreme to attempt to score off him, as stated before, the ball is off the wicket. The Peterborough team is composed as follows: S. Ray, H. Burnham, R. B. Rogers, Chappell, Walter Stocker, M. J. Montgomery, Lefevre, Courtois, Poussette, N. St. C. Gard, Thos. Allison, V. McGill and Geo. Horkins.

The Woolbine races are over and the deputations of councillors, appointed to go to Toronto in the interest of manufacturers, has returned.

Now that the picnic season is approaching the attendance at the Sunday schools will increase in an astonishing manner.

The threatened increase of the tax rate this year in Peterborough is not troubling some people as much as the threatened increase in the price of whiskey from 5 to 10 cents per glass.

One of the attractions down the river this season will be the mouth of the ill-fated outfall sewer, built as a monument to the sagacity of Peterborough's municipal government.

People who have wheels in their heads are much better off than some who have them on the installment plan at $10 a month, these hard times.

Mr. Joseph Walker Finds

His Life.

Paine's Celery Compound

Once More the Agent of Rescue

The World's Great Health-

Giver is the Dyspep-tia's Only Hope.

Thirty years of sufferings and agonies from awful dyspepsia! Long, weary days and sleepless nights! Failure after failure with doctors and medicines! Such experiences are common everywhere in Canada, and must continue, if sufferers will experiment with the worthless prescriptions and preparations now flooding the country.

Thousands of men and women—old and young—live to day, and thank heaven for the results they have obtained from earth's best medicine, Paine's Celery Compound.

The marvelous cures effected by this medicine, have given it a standing and popularity that has never been reached by any other. To-day, Paine's Celery Compound is the dyspepsia's only hope and safety; it cures the worst and most obdurate cases of dyspepsia, and gives a new, fresh life to even those who have been pronounced incurable.

Mr. Joseph Walker, of Bloomington, Ont., writes thus:—

"I think it my duty to my fellow men to send you the following testimonial, so that you may let suffering humanity know what your Celery Compound has done for me. I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia for thirty years; have been treated by different doctors, and tried nearly all the dyspepsia remedies on the market without getting much relief, until, seeing your Compound recommended as a sure cure for dyspepsia, I thought as a last resort I would try it; and am happy to say after taking six bottles I was completely cured. I have since recommended it to a number of others, and will continue to do so, as I believe it a sure cure no matter how bad the case may be."

A majority of the advisers of the Sultan have counselled him to agree to the propositions of the powers regarding reforms in Armenia.

Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker, in a sermon in London yesterday, said the only action to be taken on behalf of the Armenians was a war against Turkey.

Who Are the Heroes?
The great heroes are not always found in books and verse. Many a little woman acting bravely her part, all unknown to the world, is unconsciously perhaps waging and winning a battle against adversity, just as though she were a Joan of Arc leading hosts on to victory. The girl who labors in the kitchen in order to support herself and stay the hand of poverty or infamy is acting the part of a heroine. The wife who, with an invalid husband or a trifling husband, sustains herself and little children acts the part of a heroine. The widow who relies on her industry for a livelihood, with orphaned ones to whom she must be both father and mother, acts the part of a heroine. The young girl who braves the fashions of life and attends school in her shabby clothes amid the snobs perhaps of her companions until she has filled her mind with useful knowledge has in her the elements of heroism. The young woman who qualifies herself for business that she may help an aged and afflicted mother, or who prefers to make some money that she can call her own, rather than depend upon a hard-working father for all that she receives, is worthy of being called a heroine. Hundreds of such heroines are to be found in shops and factories, in stores, in kitchens and schools, women who go forth to do her. —New Orleans Picayune.

Ella Wheeler's Double Trouble.
Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the poetess of passion, is afflicted with double trouble. Some of the doubles are very much afflicted by their resemblance to the poetess. One of them is a young woman who for five years now, wherever she happens to go, no matter in what city and right here in New York is called Ella Wheeler. Strangely enough, she herself had never met the poetess and finally concluded that a visit to her might relieve her wrath at having always to pose as a double. Before, however, she put her decision into operation she happened to meet Mrs. Wilcox, and in the pauses of the talk explained her tribulations over the resemblance, at the same time trying to find out where the yellow hair and portliness of the poetess could possibly resemble her own brown hair and slight, youthful figure. Evidently Mrs. Wilcox was as tired of doubles as this double was of being one, for a frown covered her face as she curtly said, "Yes, I am continually having people come to me who say they have been told they resemble me," and turned away to talk telephony. —New York Correspondent.

The College Woman.
In his sensible and unprejudiced book on "The College Woman" Professor Thwing really tells the whole story and answers all criticisms in his final paragraph: "The excellence of the womanhood which the college trains is the ultimate and supreme test of the worth of the college. The type of character which it forms and the influence of this type are now becoming revealed. The early fears that manhood would supplant womanhood in the graduate have been proved groundless. The early fears, too, that educated women would prefer to enter professional rather than domestic life have vanished. So long as the family is the unit of civilization so long will women prefer to be at the head of a home to being at the head of any professional or commercial undertaking. And all the acquired knowledge, all the force of disciplined strength, all the enlarged nobility of character which the college may have contributed will find in the home fitting opportunities for use."

Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt.
Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, or "Mrs. Fred," as she is endearingly termed by her intimates, is the prettiest of the Vanderbilt women. She is also the youngest. She is tall and slender, with pretty blond hair and blue eyes. She has beautiful hands, of which she takes very great care, wearing gloves upon all possible occasions. Although she entertains elegantly, it is not frequently that she gives parties or receptions. There is one entertainment which she instituted a few years ago at Newport which always takes place when August comes round. It is the reception to Mrs. Bottoms and the King's Daughters. Most of Mrs. Vanderbilt's charities are done so quietly and unostentatiously that the outside world knows little about them. —New York Telegram.

Sewing a Womanly Art.
Sewing is a most womanly art. A woman is never more feminine than when she has a needle and thread in her hand. It is the right of every little girl to be taught to sew neatly, even if it costs the mother some self sacrifice. Very few women are wholly exempt from the needle. On the contrary, almost every woman must take more or less care of her own wardrobe, even if she has no family responsibilities. Machine cannot sew on pipe in gloves, replace buttons or mend. Some stitches must be taken, and how to sew neatly is an accomplishment quite as necessary to the happiness of a majority of women as any other. If a little girl be taught early how to use her needle, sewing will soon become a sort of second nature to her. —New York Recorder.

Shades.
In a north room yellow shades are indispensable. They impart an effect of glowing sunshine that is as cheerful if not as warming as the real article. A veritable dose that faces the south china silk should not be used. The ardent sun not only fades the colors, but robs the fabric as well. A lace or lace and scrim curtain, shirred top and bottom, on a small brass rod is the best in the way of service and appearance for such doors. An inside linen shade of dark green or ochre, if preferred, tones the sunshine in the daytime and of an evening permits an unviewed flight up stairs, if the evolution of a rainy night and an old gown is threatened by an announcing ring.

Good News For Brides.
The vicar of Cropely, an Oxfordshire village, has had the following notice attached to the church door with regard to rice throwing at weddings: "It is particularly requested that no rice be thrown at the conclusion of weddings when the bride and bridegroom leave the church. The bride's house and not the church is the right place for observations which have no connection with the religious ceremony and are sometimes a cause of disorder and irreverence." —South Bucks (England) Free Press.

Children and Sleep.
Mrs. Phoebe Hanford, in a recent address, condemned the present system of educating children. Making them early risers, as she put it, in classes was productive of making them conceited all the forenoon of life and sleepy all the afternoon, the energy which should have been stored to meet the trials of later years being all dissipated in their youthful days.

SHOT HIMSELF.

A Grand Trunk Superintendent Found Mortally Wounded—After Retiring to Rest He Shot Himself in the Head.
Special to The Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, May 27.—D.A. Shilcock, superintendent of the Grand Trunk, while at this point, suicided this morning about 7 o'clock by shooting himself in the head. No reason can be assigned for the unfortunate man's rash act, other than of late he has been in ill health with stomach trouble which caused him to be very despondent in the family circle. One of these spells came over him last night and his wife called in a lady friend. The two got him quieted down and back to his room and then retired to bed themselves, when they were awakened by the crack of a revolver, and when they rushed into his room they found him unconscious on his bed.

BLOOD CURE.
out of a wound over his left temple and right ear. He had placed the muzzle of the revolver in his right ear, the bullet passing through the head and out over his left eye, leaving an ugly wound and splintering the skull. He lived but a few minutes. In his bed was also found a razor. The general opinion amongst his many friends who heretofore have looked upon him as one of the most level headed men of the town is that he must have entirely lost his reasoning through some cause or other. His wife who was very much attached to him, has completely lost her reasoning since and fears are entertained for her recovery. The deceased was well and favorably known among the travelling and railway public and the tragic end of such a man was a gloom over the entire community.

A GIRL'S TERRIBLE FALL.
While Exploring She Fell a Distance of 40 Feet and is Badly Injured.
Special to The Times.
HAMILTON, May 27.—Miss Elizabeth Hildrop, 228 Head street, while exploring with her brother on the mountain side slipped and fell a distance of 40 feet. Her chest and back were bruised and she was also injured internally. Her spine is also badly hurt and paralysis may result. She is now in the city hospital and her injuries will likely prove fatal.

A GHASTLY STORY.
A Game of Ball in Which Three Cadavers Served as Bases.
Special to The Times.

ANN ARBOR, May 27.—In the State Medical College here recently the students proposed a game of ball in which cadavers should serve as bases. A sponge wet with human blood should be the ball, and a dismembered arm of a cadaver be the bat. The pitcher used both hands in throwing the ball, and so wildly hilarious did the sport run that when the umpire gave an unpopular decision he was made the target of the blood soaked sponge. The game lasted nearly an hour, and ended by the umpire being thrown from the room, clubbed by a human arm and a sponge ball. The medical faculty try to throw discredit upon the story, but more than half a dozen participants have acknowledged they took part in the game.

EXPOSED TO PUBLIC GAZE.

Having been embalmed, in accordance with the orders of Captain General Hiaj, the body will be exposed to the public gaze at Santiago de Cuba today in order that there may be absolutely no doubt in the public mind as to the identity of this dead leader.

A Diamond Postmaster Arrested.
BARRIE, May 27.—Government Detective Ward visited the village of Hillside, a remote county, where he arrested the postmaster, R. P. Davis, on the charge of embezzling from the Government, and of setting fire to the post-office to conceal the crime. Davis is now in Barrie jail.

Started the Quiet People of Dundas.
DUNDAS, May 27.—The big feature of the celebration of the holiday at Dundas Park was the daring high wire walking of Harding and Kenny, of Toronto. They performed some remarkable feats and gave nervous citizens a decided fright by their intrepidity.

Mysterious Fire at Petrolia.
PETROLIA, May 27.—Fire broke out in the brick block known as Lacey's. Fully this morning and damaged it to the extent of $1,000. Other losses were: Mr. Scarsdale's grocery, $500; insured; Mr. Herring, Advertiser office, $200; insured; Young Conservative Club, $100. The origin of the fire is a mystery. The insurance companies interested are the Alliance, Norwich Union, Queen's, Western and Mercantile.

TALK UNITED STATES

THE AMERICAN LANGUAGE COMPARED WITH THE ENGLISH.

A London Publication Calls Attention to the Difference in the Names Applied to Ordinary Articles—With Some Remarks We "Speak United States."

"I am free, white, 31, and I speak United States," is the modern declaration of independence of every native adult American citizen.

The traveled American—everything by turns and nothing long—who aims at cosmopolitanism and invariably misses the target altogether, and the naturalized creature of indefinite origin, may not proclaim for "United States," but they adopt it all the same, in defiance to the subtle power politicians call the vote.

The American language used to be English, of course—English pure and simple, if English ever was either pure or simple—but it has prospered on its own account, like other things American, and now the English language is being Americanized, like the English nobility, and its vivacity is considerably benefited by the process.

That English is still the basis of "United States" the most thoroughbred American will not deny—the thoroughgoing American never denies facts, the game not being worth the candle, and he never plays games in the dark. The language is the same, with a difference, and in that lies the root of the matter and this article, for though London and New York speak a common, very common, Anglo-Saxon, if they forget for the moment the vowels of French, Latin, Greek and other languages with which it has been polluted, yet the meaning of many words, from which language derives its significance, is considerably modified and altered in their passage across the Atlantic, and they become nearly if not quite as unintelligible as the cockney would find the dialect of a Northumberland village.

Thus, if a Londoner is fortunate enough to cross the Atlantic and be introduced to a sky which has not been disclosed by smoke, a sun which has not been dimmed by fog and an atmosphere which the powers have not forgotten to dry and is as stimulating as champagne, but is unfortunately enough to have to buy a frock coat—a most expensive article—or to order one—as a rule, quite a different matter—he must call it "a Prince Albert."

Prince Albert coat it is in republican America, whatever it may be in monarchical England, where "Albert the Good" is occasionally remembered when the anniversary of his death comes round.

If he wants a billycock hat, he will never get it by that name. He must request the shopman to bring him a derby.

Should the coverings of his feet be worn and he orders a new pair of boots, he will be given Wellingtons, which are "boots" in the American language. If he wants English boots, he must ask for "shoots," while if he likes to show pretty socks and wears Oxford shoes he must call for "tues," or "low cuts," and "slippers" if he needs pumps.

He will find, too, that he does not buy articles in a shop, but at a "store," and he will be sent to its different departments by a "doorwalker," not a shopwalker.

If he would travel in the city, and he desires to use the most derided of New York's public conveyances, which luckily for those whose time is valuable ply only up and down aristocratic Fifth avenue, he must forget that such an abomination as an omnibus ever existed and hail a "stage," while if he wishes to go by or talk about what he would at home call a train he must be careful to say "surface car" or "street car," for trains have no existence in the American vocabulary. If further, he would, when in Rome, do what Rome does, let him forego the use of railway until he returns home and then himself to say "railroad," and let him never forget that he walks on the "sidewalk," not on the pavement.

He would be unfortunately happen to get ill, let him boldly declare that he "feels sick," entirely devoid of what he would be understood to mean home, or it will be taken that he is nauseated, for the words sick and ill mean just the reverse of what they signify in London, and if his doctor gives him a prescription let him not ask to be directed to a chemist, or he will be sent off to a manufacturer of chemicals, if any one knows the address of such a firm, but let him seek for a "pharmacy" or "drug store."

Instead of a draper's shop he will find a "dry goods store," and if he desires to go to one of the upper floors he will take the "elevator," though, as is so frequently the case, the reverse is the truth, for he will find a request to him to buy some hairpins, hooks and eyes, cottons or other small articles, he will find them at the "button counter."

As, being a stranger, he will not have his own carriage, he will, if he wants a drive, "ride" in a "wagon," which is not a cart for carrying packages, but a very comfortable, light, open vehicle, or else in a "buggy," an equally light conveyance with a hood, but open at the sides, and he will find a single horse brougham, he will do well to call it a "coupe," and if he asks for a "carriage" he will get a Victoria with a pair of horses.

In the evening he will naturally go to the theatre, but he must be careful to ask for "orchestra seats" if he wants stalls, while if his tastes are not for drama proper, and he prefers a music hall entertainment, he should invite his friend to go to a "variety show."

If a play is advertised as a "farce comedy," and he imagines he will see a farcical comedy, he will be doomed to disappointment, for a farce comedy is only an alleged play in which the characters are taken by variety show "artists" who introduce their "specialties"—song and dance—in season and out of season. In other words, it is cousin german to a music hall entertainment without the diversity in the programme.

In its pronunciation United States is a law unto itself, and if the awkward Londoner gets "bowed" or wants employment as a clerk let him not call himself a "clerk," for people will open their eyes at his peculiar occupation, and let him also remember that he wears a derby hat, not a bowler.

Well, all, let him avoid as he would a plague the nasal twang which passes current for the American accent on the London stage unless he bankers after being mistaken for a demagogue of the "wild and woolly west," or as he hailing from Oklahoma or Kalameas, both of which places, in spite of a popular belief to the contrary, will be found on the map of the country over which the stars and stripes float and the bald-headed eagle screams.—London Saturday Review.

THRILLING BALLOON TRAGEDY.

Tony Heape's Awful Drop—He Was Clinging to the Netting.

Special to the Times.

St. Louis, May 24.—Among the attractions yesterday at Arsenal Island, a pleasure resort on the river a few miles south of this city, was a balloon ascension and parachute drop by Prof. Barson, a local aeronaut. The professor had a number of men engaged to assist in filling the balloon with gas and to steady it before it was released. Among these was Tony Heape, aged 23 years. Heape asked Prof. Barson to permit him to accompany him, but was refused. When the balloon shot upward the spectators saw Heape clinging to the netting on the upper part of the immense bag. The professor's attention was attracted to Heape when the balloon was about 700 feet high, and he cried to him to hang on, but at that instant Heape loosened his grasp on the ropes and went whirling through the air, turning several somersaults in his descent and striking the ground with such force as to crush his body into a shapeless mass. It is considered a deliberate suicide.

HARRY GREEN'S WAY

HE PLAYED HIS FAVORITE GAME ON MR. SMITH OF CHICAGO.

Four Aces Will Always Beat Your Kings, but in This Case There Was Another Hand, Held by an "Outsider," That Was in at the Showdown.

Do you know how to play poker? If you do and chance to meet an old man who looks like a stockman from Montana, with money to burn, just looking for a good time, don't. If you do, you will be sorry.

A well known business man, who at one time kept a furniture store on State street and has retired from business, paid $1,400 for his experience with the Montana stockman.

An every one knows the furniture man, he may as well be called Smith. Mr. Smith, since he is not engaged actively in business, has been spending a share of his time in a downtown hotel shop every day. One morning while Mr. Smith was watching the market and listening to the voice of the caller, a stranger who "happened" to sit next him engaged him in conversation.

"What is all that, son?" said the stranger.

"Yes," drawled Mr. Smith. "The boy had been broken, and the stranger, whose appearance indicated that he was a westerner, became communicative. He told Mr. Smith he had just come from Montana and was taking a little rest. He declared he had enough money to have come in and pulled a big roll of fifties and hundreds out of his pockets to prove it.

"By gosh, I will have a good time, and if I don't it won't be no fault of mine," said the Montana man as he got up to take a walk about the room.

Mr. Smith paid little attention to the incident until a man who had just entered and was leaning against the wall, and who had seen the stockman display his money, stepped up to him. He asked Mr. Smith if he knew the "old fellow." Mr. Smith said he did not, but the man had told him he was from Montana and had a good deal of money.

"Yes, I saw it," said stranger No. 2. "And you know I think I could get $100,000 out of him in a poker game!"

After considerable persuasion Mr. Smith consented to back the stockman if he would play a little poker.

"Well, I don't mind," said the stockman, and arrangements were made to play in a downtown hotel in the evening.

In the meantime the stranger had a quiet talk with Mr. Smith. He told him he was a professional gambler and knew how to "fix" the cards. They were to get the old man's money and divide the spoils. The plan was as follows: A deck was to be fixed up in which were two hands. Mr. Smith was to get one hand and the stockman four kings. The hands were to be sprung in the stockman's own deal. Stranger No. 2 fixed the cards and said: "Now, you keep the cards on your lap, and when it is the granger's deal I will attract his attention when he gives the cards to you to cut, and at that moment you substitute this deck for the one he hands you. But we must have another man. We can't play three handed."

Mr. Smith knew a great many men, he said, but they were all business men, and all of them were too busy to play. At the stranger's suggestion they started out together to look for the fourth man. They dropped into the Saratoga hotel, and stranger No. 2 saw a man who appeared much more suited to the game.

"Perhaps he will play. Shall I ask him?"

"Go ahead," said Mr. Smith. Stranger No. 2 said he played poker, but not for money or with strangers.

No. 2 produced the card of an Iowa firm. "That's my card," said the stranger. "You're all right, then," said the stranger.

Mr. Smith then said, "I'm Mr. Smith, and every one around here knows me." The stranger was still a little shy, but finally yielded to Mr. Smith's persistence and agreed to sit in the game. The stockman was found in the barroom of the hotel. The quartet went around to a Monte street hotel, and the game began.

The game dragged along for awhile without incident. After an hour or so it came the stockman's turn to deal. He dealt clumsily and handed them to Mr. Smith to cut. At that moment the stockman was seized with a fit of "morning," and stranger No. 2 gave Mr. Smith a signal to run in the "cold" deck. He did it successfully. In the deal Mr. Smith got four aces according to programme. He made a good bet, and the stockman, as he expected, raised him handsomely. But to Mr. Smith's surprise and gratification the Saratoga hotel stranger also stood. No. 2 dropped out of the game.

He sat with confidence, and so did the stockman, and, to Mr. Smith's continued delight, the stranger kept coming in. He didn't raise any bets, but just stood.

The betting was lively and lasted until Mr. Smith came to the end of his pile and had $1,400 on the table. He was kicking because he didn't have more, but had to call for a show.

"Well, I am sorry for you, my friend," said the stockman, "but I have four big kings." He was about to raise the pot.

"You needn't feel sorry, old man," exclaimed Mr. Smith triumphantly. "I have four aces. The money is mine. Did you think I was bluffing?" and he started to grab the money and chips.

"Hold on, hold on!" spoke up No. 2. "Ain't it a shame to let a man get away with $1,400?"

It was like a voice from the tomb to Mr. Smith, and the game broke up. An adjournment was taken to the bar, but the straight stock man and the stockman got away in a cab, and the pot was left for Mr. Smith and his friends.

Mr. Smith's friend told him that he was a double distilled idiot and knew nothing about the noble American game. Then Mr. Smith's friend made him a successful and insignificant good night and left, leaving Mr. Smith to wonder what the stranger got the straight flush.

If Mr. Smith had only known that the stockman was Harry Green, one of the smoothest confidence men and gamblers in the world, all would have been different. He happened that some kind of a game for 20 years and in that time has caught many a fish. Stranger No. 2 was Harry Green, Fred Porter, and Harry Green made barrels of money years ago on the big Atlantic line, and stranger No. 2 would well know Chicago gamblers who come in for a share of the "divvy."—Chicago Tribune.

SUSPENSE IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

Great Excitement Over Bond's Failure to Raise a Loan.

Special to The Times. St. John's, Nfld., May 29.—The Legislature adjourned today for want of a quorum. None of the members of the executive were present, it having been arranged beforehand that no session would be held. It is believed that a hitch has occurred in Colonial Secretary Bond's negotiations for a loan. The general opinion is that the loan has collapsed. Great crowds assembled around the parliamentary buildings and expressed utter disgust because Premier Whiteley's promised announcement was not made. An individual in New York, who is reported to be associated with the loan movement, is unfavorably known here and this episode the whole thing to be regarded as a fiasco.

The Whiteley party is divided on the retrenchment scheme. It is now ready for presentation to the Legislature. It only provides for a decrease of $300,000 instead of $500,000, as Mr. Bond stated in Boston that it would do.

The Detroit Lion Gets in His Fine Work in Philadelphia.

Special to The Times.

TORONTO, May 29.—In the Philadelphia Record of Monday under glaring headlines: "Insults to our flag," "Stars and Stripes torn from a window at London, Ont.," etc., etc., appears the following despatch:

DETROIT, Mich., May 28.—Two anti-American outbreaks in Ontario and attempted insults to the Stars and Stripes have aroused considerable feeling in this city.

During the celebration of Queen Victoria's birthday Friday at London, Richard Wagner, a German by birth, but a British subject, displayed from the second storey of his grocery store the British, Swiss, German and American flags.

Lieutenant Dennison, of the Seventh Fusiliers, of that city, forced his way through Wagner's premises and tore the Stars and Stripes from the window.

Wagner will make formal complaint to the authorities. Dennison is a member of a Toronto family which is notoriously anti-American.

At Windsor, Friday, the Citizens' Committee having in charge the birthday celebration, refused to allow the American flag to be displayed in the city.

Yesterday morning the 48th Highlanders, a Toronto regiment of militia, was booked for a sail on one of the river steamers from Windsor. Major Hanlon, of the Highlanders, made a vigorous protest against embarking with his men on a vessel which flew the Stars and Stripes and which he termed "the Irish flag." He eventually capitulated on being informed that the steamer was an American boat.

The promoters claim it is a legitimate commission business, but it remains to be seen whether the police authorities will look at it in the same way.

PASS HIM ALONG.

The Edwin Houghton Dramatic Co. and its Dealings With the Times.

The Edwin Houghton Dramatic Company which played in the opera house here for one week some time ago, heralded by a profusion of lithographs of the "Soudan," a play which they did not produce, owes The Times a bill for printing.

Edwin Houghton, the proprietor and manager of the aggregation, made an ostentatious profession of having any amount of money. To hear him talk anyone would be led to believe that he had money to burn. According to Mr. Houghton the show adhered to the "pay as you go" motto, and in his horsey style, he boasted that he made it a rule to pay spot cash for everything.

Upon these representations THE TIMES did a fairly large amount of printing for Mr. Houghton, at figures that would not have been quoted had it not been understood to be a cash transaction. It was furnished him when needed and Mr. Houghton made a payment on the bill equal to about one third of the total amount. The company played to poor business the entire week, and when Mr. Houghton was presented with the bill at the conclusion of his engagement here, he put on a poor face, and requested that the balance of the printing be sent to Port Hope, when he said he would take it out and settle the bill. Not being put him to any inconvenience this was agreed to.

To cut a long story short the printing matter has been following Mr. Houghton ever since. It was sent to Port Hope, Lindsay and Hamilton, and at each of these places the hero of the blood and thunder drama has refused to take it out and settle the amount due. At Hamilton the company played to good business and made money, so that it is clearly a case of swindle. The company cannot get along without printing matter as THE TIMES did for it, and as it would be just as cheap for Mr. Houghton to take it out as to get it done somewhere else, the inference is that this theatrical genius is "working" the printing offices of Ontario for what printing he needs.

The Edwin Houghton Company is now playing in western Ontario, and for the sake of the fraternity there THE TIMES asks the press to pass Mr. Houghton along.

A "WRITE UP" FAKE.

How Madoc Business Men Were Swindled by a Sharper.

A neat swindle was played upon the business men of Madoc last week. A man who gave his name as Wilson and who claimed to have lately been connected with the Toronto Globe, canvassed the merchants for an advertising "write up," to be published in the local paper the next week. He first made arrangements for the publication of the "write up" and then wrote up the business men in a very attractive style. To facilitate matters he collected in advance a large number of dollars. He then left town with both money and "write up," and also forgot to pay his bank bill at the hotel. He is a stout man, dark mustache and peculiar eyes, one of his eyes. Those who are interested are quite anxious to locate the gentleman.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time what he mixed with his paints, made the lacquer reply, "brains." It is this gray matter located in the upper storey of man that moves the world. In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co. for the invention of the transposing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of earnest thought before it was brought to perfection. To day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental interest. It is not something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this invention one can now accomplish that which has long been desired by practical men, viz: the adjustability of pitch, especially since the adoption of the French pitch. Music may be played on the transposing piano in the scale of "C," and its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the late Jan. Heintzman & Co. have placed 50 of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

An ordinance was introduced in the Chicago City Council which is intended to prevent women from wearing "bloomers," or knickerbockers, within the city limits. It was laid over.

A Patron of Industry storekeeper near Kingston ordered twelve pounds of nutmegs from a Toronto firm. The order was misunderstood, and twelve barrels of nutmegs were shipped.

Bargains for Tobacco Users.

Mr. Alvie LeGros, the well known George street tobacconist, has decided to close out his stock of choice domestic cigars and tobacco at a price far below cost. Mr. LeGros carries the largest stock of tobaccos of any dealer outside of the large cities and no better opportunity of securing genuine bargains could be had. He intends going into the manufacture of cigars and in order to do so, it is necessary to reduce the stock already on hand. The best brands of cigars will be sold as low as 1¢ per thousand and from that up. This is a snap for users of the weed.

INDIAN WORK.

Baptists Will Endeavor to Place it on a Better Footing.

Lots of the time of the afternoon session of the Baptist convention in Toronto yesterday was occupied with an interesting discussion on the report of the Foreign Mission Board. Mr. Joseph N. Shenstone, who moved its adoption, gave a comprehensive recital of the work now being prosecuted in the foreign field. He was followed by a number of others the general trend of whose speeches showed a desire for a further extension and an increase in the staff of workers.

The retiring members of the Executive Board, John Firstbrook, Rev. E. W. Daddson and Prof. Farmer were reelected. Rev. R. M. Keay, of Ottawa, F. L. Fowler, of Oshawa, and Rev. W. M. M. Walker, of London, read three papers referring to the question, "What can be done to make our foreign mission work still more efficient?" Hon. John Dwyer presided at the evening session and made a pleasing address. Prof. Trotter, who will shortly leave for Acadia, Frederick Tracey and Rev. Galusha Anderson, of Chicago, filled in the remainder of the evening.

INDIAN WORK.

At this morning's session it was resolved that—While recognizing the zeal and devotion of the ladies of Manitoba and Ontario on behalf of the Indians of the North West, we now at the request of the Women's Convention of Ontario refer this Indian work to a committee consisting of Brothers D. Hutchinson, J. Trotter, D. Spencer, R. M. Keay, G. L. Fowler, F. L. Fowler, M. Vanickie, J. M. Trotter, Jas. Grant, J. C. J. Fraser, D. Grant, J. Carter, J. Roberts, C. W. King, T. J. Beamett and F. McEwen with a view to placing it, if desirable, on a more permanent footing. The committee will report on Friday.

A committee consisting of R. R. McKay, G. L. Fowler, J. Trotter, T. W. Ardell, A. N. Frith, R. E. Jamieson, Robert McGregor and John Coutts was appointed to represent the convention to be present at the Dominion Alliance for the attainment of total suppression of liquor.

MONTREAL NEXT YEAR.

The advisability of the selection of a meeting place for next year was then agitated. Invitations from Oliver church, Montreal, and the first Baptist church, of Ottawa, being read to the convention Mr. Buchanan, late president, addressed the convention in favor of Montreal and the delegates unanimously agreed to Montreal next year and Ottawa the year following.

WITH THE SPORTS.

An endeavor is being made by the Toronto Ferry Company to bring Zimmerman and John S. Johnson, the fastest professional wheelmen in the world, together some time during the next two months on the ferry company's new island track. If arrangements are made this will be one of the greatest races ever held on the continent.

Yesterday's National League games were won and lost as follows:—At Boston 12, St. Louis 1; At Chicago 15, Chicago 1; At New York 6, Cleveland 7; At Philadelphia 8, Cincinnati 2; At Baltimore 12, Louisville 5; At Washington 4, Pittsburgh 14.

The Cornell University rowing eight, with four substitutes, started from Ithaca yesterday for England, where they will compete in the Henley regatta. The oarman received an enthusiastic send off.

In the boxing match between "Billy" Plimmer and Corfield in London Monday night the former won in seven rounds. Plimmer was a decided favorite. He showed throughout the fight that he was stronger and more skillful than his opponent. In the seventh round he knocked Corfield down, and the latter was unable to respond to the call of time.

At a recent game at Teacum Park, London, yesterday, between the Toronto Eastern League team and the local Alerts, McGarry and Casey were in the points for Toronto, and until the eighth inning the Alerts could not get a man around the bases. In the eighth innings, however, they batted out 3 runs, and scored two more in the ninth. The game was a rather one sided affair, ending by 11 to 5. Sippi, who hails from London, was presented with a bouquet when he first came to bat.

Attempted Incendiarism.

What seems to have been another attempt at incendiarism occurred on Thursday evening last, says the Lindsay Post, and has been brought to the attention of a local police officer. It was reported that a clew might be picked up that would lead to the discovery of the firebug. About 11 o'clock that evening Mr. and Mrs. T. Anderson, of Lindsay, were sitting in their living rooms in the rear of the fruit store, but after a close investigation could see no signs of fire about. However, the smoke rising from the outside into the cellar, and found that the fire was between the joints supporting the upper floor. It had made its way up between the baseboard and if not discovered would speedily have worked up the stairs and into the house, a very serious fire. As it was, a few pails of water quenched the flames. It was found that a bunch of old rags and paper had been thrown from the outside into an opening between the joints. A more likely spot to start the fire could not have been selected, though the act was a bold one to perform at that early hour.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 30 1895.

It is now clear that Russia regards Corea as her back yard, and that she doesn't intend to let Japan play in it.

A Brooklyn girl has been awarded $1,000 for the loss of both feet in a street car accident. In this case she got there without both feet.

Premier Greenway may regard the complete secularization of the Manitoba public schools as a fair compromise; but it is safe to say that Archbishop Langevin won't.

Commissioner Cockburn included $418.90 in his World's Fair account for wines, liquors and extra meals and $1.85 for milk crackers. The point to be explained is, why this reckless waste in crackers?

After all the expenditure on wines and liquors at the office of the Dominion Commissioner at the World's Fair it is surprising to learn that druggists' prescriptions for the next morning only amounted to fifty cents.

Secretary Gresham, who died at Washington Monday, will be remembered in this country as the one man in the American Government who seemed really anxious to make provision for the payment of the just claims of Canadian sailors on account of seizures by United States cruisers.

G. R. R. Cockburn, as Canadian Commissioner at the World's Fair, charged the country $16.50 for one and a half days' expenses at the Hotel Cadillac, Detroit. A frugal Scotchman ought to be able to figure out a pretty good time at a little over ten dollars a day.

Archbishop Langevin's declaration that immigration to Manitoba has been checked by the abolition of Separate schools will strike people in Ontario as being simply ludicrous. If anything could keep people from moving to the fertile plains beyond Lake Superior, it would be the re-establishment there of a system that every section of North America save Ontario and Quebec, has refused to allow to exist.

The people of Formosa, recently annexed by Japan, raised the standard of revolt and declared for a republic; France is prosecuting her thirty-second war for the purpose of making good her possession of Madagascar, and Spain is busy stamping out the regular triennial outbreak in Cuba. Great Britain is the only power that seems capable of maintaining and extending colonial possessions.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for June. In the June number of FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY the immortal art work of Richard Wagner is set forth in an admirably illustrated article by Mercia Abbott Keith, entitled "Richard Wagner and his Festspiel in Bayreuth," followed by a critical paper on the same subject by M. A. A. Galloway. Charles Edwards, the well-known English essayist and descriptive writer, contributes to this number a highly picturesque account of this ancient and storm-worn Sicily islands. In "Kite Flying Extraordinary" Wilfrid P. Pond gives some very interesting information about this fascinating sport, and furnishes many curious examples of the application of the kite to practical and scientific purposes. A well-informed article by Robert Sloan, accompanied by some wonderful photographs, describes the giant redwood forests of California. Other illustrated features of this great popular magazine are: "The Sailors' Song Harbor," by Mrs. R. F. Woodward; "The Sun Dance of the Taos Indians," by M. Campana; "The Hospice of St. Bernard," by James Ricalton; "Following the Hounds in Southern California," by C. F. Holder; and "Human Phosphorescence," by J. Carter Beard. There is also, as usual, an abundance of good short stories and poems.

SCIENTIFIC HOUSE DECORATION.

A Young Woman of Observation Speaks of Color Schemes For Rooms.

"I have been helping an old school shunt to refurnish her house," said a young woman of observation, "and I have learned more about color effects in one week than I ever knew before. You see, houses are not painted or papered as they used to be, on the old, simple plan of 'that will look well here,' and 'such a pattern will be all right there,' but according to settled laws, canons and rules. It's quite a scientific matter now, I assure you.

"Yellows, for instance, are all right for a hall or vestibule, but they must not be used in any room in which one rests or reads or works. Why? Because yellows do not absorb any light, but are strong reflectors, and the reflected rays of light are not only trying to the eyes, but positively affect the brain and the spirits, creating a distinct disturbance of the nervous centers. So the modern scientific decorator, at any rate, tells us, and we believe him.

"On the other hand, buffs and creams are recommended for the nursery and children's sleeping rooms because of their tonic qualities. They are better than white, which is apt to disturb the young optic nerves by its brilliancy, and are calculated to impart a cheerful but not too boisterous temperament as well as a good complexion to the youngsters.

"For the library or workroom there is no color like coffee. Coffee, in fact, is the most soothing thing in the color world, it seems. It induces a pleasant nirvana feeling, such as nothing else does. It conduces to habits of speculative thought. It produces a philosophical calm, and it is eminently successful as a mild incentive to literary efforts. Indeed there seems to be some delicate and abstruse connection between coffee as a beverage and coffee as a color for domestic decoration. I suggested something of this sort to the handsome and interesting young artist who was superintending the decoration, and he condescended to agree with me.

"I have learned one really important fact about colors, however. I used to imagine that there was no color so cool as white, but the contrary, the coolest of all colors is red—not the glaring, glaring red, but the dull Pompeian red and terra cotta. These are cool because of their peculiarly absorbent qualities. It is almost impossible to light or warm them, and I had today a most convincing object lesson of this fact—that while the cool white room of the Wordsworthian poem is all very nice to read about, and does at first sight impress one as being such, it does not begin to compare in coolness with one in dull red. A visit to the two rooms had just the same cooling effect on me that is produced by passing from sunshine into shadow. Of course you know I am speaking all the time of interior decoration, although I am not sure whether a terra cotta town would not be considerably cooler than a whitewashed one.

"So you see the old Pompeians were right when they cooled off their atria and patios by painting the town red. The only other color which approaches Pompeian red for coolness, so the elegant and artistic young workman told me, is dark green, but it has been found to have so depressing a mental effect on most people that it is very sparingly used. Then I was told lots about mass effects, distance shadows and length lines, and I don't know what else, but quite enough to convince me that the decoration of our house interiors is conducted upon a plane so lofty that it is impossible to say whether it is an artistic science or a scientific art."—New York Sun.

210 Coscan Ave., Toronto.

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment: When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as a lime could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the nape of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

ITS FAME SPREADING.

A New Remedy in General Use in Manitoba and the Northwest.

WINNIPEG, May 27.—The effects of the regular waves of sickness which sweep over this portion of the Dominion in the spring are noticed in the increasing amount of the druggists' sales. There has been quite a run on the kidney remedy now well known under the name of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The recovery from Bright's disease of Mr. Arthur Coley, of Somerset, through their use, an account of which appeared in the papers, gave a considerable impetus to the sale, and the remedy has become indispensable in many Manitoba households, its fame having penetrated into the remotest parts of the province and North West Territories.

FORTY-SIX THE DIVISION.

THE WORN OUT BUDGET DEBATE AT LAST CARRIED.

Dr. Montague Poured in Some Hot Shots at the Close of the Debate—The Government's Majority Forty-Six.

OTTAWA, May 30. HE budget debate was not allowed to close in an anti-climax. It has dragged out all most interminably—has been one of the longest since the introduction of the National Policy. The Government had kept one of its heavy weights, Dr. Montague, until near the close of the debate.

A full house and a crowded gallery greeted the Secretary of State, who delivered a rattling speech but availing himself of the stamp. He was very frequently applauded. He quoted the opinion expressed by Hon. Alex. Macdonald in 1871, that instead of such a railway as the Canadian Pacific, a narrow gauge road, with steamers on the lakes, would do for the North West. Would any Liberal of today agree with that statement of opinion?

"Yes," said Mr. McMillen. "The member for North Wellington always was a narrow-gauge politician," said Dr. Montague, and the whole House joined in the laugh.

THE SHOT HIT DAVIES. Proceeding the Doctor ridiculed the Liberal stand upon other great questions, and as he scored point after point the Ministerialists cheered and cheered again. He was quoting from a speech delivered years ago by Mr. Davies, when the latter asked from what paper the report was taken.

"Does the hon. gentleman deny the correctness of the report?" asked the Doctor. "But then he has a habit of denying statements."

"Order," roared the Opposition. Mr. Davies was upon his feet. But Dr. Montague would brook no interruption. He had been put down when he asked a question the other day, and he claimed the protection of the chair.

Mr. Laurier had a point of order to raise. Was it in order for a member to state that another was given to repudiating his own statements?

HAUNTED BY THE PAST. Dealing with "specific denials" made by Liberal speakers in the course of the debate, the Secretary of the State set one against another and endeavored to show wherein they contradicted each other.

Mr. Davies had denied that he had ever spoken in favor of commercial union, and the Secretary quoted from speeches of former years to show that the member for Queen's had "favored the fact." The doctor enjoyed this part of his own address immensely, and his fellow Conservatives encouraged him with real cheers—not mere conventional applause or Parliamentary "bear, hear," but shouts of enthusiastic agreement.

WENT FOR SIR RICHARD. A funny feature of the speech was a "take off" on Sir Richard Cartwright. "I am going to quote from a speech by a Liberal leader," said Dr. Montague, "and I do not need to name him, because it bears the ear marks of his author."

Then he proceeded to read one of Sir Richard's vigorous denials of the Government's "villainous policy." The frequent occurrence of such expressions as "high-way robbery" were enough to betray the authorship, but if any doubt were felt it would have been dispelled by Dr. Montague's caricature of Sir Richard's manner of speech and gesture.

Occasionally the doctor laid a little trap for the Opposition, and they would fall into it beautifully. "No country," he said, "has ever grown great save by protection. Does anyone doubt that statement?"

"Yes," chorused the Opposition. "But," rejoined the doctor, "it is the statement of the member for North Nova Scotia, made in the '70s." Then the Conservatives cheered again.

The speech was not all fun by any means. There were facts in plenty, and they were carefully presented.

A DIVISION AT LAST. Dr. Landierie replied to Dr. Montague. He said that gentleman had paid high tribute to the late Sir John Macdonald. That was generous, seeing the latter had said Dr. Montague was only good for making long winded speeches. With pleasantries such as these the doctor continued the House some time. Then Mr. Jeannot in French and Mr. Casey in English closed the budget debate. It had occupied just thirteen days. It was after two o'clock when the Speaker said, "Call in the members."

With the exception of Mr. Calvin of Frontenac, who voted with the Opposition, the division was a straight party one. The vote stood for Sir Richard Cartwright's tariff amendment: Yeas—71; nays—117; Government majority 46. Mr. O'Brien and Thomas McCreary voted with their old party.

A NAPANESE SCANDAL. John Haight and Mrs. John Pringle Elpee. She took four of her children—Pringle would like to recover his children.

NAPANESE, May 30.—Napanee is wildly excited over the elopement of John Haight and Mrs. John Pringle. Haight is a married man and of late has been leading a pretty fast life. Mrs. Pringle has a husband and five children, and it is alleged that improper relations have existed between her and Haight for the past year. On the third instant Haight left town, and the next day Mrs. Pringle disappeared, taking four of the children with her. The guilty couple are supposed to be at the Cape.

Mrs. Pringle was left considerable money by death of a sister a short while ago, and recently Haight disposed of some property, so that they are well provided with funds. Haight's wife, who is an estimable woman, is terribly broken up over the affair. Pringle says he does not wish to have anything more to do with his wife. She would like to recover the children.

A CIGARET FAMINE. West Virginia imposes a Big License Fee and Home are Taken Out.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 30.—The recent West Virginia Legislature passed a law imposing a license of $300 per annum on retail dealers in cigarettes. The act went into effect on the 23rd inst. Not a retail dealer in this State has yet taken out a license. In consequence there is a cigarette famine and those wanting cigarettes are obliged to send to Ohio and Pennsylvania for their supply.

To have perfect health you must have pure blood, and the best way to have pure blood is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

COLEMAN RETURNS.

The Clean Shaver who Figured so Largely in Recent Airmail Reading Investigation in Toronto, Crosses the Pond to His Native Heath.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES. New York, May 30.—J. Fred Coleman who left Toronto last winter coincident with the boodle investigation, arrived from Europe on the Teutonic yesterday. Among his fellow passengers were ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney, a Presidential candidate, and G. W. Smalley, the new American correspondent of the London Times.

With Mr. Coleman was his daughter, a beautiful brunette, who was one of the belles of the saloon during the voyage. FRED WAS ENJOYING HIMSELF.

A reporter went down the bay on the revenue cutter Chandler and boarded the Teutonic at quarantine. Mr. Coleman was found in the center of a group of English gentlemen bound for Canada, to whom he was pointing out the beauties of New York harbor the glittering spires of the churches and the business towers in the city beyond.

"It was thoughtful of the press to send me such an early welcome," said Mr. Coleman as he greeted the correspondent. "Tell my friends in Toronto I am as glad to get back as they will be to see me. I have been in France and Italy for the last five months and my health is almost recovered. I went abroad because of threatened lung trouble."

NOT BECAUSE OF THE INVESTIGATION. "The boodle investigation? Not a bit of it, my boy. That wasn't the reason. My health demanded a European trip, and I went to the south of France."

"I shall go home to Toronto in a few days, as soon as I have rested. Where will I stop in New York? Well, I was going to stop at the St. Cloud, but I have decided to go with friends to their home in Brooklyn for a little while. My daughter is employed at getting back to this side once more, and, of course, I am, too."

HEWITT GETS A "SIT." The friends of ex-Ald. Edward Hewitt, who left Toronto during the progress of the boodle investigation, have received word that he has finally located in Cleveland. He has been given a situation there by a street railway company at a salary of $1,200 a year.

Mrs. Hewitt left to join him in Cleveland a couple of weeks ago.

IT WAS EXAGGERATED.

THE REPORT THAT 33 SHANTYMEN WERE DROWNED NOT TRUE.

Only Two Were Lost—An Ottawa Dispatch Reporting the Drowning in the Spanish River of 33 Lumbermen Without Foundation.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES. OTTAWA, May 30.—Word reached the city yesterday of a terrible accident on the Spanish river, by which 33 men lost their lives.

The men were asleep at the time of the awful catastrophe. These facts were elicited from a gentleman who arrived down from the vicinity.

The accident took place on Wednesday last. It seemed from the meagre details to hand, that the men were encamped on a crib of square timber for the night. It was moored near the head of a rapid and broke from its moorings, and carried its living occupants over the surging waters to their death.

Another despatch says that the men were in the employ of Davidson & Hay, of Toronto but Lieut. Col. Davidson says that such is not the case.

GROSS EXAGGERATIONS. LITTLE CREEK, May 30.—The reports telegraphed from Ottawa about an accident on the Spanish river, about the drowning of 33 lumbermen on the Spanish river are gross exaggerations.

Two river drivers were drowned while running logs down the stream. This is the only fatality reported, but two other men had an exceedingly narrow escape on the Whitefish a few days ago. They were caught in the swiftly moving current just above the falls and were carried over the falls and through the rapids below. By what seems little short of a miracle, the men escaped, but their lives were terribly shaken up by their awful experience.

The drop in the falls amounts to nine feet and there are very strong rapids below.

THE REPORT DISCREDITED. OTTAWA, May 30.—Full enquiries made among the leading lumber firms here tend to discredit the rumored drowning of 33 shantymen on the Spanish river.

NEWFOUNDLAND LOAN.

What an English Syndicate is Willing to do.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES. LONDON, May 30.—The Canadian Gazette announces that Newfoundland having failed to obtain a loan in New York, a London syndicate has undertaken to successfully issue in London, during June, a four per cent. loan of $250,000.

This is subject, however, to the important condition that all the legal points must be proved to be satisfactory.

Experts say that this condition is likely to prove fatal to the project. Today being Derby Day, no further details of the transaction are obtainable.

Hon. J. G. Ward, the New Zealand Treasury Minister, who leaves for Ottawa in a few days, believes that the negotiations already begun, will result in free trade between Canada and New Zealand.

The proposed reciprocal treaty between New Zealand and the Australian colonies, he says, would not interfere with practical free trade with Canada as the Australian proposal affects only fruit, wine and salt.

THE POPE TRAGEDY.

Attorney Lothrop Gives His Evidence—Recess Until Friday.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES. DETROIT, Mich., May 30.—Cyrus E. Lothrop, who formerly acted as Mrs. Pope's attorney, testified yesterday that a year ago while Mrs. Pope was very sick, she made a will bequeathing her property to any children that might survive her. She stated then that her husband had threatened her life and had taken her money away.

Witness had drawn up an assignment of Dr. Pope's insurance to his wife and the doctor had signed it. Brasseur, the man who acknowledged having killed Dr. Pope, told witness that the doctor had threatened his life and that of Mrs. Pope. Mr. Lothrop told what he knew of the murder, and having called to the rooms of Pope soon after the tragedy. He contradicted the detectives regarding Mrs. Pope's alleged instructions to her little daughter as to what she should say about the crime. Brasseur, Mr. Lothrop said, had repeatedly asserted to him that he killed Dr. Pope in self defense and not at Mrs. Pope's instigation. Some testimony of newspaper reporters tended to corroborate the latter's statement. Court took a recess until Friday.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Cures Mr. James McCord of Prescott, Ont.

BEFORE USING THE COMPOUND HE WAS UNABLE TO OBTAIN STEEP OWING TO PAINS IN HEAD AND STOMACH

A noted physician asserts that dyspepsia is the bane of our modern civilization. This assertion, unfortunately, is too true, for it is well known that over three fourths of our Canadian people suffer from some form of stomach derangement that must develop into serious and distressing ailments, unless the utmost vigilance and care is exercised.

This modern curse of our refined and boasted civilization is brought on by a vast variety of causes; the following are among the commonest:—Nervousness, despondency, exhaustion of the vital powers, want of exercise, sedentary habits, too long continued mental application, irregularities in diet, late hours and excesses of various kinds.

The terrible results show themselves quickly. Distress after eating, headache, bloating, pain in pit of stomach, rising of food, want of appetite, coated tongue, bad taste, sluggish and torpid bowels. Prudence and wisdom should direct all dyspeptic sufferers to that fountain of health, Paine's Celery Compound, where sufferers are sure to find a cure, and banish forever their load of miseries and pains. Thousands in the past have found a new life, and now enjoy the full pleasure of perfect digestion, sweet sleep and rest, and sound bodily health, after using Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. James McCord, of Prescott, Ont., whose portrait appears above, recently sent the following testimony:—"For over five years, I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia, and have used a great variety of medicine, without any benefit or good results. I was advised to use your Paine's Celery Compound, and now having just about finished three bottles, I feel it my duty to announce to the public the great benefits I have received. For over a year I was unable to sleep at night, owing to pains in my head and stomach, and my appetite was gone; now, I can sleep well, I am always ready for my meals, thanks to your Paine's Celery Compound. I cannot recommend it too highly to those suffering from dyspepsia."

THE BASKATONG TRAGEDY

ARRIVAL OF THE ALLEGED MURDERESS IN HULL.

Says She is Not Guilty—Accused of the Crime Because She Was First to Inform the Neighbors—A Pitiful Scene in the Hull Jail.

OTTAWA, May 30. ATGUE and distressed, Mrs. John Infurmbolte, the accused in the now celebrated Baskatong murder case, arrived in Hull last evening, and with an infant in her arms was placed in a cell in the jail to await her trial at the assizes in July.

The accused is a low steeled, has a decidedly bronzed complexion and dark eyes. Her features resemble in a marked degree those characteristic of the Indian race.

She bears traces on her face and head of the drunken brawl in which she and her husband were on the day Miss Jones was murdered. Her eyes are both blackened by the blows received from her husband.

SAYS SHE IS INNOCENT. While being shown to her cell in the jail, tears rolled down her cheeks, and she remarked in French: "What makes me feel bad is to think of my children at home." She said she was innocent of doing any harm to Miss Jones, and she always thought her a good girl. They blamed it on her just because she was the first to make the thing known to her neighbors.

Snapper was entering the accused woman shortly after midnight the jail, and immediately afterwards she and her baby went off to sleep, being tired from her day's journeying.

THE ACCUSED'S STORY. The evidence led the jury to believe that on Friday morning Mrs. Laframboise went to the house of the murdered woman and through jealousy deliberately killed her. She, however, denies this. She said that on Thursday evening she and her husband began to quarrel, she accusing him for spending all his money while her children were not being provided for.

When the quarrel broke out at ten o'clock on the morning between nine and ten o'clock a pair of scissors, she found Miss Jones dead. She went and told her husband that Miss Jones was murdered and they both notified the neighbors. Her husband corroborated her story.

Meeting in Australia. VIENNA, May 30.—Doctor Luger, the anti-Semite leader in the Reichstag, and vice-Burgomaster of Vienna, today refused to accept the office of Burgomaster, to which he was elected, because the majority received was the smallest that was permitted by law to elect.

Upon learning of the refusal, an excited mob made an attempt upon the town hall, which they stormed and took possession of. Fierce fighting ensued between the mob and the police, and at the present writing the riot is still in progress.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 31 1895.

THE DOMINION BANK.

Elsewhere will be found a report of the annual general meeting of the Dominion Bank which took place at the head office of this institution on Wednesday last, May 29th.

The report presented was exceedingly satisfactory, and showed that the affairs of the bank were in a prosperous condition. The total earnings, after deducting charges of management, etc., including a balance of $6,328.78 from the profit and loss account, was $189,890.31. From this were paid three quarterly dividends of three per cent. on the paid up capital stock, amounting to $18,989.03. The substantial balance of $15,890.31 was carried forward to profit and loss account.

During the year the bank sustained an irreparable loss in the death of Mr. Robert Bethune, the general manager, who filled the position since the inception of the bank, 24 years ago, and to whose sagacity and energy the institution owes its present high financial position. The directors were fortunate, however, in having in their employ a gentleman in the person of Mr. R. D. Gamble, who has been in the service of the bank since 1871, and who was appointed to the vacant position. Under the new management the bank is certain to continue its upward career.

It is now clear that Russia regards Korea as her back yard, and that she doesn't intend to let Japan play in it.

A Brooklyn girl has been awarded $13,000 for the loss of both feet in a street car accident. In this case she got there without both feet.

Premier Greenway may regard the complete secularization of the Manitoba public schools as a fair compromise; but it is safe to say that Archbishop Langevin won't.

Commissioner Cockburn included $418.90 in his World's Fair account for wines, liquors and extra meals and $1.85 for milk crackers. The point to be explained is, why this reckless waste in crackers?

After all the expenditure on wines and liquors at the office of the Dominion Commissioner at the World's Fair it is surprising to learn that druggists' prescriptions for the next morning only amounted to fifty cents.

Secretary Gresham, who died at Washington Monday, will be remembered in this country as the one man in the American Government who seemed really anxious to make provision for the payment of the just claims of Canadian sailors on account of seizures by United States cruisers.

G. R. R. Cockburn, as Canadian Commissioner at the World's Fair, charged the country $16.50 for one and a half days' expenses at the Hotel Cadillac, Detroit. A frugal Scotchman ought to be able to figure out a pretty good time at a little over ten dollars a day.

Archbishop Langevin's declaration that immigration to Manitoba has been checked by the abolition of separate schools will strike people in Ontario as being simply ludicrous. If anything could keep people from moving to the fertile plains beyond Lake Superior, it would be the re-establishment there of a system that every section of North America, save Ontario and Quebec, has refused to allow to exist.

THE LIME JUICE CLUB

REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING OF THIS CHASTE SOCIETY.

Some Very Important Business Transacted—Large Attendance of Members and Visitors—The President on Patriotism—A Prize Poem.

"Be patriotic," began Sir Richard, as General Tighe swallowed a trunk key which he had been holding in his mouth to cure dyspepsia; "be patriotic, but find out first what patriotism means. Our in your hat. Liberty in this country has been as near a sham as a circus without a manager, or a clown performers. Put that in your pipe. A general who loses a battle is all O. K. if he can run a political party. A general who wins one is forgotten in a year if he don't vote the right ticket. In one breath we flatter ourselves that we have the greatest statesmen on earth, and in the next we convict them of todayism, nepotism, Curran bridge plunder and general corruption. We pray, 'God save the Queen,' and then go and get drunk, expecting that our prayers will be answered. We shout 'Canada forever,' and 'Britains never will be Slaves,' and then turn around and coerce Manitoba into submitting to the church. We want our people to be industrious, prosperous and sober, and yet we sell them the worst kind of liquor. 'The man who sets out to be a patriot must go slow, or he will be taken up for a lunatic, or a rascal instead. It's a grand country, but the taxpayers have to foot the bill. It is an empire of free speech, but you must agree with the big guns or you will be set down as a crank. We boast about our mode of government and superior civil servants, and yet we select only such men for fat government jobs as are utterly useless for ordinary pursuits, and who have made a failure of everything except voting the right ticket. We rap at Car of Russia for his tyranny, and yet we submit to laws and practices and rappings from policemen, and arrests without warrants, and customs which would send the Russian into a war of rebellion. We pretend to despise titles and yet we toady to the rich."

"Be patriotic," my friends but don't shoot of a whole battery of artillery to kill your dog when a whistle will do just as well. Let us now enter upon the business which culminated us together."

THE PRESIDENT HONORED.

The Secretary announced a communication from Mr. McBrideville, announcing that the name had been given to the new town in honor of the President of the Lime Juice Club.

Sir Richard was quite overcome for the moment, and might perhaps have broken down under his emotion had not Boneyard Bellijim accidentally upset the water pail and filled the surrounding brogas with ice water.

GENIUS EVOKED.

The Secretary of the Board of Trade, Lindsay, forwarded a communication in which he asked whether a person suffering with chilblains could pull of his boots and scratch his heels in church or the theatre without outraging public sentiment.

"That is a question which has given me considerable thought," said the President. "Sometimes it seems as if he could, and then again it seems as if he couldn't. The business of chilblains is to tickle and annoy. The business of the owner is to pacify that uneasiness. You can't talk to a chilblain, or argue with it, or scare it away by threats. It takes more nerve to sit still for ten minutes with your feet tickling and tingling and itching than it does to face a mad lion for half an hour. It seems as if something had to be done, but what to do is the question. I believe that genius should be invoked. I believe genius can attach a nutmeg grater to an iron rod, and fit the machine inside his boot, so that when the uneasiness begins a movement of the rod will agitate the grater along the sole of the foot and brings on a peaceful calm. I believe we have the genius in this Club, and for the sake of bringing him out I will hereby offer a reward of $25 from the treasury to the inventor of a successful chilblain 'scratcher.'"

Something of this sort will no doubt be brought out soon, and the successful genius may look for a large sale and big profits.

MUSIC AND POETRY.

The Secretary announced that he had received from Bro. F. D. McKay, the spring poet of the Olympic Orchestra, the following beautiful lines, dedicated to the President. It had been set to music by Bro. Harry LeBrun. The Harmony Club tucked up and sung so beautifully that the hall clock stopped dead still at five minutes to ten.

THE KEENE BRANCH.

Bro. Calfskin Bizard, a delegate from Keene, stated that the branch in that village was in a flourishing condition, and the members consisted of nearly every male resident of the place. They had recently witnessed a horse race in that village between 2:40 Elmhorst's nag and Gingerale Kennaley's trotter. Although there were 14 stop watches in the judges' stand Bro. Castiron Cruickshank, who acted as final referee, was unable to tell which horse was entitled the stakes. The results was that the dispute ended up in a row in which both the owners of the horses were severely punished. He thought that same action should be taken by the parent club, or the most of the members would soon be in jail.

The Secretary will at once notify the Keene branch, on blue paper with carmine ink, that their charter will be revoked if a stop is not put to such disorder. As as for the race, the 2:40, they are each fined $1600 and costs."

A COMING SHADOW.

The Secretary announced a communication from Mrs. Amanda Hopehope, of Campbellford, containing intelligence of the death of her husband by his own hand, caused by his failure to secure admission to the Club, and her determination to begin suit for $5,000 damages unless a check for $300 was forwarded by return mail.

The Secretary was instructed to return a reply to the effect that the Club could not consider itself morally or pecuniarily responsible, and a hint was thrown out to the Treasurer that it might be policy to hide all his funds in an oyster can and bury the can under about four feet of back garden.

GATHER EHEM IN.

The Secretary announced a communication from President William McFarlane, of the Young's Point Liver Complaint Association, asking the Lime Juice Club to receive them as a body. After an official existence of six months they found themselves out of wood and candles, behind in the rent, affected with corns and chilblains, and no further use to high-toned society.

On motion of Capt. Scollard, who said he was personally acquainted with Mr. McFarlane, the Liver Complaint Society was absorbed by a unanimous vote.

BE WHAT YOU ARE.

When the notes of trangle gave warning of the hour for closing, the President said:

"My friends, the man in disguise is the man who don't take comfort. Be what you are, and nobody else. Don't pucker your mouths to make them look small, nor pinch your feet to lessen the bulge. Trying to pull on a number seven kid glove over a number ten hand is on a par with spending all your money for bacon and then jacking your wife because you haven't got potatoes. That's all now, and we will now get under our hats and impeach the meeting for one week."

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

May 31.—Butter—The offerings of fine straight yellow new made butter in tubs and large rolls is more liberal and the market for it here is steady, with a fair demand only. The price asked for fine new stuff is 15c to 16c, the latter for small lots of extra choice. The stocks of low grade here are smaller. A large lot was sold for shipment to Germany recently, where it will probably be used for oleomargarine. It sold at 8c to 9c. Creamery butter is offered more freely in the country. A large shipment from Bristol, Eng., was here today, and said that the offerings of butter in the English markets at present were large, and the best price he would offer for Canadian creamery tubs would only be 12s 6d for the best 14c. A local firm received a letter lately from a British Columbia firm stating that they were getting California creamery butter there at 16c to 17c freight and duty paid. Creamery is quoted here at 17c to 18c for rolls and 16c to 17c for tubs.

Potatoes—The offerings are only fair, there is a good demand and the market is firm at 10c to 11c.

Poultry—Are in fair demand and steady. Cars on the track here are quoted at 45c.

Hay—Is in fair demand and steady. Cars on the track here are quoted at 90.

Dressed Hogs—The receipts on the street market here today were small, the demand was steady, and the market was easier, with sales at 35 to 36 1/2, and some poor stock sold lower than these prices.

FARMERS' MARKET.

May 22.—The receipts of grain on street market here today were small, prices were firm. One load of white wheat sold at $1 and one load of goose wheat at 93c. The receipts of hay and straw were small, there was a fair demand and the market was steady. Lots of hay selling at $10 to $11 for timothy and $7 50 to $8 50 for clover, and lots of straw at $4 50 to $5 50. The receipts of dressed hogs were small, and the market was easier, with sales of the best at 35 to 36 1/2 and some poor ones sold for less money.

MONTREAL.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

May 31.—There was no improvement in yesterday's and today's cable advice. Both Glasgow and Liverpool are quoting lower owing to liberal supplies and continued hot weather. Private advice says that $5d to 6d is about the range for Canadian cattle. Shippers are operating very sparingly on this market, today's transactions consisting of only three or four lots of cattle and sheep. At the Point St. Charles market a lot of 114 head of sheep was bought for export at 4c, and another lot of 40 head of sheep at 3c 1/2. A fair quantity of cattle was offered but there were principally butchers' stock. There were about 350 head of butchers' cattle, 600 calves, 700 sheep and lambs and 50 store hogs and small pigs offered at the Exchange. A butcher's stock was much larger today than on Monday, and prices of these were lower than on that day. Although a few of the best beefs were held at 54c per lb, 5c per lb was about the highest price paid for butchers' cattle up to near noon. Pretty good stock sold at about the same rates as on Monday, but from 3c to 4c per lb. Mr. Bickardike bought 22 head of shipping cattle at 34c to 36c per lb, and 40 good sheep at 4c per lb. Good calves were in active demand at about former rates, but the small ones were not saleable. The best calves sold up to $10, and common at $2 to $5. Good sheep sold at from 4c to 4 1/2c per lb, but poor stock brings much less. A lot of five lean sheep were offered at $3 per head. Lambs were plentiful and lower in price, or from $2 to $3 50 each. Fat hogs are in fair supply and prices remain at from 4c to 6c per lb.

Following are the live stock shipments for the week ending May 29, as prepared by H. Bickardike of the live stock exchange:—
May 24—Oreona, London, 454 cattle and 51 sheep. May 25—Brazilian, London, 494 cattle. May 26—Brazilian, Liverpool, 495 cattle. May 27—Mongolian, Liverpool, 605 cattle. May 28—Lake Winnipeg, Liverpool, 540 cattle and 344 sheep. May 29—Mexico, Montreal, 281 cattle and 281 sheep. May 30—Glasgow, 400 cattle. May 31—Amarnytha, Glasgow, 300 cattle and 731 sheep. May 25—Alyons, Newcastle, 300 cattle. Total, 4,008 cattle and 1,029 sheep.

Ever since the fatal announcement that President Cleveland had sent a check for $500 to some Western triplets named after his family, he has been bombarded with information in that line calculated to drive sleep from his eyes. The latest communication announces the arrival of "four," their happy father declaring that they are all "queens." He wants to name them after the feminine members of Mr. Cleveland's family, but he is then one name shy, so he suggests Grovetter, in addition to France, Ruth and Esther. It is feared that this last delicate compliment will drive the President to strong drink.

LAKEFELD.

Correspondence of The Times.
BURTON'S SHOW.

Two performances were given here by Burton's variety company last Monday, but owing to the cold weather they played to poor business, especially at the afternoon performance. The various acts were of a good average, and the slack wire artist above the average, while the trained dogs especially caught the fancy of the youngsters.

WEATHER.

The cold snap culminated on Wednesday night, when five degrees of frost was registered, and many complaints of damage to tomatoes, cucumbers, grapes, &c., were heard.

DRIVES.

A drive of logs was towed down from Young's Point for Mr. C. Wynn by the Golden City, on Tuesday. Mr. T. Callahan with a large gang of men went north in the early part of the week to raft several lots of logs, and the Undine has been secured by the Rathbun Co. to tow for them.

SUMMER COTTAGES.

Besides the new summer hotel on Clear Lake which has just been completed for Major Bellasis, Messrs. E. Tate, and L. Payne are building new cottages on Stony Lake. Messrs. W. Cox and R. C. Strickland are making alterations and additions.

THE CELEBRATION.

A welcome change on Thursday ushered in true Queen's weather on the 24th and the day was joyfully and heartily celebrated here. The G. T. R. brought in a large crowd on the morning train, the majority of them embarking on the Golden City, and Mary Ellen for a trip up the lakes and both boats were well loaded. The chief event of the day was the St. Paul's church picnic in the Agricultural show-grounds. The first item on the programme was a football match between the Lakefield club and the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, this was well contested for the first half though Lakefield held the advantage from the start, but towards the end the Collegiate players fell to pieces, and were moreover weakened by the loss of McFadden, who retired with a severe sprain and the Lakefield team at the call of time claimed victory by five goals to nothing. Dancing was carried on vigorously during the day to the inspiring strain of Scrimgeour's orchestra. Plenty of supplies for the hungry crowd were provided inside the Skating Rink building, and after dinner a full programme of games was gone through. Shortly after three o'clock the crowd was called into the rink to hear the speeches; Reeve Casement took the chair and on the platform were the Hon. J. I. Curran, Messrs. J. Burnham, M. P., J. Stevenson, M. P., J. H. Burnham, R. C. Strickland, T. Cahill, J. Crowe, and Hayes, Dr. J. R. Fraser, McColl, Connel, and Brown. The chairman in a brief address, opened the meeting and called on Mr. Stevenson as the first speaker. Mr. Stevenson referred to the canal and expressed his confidence in the speedy prosecution of the work. He was followed by his fellow member, Mr. Burnham, whose address chiefly referred to the loyal sentiment expressed by such celebrations as the present, and pointed out the material progress made by the country and the empire at large during her Majesty's reign. Politics were by mutual consent avoided. The chairman then called on the Hon. J. I. Curran, who was received with much applause, and was the recipient of a buttonhole bouquet from little Miss Leahy. Mr. Curran expressed himself as being much gratified at addressing such a gathering, specially complimented the ladies: he disclaimed any political mission, and welcomed the fact that all creeds and classes could unite as they were doing to-day to assist in a charitable work. Continuing, he claimed for Canada a high position in religious and educational facilities, and pointed with pride to the fact that many of our few millionaires were generously assisting higher education with their wealth. In a brief retrospect of the Queen's happy reign the speaker compared the stability of the British monarchical system with other countries of the world, and referred in glowing terms to the material progress which had characterized the empire in general and Canada in particular, alluding to the hopes cherished by many for closer union of the various parts of the empire in the future under Imperial Federation. In referring to the recent industrial depression the speaker quoted figures to show the comparative immunity of Canada and after expressing a confident hope of returning activity in business, paid an eloquent tribute to our departed premier more especially Alex. Mackenzie and Sir John Thompson. In concluding, the speaker urged the rising generation to be true to principle, and to take as their motto, Queen, constitution, and country, as the true safeguards of the rights and liberties of all. The Hon. gentleman concluded a very eloquent address amid loud applause.

A vote of thanks to principle speaker was moved by Mr. R. C. Strickland and seconded by Dr. J. R. Fraser and short addresses were delivered by the following: Messrs. J. Crowe, T. Cahill, J. H. Burnham and the Rev. Father Casey. Rev. Father Scollard in closing the meeting thanked those present for their assistance in such a pleasant and successful celebration.

In the evening the Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian Church took possession of the Town Hall, as is their annual custom, and provided a sumptuous repast for some two hundred guests. Under the same auspices a very successful concert was held in the Council Chamber and a delighted and appreciative audience thoroughly enjoyed the various items on the programme. Amongst the vocal pieces the songs of the Misses Fitzgerald, Scrimgeour, White and Gay were especially noticeable and during the intermission Mr. McBrayne graciously contributed to the pleasure of the audience.

Wheat on the Account.

CHICAGO, May 30.—Wheat started to go higher soon after the opening of the market today reaching 88¢, the top notch of the season in quiet times. Then came a fast reduction of nearly two cents, the price falling to 86¢, which was three eighths of a cent lower than the close yesterday. The market recovered promptly, however, and hovered around 87 cents for some time toward the end of trading.

ITS FAME SPREADING.

A New Remedy in General Use in Manitoba and the Northwest.

WINNIPEG, May 31.—The effects of the regular waves of sickness which sweep over this portion of the Dominion in the spring are noticeable in the increasing amount of the druggists' sales. There has been quite a run on the kidney remedy now so well known under the name of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The recovery from Bright's disease of Mr. Arthur Coley, of Somerset, through their use, an account of which appeared in the papers, gave a considerable impetus to the sale, and the remedy has become indispensable in many Manitoba households, its fame having penetrated into the remotest parts of the province and North West Territories.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, May 30.—There was considerable alarm here today, occasioned by the near approach to the city of a band of insurgents. CITY AND COUNTY NEWS

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

When so many people are taking and deriving benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, why don't you try it yourself? It is highly recommended.

The Weather.
Probe - Fresh to strong southwesterly winds; fair and very warm with local thunderstorms.

Escaped from Jail.
Wm. Plamption, of Brighton township, in Cobourg jail on a charge of having stolen a bag, escaped by scaling the wall last week, and has not been recaptured. This is the third prisoner of within a year, but through no fault of the officials.

Committee of the Whole.
The council met last night in committee of the whole and considered the proposed removal of a large Toronto manufacturing firm to Peterborough. One of the members of the firm was present and outlined the extent of the business, and stated the terms upon which the company would locate here. Members of the Board of Trade were also present. The matter will assume tangible shape at the next regular council meeting.

First of the Season.
The first excursion of the season, excepting that of the Queen's birthday, will arrive in Orillia on Thursday next, June 6th, says the Orillia Times, when the branches of the Emerald Benevolent Association of Peterborough and Lindsay will spend the day in town. Among the attractions here on that day will be an exhibition lacrosse match between the home team and Peterborough and a matched foot race between C. Blain, Orillia, and LeBar of Peterborough. The steamer Orillia will also run trips, it is expected to Strawberry Island. As the rate from Peterborough is only $1 and from Lindsay 80 cents a big crowd may be expected.

The Deadly Fire Cracker.
"On Friday last a young lad named Pyman," says the Lindsay Watchman, "had secured the small boys' delight—a package of firecrackers, and while in company with other boys was engaged in firing them off, he had a narrow escape from a painful death. The little fellow had lit one of the crackers and as he supposed threw away the match, but instead of so doing had thrown it inside his blouse which caught fire and burnt like tinder. When he was rescued from his perilous position it was found he had suffered a severe and wide-spread burn on one side. Medical aid was summoned and he is now doing nicely."

Fatally Burned.
On Friday, while the three year old daughter of Rev. W. R. Barker, of Orillia, was playing in the yard it ventured too near a little fire which the older children had made for the purpose of lighting firecrackers and its clothes became ignited. Mr. Barker rushed to the rescue and succeeded in extinguishing the flames, but not before the child was badly burned, particularly on one arm and hand. Both Mr. Barker's hands were severely burned—a fact he did not notice until his attention was called to it by the doctor who was called to attend to the child, and on Sunday he was only able to occupy his pulpit at one sermon. The child's injuries, which at first did not portend seriously, ended in death. Rev. Mr. Barker was well known in Peterborough. At one time he was pastor of the Millbrook Methodist church for three years.

ATTACKED BY DOGS.

Mr. Hunter, an Old Resident of Ashburnham, Severely Bitten.

An elderly resident of Ashburnham had a thrilling experience yesterday, which may result seriously.

Mr. Hunter is the person in question. Yesterday afternoon he went to the residence of Constable Craig to see that gentleman. Mr. Craig is the possessor of two young bull dogs. Mr. Hunter entered the premises by the back way and had almost reached the kitchen before the dogs noticed him. With a rush they were upon him and leaving up to his neck. Mr. Hunter was terribly frightened and fought them off with his hands. One of his hands was severely bitten and torn. The night of blood appeared to increase the fury of the brutes, and they seized his coat and shirt and would no doubt have done him terrible injury had not Mr. Craig appeared at the door. At the sound of her voice the dogs quit the attack and slunk away.

Mr. Hunter was taken into the house where his bleeding hand was washed and bandaged. He was completely overcome by the experience. The dogs were intent upon seizing his throat and would have done so but for the timely appearance of Mrs. Craig, as Mr. Hunter had grown too weak to fight them off longer. If blood poisoning does not set in Mr. Hunter will soon recover from his wounds. If it is his wish the dogs will be killed, and Mr. Craig has expressed his willingness to put an end to them, if it is demanded. The dogs are not given to viciousness, but lately, it seems, they have been teased by school boys.

QUEEN WEATHER OUTLOOK.

The Direction of the Wind and its Possible Effect on Thunderstorms.

At eight o'clock yesterday morning it was raining over the northern part of Ontario, north of a line drawn from Collingwood to Montreal, and all over the west of the Great Lakes. The wind was north of the Mississippi. The wind was blowing from the south-west up to a line drawn through Lake Simcoe, and north of that line was blowing from the north-east, and the weather department expressed fear that the thunderstorms might not get as far south as here. "Anyway," said the weather artist, "the warm weather will last several days."

The sudden heat was due to a severe depression moving eastward from the Western States and the North West Territories, and causing an indraft of cold wind from the Gulf of Mexico and the Southern States.

Yesterday's temperatures were: Midland, 85; 8 a.m., 85; 4 p.m., 77; 2 p.m., 92; 1 p.m., 92; 9 p.m., 73; mean temperature for the day, 73, being 21 degrees above the average.

Here are some other record breaking temperatures: August 24, 1854, 90; July 17, 1855, 97; July 6, 1862, 98; July 1, 1872, 95; July 10, 1887, 97. The highest temperature since 1854 was in 1881, on May 12th, when the record showed 98.

HAD A GAY TIME.

What the Herald Says of the Campbell Celebration.

The Campbellford Herald has the following to say in its writup of the 24th of May celebration held there:

The Peterborough brass band, twenty-seven in number, played at the station, and in the hall, and as usual produced good music every time.

Special trains were run westward and eastward for the accommodation of the visitors, who left the station about half-past 10 o'clock.

A fight between boozey fellows took place at the station, and several encounters occurred during the day. Many of the crowd, let loose from home, and under the influence of liquor, hooted and yelled like savages at a feast; and the most filthy and profane language was used at the station in the presence of scores of young ladies who paraded the platform. So rough was the conduct of a gang after they boarded a car that the conductor was about to order the constable to arrest them before he would move the train. It is a way they have of celebrating the Queen's birthday; but it may be surmised that our beloved Majesty would show very little approval of much of what in these days is entered into and classed under the name of sport on her natal day.

IS NOT LEGAL

To Keep Children in after School or make Them Study at Home.

The legality of keeping a child in school after regular hours for not learning his lessons was tested in an English law court recently, when the mother of the little boy had the head master of the school he attended before the court. The judge, in giving his decision, said that the master had no authority to impose on children the duty of studying at home, and that he, therefore, had no right to detain him, and he also said that in his opinion this detention amounted to an assault.

As the plaintiff in the case did not wish to press it, the matter was dismissed on the defendant paying costs. We do not publish this to encourage people in not studying lessons at home, but we honestly think some teachers expect too much from their scholars at home. Pupils should remember, though, that it is for their own benefit and not for that of the teacher that home lessons are given.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

THE PRICE OF WHISKY.

Hotelkeepers Will Next Week Discuss the Raising of It.

On Tuesday next the Hotelkeepers' Association will discuss the price of whisky. The following schedule of prices will be submitted to the association for their consideration: Imported case goods 13 cents a glass, 10 cents a pony; domestic case goods 10 cents a glass; domestic draught whisky 10 cents a glass and 5 cents a pony.

A SUCCESSFUL SCHEME.

How Good Credit is Established by License Transfers.

A very ingenious way of raising one's credit has just come to light through the agency of transfer licensees, and accordingly the license branch of the provincial treasurer's office has issued a circular to all the inspectors, requiring them to grant no transfers without public notice, something not required by the license act.

The scheme has been worked successfully in this way: A man takes a license and thereby creates considerable confidence in his community—plunges into debt everywhere and leaves his creditors in the lurch by a transfer of his license, etc., in the meantime. This racket has been easily and successfully worked for some years, but it will not work very generally after this time.

TWO DEATHS.

Mr. Judge Dennistoun and Mrs. John Kells Pass Away.

The death of Judge Dennistoun in his eighty-first year occurred in Toronto yesterday afternoon. Mr. R. Max Dennistoun and Mrs. Dennistoun were with him at the time of his death.

They will return with the remains, which will probably be interred on Monday. Deceased was widely known and honored in Peterborough, and held in high esteem by the legal fraternity of Ontario.

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN KELLS.

The death of Mrs. John Kells, of Lindsay, took place Thursday evening. Deceased was respected and beloved by a wide circle of friends. She is the mother of Mr. R. H. Kells, the well known George street merchant, and of Mr. J. C. Kells, of Millbrook. Mr. R. H. Kells received the intelligence of her death this morning and left for Lindsay immediately.

AT INVERLEA.

The Second Band Concert of the Season Largely Attended.

The second band concert of the season was held in Inverlea park last evening. Hundreds of citizens availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy the delightful coolness of the park and to listen to the excellent music at the same time. There was a large crowd present from all parts of the town. The new band stand was fitted up in a manner that attracted the approval of the members of the band, and the electric lights were found to have been very conveniently placed. Several of the selections were new, and were well appreciated. The program was as follows:

March "Maplewood" Lewis
Valse "May Blossom" Roy
Horn "The Loyal Legion" Sousa
March "Donnybrook Fair" Sousa
Schottische "Little Alabama" Sousa
Galeop. "The Loyal Legion" Beyer
God Save the Queen

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

P. D. Crosby Arrested on the Charge of Stealing a Bicycle.

Several days ago the chief of police received word from the chief of police of Belleville to be on the lookout for a young man named P. D. Crosby, who was wanted there for stealing a bicycle. A description of the young man and also of the wheel was sent with the notification, and from the chief of police it was believed that the individual wanted was P. D. Crosby, well known in Peterborough.

Yesterday Crosby was arrested in Kingston and taken to Belleville on a charge of stealing a bicycle. The following dispatch, announcing the arrest, was received last night:

KINGSTON, May 30. - P. D. Crosby, alias Anderson, Henderson, aged 21, a piano tuner by trade, was arrested here and taken to Belleville on a charge of stealing a bicycle.

THAT REMEDIAL ORDER.

Discussed by the Baptist Convention - Missions to the French.

At the evening session of the Baptist convention, held at the Hotel Windsor, read the annual report of the work in Manitoba and the Northwest. A promising future was ahead of them but lack of finances perplexed them and for want of promising fields had to be left unoccupied.

The total amount received from all sources during the year was $5,250, of which the Ontario Quebec convention gave $3,440. A deficit was left of $1,810 which would be increased four months hence by $3,000 unless special canvass was made. There should be $7,000 sent from Ontario and Quebec this year.

Despite all disadvantages, however, the prospects were never so hopeful. Details of the trip of the various stations were then given. There had been over 100 appointments in the Northwest, but the Germans, Scandinavians and Icelanders had been neglected. Rev. G. R. Davis and L. F. Cote followed with short speeches.

A resolution was introduced at the Baptist convention, held at the Hotel Windsor, that it was the duty of the committee to change it so it would cover all favors to religious bodies although the mover, Rev. H. E. Cope, Hamilton, paper, "The Teacher and the Book," F. L. Fowke, Esq., Ottawa.

RAILWAY NOTES.

Travelers will welcome a new system of ventilating railroad cars that is said to do away with the transom and yet prevent unpleasant drafts. The system which is introduced on the Boston and Maine Railroad is thus described in the Railway Review: "The air is taken in through screens under the hood, and in passing the hood it is drawn through the ceiling. Across the middle of the double roof is a partition which compels this air to pass down into the car; after passing this cross section partition the air passes up again into the rear hood, taking the foul air with it."

At A Clegg's.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers.

Market day. The Town Council will meet in regular session on Monday night.

The bakers of Toronto have united in raising the price of bread.

The police are on the lookout for bathers who do not perform their ablutions in accordance with the bylaw.

An interesting sketch of the far famed Jubilee Point Summer Resort, Rice Lake has been laid over but will appear in our Monday's issue.

Mr. James Davidson was sued by Mr. Michael O'Brien for damages for injuries inflicted last winter, when he was knocked down and run over. The case was non-suited in many cases was fed to dogs.

Bass and maskinonge fishing opens on June 10th. It falls on a bad day for sports, being a Sunday, and no doubt many of them will make an early rise on Monday morning.

David Arsenault, whose home is on the corner of Argyle and George streets, was fined $5 at the police court yesterday morning for being disorderly and interfering with peaceable pedestrians.

It is said that nearly 1,000 inferior horses were killed in Markham township last winter, their owners finding it cheaper to despatch them than to feed them. The flesh is many cases was fed to dogs.

The local officers of the Salvation Army received word yesterday that Commandment Booth could not come to Peterborough on the dates advertised. He will, however, visit Peterborough on June 10th.

The Catholic Order of Foresters of Hastings have fixed upon the 11th of June for an excursion to Idyl Wild. The steamer City of Peterborough has been chartered, and she will leave Hastings at 8 a.m. and Idyl Wild at 5 p.m.

Besides the new summer hotel on Clear Lake, which has just been completed for Major Bellas, Messrs. E. Tate and L. Payne are building new cottages on Stony Lake. Messrs. W. Cox and R. C. Strickland are making alterations and additions.

Mr. W. J. Pearson, of Montreal, is here again purchasing horses and has succeeded in securing about 30 fine animals. Considerable of his success in securing horses in the locality Mr. Pearson attributes to his announcement in the Times, which is widely read by the farming community.

A few days ago a lady was chatting pleasantly with the proprietor of a drug store in town when her little daughter broke in with the remark: "Say ma, don't talk so fast or your teeth may drop out."

It is safe to assert that there were some shingling done when the mother and child returned home.

Every week the leading papers speak encouragingly of reviving trade, but in many places it is as almost imperceptible improvement; and unless cheery advances a few cents, payments next fall may prove a dead load, and business men may be compelled to carry an extra number of long date notes.

Thursday night or early yesterday morning an attempt was made to burglarize the bottling house of Calcutt's brewery. The microscopical force of several iron rods was used to break down the door, and the place of the door which had been lifted, has missed nothing. Evidently it is the work of transients as the town is alive with them.

Lois Guerin, an employee of Mr. A. Macdonald, ice dealer, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon. He was standing on a barrel placing some ice in a refrigerator, when the barrel slipped and Mr. Guerin fell to the floor, following by the piece of ice which he had been lifting. He was struck on the forehead and cheek and received several bruises. A doctor attended to his injuries.

Arnold Monday, a Carrick, county Bruce farmer, has just had two fingers cut off in a straw cutter. Within twelve months his daughter had broken her arm, his son had died, he has lost $1,000 a law suit, his wife is with a serious accident, and Monday himself, on a previous occasion was struck by a piece of timber, and never fully recovered. The poor man could hardly have been more unfortunate if his name had been Friday.

Peterboro has a big scheme on hand, the holding of a union choir on August 1st and 2nd. The proposal is to have the choir between Kingston and Toronto trained to sing in certain choruses, and on the date mentioned to unite at Peterboro in a union choir numbering upwards of 3,000 voices. The music will be led by a band and orchestra, the Singers in Toronto, Bowmanville, Whitby, Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton, Belleville, Napanee, Picton, Kingston, Norwood, Lindsay, and fifty other places will be asked to participate. -Port Hope Times.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time what he mixed with his paints, made the luscious reply, "brains." It is this gray matter located in the upper story of man that moves the world. In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co., Toronto, for the invention of the transposing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of earnest thought before it was brought to perfection. To-day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental interest. It is not something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this invention one may play on the transposing piano in the scale or key of "C" and its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the 1st of Jan. Heintzman & Co. have placed 35 of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

LATEST FROM CHANDOS.

From our own Correspondent. It must be a very mean principled person who would charge five cents for eight nails.

If the Lime Juice Club has an intention of engaging a musician, we think Chandos could furnish a very creditable performer. He can play about seventeen different tunes at once, and accompanying himself with his voice.

Surprise parties seem to be infectious or contagious around this vicinity. Last Wednesday Mr. E. Terrill's was visited, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The next person called on was Mr. A. Doree. Here the music was heard until the guests were happy and guests would not be afraid of the darkness on their homeward trip.

Mrs. Prouty and Miss Graham were the guests of Mrs. A. Post on Saturday last. Messrs. John and Bertha Doree left for the north. Their general faces will be missed. Mr. Ernest Stoneberg is again on the war-path.

Some bears have been seen in the neighborhood. The saw mill has been closed since Friday owing to an explosion.

A Case of Scurvy.
Yesterday the temperature was of the "chilling" kind, and a few people ventured to expose themselves to the burning rays of old Sol unless their business was very urgent, says the Lindsay Post. Mr. Robt. Williamson, of Williamson House, brothers, was one of the few, having to drive over a large section of country to purchase supplies for their large business. After being out some hours he was overcome by the heat, but managed to reach a farm house, where he was cared for until the cool of the evening, when he was conveyed home. He was then feeling much better, but during the night delirium set in, and he is now very ill. His medical attendant hopes that a few days' rest and careful nursing will completely restore him.

ITS FAME SPREADING.

A New Remedy in General Use in Manitoba and the Northwest.

Winnipeg, May 31.—The effects of the regular waves of sickness which sweep over this portion of the Dominion in the spring are noticeable in the increasing amount of the druggists' sales. There has been quite a run on the kidney remedy now so well known under the name of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The recovery from Bright's disease of Mr. Arthur Coley, of Somerset, through their use, an account of which appeared in the papers, gave a considerable impetus to the sale, and the remedy has become indispensable in many Manitoba households, its fame having penetrated into the remotest parts of the province and North West Territories.

Games on Saturday:—Toronto at Syracuse, Buffalo at Rochester, Providence at Springfield, Wilkesbarre at Saratoga.

No less than nine thousand people saw the two Buffalo-Toronto games on Decoration day.

An American syndicate of sportsmen has leased the Windsor race track for 60 days, during the interval between the July and October meetings. All races will be run under Association rules.

A number of prominent Montrealers have offered a guarantee of $50,000 in case the Coburn-Fitzsimmons fight shall take place in that city. This will include a purse of $25,000 and all other expenses.

Bippi's error in the eighth inning of the Toronto-Buffalo game Friday night lowered the Blues to second place after two men were out, and win the game by a score of 7 to 5. Toronto also scored three in the eighth and one in the ninth. Smith batted out a home run, and the visitors generally played a fine game. About 1,300 people were in attendance.

At the Hamilton Jockey Club's races on Friday last Sarsaparilla was ridden 3 to 1, won the Haddo Purse, Logan, 4 to 5, 2nd, and Lookout, 3 to 1, 3rd. J. Heyward's Neg Diamond won the Farmer's race, Delia, 3 to 1, 2nd, and 3rd. Capt. Forrester's Dodo, at 2 to 1, carried off the Cocktail Steeplechase. W. C. Hayes' Venus, 6 to 5, 2nd, and Ruth T. 3rd. Bonanza, 4 to 5, 2nd, and 3rd. The Cradle Handicap from Florence Colville, who was the only other starter.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time what he would do with his paints, made the laconic reply, "brains." It is this gray matter located in the upper storey of man that moves the world. In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co., Toronto, for the invention of the transposing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of thought before it was brought to perfection. To-day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental interest. It is not something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this invention one can now accomplish that which has long been desired by practical men, viz: the adjustability of pitch, especially since the adoption of the French pitch. Music may be played on the transposing piano in the key of "C," and its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the 1st of Jan. Heintzman & Co. have placed 65 of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

Fishing Laws.

A writer in the Ottawa News Letter says: Probably the men at Ottawa who regulate our fishery laws know the front end of a fish from the back end, but if they do, that is probably the extent of their knowledge. There has been enough groping around in the dark in this matter of fixing close seasons to show that their knowledge of matters piscatorial is very superficial indeed. They seem to be totally ignorant of the fact that the spawning season of fish is largely governed by the temperature of the water in the rivers wherein they reside, and in utter ignorance of this fact the close season is made the same everywhere. Up till last week the close season for bass was from May 15th to June 30. Then we were informed from Ottawa that "the department experts" considered this season too long, and shortened it two weeks, ending the close season on June 15. The government has been repeatedly told of the destruction of bass during spawning season throughout the country. The close season should commence April 1 and the catching of fish through the ice should be prohibited after Jan. 1.

Mr. Jacob Wilcox of St. Thomas, Ontario, is one of the best known men in that vicinity. He is now, he says, an old man, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has made him feel young again.

"About a year ago I had a very severe attack of the grip, which resulted in my not having a well day for several months afterwards. I was completely run down and my system was in a Terrible Condition.

I lost flesh and became depressed in spirits. Finally a friend who had been benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla advised me to try it and I did so. THE WALLED HERD.

STRANGE STORY OF AN INACCESSIBLE BAND OF CATTLE.

A Pyramid of Bones Marks the Spot Where Their Ancestors Fell Over a Precipice Twenty Years Ago—Dwell in Safety Where Man Has Never Tread.

In the wildest portion of the west, 71 miles northwest of Meeker, where, in 1875, the Utes massacred the Meeker family and every one at the agency, is the most wonderful cattle ranch in the world. Within a space of five miles in length and three miles in width roams a herd upon whose sides the branding iron has never been placed and around whose horns the lariat has never tightened. But a score or even fewer of them have ever seen a man or horse or other animal of their kind, and, in fact, their kin except at a distance of nearly 600 feet high above them. The Indians call them "P'beck up," or "red buffalo." And yet if an Indian who has seen them should be asked about it he would laugh and shake his head, and all the information obtainable would be, "P'beck up; 'em red; no ketch 'em." There are more than 1,000 of this herd, and yet no man owns them, nor is there a man, white or black or copper colored, who has ever been able to possess a single hoof of these fat and tumbling beasts.

The cattle are in a prison. Out of it there is one method of escape, but to travel that road means death to the adventurous ones. There is no way to get in except to be by use of a rope 1,000 feet in length. As the Indians say: "Heap 'em; no ketch 'em; no come away." On the two long sides of the oblong space in which these cattle roam rise precipitous and even concave rocks for 500 or 600 feet—yawning, black and insurmountable. At either end seethes and rushes the Yampa or Bear river. For miles above and miles below it plunges and stumbles on its headlong haste to reach the arms of its parent, the scarcely less tumultuous but deeper Green river. Like the wonderful flat top mountains of Colorado, this home of the imprisoned herd has no likeness in the world. It recalls in its inaccessibility the marvelous stories of the valley of verdure, into which Mayne Reid's adventurers only found their way by the assistance of the balloons.

The story of the way in which these cattle came there is as strange as their existence is curious. Over 90 years ago, when the government troops were pursuing the Mormon murderers of the innocent victims of the Mountain Meadow massacre, the Danites, or Avenging Angels of the Mormons, fled for their lives into what was then literally the wilderness. A few of those who had been the blindest followers of Lee, the Mormon God incarnate, whose hands were red with the blood of women and children, found in their wanderings a pretty valley, called it Ashley, and about them have since gathered more of their sect until where the refugees posted their pickets on the lonely nights of the first summer has grown a thriving village. It is 140 miles from the Union Pacific railroad south and 145 miles north of the Rio Grande. So it was thought to be only a cunning trick when John Wycliffe, one of the Mormon settlers of the new town, and his three sons made a night sortie on Henry's ford in Wyoming and carried away 500 head of cattle ranging there. This was in 1874. The owners of the cattle discovered their loss a few days after they were gone and started in pursuit.

The thieves and the stolen herd had reached a mass of inviting grass at sundown one day and halted to camp for the night. A terrific storm arose. The lightning flashed incessantly, and the thunder pealed and cracked with intermittent fury. The four men desperately held the terror-stricken cattle by riding around them constantly and chanting some weird tune. But the wild fierceness of the storm excited the brutes beyond measure. They surged and ground, every moment growing less subject to control. All at once, as if by one mad impulse, they stampeded.

John Wycliffe and his sons met their fate amid the lightning's glare and the thunder's roar. They endeavored to head off the stampeding herd. Instead they and their horses were swept on and driven in the terror to escape the charge of the mad-demon animals over the brink of the awful precipice which frowned up from the waters of the Bear. After them plunged the whole fright-crashed herd, and down to the bottom of the fearful fall went horses, riders and horned creatures. Out of this strange plunge of life to what was seemingly certain death to all a few of the herd were not killed. Those which had gone ahead formed a cushion of death. Maimed, stunned, but still invested with a spark of life, when the dread storm was over the living cattle crawled out from the mass beneath them and formed a nucleus for the herd which now roams at will within its rocky confines.

On the bank of the river, stretching back a few hundred yards, grow succulent grasses, and upon this the cattle have propagated and thrived. In looking over the edge of the precipice one can see that they are small and as wild and agile as deer. They have been shot at to see the effect and have learned to regard the appearance of a man, whether Indian or white, as a menace from which they flee, clambering over rocks and through underbrush in the chase to a point of concealment.

The place where the thieves and their horses and the herd fell is plainly marked by a pyramid of bones, which rises to the height of 80 feet. The ghastly reminder and relics of the human and animal victims of the terrible leap white forth what a gleaming when the sun is high and reaches that spot with its full glare. The progeny of the surviving animals from the fall are fat and sleek, though, and have their sunny tides, deerlike, where they feed for warmth in the winter, and to them the movement of skeletons is no source of disquietude. There is no fence mountain high or more dangerous bear, nor, in fact, any other animal thing within this cow garden of Eden. As yet, too, no man has been able to reach or disturb them.

According to Muller, the total number of words, or rather, ideas, expressed by Chinese characters is 40,000.

BURDOCK'S BLOOD BITTERS

THE P.P.A.

The Hamilton Lodge Goes Bankrupt and the Landlord Evicts the Members and Seizes the Furniture.

Special to the Times.
HAMILTON, June 1.—The P.P.A., which cut such a wide swath in the municipal elections here eighteen months ago, but got bowled out in the Provincial elections, is bankrupt. Last night the hall of central organizations was unceremoniously closed against the members by the landlord because six months' rent had not been paid and he could not realize on the personal note of one of the officers. Today the furniture was seized and sold to a local dealer and the effects were sent to a second hand shop.

KNICKERS AND BLOOMERS.

An Ordinance Forbidding Women to Wear Them in Public on File.

Special to the Times.
CHICAGO, May 31.—Alderman Coughlin, popularly known as "Bath House John," being the proprietor of a cheap Turkish bath establishment, has jumped into fame at a single bound. At the council meeting he introduced a proposed ordinance to prohibit the wearing of bloomers or knickerbockers by women bicyclists. The proposed ordinance reads:

"Whereas, a great number of young girls and ladies in this city are appearing on the streets and public places dressed in male attire, which is disguised by the friends of this raging craze by the name of bloomers and knickerbockers; and

"Whereas, this craze has assumed such proportions that it menaces the public morals of this good city; and

"Whereas, it is unhealthy, un-American, and unduly likely to appear in such costumes;

"Therefore, be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Chicago:

"Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any female person within the corporation limits of the city of Chicago to ride, or attempt to ride, any bicycle or tricycle, or to publicly promenade in the streets, avenues, or public highways of said city while dressed or arrayed in costumes commonly known as bloomers, knickerbockers, baseball attire, or trousers."

Sections 2 and 3 of the ordinance provide a penalty of a fine of not less than $3 nor more than $5 for violations of the ordinance. When the ordinance was read various motions were made to refer it to the Committee on Smoke, Health, and County Relations, Wharves, and Public Grounds, Special Assessments, Civil Service and Judiciary, but it was finally ordered to be placed on file.

DAVID SCOLLIE'S DEATH.

The Case will be Thoroughly Sifted—Many Suspicious Facts.

There is no new development to chronicle in the case of the death of David Scollie. The startling information contained in THE TIMES yesterday morning created the greatest excitement in Peterborough. The Toronto Globe and World, which reached Peterborough eight hours after THE TIMES was on the streets, contained the particulars of the case, which will in all probability prove one of the most sensational of its kind in the history of the county.

THE TIMES "scooped" all its contemporaries, being the first newspaper to furnish the public with the news of the investigation that had been quietly going on for nearly two weeks, and of the awful suspicion, if not certainty of guilt, entertained by the provincial authorities. The Toronto papers had opportunities of securing all the facts which THE TIMES did not, for not one particle of the information contained in yesterday's report was gleaned from the detective or from any of the several persons engaged on the case. In fact it would have been useless to have gone to them for particulars. The detective entirely ignored the rights of the newspapers of Peterborough and allowed the Toronto reporters to gather nearly all the facts. Had it not been for THE TIMES the citizens of Peterborough would have read the particulars in the Toronto papers first.

The following information appeared in yesterday's Globe:

"In the grey of the morning those on the scene began a search of the ruins, and on the ground, in an excavation, which was occasionally seen in country houses, the body of the old man was found lying on a straw mattress covered with a blanket. The trunk was intact and apparently undisturbed, and the blanket which covered it was not even scorched; but, to the indescribable horror of the onlookers, the body was without a head. It had been taken off, presumably—so, at least, it was at the time suggested—by the intense action of the fire, and completely consumed, as there was no vestige, not even a bone, of it discovered anywhere in the ruins. What appeared a singular fact to the neighbors was that the spot on which the body was found was in the rear part of the house, while the old man's room had been in the front. The facts in connection with the burning of the house and the death of Scollie were brought to the attention of the local authorities, and an inquest held, with the result that, while there were suspicious circumstances, a verdict of accidental death was rendered. When Gray returned home the funeral took place, and he entered into full possession of the farm, and some time after he sold out and left the country with his family.

A few weeks ago some of the facts in connection with the case were brought to the attention of the Attorney-General's Department, and an investigation was ordered. Some of the suspicious circumstances cited in the case were the singular theory that the head had been absolutely consumed without apparent injury to the body, that no attempt had been made at first to call on the neighbors close at hand, that there had been plenty of opportunity for a long time after the fire began to get the old man out, and, finally, that when found he was in another part of the house entirely from that he usually occupied.

The post-mortem examination yesterday resulted in the discovery that the underclothing worn by Scollie, which he had on when the body was found, and which the undertaker had not removed, was unburned, and that the hair on the breast and arms was not burned, and that the evidences of fire were apparent only on one side of the neck.

More suspicious incidents are these: One day while standing in front of his house a flower pot fell from a window, and striking the old man upon the head, stunned him and left an ugly mark upon the scalp. He was looked after by the neighbors during the night, and the following day he was found lying on the ground, and was not tended by Mrs. Gray, as one would naturally suppose he should have been. The casualty was ascribed by Mrs. Gray to an accident which happened through the negligence of a child who was playing with the flower pot. The affair was forgotten with the recovery of the old man, and for some time afterwards their life went on as it had before the affair took place. The next misunderstanding that occurred in the family arose over a quarrel between Mrs. Gray and Old David, in the course of which Mrs. Gray, it is alleged, accused the old man of having already cost them more for his maintenance than his farm was worth. The old man replied that, to put an end to all such disturbances, he would like to have the farm sold, and that he was willing to pay them any reasonable sum which they should demand, cancel the agreement which they had entered into and terminate their connection with the Grays. Mrs. Gray professed to be satisfied with this proposition, and said that they would call off the arrangement, if he would pay the $1,000. This seemed exorbitant to Scollie, and he promptly refused to be mulcted in any such sum. Gray talked the matter over with a brother-in-law of his named McGregor, and together they went to Peterborough, where they obtained legal advice. The barrister, on being placed in possession of the facts, gave them little encouragement, and advised Gray to carry out the terms of his agreement. From that time up until the date at which the old man died the affairs of the household ran along, if not smoothly, at least without any open breaches or unseemly quarrels.

Startling developments may be expected at any time. It is the purpose of the attorney-general's department to either prove the suspicions that have been fostered, or for all time to set them at rest.

SOME DEPUTATIONS.

Rev. J. J. Ray, Rev. J. C. Davidson and Mr. J. Haunpenn Burnham appeared before the Council in the interest of the Children's Aid Society. Rev. Mr. Ray first addressed the Council. He stated that he believed the Council was anxious to administer its charity wisely. He believed the Children's Aid Society was doing the best work of any charitable institution in existence, and it was to ask the Council to aid the Society that the deputation was present. Municipal council and mayors of towns and cities were present, and the request of these societies believing that the society was doing widespread good. Then Rev. Mr. Ray came to the point and stated that the society wanted the town to grant it $100. Last year there was a deficit of $40. The estimated expenditure for this year was $250 which made a total of $250. The society was willing to shoulder the burden, and wanted the town to assume the balance.

Rev. J. C. Davidson emphasized that the committee was not a begging committee. It was only a question of whether or not the society continued in its work, or whether it should cease on the 30th of June next. If the council granted the amount asked for, the society would continue. If not the society would cease and the agent would go home.

Rev. Mr. Davidson also urged upon the council the necessity of a home of refuge. A great many of the inmates of the gaols were there, not because they had committed any crime, but because they were unable, by reason of the infirmities of age, to support themselves.

Mayor Kendry recommended to the council that the $100 be granted.

On motion of Councilor Stone, seconded by Councilor Brady the council passed the grant and the deputation retired well satisfied.

THE JACKSON PARK.

Messrs. Richard Hall and C. McGill appeared before the council in connection with the Jackson Park. Mr. Hall stated that the improvement under way would be completed in about two months, and that it was desirable that the street railway be requested to extend its line nearer the park. He asked that the council sanction the extension and make the request of the Railway Company that it be made.

Councillor Sproule vigorously opposed the council advising the street railway. He did not believe the council should interfere with the company.

President Bradburn, of the Street Railway Company, who was present, was asked to address the council. The company intended building a mile of track this year, but the Board had not decided where the extension should be made. He had no objection to the council making the request.

Mr. A. P. Poussette was also heard. He stated that the road on South Harbor street, which was already built, and the council would be willing to allow the Company to take up the rails on that street and lay them on Park street, he thought the Company would favor the council extending the line to the Jackson Park.

Councillor Cahill said that the proposition could not be contemplated. He was sure it would be an injustice for the company to remove any part of its line.

On motion the council passed a request to the company to make the extension.

Councillor Mason moved, seconded by Councilor Sawers that the resolution passed at the May 21st meeting of the Council granting $200 to the bicycle club, be rescinded.

Councillor Mason asked Councilor Stone to explain why the motion was put. The latter did so. The motion was then voted on and carried.

AFTER A GRANT.

A deputation of the Sons of England appeared before the Council asking for a grant to enable them to hold a celebration on July 1. About 2,000 members of the order would attend from Toronto and an equal number from other points.

Upon motion of councillors Sproule and Denne the sum of $150 was voted the Sons of England for the purchase of fireworks.

Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The greatest blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered sensations. At last my physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am still using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart." Mrs. DALTON, 55 Allen St., Toronto, Ontario. Get Hood's, because

DROWNED NEAR MILLBROOK.

Ephraim Clarke, Aged 21, Met His Death While Bathing in a Pond.

The following despatch gives full details of a drowning accident which occurred at Millbrook:

MILLBROOK, Ont., June 3.—Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, while a number of young men were bathing in a millpond four miles north of here one of them, Ephraim Clarke, aged 21, got beyond his depth and not being able to swim was drowned. His parents are farmers, living about six miles from here. The deceased was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters under whose auspices the funeral took place yesterday.

CONCERT AND LECTURE.

A Delighted Audience at St. Andrew's Last Night.

The concert and lecture given in St. Andrew's last night in connection with the anniversary, was very largely attended and those who were present were delighted and pleased. Rev. Mr. Williams occupied the chair.

The lecture by Prof. Smith, of Queen's University, was pronounced an intellectual feast. The talented lecturer has an excellent delivery, a fund of anecdote and magnetism that held his hearers in rapt attention. The singing was also excellent. The following songs were rendered:

1. Arise, shine for thy light is come. Choir.
2. O, praise the mighty God.
3. Male Quartette—Still, Still with Thee.
4. Mixed Quartette—Saviour, When Night Involves the Sky.

HAVE AMALGAMATED.

Peterborough Now Possesses a Strong Lacrosse Aggregation.

The Peterborough lacrosse team has dropped its individuality as a team, and its members are now members of the Athletics. The amalgamation of these teams, which had been advised and hoped for since the season opened, was consummated at a meeting held in the parlors of the Palace Restaurant last night. About 40 lacrosse players were present.

The managers of the amalgamated teams were elected last night and are: Messrs. C. LeBrun, Dr. McGrath and W. E. Lech. The new management decided to send one team to Orillia and one to Beaverton on June 6.

The amalgamation gives Peterborough a strong lacrosse team, and one that will no doubt well represent her the coming season. There is splendid material in the large membership and under the splendid management of Messrs. LeBrun, McGrath and Lech, the club should flourish this season.

There will be a full practice tonight. All members are requested to be on hand.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 5 1895.

That cool wave probably got heated in travelling so fast.

The remedial order is said to have gone to the dead letter office.

There seems to be an impression in some quarters that bloomers are breaches of good taste.

If this weather keeps up those gentlemen who patronize the Olympic Club excursion, to Idylwild will receive a warm reception on their return to their respective wives.

The committee appointed by the House of Commons in connection with Lord Coleridge's succession to the peerage has adopted a report affirming the fact that succession to a peerage disables the successor from being elected to or sitting or voting in the House of Commons. Thus is averted, for the time at least, the gravest danger which ever beset the House of Peers.

The weather has been very hot for some days; but it has not been hot enough to stifle the "debating talent" at Ottawa. No heat this world can produce can force those patriots from their self-imposed task of talking all summer.

Rev. Messrs Rae and Davidson, who addressed the Council on Monday night, on behalf of the Children's Aid Society, do not complain of a cold reception having been accorded them. With the thermometer in the nineties, anything of a cooling nature should have been welcome.

The fact that old-line life insurance companies collected nearly $10,000,000 in premiums in Canada last year and only paid out a little over $4,000,000 on claims indicates that a very material reduction might be made on the cost charged for carrying policies without danger to the companies.

The pretense of watering the streets, especially water street north, is only a waste of money. The water cart occasionally passes down the centre of the road, leaving the sides, which are ankle deep with dust, untouched. Better to have no water at all than the miserable service that we are now getting.

The Spaniards claim to have killed Jose Mari, who was the principal leader of the Cuban insurgents. This is a serious blow to the rebel cause, if true. It will be remembered, however, that the Spaniards have killed a number of Cuban leaders who turned up alive again in the next batch of dispatches.

The Toronto detective who came here to investigate the Scollie matter on his return gave the newspapers of that city all the facts connected with the case for publication. Although the TIMES is the only morning daily between Ottawa and Toronto, it was kept in the dark in order to give the Toronto papers the advantage. Our own chief of police, who no doubt was aware of what was being done, seemed quite satisfied that the Peterborough newspapers should be placed thus in the back ground. The TIMES, however, was too clever to be caught in this way, and published the information hours before the city papers reached Peterborough. It is a mighty stormy weather when The TIMES gets left.

SALA'S MOTHER.

Her Experiences With Paganini and Malibran in Giving a Concert in London.

In the "Life and Adventures of George Augustus Sala," written by himself, the following concerning his mother, a gifted songstress and pianist of her day, appears: In addition to her annual concert in London my mother used to have a yearly musical recital at Brighton either just before Christmas or just before Easter. She always took care to engage the brightest musical talent, both vocal and instrumental, that she could possibly secure. Sometimes she had to pay the great artists she engaged, but in a great many more instances they generally gave their services quite gratuitously to the poor widowed gentlewoman with the five children, "clamoring," as Lady Combermere used to tell me in after years, "for large slices of roast mutton." For one of her concerts my mother had the hardihood to engage the greatest cantatrice of her day and perhaps of this century, Maria Felicia Malibran, the daughter of the famous Spanish tenor, Manuel Garcia.

To show the difference that existed between artistic remuneration in 1855 and that which now prevails it will be sufficient to say that Malibran's fee was only 30 guineas. Paganini, the mere announcement of whose name was sufficient to sell half the tickets for the concert, consented to play a solo for 50 guineas, but my parent nourished a fond hope that both artists would waive their rights and decline the money she offered.

My mother, a lady of great sagacity and fertility of resource, thought that something might be done in the way of exciting lenitive influence in the minds of the two great musicians if she took me with her when she called to pay her dues. So I was duly washed and waxed and polished up, and in a new skeleton suit and a very large white cambric collar with a frill round it I was taken first to the hotel where Malibran was staying. The renowned singer smiled, patted me on the head, chuckled me under the chin, told me to be a good boy and very calmly took the £31 10s. which, with trembling hands, my mother placed on the table. She had a good cry, poor woman, in the fly which conveyed us to the Old Ship, where Paganini was staying.

I can see him now—a lean, wan, gaunt man in black, with bushy hair—something like Henri Rochefort and a great deal more like Henry Irving. He looked at me long and earnestly, and somehow, although he was about as weird looking a creature as can well be imagined, I did not feel afraid of him. In a few broken words my mother explained her mission and put down the 50 guineas on the table. When I say that he washed his hands in the gold—that he scrambled at it as David of old did at the gate—and grasped it and built it up into little heaps, panting the while, I am not in any way exaggerating.

He handled it up at last in a blue pocket handkerchief with white spots and darted from the room. And we, my poor mother convulsively clasping my hand, went out on the landing and were about descending the stairs when the mighty violinist bolted again from the bedroom door. "Take that, little boy," he said; "take that," and he thrust a piece of paper rolled up almost in a ball into my hand. It was a bank note for £50!

Little Things Tell.

We wonder, we who are the most wasteful nation in the world, how it is that the French and German housekeepers become owners of the large markets and the fashionable restaurants of the city. I will tell you why it is. They consider the day of little things. Not long ago I asked in an American bakeshop that three of a certain kind of rolls be sent to me. I was told that unless I ordered 12 it would be impossible. It was not a question of cost, but I didn't want them. Leaving the place, I went to one kept by a German. He was civil, perfectly willing to send me the small quantity that I asked for, thanked me very politely for the few cents handed him and said he would be glad at any time to take an order, no matter how small. His civility and courtesy made me his permanent customer.—Philadelphia Times.

To Loosen Your Plaster.

One of the small things to remember is that alcohol will quickly remove an obstinate porous plaster whose period of usefulness has expired and will also cause all unsightly traces of its use to disappear. As soap and water are often entirely inefficient in such offices, a valuable agent should be noted.—New York Recorder.

Her Name.

"Henry Ritter Emma Ritter Denis Ritter Sweet Potato Cream A. Tarrar Caroline Ostio" was the name of a 9-year-old negro girl buried at Wetumpka, Ala. The name is inscribed in full upon a marble slab in a local cemetery. The slab gives the further information that she was the daughter of Bob and Snakey Cotten.

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

810 Cowan Ave., Toronto.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment. When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the nape of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

FISHING FOR COD.

A TRAMP PRINTER'S VOYAGE TO THE BANKS OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Fog and Fish Were Fatal—Weird Scenarios Experienced Alone in the Mist. The Dangers of Setting the Trawl Are Many and Serious.

There are few situations in life, however strange and precarious, in which the tramp printer is not to be found; but, save myself, I know of none that has been so fool enough to try his luck as a "roustabout" on a banker or fishing craft bound for the "stormy Georgias."

One day, weary of the monotony of typewriting, I went on board the 103 ton sloop Trident lying off Spruce street wharf and was hailed by Captain Sam Macy, a tall, bony Yankee in red cap and rubber boots.

"Want to ship for the grand banks fur cod? Ever tried fishing, hey? Well, I want a 'gutter' and will give 923 a month. Get yer plunder aboard. We sail tonight."

So on a cold and windy night the sloop passed Black light with a stiff wind astern. We had a crew of seven men, four of them Finny boys, and I, the tramp printer, went into the little fo'c'sle. Going to bed on a bunkers means lying down on some one else. After a minute's trial I crawled from under a big Finn and finished my 40 winks in the wet deck, the waves flying over our low heads and watching me.

It did not do nothing but hold on, and after three days more jumping the seas the Trident anchored in Machias harbor, Maine.

Here we bought bait, coplin and mous-bunker, broken up and barrelled, and then covered our deck. Next it was "Ho, for the Grand banks!" and on the 30th of March the cry was "The banks on the lee bow!"

A cloud of gray mist, and this our vessel entered as through a gateway, and then it closed, so thick that the man at the wheel could not see the jib, 30 feet away. Groping our way, we anchored in 30 fathoms. Around the toll of ship bells was plainly heard, and most came a hall. We are 40 yards away from old friends and yet cannot see them. Around us is one gray waste of water, breaking into short waves. The fog thickens, and the northward is in getting black, and by night the storm comes on, and for 40 hours we are fairly panned to the deck by the wind.

It was my task to tell the bell. I grove dead weary and pulled the cord mechanically. How easy to tell and how easy to groan! The sloop rises and falls with a heaving motion, and I am a thousand miles away. Suddenly a deep boom awakens me. All the crew rush on deck and unite in one loud yell. "What's the matter?" I see a huge black wall hanging over the sloop, a glare of scorching light and a rush like a million of Tartar cavalry. It is gone. Captain Macy walks aft and says: "A close call. You must keep your eyes open. That was a Cauder, blast her!" An ocean liner had swept by us 50 feet to leeward.

And now we commenced fishing for cod. Each man had three lines, and these were pulled every minute, the fish released with a jerk. The hook and line were thrown in. The cook and I opened the fish and put a handful of salt inside, while the captain pecked them away. The cold was intense, and so we worked for 18 hours, and then came dinner and supper for one. I was too tired to eat, although the food was good and plenty of it.

Then came laying the trawl, the most dreaded work of all. Two men got into a scow—double bowed skiff like a big dish—and lay out a mile of line, baited and hooked every two feet. Ten feet from the sloop the mist closed around us like a pall. We had a compass, a keg of water and bladders. After six hours' work we found the sloop and next day started again to overhaul the trawl—most exhausting work. One man hauls into the heaving boat the line. Halibut weighing 300 pounds are on the hooks, and these must be gaffed and as the boat rises hauled in, the boat gun is under water. Often she sports and threatens by sky and sea, and then her bearings, and ships often find the dories drifting in mid-ocean, with the shrunken and blackened remains of the occupants in the bottom. For 34 days we worked, the only interruptions being when the storm swept down on us. Once a steamer passed so close that her wake dashed the white water over our boat. Every day hails came to us through the blinding fog. "Aho! Seen anything of our dory?" Captain Macy had lost two boats and a nephew on one voyage two years before and in the terrible "Lord's day gale," August, 1878, 300 of the New England fishing fleet were dashed to pieces.

On Sundays we rested, mended our shoes, smoked pipes and had a good meal. Nothing was more surprising to me than the strange shapes taken by the mist when blown by a gale. It rolled up like ranks of women with floating garments and trailing hair or swept by for hours the semblance of an army of horsemen breaking, uniting and again forming in ranks.

Our Finns were very superstitious and full of curious old sea lore. Every move of the fog and wind had a significance, and once the whole crew was raised to its feet to the wail of women far off to the windward. Heard in the silence of night it was very impressive. It was seals coming from the north on floating ice.

Our cruises had been very successful, and our batches were looked down upon as a splendid catch of halibut. So one morning we raised our anchor, strook our bell three times—the signal of departure—and this was answered, and under a chorus of goodbyes the jib and mainsail were hoisted home, and in 30 hours the Trident entered Gloucester harbor. Our destination was New York, but I had had enough of it, so the captain paid me, remarking graciously "that I wasn't as big a fool as I looked."—Philadelphia Times.

Telegraphic Abbreviations.

Soon after the advent of typewriting machines in telegraph offices about five years ago senders of news messages began to abbreviate their copy. One of the news associations invented a code of abbreviations which is almost as intricate as the sign code itself. For instance, the under telegraph "bag," and the receiver writes it on his typewriting machine "in consequence of." Likewise "po" means principles, "ay" means anywhere, "au," authenticity, "sua," sales unnecessary, "oban," small business, prices unchanged, "spabod," full prices asked, but no demand "ex" means "extra," "with amendment," "un," under the circumstances, "wip," tomorrow afternoon, "pop," presented a petition, "ugt," on the ground that, "acoots," supreme court of the United States, "haw," adjourned sine die, "shy," either of which, "ch," committed suicide, "ch," covered by insurance.—Troy Press.

THE JEDDAH OUTRAGES.

HOW BEDOGINS ASSASSINATED A CONSULAR PARTY.

The Japanese at Fardah—A Russia Chinese Combination Against Japan—Revived Rumors of Roseberry's Prospective Downfall.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, June 3.—The outrage at Jeddah on the coast of England, France and Russia, is a very serious affair. Eight Bedouin assassins fired into the consular party deliberately and wantonly. The British consul was dangerously wounded, and the vice consul was injured more or less seriously. The admiralty promptly ordered three vessels of the Mediterranean fleet to Jeddah, which is the port for Mecca, Turkey claims sovereignty over Jeddah, but its authority is weak in Arabia. While the crime was committed actually under the Turkish flag, responsibility for it will be laid on the British fleet from Alexandria. It is not probable that Arab sympathies for the Turks as oppressors of the Armenians have anything to do with this outrage, but the incident may increase the anti-Turkish feeling in England, especially as gross affronts have been offered by the police in Mecca to the British, French and Russian delegates of the Armenian commission, and their servants have been attacked. The Porte is still dawdling over the reply to the proposals of the powers on questions of Armenian reforms. The movement of the British fleet from Alexandria to Beyrout, Assyria, apparently indicates a more determined stand by the government, but public opinion in England supports only languidly the agitation against Turkey.

THE ROSSKREY GOVERNMENT.

There is a confident renewal now of predictions that the Government is about to fall. The time immediately after the House of Commons reassembles on Monday, Lord Rosebery has been showing himself about Westminster in a dolorous and pallid sort of way, but now he is again for ten days on a further ocean cruise and such of his followers as saw him aboard are not sorry for his absence. He produces the melancholy impression of a man who has been mentally and physically attacked by some premature and irremediable blight. His old alertness of will and demeanor has entirely gone. He stares almost vacantly at times and now forgets what he is saying and then depresses those about him wherever he goes. Even those who are most favorable to him have frankly abandoned the idea that he has a future. They have turned their eyes now to Herbert Asquith and indeed the whole Liberal party is settling down to the notion that he is the coming man.

TERRIBLE FAMILY AFFRAY.

A Son Stabs his Father and a Brother Seeks Revenge.

Special to the Times.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 3.—Last night Martin McNichols came home with his month in his pocket, and his father, with his father about a small debt. The son became so enraged that he knocked his father down and plunged the blade of a small pocket knife into his body. Robert, a brother, and Mary, a sister, went to the assistance of their father. And Robert was twice seriously stabbed in the region of the heart, so that the way to Mary was slashed upon the hand. The case was not reported to the police until 2 o'clock this morning, and in the meantime Martin had made good his escape.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

Rossetti's Use For an Elephant

Gabriel Rossetti had a penchant for wild animals. He was with difficulty prevented at one time from purchasing for a very large sum a young elephant. Browning said to him, "What on earth will you do with him, Gabriel?" and Rossetti replied: "I mean to teach him to clean the windows. Then, when some one passes by the house he will see the elephant cleaning the windows and will say, 'Who lives in that house?' and people will tell him, 'Oh, that's a painter called Rossetti,' and he will say, 'I think I should like to buy one of that man's pictures.' So he will ring to come in, and I shall sell him a picture."

Few Can Walk Straight in the Dark

In a small gathering the other evening some one proposed a trial of locating oneself in absolute darkness. Lamps and lights were extinguished, and then the first "victim," who had previously "taken the center of the stage," attempted to reach the door. No blindfold was employed, and the four or five "spectators" sat silent in their places awaiting the result. The "blind" groped for several minutes unsuccessfully and then bumped into a window quite opposite to the door from which he was to exit. Each person, with wits collected and all the "boarings" taken, made as bad blunders, and it was proved to these experimenters that locality is a faculty that grows with actual loss of vision, and that no one who is normally gifted can walk straight in the dark.—Boston Herald.

Gabrielli's Voice

Gabrielli had a charming voice, but was so capricious that no one could tell when she was going to sing, even when cast for a part in opera. Once in Naples she became offended and refused to sing above a whisper. The king sent her to prison, where for 12 days she fasted the prisoners, entertaining them with her choicest selections. Set at liberty, she became more of a favorite than ever. It was she who asked Catherine the Great to pay her 5,000 ducats as salary. "Why, that is more than I pay my field marshals!" said the empress. "Then your majesty would better get your field marshals to sing for you," was the saucy reply.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time what he mixed with his paints, the laconic reply, "brains." It is this gray matter located in the upper story of man that moves the world.

In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co., Toronto, for the invention of the transposing piano.

A feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of earnest thought before it was brought to perfection. To-day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental interest.

It is not something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this invention one can now accomplish that which has long been desired by practical men, viz: the adjustability of pitch, especially since the adoption of the French pitch.

Musicians may be played out, and their piano in the scale or key of "C" and its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the late J. H. Heintzman & Co. have placed 65 of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

A Salvation Army Wedding.

Capt. Booth Alfred Dodge, of Collingwood, and Capt. Minnie Elmina House, of Oakawa, were united in marriage by Commandant Booth in the Christian church at Oakawa last night. The receipts at the door were so small that a "collection" was taken up to defray expenses.

A Change in Name.

The Ladies' Home Baking Powder Company have changed the name of their "Sarsaparilla" baking powder to "Eclipse," having found that another firm was manufacturing an article under that name. Died in Goal.

An old man named Haines, from the Township of Brighton, an inmate of the industrial department of the County Goal, died on Wednesday evening last. An inquest was held on Thursday when a verdict of death from old age was returned. The holding of an inquest on a person dying in goal is in accordance with the law for the purpose of exonerating the goal officials.—Fort Hope Times.

THE CROWN'S THEORY!

DAVID SCOLLIE SAID TO HAVE HAD HIS HEAD SAWN OFF.

It is said that the Crown has evidence that a Buck Saw Was Used to do the Deed and that a Woman Used It—Suspicious at the Inquest.

If the suspicions of the Provincial detective are well founded, the David Scollie case will be one of the most gruesome and horrible in the annals of the country. The recent Hyams' case, horrible though it was, will pale in comparison with it. The theory of the detectives as to how old David Scollie met his death has leaked out. If the theory is founded on facts, the human brain may well reel in horror at the idea of a man being coldly and calmly executed a deed of such fiendish character.

It is said that the Crown has some highly sensational evidence in its possession, in connection with the alleged murder, and if the report be verified the crime promises to equal in gruesome horror any case in the annals of crime in Canada.

THE HEAD SAWN OFF.

According to the evidence referred to, it is said that the victim's head was sawn off the trunk with an ordinary buck saw, and that the operator was a woman.

Investigations are still in progress and arrests may be made at any time. It is known from a reliable source that it was the intention of Provincial Detective Murray to have had the warrants issued on Saturday last, and that the magistrate remained in his office until 6 o'clock that evening waiting for Murray and Dr. Primrose and Cavan to return from the cemetery, for the purpose of issuing them. Some hitch happened that caused these gentlemen to take the 4.45 train for Toronto instead of returning to the magistrate's office. It is further learned that Detective Murray stated that he wanted three warrants issued.

ARE BAD PAY.

Methodist Ministers Owe the Book Room Thousands of Dollars.

At yesterday's session of the Methodist Conference in Hamilton, several sensational incidents occurred. It was a day of sensations.
Rev. Dr. Briggs, of Toronto, book steward, and a firm by announcing that members of the conference were hundreds and thousands of dollars behind in their accounts with the book room. He intimated that unless some action was taken, right speedily action would have to be brought in the courts.
Some of the ministers expressed the opinion that Dr. Briggs had no right to bring such a thing up at the conference.
Dr. Briggs replied by stating that a minute later then on the floor of the House owed $400. He had been dining for it and had written a reply stating that he would remember the account in his will.

NO VOTE ON MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

The conference got all tangled up over the Manitoba school question. Jonathan Ellis withdrew his one school and non-interference resolution and P. E. W. Meyer offered a resolution to the effect that no action be taken.
Rev. J. S. Ross moved in amendment to the effect that the Manitoba Public Schools must be preserved in their integrity. Finally Mr. Ellis' original motion was restored, but no vote was reached.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A Very Short Session—Routine Business Quickly Despatched.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education last night, there were present, Dr. Burnham in the chair, and trustees W. S. Hill, J. B. McKee, Dr. Caldwell, W. J. Boucher, Peter Hamilton, J. J. Hartley, H. Denne, Jr., W. H. Law and W. G. Ferguson.
The extreme warmth of the evening and the close atmosphere of the Board room seemed to have a depressing effect upon the members. The routine business was quickly despatched and the Board adjourned before 9 o'clock.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were read and received:
From John Jeffries asking for increase of salary, he having been in the employ of the Board for 5 years and propose of a large pay.

From J. A. Fife asking for an increase of salary.

From Wm. Burke as follows:
GENTLEMEN:—One of your teachers, Mr. O'Brien appeared before the Separate School Board on Monday evening and on being allowed to speak, he claimed as follows: That the pupils of the Collegiate Institute, coming from Murray Street Separate School are inferior to the pupils coming from the county and town, and that a pupil from the Convent school who just "scrapped" through and got a large prize was better than those from my school who had made a good pass. He did not confine himself to my pupils but those of my predecessors as well and since he did not except mine the charge must necessarily effect my standing with the Separate School Board. Mr. O'Brien in making out his case for the future in connection therewith that he did not wish to do me any harm and this I regard as the best proof that a feeling of guile was in his mind at the time. The first speaker of the evening I regard the charge as malicious on his part. Nothing was said previous to his speaking. He offered no explanation of anything said by him. He claimed that the means used by me to get a Separate School teacher appointed as honorable and not honorable, and to prove this was his difficult task. Could his charge against the pupils of Murray street school be regarded as a proof of this?

It is not my intention to question the truth of his statements but admitted that they are true, is there one man on your Board who can approve of such an unmanly, ungentlemanly and unprofessional conduct? During my predecessor's time he was compelled to write the principal of the Collegiate Institute in the hope of retaining Mr. O'Brien. He has meddled in the past and has been a constant nuisance during my term here, and the prospect for the future is not much better. The Board of Education by adopting some means to restrain him will confer a great favor on the Separate School teachers and instead of a constant meddling there will be some peace.
Yours respectfully,
Wm. Burke.

From John Corkery notifying Board that the Separate School had appointed Mr. M. O'Brien examiner for the entrance examinations.
From deputy minister John Miller approving of the Board's request for a senior leaving examination.
In regard to Mr. Burke's letter, Trustee Hill said that if there was anything to be investigated it was the case of the Separate School Board to take it up and not the Board. The fact that the Separate School Board had appointed Mr. O'Brien their examiner while the Collegiate Institute had not, that Board had no grievance against him.

AN OLD WOUND.

Mr. Samuel Johnston Suffering From a Pressure on the Brain.

"Geordie" Johnston, the popular driver on the Ironside branch, was called to Peterborough last week by news of the serious illness of his father, Mr. Samuel Johnston, who is now in the Nichol's Hospital, Toronto. Some years ago his skull was accidentally fractured, and lately he has been suffering from an old wound.
An examination was made and it was found that a piece of splintered bone was pressing on the brain. The operation for its removal will not take place for a month owing to Mr. Johnston's weak condition.

WHISKY GOES UP.

But not so Much of it Will go Down—Prices are Raised.

The Hotelkeeper's Association has decided to introduce the measurement system. In plain Anglo-Saxon this means that if a thirsty soul wants a big drink he gets one—and pays for it; if he wants a small one the same rule prevails.
The measure is a fatal one for the man who has been wont to put down five cents and pour out three fingers of stingo. His days are over. In future he will call for a pony and pay five cents, while a glass will cost him ten. Price cards will be got out and the system will be in force Dominion Day.

THEY ARE STRANDED.

The Houghton Dramatic Company in Trouble—Skipped a Board Bill.

The Edwin Houghton Dramatic Company which played in Peterborough some weeks ago, and left town owing $250 to a bill for printing, has come to grief at last. They recently played in London and put up at the Thompson house. When they left they did so without settling a $93 board bill and at the Suspension Bridge, Houghton was arrested and taken back to London on a charge of fraud. The following despatch from London was received last night:
LONDON, June 4.—The Houghton Dramatic Company is stranded here. Edwin Houghton, the manager, jumped a $93 board bill at the Thompson bridge, was brought back from the Suspension Bridge on a charge of fraud. The other members of the company are penniless.

WEDDING BELLS.

The Conway-Claringbold Nuptials in St. John's Yesterday.

The marriage of Mr. Wm. E. Conway, local manager of Grafton Co. store, and Miss Elsie Claringbold, daughter of Mr. H. P. Claringbold, of Sandhurst, was solemnized in St. John's early yesterday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, assisted by the Rev. C. B. Kenrick, in the presence of a large number of the friends and relatives of the bride and groom.
The bride wore a handsome gown of cream silk, the bodice being prettily trimmed with ribbons and the skirt plain. She carried a large and fragrant bouquet of roses and entered the church upon the arm of her father. The bridesmaid wore Miss Beatrice Claringbold and the maid of honor Miss Daisy Mills, niece of the bride, while the bridesmaids were Miss Bruce Mills was the page. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Richard Conway, of Dundas.

The pretty ceremony of the wedding party drove to the residence of Councillor Joseph Mills where the wedding breakfast was served. Mrs. Mills is a sister of the bride.
The newly wedded pair left on the 11.45 train on the Grand Trunk for a trip westward. Mr. and Mrs. Conway, who will reside at 430 Stewart street, are popular young people, who will be the recipients of the warmest well wishes of a host of friends. The presents were very numerous and handsome, among the array being a silver tray from the firm with whom Mr. Conway is employed, and a valuable clock from his former fellow employees with Grafton & Co., at Dundas.

Railway Notes.

An application for an annual pass was made to Commodore Vanderbilt by the president of a road about twenty-five miles long. "Your road doesn't seem to cover a great amount of territory," suggested the Commodore to the applicant. "No," said the applicant, "it isn't quite so long as the New York Central; but Mr. Vanderbilt, it's just as wide!" The pass was issued.

Conductor Crozier and brakeman Drury had a very narrow escape from death at Harwood on Thursday. While shunting cars in the mill yard they failed to observe a tramway stretching between two piles of lumber, and both were knocked off. Crozier would have gone down between the moving cars had he not grasped a brake rod; Drury was knocked clear off the track. The latter's injuries were painful but not serious, but Conductor Crozier's side and one leg were very badly bruised. He came home last evening and will lay off for a few days.

ADVANCED WOMEN.

THEY ARE ABLY DEFENDED FROM A SENSELESS ATTACK.Healthier Than Their Indolent Sisters and Possessors of the Beauty of Intellectual Shining Examples of Power and Performance.

There are many people of otherwise excellent intelligence who take an insane or maudlin delight in attacking women. They turn up about once a year, as the bees do in March, and with a cacophonous howl pour out the few minutes of their vial of wrath upon her devoted head. Then, with a melodramatic chuckle, they vanish into the obscurity of their alleged thoughts and hibernates for an indefinite period.

This time the offender is a woman, and the offense appears in the columns of The Sun in the form of what purports to be an argument that advanced women advance and agitating women agitate merely because they are not beautiful.

The cleverness and charming diction of the lady's screed render it enjoyable for the moment and sweeten the sting which it contains. It well illustrates the old saw "of serving the devil in heaven's livery." It is bad enough for men, especially those who have never been married and who are brought up by a stepmother, to see the sex, but it is much worse when an able woman indulges in a tirade embodying the platitudes of old fogies, the opinions of dullards in whose brute brain no new idea ever burst into being, and the poetic but somewhat sordid tergiversation of her own intellect. Still, however, there is a certain force to the lady's letter. Just as the temperance orator likes to have a drunkard in his audience to point out as a terrible example and to illustrate the exceeding sinfulness of gin, so the fact of the attack shows that there are women of some mentality who cannot be and will not be advanced, and to whom such things as a thorough education, a broad culture and a high moral purpose are either meaningless terms or something, like the measles, to be avoided.

There are advanced women, and advanced women. Dr. Mary Walker and Miss Mary Johnson represent one type in their own esteem, and the correspondent of The Sun represents another, very different from the first, but equally objectionable and discordant. The true advanced woman is one who develops her intellectual nature as far as she can and wants society to do the same with all womankind by the same means as they employ in converting the boy from the farm and the forest into the university graduate, the scientist and the statesman. The advanced woman believes that life is not a mere course of enjoyment, had or pursued, but an existence which should contain some lofty moral or spiritual purpose. She believes in the efficiency of intellectual and moral effort, no matter where it is applied, whether establishing a ragged school or club for political study; in making a mineralogical collection or pleading the cause of temperance; in starting a Chautauque circle or in instructing poor young women in embroidery, drawing or technical design; in founding kindergartens, where little souls may be rationally developed, or in conducting trade schools where men can be made into useful workmen. It is not a new type. There have been hundreds and thousands of such women the world over. The only thing in that the St. Johns were isolated individuals, while today their name is legion, and they are endeavoring to so improve the social world as to make their type universal. It is against this type that The Sun's correspondent kicks, with the usual accompaniment of much noise and a leveling of long ears.

There is a small amount of argument in her article, but it is buried beneath a wilderness of platitude, mixed metaphors and alliteration sentences. Her opening premise that all advanced women are ugly to hideousness is as false as it is foolish, and could have been made only by one who recklessly sets facts as a theory, or who has never been admitted across the threshold of literary and intellectual society.

The truth is that advanced women are as a class handsome and healthier than any other, no matter whether it be the Four Hundred or the mad army of authors of erotic literature.

Beyond mere physical comeliness they possess the beauty of intellectuality and of a finely developed moral character. These indefinable charms have always been regarded as the greatest attractions of the individual possessing them. They appeal to the world, whether it be from the face of a Goethe, a Webster and a Hawthorne or Mme. Recamier, Elizabeth Barrett Browning and Harriet Beecher Stowe. It must be admitted, however, that these men and a few women to whom these things are unintelligible, who vote intellectually a bore, treat culture and poetry as one and prefer the voluptuous graces of a courtesan to the spiritual loveliness of a saint or a Madonna.

That the advancement of woman does not involve any physical deterioration, but, on the contrary, tends to develop the body, may be seen by anybody who will visit Vassar, Oberlin or the other institutions of learning whose doors are open to her sex. The scholars, and especially those in the senior year and among the alumnae, are usually splendid specimens of vigorous young womanhood. The "sweet girl graduates" of Tenbyon's poem are turned out by thousands every year in our land. They are larger, stronger and more symmetrical than are the girls who have staid at home, "come out" at 16 and been through three seasons.

They are also healthier as well. Dr. Sargent, who is the best authority on the subject and has taken the measurements and other statistics of thousands of women, asserts that college bred women are physically superior to all others of the same social class and stand far better the strain of either married or professional life.—Marguerite Arline Haman in New York Sun.

Vell.

It is quite as important to wear clean veils as fresh under linen. But can veils be washed? some one asks. Most veils are, but when you own a mesh that will not bear cleansing, indeed it when it shows the least signs of soil. In certain parts of Switzerland they use the following methods of washing lace veils: If the veil is white, it should carefully be washed in lukewarm water, loosely wrung out and rinsed in cold water. It should then be half dried by being clapped between the hands and finally hung out to dry completely. If the veil is black, mix a little oil or gail in warm water and pour this over the veil, afterward rinsing in cold water. For stiffening purposes a weak solution of gum called "gum water" is used in place of starch, and the drying processes are the same as for the white veil.

A NICARAGUAN PROBLEM.

SIGNS OF ANOTHER CRISIS WITH GREAT BRITAIN.The Origin of the Dispute—Murderer Strait Seeks to Avoid the Electrical Chair by Suicide.

Special to the Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4. Fresh trouble between Nicaragua and Great Britain is anticipated in Central America, according to private advice received from that country this morning. It is claimed in Nicaragua that the formal incorporation of the inhabitants of the Mosquito region with the rest of Nicaragua was regarded by Great Britain as the best, most complete solution of all doubt or qualification respecting the full sovereignty of Nicaragua over the entire coast. It is asserted that there is now a disposition to dispute this settlement on the ground that the Indians were coerced into it. The agreement made by Nicaragua to pay the $75,000 indemnity demanded by Great Britain was coupled, it appeared, with an understanding that the remaining matters in dispute between the two countries should be settled by arbitration. The Nicaraguan government, it is said, will ask that the third member of the commission, the other members being representatives of Great Britain and Nicaragua respectively, shall be a citizen of the United States. No arrangements so far as can be learned have yet been reached as to the time and place of holding the commission, but it will not long be delayed.

GREAT BRITAIN'S ULTIMATUM expressly stipulated that the third member of the proposed commission could not be a citizen of any American state. The Nicaraguans construed this to be a refusal to accept the United States. The British ambassador at Washington promptly repudiated this construction and contended that the term "American state" was used in English diplomacy to mean the Latin American countries to the south of the United States. If the British foreign office shall uphold Sir Julian's interpretation, Nicaragua claims that no objection can be made to the selection of an American on the commission.

BENEFICENT ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

ELMIRA, N.Y., June 4.—Mr. V. Strait, condemned to suffer death by electricity, at Auburn prison, during the week of the last July 21, for the murder of his wife and sister-in-law, made a determined effort to take his life this morning. He wrenched off the handle of a tin drinking cup and hurled it into the shape of a knife, made several attempts to cut his throat. Falling in this he jabbed it into his neck on the right side near the jugular vein. She had resided at the man's home. The wound is very close to the jugular vein but will not result seriously. At 4.30 o'clock this morning he was removed to Auburn.

KILLED IN A RUNAWAY.

Familiar Incidents Surrounding the Death of Louise Jabez.

Special to the Times.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., June 4.—A remarkable death occurred last evening at the historic Leray de Chamont mansion, ten miles from this city, where Joseph Bond, partner, brother of J. J. Bond, and some of his refugees resided in 1780. Louisa Jabez, aged 69, was dashed from a wagon and crushed under the wheels. She had resided at the mansion with her son-in-law, Pennington, for several years. Differences arose over some property matters and she decided to remove to her son's residence a mile away. The raid of the furniture on the first wagon load removed scared the horses, resulting in her death.

THE BANK OF MONTREAL

traces upon the path of industry, commerce and finance made by that adverse wave we are glad to believe that they will be found less deep in Canada than in most countries. In this connection let me draw your attention to the high rank which Canadian securities have maintained throughout the long depression. A leading English authority, writing recently on the remarked that "Taken all round it will be seen that as compared with fifteen years ago the yield upon first class securities generally has declined upon an average of about 25 per cent, or in other words that capital values have risen to a corresponding extent, for one fact merely implies the other." In the table supplied by this authority it appears that Canadian 4 per cent. securities have risen 2 1/2 per cent. since 1880, a higher rate than that of the bonds of any other British colony. The suggestion arises that, while a property like the Bank of Montreal is owned practically and exclusively in Canada, a comparison upon the lines indicated would not be without interest, and it will be satisfactory to the shareholders to learn that while since 1880 the value of the shares of the Bank of England has risen 25 1/2 per cent., of the London and County Bank 24 1/2 per cent., of the London and Westminster Bank 22 per cent., and of other principal British banks somewhat less, the value of the stock of the Bank of Montreal has advanced since 1880 by 59 per cent. Now I would venture to direct your attention for a few moments to

THE INDICATIONS OF REVIVING TRADE which appear the world over, and which are not wanting in Canada. I observe that according to the London Economist of May 11th last:—"In several directions there are indications that the clouds of depression and distrust which have overshadowed practically the whole business world since the Baring collapse in the autumn of 1890, are gradually passing away, and that a period of greater activity in the race for wealth is setting in." And the Economist adds that "From nearly all the important industrial centers throughout the United Kingdom the reports read more cheerfully, and the long continued complaints of unremunerative prices are becoming somewhat less persistent." In the United States a similar state of affairs has come to prevail, judging by the signs we accept as a reliable index of the commercial barometer. Railway earnings in that country are increasing; the number of mercantile failures is declining; bank suspensions have happily become as rare this year as two years ago they were common; manufacturing industries are reviving, and the Clearing House returns show that the movement of general merchandise is gradually growing. It is, however, more particularly to the reasons which seem to warrant a hopeful view being taken of the commercial outlook in our own country that I would draw your attention, because after all our prosperity as a corporation must mainly rest upon the trade conditions in Canada. These reasons are neither few nor unimportant. If, for instance, we look at

of this city of Montreal during the past month of May, it will be found that the aggregate amount of the clearings has been $57,147,200 as compared with $49,294,200 in the corresponding month last year, and $54,325,000 in May of 1893, the figures showing an undoubted improvement in business, even when shared with two years ago. Then, as to railway earnings, you are doubtless aware that our two principle arteries of traffic have suffered a serious diminution in earnings since the continental depression set in, although, as compared with United States railways, those in Canada cannot be said to have done badly. The point upon which we have to congratulate ourselves, however, is that since the beginning of the present year the profit of the Canadian Pacific Railway show an improvement up to the close of April over those of the like period last year, the gain for the month of April alone being $86,840, and that in the case of the Grand Trunk Railway, the receipts have risen from $1,626,000 to $1,613,000 in five weeks ending with May 25th. From results of this kind we have, I think, fairly good reasons to infer that the turn in the tide of business has come, in which view some confirmation may be found in the rising scale of prices both here and abroad.

The Advance in the Price of Wheat whether permanent or not, has already given hope and inspired a more confident feeling among the agriculturists of Ontario and the Northwest, and if the promise of better prices for this important cereal should be realized during the ensuing year with even less than an average crop, and I am glad to see the indications from recent returns that we shall have an abundant one, the effect cannot fail to be favorable to business generally in Canada.

I have received today information respecting the crop outlook in the Northwest which I am sure you will be pleased to hear. It is as follows:—"Telegraphic reports of Saturday covering all the Canadian Pacific main line and branches in Northwest as well as the lines of the Manitoba & Northwestern, and Great Northwest Central Railways, state that the wheat and other crops never looked better at this time of the year; that the damage to the wheat crop by late frost will probably not exceed 5 per cent., and to early sown oats and barley 5 per cent. Heavy rain Thursday night was general over the entire province of Manitoba, and West to Moosejaw. No more rain needed until July, except where soil is light. With warm weather the wheat should be headed out about the end of June, which will be two weeks earlier than usual."

I cannot omit observing, however, that a leading staple of export, one which, indeed, figures next to lumber in point of importance, has this spring declined largely in value. I refer to cheese, from the sale of which abroad, Canada has in recent years derived large returns, and the current price of which has undergone so marked a depreciation as to effect the profit of those engaged in the industry. Perhaps, as in the case of the other staple of wheat, the cheese industry must have its ups and downs, and in any event we may hope the depression is merely temporary.

finds exemplification in trade export returns, which show a value of $83,805,000 of domestic products sent abroad from July 1st, 1894 to May 1st, 1895, as compared with an export of $82,200,000 of Canadian products in the corresponding period of the preceding year, thus showing an increase in the value of the goods which we have been able to sell abroad despite a somewhat low range of prices. When we remember that this growth of export commerce has been coincident with a reduction in the value of imports, I think we may rest assured, not only of the accumulative power of the country, but of the prudence, ability and sound judgment which, in alliance with a well based and sagaciously directed banking system, lies at the foundation of its commercial affairs. It behooves us, however, to put forth every possible effort in aid of the revival of prosperity. This, it appears to me, can well be done by encouraging the settlement of our vast, practically unoccupied territory in the Northwest, for surely two or three hundred thousand is indeed a sparse population for a district capable of maintaining millions to the eastward independence. This is not to be accomplished by constructing lines of railways where they are not and cannot, for many years to come, be required, but by offering every proper inducement to immigrants to take up farms near to the railways which at present exist and which offer every requisite facility for transport and for all the trade that under the most favorable circumstances we can hope for in these many years to come. It appears to me that what is wanted is

A WELL CONCEIVED SYSTEM OF EMIGRATION from the United Kingdom and other countries of Europe, and we have every reason for believing that money judiciously spent in this way would be refunded to us tenfold. It is true that the Northwest has been greatly benefited by emigration from the older provinces, and especially from Ontario; but what is a gain to that part of the Dominion has undoubtedly to some extent been a disadvantage to the other provinces, in that the population in the eastern portion of the Dominion is not so sufficient to permit of its being, to any extent, depleted to strengthen the West. There is another way in which the prosperity of the Dominion can also be greatly furthered, and that is by the development of the vast mineral resources of British Columbia, for we have it on the authority of those having the best knowledge and experience of these industries in the adjoining state of Montana that we have within our own borders far richer deposits of silver, gold and other valuable minerals than are to be found in that state, and yet we know that one of the largest and most important railways in the American Northwest, while it has suffered in its ordinary traffic of ore, is equally with other roads, has had this year more than compensated for by the increase arising from its mineral resources. Besides the indications of hopefulness to which I have pointed, there are others which might be alluded to, but not having the gift of prophecy, and we all of us have had experience of how very unsafe and misleading and at times disastrous, it has been to indulge in prophecy, I had better refrain.

NEWFOUNDLAND.
Some eight or nine years back your Bank extended its business by establishing an agency on the Pacific Coast, and more recently at the head of Lake Superior an important grain exporting point, and your Directors have no reason to regret the steps so taken. They have within the last three months opened a branch in St. John's, Newfoundland, under circumstances which I need not particularly refer to, as they are within the knowledge of all of you. We have every cause for believing that, while entering into direct business there, the Bank will confer a benefit on Newfoundland, it will also reap reasonable profit from the venture. Before moving the adoption of the report, I may be permitted to mention the report which I personally feel and in which I believe many of those present will share, that the recent negotiations looking to the inclusion of Newfoundland within the Dominion have not yet resulted in a happy result. Let us hope, however, that ere long the oldest of Britain's colonies on the Atlantic will be part of our Confederation and that as one country and one people we will together work out a common material and patriotic future. I will now move the adoption of the report, seconded by Hon. G. A. Drummond.

I will now call upon the General Manager to address you.

The General Manager's Address.

Mr. E. S. Clouston, General Manager, said:

To men in active business it would appear quite unnecessary to explain why our profits are unusually low for the year, but as a number of our shareholders are not so closely in touch with the commercial world, and as they receive a report of our profits which is not as well pointed out as briefly as possible the reasons why the result of our year's business is somewhat less favorable than usual, the chief cause of the reduction in our profits, the extremely low rates for money ruling in England and the United States now and for a long time past. This affects the Bank of Montreal more than any other bank in Canada. You will see by reference to the statement submitted to you that we employ in these countries for the year will be somewhat less than in the neighborhood of a little under. With the rate for money in London 1 per cent. paid, and in New York 1 1/2 per cent. and in Chicago 4 per cent. instead of 6 per cent. or 7 per cent. as in previous years, a much larger shrinkage in profits could be explained. In Canada the rates have been a little less than normal. It seems hardly necessary to explain the necessity for employing so much money outside of Canada, but it may be as well to repeat previous explanations. These funds practically make a large additional gold reserve, available very readily, and they are not only a great strength to this Bank, but I look upon them as to the financial interests of the whole Dominion. There has been no time during the past year when we did not have obtained from sources outside this country 25 per cent. of our total liabilities in gold, quicker than we could possibly have obtained from any other source. This position has been shown on more than one occasion when we have been able to relieve a financial stringency, and it is a position which no man could foresee, without in any way disturbing the financial requirements of the community. Had we been obliged to draw from our local resources we would have succeeded in aggravating the situation.

Our actual losses through bad debts have been about normal, but in making our appropriations for doubtful paper we could not close our eyes to the fact that the past year has not been a prosperous one for the majority of our customers and we were obliged to take a more than usually conservative line in making our appropriations. On the whole, looking back over the last twelve months since I last met you, I am well satisfied that I am able to point you with the statement now before you. With reference to the other figures in the statement, the circulation shows a decrease of $700,000, which was to be expected owing to the stagnation in trade; the deposits, not bearing interest, an increase of $3,000,000, almost all from Government bonds, and of a temporary character; the deposits bearing interest, an increase of $1,300,000, chiefly in our Savings Bank Department. In the same way, the balance sheet shows an increase of $2,700,000, and an increase of $1,000,000 in Government bonds, etc., has disappeared from the statement. I may say it is our intention to replace them when the opportunity offers. Our discounts are $2,800,000 more than in the corresponding period of the preceding year, but our commercial discounts being about stationary. The overdue debts have been decreased $115,000, by collections and appropriations.

THE DEPRESSION IN TRADE.

As you all know the year 1894 ended rather to the depressing business years we have had since the Baring failure in 1890. In the United States not only was trade depressed and stagnant, and railroad loans entered into, but there was a low price in wheat, cotton, steel, sugar, etc.; not only were there railroad strikes, and extensive floods, of which, on our Pacific coast, we had communication with British Columbia for some weeks; not only were wages reduced, numbers thrown out of employment, and forced economy brought about a heavy falling off in production in nearly every line of trade and industry, but to add to the trouble the Government of the United States threw every impediment in the way of a revival by refusing to give any relief, with reference to the Silver and Currency question and aggravated it by absurd financial propositions. Had it not been for the firm stand taken by Mr. Cleveland, aided by the able support of the Hon. John D. Rockefeller, and the other financiers who are carrying through with apparent success one of the most difficult and delicate financial operations of the century, the United States would today have been in the throes of a panic to which that of 1890 would have been child's play. In times of business depression, as the epidemic there affords a lesson to us, the surface crop of cracks and quacks armed with special nostrums or theories to cure everything, and the ignorant driven to desperation by the state of affairs, are the most plausible, only to find out later how deeply they have been deceived. Of such is the silver money or free coinage.

THE SILVER MONEY OR FREE COINAGE at present rampant in the United States, promoted by interested silver mine owners, fostered by theorists and demagogues, and accepted by a large number of unthinking farmers, laborers, etc., who are feeling the pinch of low prices. I am glad to see that active and organized efforts are being made to stem the rising tide, and I have no doubt they will be entirely successful. These efforts are forcibly exemplified by the continued increase in gold production, and the steady rise in staples without a corresponding rise in silver, refuting some of the chief theories and statements of the silver men. I stated the other day that a French writer, referring to the tendency of the Americans towards the adoption of irrational and exploded ideas, said that God is good to his little children, drunken men and the people of the United States, or they would have gone to eternal damnation long ago. The silver question is one that we, as large lenders in the United States, watch very closely, and though we could probably do business here as profitably on a silver basis as a gold one we would like to see the present uncertainty removed.

CANADA AND THE DEPRESSION.

Though the past year has not been a prosperous one it should be a source of great satisfaction to Canadians that the business community in Canada has some well through the ordeal and with so few failures and disasters. In that we compare favorably with any other country. Indeed, it has been a great surprise to me how well we have stood it. It is too soon to say we are out of the woods, but in the United States there seems to be no doubt that the corner has been turned, and as Canada must always be affected in no small measure by the condition of affairs in that country, it is reasonable to suppose that here also the depression has spent its force. There is undoubtedly a more hopeful feeling, and though the improvement may be to a certain extent sentimental, many must have benefited by the rise in staples, which, with the exception of butter and cheese—has been general. Still, much depends on the coming crop, and until it is assured the danger is not over. The prosperity of the community will eventually ensure to the banks, but in the meantime the same features with regard to money still exist in England and the United States, and I am afraid the coming year will be an extremely lean one for this Bank at least.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND BRANCH.

The failure of the only two banks in the island of Newfoundland, the knowledge of the valuable trade carried on in that island, and its large natural resources capable of great development in the future, seemed to afford an opening for an Agency of the Bank, and we accordingly commenced business there on the 9th January last. We believe we have been of assistance in procuring the necessary machinery for the transaction of business which was practically at a standstill, and we have been of service to the Newfoundland Government by temporary loans which have given them time to make more permanent financial arrangements. The result so far has justified our expectations, and we are encouraged to believe that the future has a satisfactory and successful career in store for our St. John's Branch.

The General Discussion.

After some remarks by Mr. John Morrison in favor of the observance of economy, Mr. John Crawford alluded to the reference made by the President to the death of Mr. Meredith, and said that the remarks so feelingly made by Sir Donald had met with the hearty reception of those present. Mr. Crawford touched upon the appointment of Mr. W. W. Ogilvie as successor to Mr. Meredith in the Directorship, and expressed the opinion that the Shareholders should have the privilege of unearthing such a distinguished gentleman and not the directors. The President explained that the Directors had no choice; under the laws it was obligatory upon them to make the appointment.

Mr. Crawford spoke of Mr. Ogilvie's ability, and then went on to remark that from one point of view, the financial statement could not be called a satisfactory one; on the other hand, he was quite prepared to admit that under all the circumstances, it might have been very much worse indeed, and from that standpoint, therefore, it was very gratifying. He regretted to see that the circulation of the bank notes was so low, and that competition was so sharp work, and general managers could not expect to improve the conditions of banks by waiting passively for business. It must be met half way. He observed in the statement of assets that included in an item of $53,000,000 were "current loans and other securities." He would like to know about what percentage of the whole amount these "other securities" represented.

The General Manager said:—It is a very small proportion; about $100,000 principally in real estate, the property of the bank other than the premises.

Mr. Crawford considered this reply quite satisfactory. He suggested that in future it would be well to place the figures on the statement in parallel columns, showing the several amounts for the year just closed and the preceding year. He considered that it would be a very great convenience. The President, he remarked, had stated in a general way that the Directors' expectations regarding the Newfoundland branch had been realized. That was very consoling when it was remembered that the island had for some time been represented in a quasi-bankrupt condition. It was, however, far from being settled yet. He thought that those who took part in the recent run upon the banks in Newfoundland had not counted the cost, or they would not have worried about trying to exchange bank notes for gold. In this part of Canada the name of the Bank of Montreal was a synonym for impossibility. He supposed that the late failure of the two Newfoundland banks had left a very unsavory reputation behind, and he respectfully suggested that the management of the Bank of Montreal's branch down there should be: "Vigilance and caution." He advocated the Shareholders being made acquainted with the Bank's gross receipts, gross expenditure and gross losses, and he also touched upon quarterly dividends.

The President would say with regard to the remarks of Mr. Crawford that his suggestion about the parallel columns in the financial statement might be worthy consideration of the Directors. I am also wish to say that in speaking of the financial position of Newfoundland, I did not venture an opinion in any way. I wish that to be distinctly understood. Those who pressed a hope that Newfoundland might at some time enter into confederation, and that we might work together for a common good.

The motion for the adoption of the Directors' report, which had been moved by the President, and seconded by the Vice-President, Hon. Geo. A. Drummond, was then agreed to unanimously.

Votes of Thanks.

Capt. Benyon moved:—That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President, Vice President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank. He also moved that it be placed on record how thoroughly the Shareholders endorsed the remarks of the President with regard to the death of Mr. W. H. Meredith; and the same time be stated what great confidence the shareholders had in the ability of the gentleman selected to fill his place (Mr. Meredith's place on the directorate, W. W. Ogilvie).

This was seconded by Mr. Hector MacKenzie, and after the President had briefly acknowledged the vote of thanks on behalf of himself and colleagues, it was carried unanimously.

Mr. W. W. Ogilvie moved:—That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, the Inspector, the Managers and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year. In making the motion, Mr. Ogilvie said:—I am often brought into contact with the officers of the Bank from Vancouver to Halifax, and have always been pleased with the caution and loyalty they display in regard to the Bank. I have great pleasure in moving this resolution. The motion, which was seconded by Mr. B. Angus, was unanimously carried after which the General Manager briefly returned thanks.

Mr. B. Laumont moved, seconded by Mr. John Dunlop, and it was agreed to unanimously.

The Directors.

The ballot resulted in the selection of the old Board of Directors as follows: Mr. R. B. Angus, Hon. George A. Drummond, Mr. A. P. Gault, Mr. Edward B. Green-shield, Mr. Hugh McLennan, Mr. W. C.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time what he mixed with his palette, made the lacquer reply, "brains." It is this gray matter located in the upper story of man that moves the world. In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co., Toronto, for the invention of the transposing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of earnest thought before it was brought to perfection. To-day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental interest. It is not something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this invention one can now accomplish that which has long been desired by practical men, viz: the adjustability of pitch, especially since the adoption of the French pitch. Music may be played on the transposing piano in the scale of key of "C" and its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the late of Jan. Heintzman & Co. have placed 66 of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING.

Fifty Dollars Granted to the Firemen's Other Charitable Legislation.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held last night Mayor Kendry presiding and all members present except Messrs. Spooner, Mason and Brady, and though the business before the board was light, considerable time was consumed in its transaction and the session was of an entertaining character.

Mr. James Wilson applied for a free carters license, and upon the representation of the extending circumstances under which Mr. Wilson was suffering the application found favor. After the expenditure of much valuable breath and several abortive attempts at oratorical effort as to the manner in which the matter could be disposed of with the least responsibility to any particular councillor or committee, the discussion culminated in the following motion by Councillors Cahill and Sauer, that the chairman of the Finance Committee issue his cheque for $50 to pay for a carters license for Mr. James Wilson—Carried.

Chief Ruthford, of the fire department, addressed the Council in a petition for the financial aid in entertaining the Orillia fire fighters, who will exert to Peterborough next Monday, but was modest enough in his demands to leave the amount at the discretion of the Council.

Messrs. Best and Stone moved that $50 be granted for the purpose, and the motion was carried, but not until after Councillor Cahill had eloquently supported another motion made by himself and supported by Councillor Dawson, for a grant of $300 to inaugurate a stupendous and awe-inspiring 12th of July demonstration, in which all the disciples of the order within a radius of 100 miles should be invited to participate.

Councillor Cahill's appeal was eloquent, and he waxed enthusiastic in discounting upon the glory of such an occasion, but with the exception of Councillor Dawson, his words fell like seeds upon a barren desert, and the balance of the assembled wisdom wouldn't go beyond $50 for the firemen, and even then one august alderman wanted to make it $40.

Messrs. Hartley and McMartin, two citizens wanted privilege for the operation of a riding gallery, which they proposed to introduce and after some debate a motion by Councillors Sauer and Deane, that Messrs. Hartley and McMartin be granted a license for their riding gallery for $10 with the privilege of erecting it in Central Park provided it is a place where it will not interfere with battalion drill, or injure trees or shrubbery, was carried.

Councillors Cahill and Deane moved that the clerk be authorized to send a copy of the meeting for use in the town buildings—The meeting adjourned about 10 o'clock.

He also recommended purchasing a ladder for the use of the Central School; also that Mrs. N. Paucier be appointed janitress of the Lake Street school at a salary of $75.00 a year.

On motion of Mr. Quinlan seconded by Mr. Gosselin, the report was adopted. The matter of purchasing a ladder was left in the hands of the Property Committee.

Mr. Doris, acting Chairman of the Finance Committee reported, recommending the payment of $12.25 to A. H. Stratton & Co. When the same was certified by the Property Committee. On motion of Mr. Gosselin, the report was adopted.

THE SCOLLIE CASE.

The Headless Body of Scollie Taken to Toronto.

Despite the amusing efforts of the evening papers to discredit the new developments in the Scollie case, published in a reliable Toronto paper, and also in The Times, and notwithstanding the assertion of our contemporaries that there are no new developments, The Times this morning furnishes its readers with another detail.

TWO JUNE WEDDINGS.

The Smith-Downer and Barnard-Rogers' Nuptials.

A quiet but most pleasing wedding ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock last night by Rev. J. J. Rae, when he joined together in the holy bonds of matrimony, Councillor J. H. Smith and Miss Agnes D. Downer. The ceremony took place at the residence of Mrs. Foster, sister of the bride, Murray street, in the presence of immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was prettily gowned in a dress of Swiss muslin, trimmed with lace, and carrying a bouquet of beautiful white roses, was attended by Miss Eva Stevens, attired in a beautiful bridesmaid's costume of silver grey cashmere, trimmed with silk and seal, and carrying a bouquet of lovely pink roses. The pretty little maid of honor was Miss Edith Downer, of Toronto, and Miss Agnes Melrose, of Pittsfield, Mass. They were prettily dressed in white muslin and carried pink and white roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Will Blecher, of Peterborough.

The use and groom are well known and very popular young people of Peterborough. The bride, who, for a number of years has held the position of saleslady in the establishment of R. Nell, has a wide circle of friends with whom she is deservedly popular. The groom is a highly respected citizen of Ashburnham and for two years has sat on the council of the Ashburnham village. He is well liked and respected by a host of warm friends both in Ashburnham and Peterborough.

The newly wedded pair were the recipients of numerous handsome presents among which was a beautiful banquet lamp presented to the bride by the employees of the establishment in which she has been employed. The wedding was a silver tea service to the groom from his old associates and fellow employees.

After partaking of a wedding supper at the residence of the bride, the happy couple left for Toronto and points west. A large number of their friends showered congratulations and well wishes upon them at the depot. Upon their return they will take up housekeeping at 182 Hunter street.

The Times extends sincere congratulations.

Henry Barnard, barrister, Victoria, British Columbia, and son of Mr. F. J. Barnard, ex-M. P. for Yale, and Miss Ethel Burnham Rogers, daughter of Mr. Lieut. Colonel H. C. Rogers, postmaster. The ceremony took place at nine o'clock, the bride was Miss Ethel Burnham Rogers, sister of the bride, Miss Burritt, of Rogers, cousin of the bride, and Miss Annie Denham, town, and they were dressed in white crepe, trimmed with yellow ribbon and white chiffon, and each by the young ladies carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Catarrh in the Head

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 7 1895.

Two thousand men have been set to work on the new railroad from Yarnslav to Archangel, which will connect the Russian railroad system with the White Sea and the Arctic Ocean.

A society for the suppression of scandal has just been started at Interburg in East Prussia. Every scandalous story spread in the town will be traced and the originator prosecuted by the society.

The Newfoundlanders owe $50 per capital and the Canadians $40, and as they could find no way to capitalise these two facts the attempt to form a partnership fell through.

Newfoundland, having obtained a loan, no longer feels under the necessity of entering the Canadian Confederation. The Newfoundlanders may be happy yet if they cultivate more patriotism and less politics.

The anti-Japanese party in Korea seems to be menacing the Government with over-throw. It is surprising that there should be an anti-Japanese party in view of what Japan has done for the country.

Miss Loretta Addis, the conditional fiancée of Lord Sholto Douglas, son of the Marquis of Queensbury, made her appearance before a San Francisco audience on Monday night, and, because she possibly may marry the noble lord, there was a large and fashionable audience present to see and hear her. She made a hit and was rapturously applauded.

Since Confederation, according to the Mail's Ottawa correspondent, fire insurance companies doing business in Canada have collected $112,000,000 in premiums and paid out less than $78,000,000 for fire losses. These figures do not show any good reason for recent increases in rates throughout Ontario, and which increases have caused such very general complaint.

There is something touching in the experience of a Kansas City man named John Paterson in Chicago. John stopped in the Windy City on his way west from a visit to Sweden. He was robbed the first thing. Returning from the police station, where he had gone to report the robbery, he was again held up. Among his losses this time was a valued silk handkerchief. John's mother had given him this, so he made a vigorous search for the robbers. While engaged in this mission, he was held up for the third time within 24 hours and relieved of two watches and a ring.

Divorce petitions in England for the ten years from 1883 to 1892 averaged 533 a year, there being nothing to indicate a progressive increase; the lowest number, 490 in 1885, was followed by the highest, 581 in 1886, the number for 1892 was 539. The same holds true for divorces granted, the average being 365, with the extremes of 316 in 1885 and 400 in 1890. The remarriages of divorced persons, however, show a steady increase year by year, from 122 in 1883 to 190 in 1892, the average being 163.

At Tobessa, in Algeria, near the Tunis frontier, a strange megalithic village has been discovered. At the foot of a shell limestone cliff, half a from the phosphate mines, are many large boulders, from 35 to 40 feet in circumference, which have fallen from the cliff. These were hollowed into rooms about seven feet square, and openings cut in the rock for windows and doors. As megalithic tombs, large slabs supported on upright stones, or near by, it is probable that these little rooms were used as dwellings and not as burial places.

ODDITIES OF GREAT ARTISTS.

Making Pictures on Bedclothes and Tablecloths Among Their Freaks.

Like many other great artists, Paul Veronese had his eccentric moods and peculiar habits. He was the last of the great Venetian painters, confining his work almost entirely, as many of the old masters did, to religious subjects. His most celebrated work, "The Marriage Feast at Cana of Galilee," now hangs in the Louvre in Paris. He was not intended for an artist, but a sculptor, which profession his father followed. His uncle, however, taught him painting, and at 27 years of age he was living at Venice, both famous and wealthy. Though 50 years the junior of Titian, who was the then famous painter of the time, he was held in equal admiration. Paul adopted the name Veronese after the city where he was born—Verona.

Once he was making a long visit to friends in their beautiful country villa, where he assumed great liberties, claiming among other things absolute possession of his bedroom, which he did not allow even the maidservant to enter. He made the bed himself, swept the room and put the rubbish outside the door for her to remove. He slipped away, too, without bidding farewell to his host or hostess. On entering the room afterward the servant found the sheets missing and told her mistress that the guest must have stolen them. After a careful search a roll was found in the corner, which proved to be a magnificent picture of "Alexander in the Tent of Darius" painted on the various sheets of the bed, which the artist had worked upon to reward his friends for their kind attentions. To keep his secret he had pretended to take care of his room, and to avoid their thanks he had taken "French leave."

Meissonier had become celebrated and was beginning to make money when he was invited to dine with a Parisian banker, who was wealthy, fond of posing as a patron of art, and who was rather penurious. Once upon breakfasting with him Meissonier was impressed with the fitness of the texture of the tablecloth.

"One could really draw upon it," he said smilingly, and producing a pencil he made upon the snowy surface a wonderful sketch of a man's head. The banker, delighted, had the head cut out at once, framed and glazed to preserve it.

A few weeks afterward Meissonier was again breakfasting with the same friend, who had placed by the plate of his guest crayons, a pen-knife, india rubber and brushes. While the other guests were enjoying their coffee and cigarettes the happy host saw his artist friend hard at work upon the tablecloth, this time producing a small but perfect full length picture of a mediaeval halberdier. The guests dispersed and the host with them. Soon he returned to secure his treasure, but Meissonier had used the knife to good purpose and cut off the corner of the tablecloth containing the picture. The host felt the rebuke most keenly, but dared not say a word.—Philadelphia Press.

Regulations and bylaws of all sorts appear to add a zest to German existence. If there is a bridge or toll-gate, the notices there posted state that the officials in charge will not have to pay anything when they go across. I have seen a bridge with a special tariff for each animal—so much for a horse to cross, so much for a goose or turkey! Level crossings on the railways are very common, but not very dangerous, owing to the pace of the foreign train. However, when an official is kept all day to let down the barrier and keep people back, it is also thought necessary to put up an enormous cast iron notice requesting the public to "halt at the shut barrier."

It is difficult to pass such a combination of obstruction, but one can do so by jumping over the barrier—a feat which causes as much surprise as if one were to walk on one's head in England. Not much is expected of the German traveler in the way of agility. He is warned in the trams that he "jumps off and on at his own peril." Another characteristic notice which they contain is the request "not to spit, out of consideration for fellow travelers."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Electrical Treatment

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

210 Cowan Ave., Toronto.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment. When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the nape of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

Uncle Tobias' Case Was Different.

"Twenty-five years ago," said the man in the mackintosh, "my Uncle Tobias, down in Macoupin county, made a vow he wouldn't cut his hair until General John T. Hinkley was elected governor of Illinois. He has kept it faithfully all these years, and he's a sight. I don't suppose you've ever seen a man that's a match for him in the matter of hair."

"I've seen plenty of downy men in my time," said the man with the goggles on. "There was a fellow named Howland over in Missouri that vowed he wouldn't shave or cut his hair till John C. Fremont was elected president. He's alive yet and going around with hair and beard more than two feet long. Then there was—"

"I knew a man named Haight, down somewhere in Illinois," broke in the man in the mackintosh, "who made a vow of the same kind. When I saw him last, he had at least a peck of hair on his head. Over in Indiana—"

"I was well acquainted with a fellow of the name of Grimes, down in La Salle county," interrupted the man who had his foot on the table, "that registered on his face in 1860 he wouldn't cut his hair till Elizabeth C. Stanton was elected president of the United States. He has a tangle on his head now that would fill a half bushel basket."

"You mean well, gentlemen," said the first speaker, "but none of those fellows you have mentioned can trot in the same class as my Uncle Tobias."

"I suppose his hair is about four feet long."

"That doesn't begin to describe him."

"Five feet?"

"You'll have to come again."

"Well, six feet, then. I've heard of one or two men with hair as long as that."

"You don't come anywhere near it."

"Confound it!" exclaimed the man in the baggy trousers, "how much hair has he got on his head anyhow?"

"Gentlemen," replied the man in the mackintosh, edging toward the door, "he's as bald as a glass marble."—Chicago Tribune.

If We Only Could See.

Our best acquaintance with the wonders of the visible universe must always be held provisional. The organ wherewith we are aware of it is an imperfect one, insensible to the colors beyond the red and the violet which certain insects appear to perceive. Light itself is nothing but a vibration of what we call, without understanding it, the ether, and sight is a sense really derived and of very feeble nature. It is possible that only a slight exaltation of the power of the optic nerve would present the picture of the stars sky to us in a very different aspect.

To our vision the waste of space appears ascending, much as the Pacific ocean seems far too large for its archipelagoes. The boundless vault looks as though wasted in containing all such enormous intervals the tiny specks that are its worlds and suns. Would it wear anything like as open an aspect if we had better or different eyes? To see the stars at all it is necessary to wait for the darkness of night. To be aware of those crimson flames of glory streaming into space from the sun we have to borrow the help of the moon's interposed disk.

Since all heavenly bodies exercise an influence, gravitating and otherwise, upon all other bodies, it is conceivable that a kind of vision may hereafter exist to which their mutual contact and interaction would be perceptible. The fact which is not of the nature to reduce upon our retina or to project upon them those light waves of which alone our light sense can take any cognizance. The fact which dimly perceives a star through the water composed of oxygen and hydrogen is not in a much worse position for reliable astronomical observations than man, with his limited visual spectrum, at the bottom of his ocean of oxygen, nitrogen, and the new gas.—Sir Edwin Arnold in North American Review.

Indian Bargains.

Indian travel is full of surprises, pleasant and otherwise. A gentleman, wishing to purchase some of the beautiful cashmere shawls which are made not far from Delhi, went to one of the largest establishments in the city. The merchant showed him a book in which were written the recommendations of his goods by General Grant and his son as well as by many others.

Among the recommendations was this one in German: "I have bought shawls of this man and think I got them cheap, but do not offer him a third of what he asks."

The gentleman selected two very beautiful shawls and asked the price. The merchant, after a little consultation with his clerks, asked a shawl to your party. I sell you very, very cheap. You may have these beautiful shawls for 1,400 rupees."

"Absurd! Let us go!" said the gentleman, having in mind the German's advice, and he started for the door.

"Don't go," said the merchant. "Make me an offer."

"I will give you 400 rupees for both shawls."

To his astonishment, the merchant replied: "Take them. I will send them to your hotel."

At Jalpur the same traveler lodged in a hotel conducted by a native, but owned by the rajah. He found the following amusing notices posted in various places: "If visitors are not satisfied with the food or cooking, they can depart from the hall what they consider fair."

"Guests are requested not to strike the servants."

"Guests wishing tea are requested to give a fly's notice and name how much they require."—Youth's Companion.

Miss Olga Nethercole is one of the English women who believes in high thinking and simple dressing, for off the stage her gowns are almost Puritanical in their soberness of color and plainness of fashion. They are modestly trimmed with lace, and, astonishing to relate to those women who have taken admiring note of her slender waist, straight back and well defined curve, she wears no corset.

A couplet which that button in front is the nearest approach to that bulwark of the French dressmaker. Miss Nethercole thinks the corset is ungraceful, injurious and not quite neat, since her belief is that every article of one's underwear should pay a weekly visit to the washbowl. Indeed her lingerie, if one can call it by that name, can easily be packed in a handkerchief box, for it is woven of silk and wool, a beautiful fabric, warm, fine and soft, leaving her body free for active movement. Miss Nethercole is a tremendous worker in and out of the theater, as much manager as actress, and her capacity for the daily achievement of her really tremendous labors she attributes to her sensible dressing. She fully recognizes that pot-pourris are part of a woman's life, unpleasant, yet impossible to avoid. Her effort is to mitigate their weight and bulk as far

TEN YEARS FOR FORGERY

THE PUNISHMENT METED WINTARD FOR FORGING POST-OFFICE ORDERS.

He Began the Scheme on a Small Scale and Then Became Bolder—Says He Lost Heavily on the Race, Special to the Times.

TORONTO, June 5.—A man now under arrest at Ottawa in connection with the post office order swindles upon A. F. Webster and the Imperial Bank in this city has given the name of F. J. Wintard, and is a tall, handsome young Englishman. He has thrown up the sponge and has furnished the post office authorities with a full account of his operations. It appears that he has been floating about Toronto lately and was a frequent attendant at the Woodbine races, where, according to his own story, he lost heavily, and was changing the orders.

His work at the capital. After the successful issue of his Brampton scheme he went down to the Capital, where he promptly embarked in further operations of a similar nature. He lodged at the Pacific Hotel. He purchased six new orders, all for trifling amounts, and called them to $100, making them payable to the Bank of Montreal. Five of these he sent to the bank at Montreal, asking that the drafts be sent in return. This request the bank refused, whereupon he wrote again, asking for letters of credit, and was again disappointed.

As a complete kit. In the face of these reverses Wintard grew cautious, and again altered the orders, making them payable to different persons. Two of the five he sent to the Imperial Bank here, a step which eventually led to his apprehension. He was found in possession of a complete kit for creating writing and changing the orders.

FIVE YEARS IN KINGTON.

OTTAWA, June 5.—F. J. Wintard, who was arrested here yesterday for raising post office orders, was arraigned this morning in the police court for forgery. He pleaded guilty on two charges and was sentenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Mr. J. Q. C., who represented the Crown, said the forgeries were very cleverly done.

"Not at all," said Wintard. "Any man of ordinary intelligence could do the same thing in five minutes with very little care."

JUMPED THE TRACK.

A West Bound Erie Freight Train—One Brake-man Injured.

MIDDLETON, N.Y., June 5.—A west bound Erie freight train at Horse Shoe Curve, Otterville, last night, from this city, running at the rate of thirty miles an hour, in the same instant an east-bound freight struck it. Twenty-five cars were immediately piled one upon another, blocking both tracks. One brakeman was seriously injured.

WILL LOSE HIS FEET.

Walter Higgins Meets With a Frightful Accident—A Leg Broken.

Special to the Times. TORONTO, June 5.—Walter Higgins, 21 Garden avenue, was the victim of a trolley accident last night which will deprive him of both feet. He was at the corner of Queen and Brookfield streets on his way home and, intending to board a west bound car, he gave a sign to the motorman to stop. Without waiting for the car to come to a stand still he jumped on the side of the trailer, his feet slipped from the step, and he was hurled to the ground, where he was mangled. The right leg was also broken below the knee. He was removed in the ambulance to the General Hospital. Higgins is 27 years old and has a wife and two children.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

Weak, Tired, Nervous
Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realized more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier." Mrs. C. Choucri, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time what he mixed with his paints, made the laconic reply, "brains." It is this gray matter located in the upper story of man that moves the world. In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co., Toronto, for the invention of the transpos-ing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of earnest thought before it was brought to perfection. To day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental interest. It is not something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this invention one can now accomplish that which was long desired by practical men, viz: the adjustability of pitch, especially when the adoption of the French pitch scale may be played on the transposing piano in the scale of key of "C" and its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the 1st of Jan. Heintzman & Co. have placed out of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser Mr. H.
B. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

SPRINGVILLE FIRE SWEEP.

A Fire of Supposed Inediacary Origin Wipes Out the Business Portion.

The pretty little settlement of Spring-ville, situated about 7 miles southwest of Peterborough, was almost totally destruced by fire yesterday morning. The business portion, consisting of a hotel, post office and general store, blacksmith shop, and the drill shed of the Springfield Infantry were entirely swept away. The inhabitants of the little hamlet have no place where they can purchase provisions nearer than Peterborough.

Between three and four o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the stables in the rear of Thomas Smith's general store.
The latter is also postmaster and had living rooms over the store. They were awakened to find their sleeping rooms full of smoke, and barely escaped with nothing but their night clothes.

East of Smith's store was a blacksmith shop, also owned by Smith, and adjoining this building was the drill shed of the Springfield Infantry. The flames leaped to these and they were entirely consumed before anything could be saved. A brick dwelling east of the drill shed, owned and occupied by Mrs. McCannan caught next,
and in a few minutes was entirely gutted.
The occupants barely escaped with only a few articles picked up in their hurried exit.

The flames then spread westward and were soon devouring the Temperance House owned by Mr. John Irwin. This and all its contents were consumed, but the sheds in the rear were saved by heroic work.

Thomas Smith places his loss at $400;
Mr. Irwin lost $100, insured for $50.
The other losses could not be ascertained
but the whole will probably total $5,000.
All the arms and accoutrements of the company were in the drill shed, and these with two binders, owned by William Lang and William Clark were consumed.

This is the fifth fire within two years in Springville, and the origin of all these has been a mystery. Circumstances point to this fire as an incendiary, and one of the parties burned out states in no uncertain terms, that the fire was started for an ulterior purpose, and that he can place his finger on the person who touched the match.

A Times' representative drove to Spring-ville last night. A group of residents were gathered around the still smoking ruins and discussing the incident. The place presented a forlorn appearance.

It was learned from one of the parties who was burned out, that the insurance company's agent had been made acquainted with the circumstances and regard them as suspicious that he promised to send a detective to Springville next week to ferret out the matter.

Try that fruit vinegar for salads and table use. Ahead of any other. J. B. Oke & Co. have it.

DEFEAT AND VICTORY.

Athletics Won at Beaverton and Lost At Orillia.

A fair crowd attended the lacrosse match at Orillia yesterday afternoon between a team of the Peterborough Athletics and the Orillia stick handlers. The game was very rough and some of the Athletics received severe cuts. The game resulted in 6 goals to 2 in favor of Orillia. One goal was disputed.

AT BEAVERTON.

The Junior Athletics at Beaverton put up a splendid game and easily won from the Beavertons by 4 to 2. The home team made a very creditable showing.

Yesterday morning in the town of Burlington, North Carolina, Mr. H. S.
Peterson, Peterborough, was wedded to Miss Kate L. Hayes, of that town, and only daughter of the late Jas. J. Hayes.
The ceremony took place at the bride's residence and was performed by Rev. M.
M. Shields, pastor of the Presbyterian church. After an extended honeymoon trip through the southern states, Mr.
and Mrs. Peterson will domicile themselves in Peterborough. The Times extends congratulations.

THE ORILLIA EXCURSION.

About 250 Take Advantage of the Cheap Excursion Rates.

The first joint excursion under the auspices of branches 21 and 31 E. B. A. of Peterborough and Lindsay took place to the charmingly situated little town of Orillia yesterday. Although about 500 pleasure seekers were expected to take advantage of the exceptionally cheap rates, only about 250 all told, turned out, the majority from Lindsay. This was no doubt the result of the lowing aspect of the heavens in the early morning. Had it been bright and warm the crowd would have, in all probability, reached the maximum number anticipated by the society. The weather, however, cleared at 3.30 in the afternoon, and the few who made the trip to Geneva Park in the comfortable and well appointed Lindsay Longford enjoyed an exceedingly pleasant little trip. Geneva Park is about seven miles across Lake Cochichewick from Orillia, charmingly situated amid almost unparalleled lake and wooded scenery in Ontario. Every facility is afforded at this lovely spot for enjoyment, and to add to the pleasure of the day string music was present to accommodate lovers of the light fantastic.

bananas and other fruits is at J. B. Oke &

THE OLYMPIC'S DAY OFF.

THE FAMOUS CLUB'S ANNUAL EX-CURSION AND OUTING.

Idyl Wyld the Scene of a Festive Gathering
—A Day of Pleasure and Recreation—Business and Dull Cars Thrown to the Winds for the Homes.

After dinner had been carefully attended
to, the party spent a pleasant hour resting
in the cool shade of the beautiful trees
surrounding the hotel, lounging in hammock and chair, smoking fragrant cigars
and telling stories of those good old days
when dressed in shirt waist and knickerbockers, they had been taken to picnics by fond parents. It was an hour of happy reminiscences, when the stern man of business, under the softening influence of nature, relaxed into human shape in his face, and became a child once more,
with a child's tenderness and all its im-
pressionableness.

When a had become rested the sports began. Starter Sam Ray announced that all was in readiness, and the many valuable prizes having been removed from the steamer's combination safe, they were spread out on the lawn. Under the gaze
of Billy Lech, Carole LeBrun, Junior
Beattie Miller and Catcher of Phizzes, R. M.
Roy, who were all armed with ice picks,
the contestants were allowed to have a glance at them as a sort of incentive to greater efforts in the race. The following is the list of events:

BILL OF FARE.

1. Football match. Refreshments
2. 500 yard race, married men with out families. Cradle
3. 500 yards race, single men. Diploma
4. 100 yard race. Chaplains. Pocket flask
5. 10 mile race. Heel and toe for guests
6. Smoking race. Match safe
7. Race for staff. 3 months' pass over
8. Race for duds. Walking stick with
9. Race for baldheads. Bottle of Hair
10. Race for good looks. Restorer
11. Spider race. By the

13. Foot race. An unlucky number 14. Set of lancers. By the
15. Waltz. By the
16. Descriptive entertainment. Regent
17. Discourse on sewerage. By one of 18. Cake walk. Our leading city fathers 19. Baby show. Open to all babies under sixty Starter, Sam Ray.

Marquis of Queensbury Rules to govern all
the cake walk.

The starter announced a slight change
in the program to the effect that he had found advisable to have the race for baldheads governed by the Home Rule, as the contestants were more used to than the Marquis of Queensbury approval.

A DEPLORABLE INCIDENT.

Just before the smoking race was to be started, a most deplorable incident occurred. It appears that Peter Henry who was first on the entry list had been seen to approach the judges and leading them aside had offered them great induc-
ments if they would let him win the race. Mr.
Henry denied the charge and on being cornered the informant, who was also a contestant, admitted that he had made up
the whole story out of whole cloth in order to have Mr. Henry ruled out.

It would take too much space to describe the intense excitement that prevailed
while the various races were being run.
Hat pools were numerous and in most cases the favorites won. The winners, radiant and happy, were presented with the prizes by Orator Jones, who used language so beautiful, so transcendental and poetical that many of the members involuntarily shed tears and had to seek the pleasure of the hotel to quench their emotion.

But all things, good, bad and indifferent
must come to an end, and the roasts rays
of when as they kissed farewell to the clouds, the tree tops and iridescent waters
of the river, reminded the party that the time for returning home was near at hand.
He had been a pleasant day, full of happiness, and fraught with nothing but merit, good spirits and wholesome friendly intercourse. In the cool of the evening the steamer deck was again
invaded by the party, and as the moon
mounted the heavens to reign in the firmament until old Sol once more appeared,
the homeward journey was begun. It was a pleasant trip, the journey back on the silent waters full of reflected stars, and many adjudged it by no means the least pleasant feature of the day. At 10 o'clock the annual trip of the Olympic Orchestra.

INNS AND OUTS.

The 5th Battalion "Picton" a good place
for their annual excursion.

Oscar Wilde's insanity turns out to be liver complaint, or some other internal disorder, consequent upon his aversion to hard work.

Mr. Davis' motion to extend the franchise to women has been defeated in the House of Commons by 105 to 47. Take the vote on bloomers, and 10 to 1, the figures would be reversed.

The ministerial association has fought against Sunday street cars, Sunday barbers shops, Sunday cigar sales and other Sunday financial transactions, but the Methodist Conference at Hamilton won't go back on Sunday fees at Grimsby Park. It may be a difference whose or is gored. "Consistency thou art a jewel."

of rain having retarded its growth. Occasionally heavy showers will be of avail all other crops, but not to the extent of producing a plentiful supply.

A party down east was blessed with twins—both boys. He christened them Peter and Repender. Another blessing of a like nature occurred a year ago—both girls—and the happy father called them Kate and Duplication. But the latest birth of twins has been a puzzle to him for some time—as one was a boy and the other a girl. However, the difficulty has been gotten over by calling the boy Max and the girl Cézanne.

Idyl Wyld, that most beautiful of summer resorts, was reached before the noon hour, and after the party had tumbled ashore they proceeded to the hospitable botel, where they were met by the able and efficient management of Mr. A. B. Spelman. This genial gentleman knew that the Olympic orchestra was coming, and he set out to give them a substantial welcome in the shape of a good dinner. That he succeeded will ever be testified to by the hungry gathering that sat down to one of the most elaborate collations ever spread at a summer resort, the wine is may.

Miss host Spelman's welcome was a royal one indeed. Everything needed to refresh the inner man or in any way add to the comfort and enjoyment of his numerous guests was forth coming. The service was excellent, the hospitality delightful, and the guests—well, they will ever remember Mr.
Spelman as a genial, jolly and thoughtful host.

A CARNIVAL OF SPORT.

After dinner had been carefully attended
to, the party spent a pleasant hour resting
in the cool shade of the beautiful trees
surrounding the hotel, lounging in hammock and chair, smoking fragrant cigars
and telling stories of those good old days
when dressed in shirt waist and knickerbockers, they had been taken to picnics by fond parents. It was an hour of happy reminiscences, when the stern man of
business, under the softening influence of
nature, relaxed into human shape in his face, and became a child once more,
with a child's tenderness and all its im-
pressionableness.

When a had become rested the sports began. Starter Sam Ray announced that all was in readiness, and the many valuable prizes having been removed from the steamer's combination safe, they were spread out on the lawn. Under the gaze
of Billy Lech, Carole LeBrun, Junior
Beattie Miller and Catcher of Phizzes, R. M.
Roy, who were all armed with ice picks,
the contestants were allowed to have a glance at them as a sort of incentive to greater efforts in the race. The following is the list of events:

Starter, Sam Ray.

Marquis of Queensbury Rules to govern all
the cake walk.

The starter announced a slight change
in the program to the effect that he had found advisable to have the race for baldheads governed by the Home Rule, as
the contestants were more used to
than the Marquis of Queensbury approval.

A DEPLORABLE INCIDENT.

Just before the smoking race was to be started, a most deplorable incident occurred. It appears that Peter Henry
who was first on the entry list had been seen to approach the judges and leading
them aside had offered them great induc-
ments if they would let him win the race. Mr.
Henry denied the charge and on being cornered the informant, who was also a contestant, admitted that he had made up
the whole story out of whole cloth in order to have Mr. Henry ruled out.

It would take too much space to describe
the intense excitement that prevailed
while the various races were being run.
Hat pools were numerous and in most cases the favorites won. The winners,
radiant and happy, were presented with
the prizes by Orator Jones, who used language so beautiful, so transcendental and poetical that many of the members involuntarily shed tears and had to seek the pleasure of the hotel to quench their emotion.

But all things, good, bad and indifferent
must come to an end, and the roasts rays
of when as they kissed farewell to the
clouds, the tree tops and iridescent waters
of the river, reminded the party that the
time for returning home was near at hand.
He had been a pleasant day, full of happiness, and fraught with nothing but merit, good spirits and wholesome friendly intercourse. In the cool of the evening the steamer deck was again
invaded by the party, and as the moon
mounted the heavens to reign in the firmament until old Sol once more appeared,
the homeward journey was begun. It was
a pleasant trip, the journey back on the silent waters full of reflected stars, and
many adjudged it by no means the least pleasant feature of the day. At 10 o'clock
the annual trip of the Olympic Orchestra.

INNS AND OUTS.

The 5th Battalion "Picton" a good place
for their annual excursion.

Oscar Wilde's insanity turns out to be liver complaint, or some other internal disorder, consequent upon his aversion to
hard work.

Mr. Davis' motion to extend the franchise to women has been defeated in the House of Commons by 105 to 47. Take the vote on bloomers, and 10 to 1, the figures
would be reversed.

The ministerial association has fought
against Sunday street cars, Sunday barbers
shops, Sunday cigar sales and other Sunday financial transactions, but the Methodist Conference at Hamilton won't go back on Sunday fees at Grimsby Park. It may be a difference whose or is gored. "Consistency thou art a jewel."

IT MAY LEAD TO WAR.

THE SULTAN'S OBSTINACY MAY END IN COMPLICATIONS.

Mr. Oliver Mowat in England—The Hentley crew in Britain—Behring Sea Sealing—Coal Gas Explosion Aboard a Yacht.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 6.—The Porte has become involved in an additional diplomatic complication arising from the wounding of an officer of the French team by a Turkish passenger and the subsequent arrest of the Turk. A Turkish officer who was travelling on the steamer from Trebizond to Constantinople refused to pay the required sum from the transportation of excessive luggage. In the course of the ensuing encounter the Turk wounded one of the ship's officers with his sword. The Turkish officer was at once put under arrest and detained on board. After the arrival of the steamer at Constantinople the matter was reported to M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, who has demanded satisfaction from the Porte for the wounding of a French citizen.

COAL GAS EXPLOSION. LONDON, June 6.—An explosion of coal gas occurred today on the Italian Royal yacht Savona, now lying at Dartmouth. Three women without public recognition of the explosion. Duke of Genoa, who came to England on the yacht, was not aboard at the time of accident, having come to this city.

It is an imposing document of some 5,000 words and in substance makes 12 demands upon the Ottoman government in brief as follows:

1. The eventual reduction of the number of Vilayets.
2. Guarantees for the selection of Valis or governors.
3. Amnesty for Armenian political prisoners.
4. Return of Armenian exiles to their homes.
5. Final settlement for common law crimes.
6. The inspection of prisons.
7. The appointment of a high Commissioner to supervise the reforms.
8. Creation of a permanent Committee of control at Constantinople.
9. Indemnity to the Armenian and other victims of the recent massacres.
10. Regulation of religious conversions.
11. Maintenance of the Armenian rights and privileges.
12. Position of the Armenians in other Vilayets of Asiatic Turkey to be regulated on the same basis.

SIR OLIVER MOWAT. LONDON, June 6.—The Chronicle will tomorrow report the visit to this country of the Hon. Sir Oliver Mowat, Prime Minister and Attorney General of Ontario, ought not to pass without public recognition of the long and distinguished services in the cause of progress in one of the most enlightened sections of the empire.

THE HENTLEY CREW ARRIVE. SOUTHAMPTON, June 6.—On arriving to the harbour of the ship the Hentley crew promptly decided not to take the ship to Hentley tonight as has been intended. The crew will remain at the Windsor hotel over night and will go to Hentley in the morning.

BEHRING SEA SEALING. LONDON, June 6.—The bill to prohibit sealing in the Behring Sea and its vicinity during certain periods which Sir Edward Grey, parliamentary secretary to the foreign office, will introduce in the House of Commons on June 10th, stipulates for the renewal of the act of 1893 and covers the settlement with Russia in regard to sealing in the Western Pacific ocean.

ARE PANIC STRICKEN.

EUROPEANS IN DJEDDAH, ARABIA, TRYING TO ESCAPE FROM THE TOWN.

The Bedouins are in Arms and Causing all the Trouble—The Arrival of the British Fleet Anxiously Awaited.

Special to the Times. CONSTANTINOPLE, June 6.—News received here from Djeddah, Arabia, the seaport town of Mecca, where the consular officers of Great Britain, Russia and France were recently murdered, that a panic prevails there and that it is feared the Bedouins will attack the town. The latter are held responsible for the attack upon the Consuls, which resulted in the death of the British Vice-Consul, and a number of them were arrested in consequence. This has caused an angry feeling among the Bedouins, who demand their release and who threaten to use force if their demand is not complied with. The situation is so serious that the Europeans of Djeddah are hastily seeking refuge on board the merchant vessels in the harbor, taking with them all they possibly can of their belongings.

WAITING FOR THE BRITISH SHIPS. It is also stated in the advices from Djeddah that the arrival of the British Mediterranean squadron, numbering 17 warships of various classes, is anxiously expected, even by the Turkish authorities, as the garrison is very weak. In addition to the excitement caused among the Bedouins by the arrest of those supposed to have been connected with the assaults upon the foreign consuls, the Bedouins are distressed by the quarantine measures which the Turkish Government has been compelled to take at Mecca, at the instance of the powers, to prevent the introduction of cholera into northern ports by the return of infected pilgrims from Mecca.

SMITH AND BROOM. The Alleged Murderers of Old Mary Atkins are Committed for Trial.

Special to the Times. TORONTO, June 6.—The preliminary steps in the investigation of the charge against Frank Smith and William Broom of having murdered old Mary Atkins on the morning of May 20 were taken this morning in the Police Court. The prisoners were cleanly shaved and appeared quite unexcited.

Police Constable Philip Umbach and Sergeant Robinson repeated their evidence, and Dr. Primrose stated his opinion that death resulted from shock and exhaustion, resulting from the alleged struggle with Smith.

The magistrate committed both prisoners for trial next October.

Verence was shaken by violent shocks of earthquake early yesterday morning.

UNVEILED.

The Statue of Sir John A. Macdonald Exposed to View—People from all Over Canada Were Present to do Honor to the Dead Hero.

Special to the Times. MONTREAL, June 6.—The greatest popular demonstration which Montreal has seen for years took place today at the unveiling of the Sir John A. Macdonald statue this afternoon. It was the fourth anniversary of his death, and Liberals and Conservatives, irrespective of creed or nationality, came to Montreal from every part of the Dominion to honor the memory of the Grand Old Chief.

Fortunately the weather, though slightly showery, was much finer than expected, and as at one o'clock and two halves of Dominion square were crammed with people and when half an hour previously the military corps came to take up their places around the platform they had much trouble in getting through. The base of the statue was half buried in a heap of blood red roses and maple leaves emblematic of Sir John's leading characteristics, a Briton forever, but with an all absorbing devotion to his adopted country Canada.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S PRESENT. Very little after half past two the cavalry escorted the Governor-General to the square, and as his Excellency alighted from the carriage the crowd on and around the platform arose and sang the national anthem. The Roman Catholic clergy struck up "God Save the Queen" the thousands present uncovered their heads. Two thousand invitations had been issued for platforms and 1,376 had been accepted which was really more than the platform could accommodate. All the Dominion Ministers were there except Sir Charles H. Tupper. The leader of the Opposition, Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, was also absent. All the provincial Ministers were represented and all foreign powers by their consuls. The Roman Catholic clergy attended in their full canonicals.

THE UNVEILING AND SPEECHES. Sir Donald A. Smith made a short opening address, which was responded to by Lord Aberdeen, who unveiled the monument while the bands played and the crowd sang "Rule Britannia." Other speakers were Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Finance, Premier Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Adolphe Caron, P.M.G.; Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, Lieutenant-Governor, Quebec, and Dr. Montague, Secretary of State.

Hon. Chauncey M. Depew sent the following letter of regret: "I deeply regret that I am unable to be present at the unveiling of the memorial to the late Sir John A. Macdonald. I appreciate the compliment and honor your invitation conveys and am more sorry that I cannot, by attendance in person, show my respect for the distinguished statesman of Canada in whose memory this statue is erected."

ROSS IN HOT WATER.

A SERIOUS KICK ON THE OTTAWA SEPARATE SCHOOL COMMISSION.

Mr. Ross Remains Firm—The Archbishop of Ottawa Resents the Alleged Insult to the Christian Brother—Two of the Commissioners Resign.

TORONTO, June 6.—OTTING in obedience to an order from the Archbishop of Ottawa, Rev. Father Foley, of Parrelton, has resigned from the Ottawa Separate School Commission now in Ottawa for the purpose of investigating the matter.

Mr. Cheney, the lay delegate, followed suit, leaving Wm. Scott, of Toronto, alone in his glory. The matter has raised quite a rumour in Ottawa, and Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, is naturally worried over a matter that is likely to cause him no small amount of trouble.

Mr. Ross, when interviewed on the subject this morning, said that the Government had appointed the commission at the request of the trustees and on the reports of School Inspector White, who advised them that too many text books were being used in the French schools.

WENT THE ARCHBISHOP OBJECTS. "The Government is anxious that the standing of the Separate Schools shall be maintained," said the Minister, "and we believe that the Catholic people and clergy are desirous of the same thing. Archbishop Duhame's difficulty is that he regards the appointment of the commission as a reflection on the Christian Brothers, who teach three schools. But it is not such thing. The Christian Brothers teach in Toronto and teach well. There is no reason why they should not do as well in Ottawa. Our only knowledge of the circumstances" is from official reports of the inspectors.

THE GOVERNMENT WON'T BE THWARTED. Regarding the instructions to the commission, these were simply to investigate the schools and report to the Government. "But the commission will go on," concluded the Minister. "I am not making any threats, but the Government does not intend to be turned aside from their purpose by the resignation of these gentlemen. No, I cannot tell you who will take their place. I have them in my mind, but their names must be first submitted to my colleagues."

SLAVES, POLES AND A BRASS BAND. They Attack Miners and Beat them Brutally With Crowbars.

Special to the Times. WHEELING, W. Va., June 6.—Shortly after 35 miners who returned to work in the Gaylord Coal works above Martin's Ferry, Ohio, last Monday, had gone in the bank yesterday, 200 Irish Slaves and Poles from Lillooille, Laurenton and other mining towns on the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad, having gathered previously and marched across the country headed by a brass band. One gang went into the mine and beat those at work, driving them out, while about 150 men formed a gang in front of the entrance as the mining miners ran out they struck them with clubs and crowbars and then threw the workmen over the bank. Half of them were injured seriously. Three are still missing. Seven of the assailants were captured by deputy sheriffs and are now in jail at Wheeling. Others walked home, while about 100 captured a C. & P. freight train and made the crew carry them to Portland Sheriff Darby, of Belmont county, has a force on guard.

CHINESE BLOWN TO ATOMS. In an Explosion of a Magazine in the Island of Formosa.

Special to the Times. HONG KONG, June 6.—Address received here from Taipeh, island of Formosa, announce that town to be still in a chaotic state. The native quarter of Taipeh has been burnt, and during the conflagration a magazine exploded and killed ninety Chinese.

WRECKED BY LIGHTNING.

EXTRAORDINARY BREAK OF THE FLUID AT DORVAL.

Several Miraculous Escapes—Every Room in the House Badly Wrecked and one side of it torn out Completely—The Occupants Badly Frightened.

Special to the Times. MONTREAL, June 6.—The Whitehead residence at Dorval was the scene of a remarkable occurrence this morning. Mr. E. J. Whitehead, who is retired to rest early in the evening and were fast asleep when the storm arose. Lightning flashed and the thunder roared while the rain fell in torrents until the Dorvalites grew fearful of the result. Suddenly Mr. Whitehead's house was struck by lightning and the inmates could but think that the building was coming to the ground and then with a moment's delay when Mr. Whitehead made a survey of the house a most extraordinary scene presented itself. Not one of the 7 inmates had received a scratch, though in the case of the servants the plaster and bricks had fallen in such quantity that they were completely buried.

but not injured. The house is composed of eight rooms, every one of which is completely wrecked, the lightning having paid a hasty and decidedly informal visit to each one. Every piece of iron, steel or brass from the roof to the roof was burned up until it was impossible to tell what the article was before its tangle with the flames from the lightning struck. In the drawers, handles of umbrellas, stoves, pipes, brass knobs on doors, kitchen utensils, nails in the walls, brass ornaments on the bedsteads on which people were lying, the steel blade in the knife, in Sir Whitehead's trousers pocket, the wire casting around bottles on the sideboard, the wire which the electric wires were hung by, every one of these things are burned up. They are unrecognizable. An immense brass piano lamp which stood in the parlor, now looks more like a rusty old cartwheel than anything else. The entire west end of the house was knocked out as though laborers had been at work for a week. Every ounce of plaster fell from the walls and ceiling, destroying the carpets and furniture badly that an entire new furnishing will be required. That no one was hurt seems a miracle from the lightning strike. Mr. Whitehead covering fell melting to the ground within a few feet of the baby's cot. All received a bad fright and the morning has been spent in clearing up the furniture from the debris. The loss will be very heavy.

A BIO FIGHT. The People of Florence Faint Stricken by an Earthquake.

Special to the Times. Florence, June 6.—Near 1.30 this morning there was a sharp earthquake shock here. It aroused almost everybody hastily from their beds, and as it was followed by a succession of other subterranean disturbances, shock after shock following in rapid succession, the people became terror stricken and rushed in terror to the streets where they remained until the morning greatly alarmed. Although it is not believed that a serious damage was done, the inhabitants of this city, not having recovered from the shock of the earthquake of Saturday, May 18, last, were with difficulty persuaded to return to their homes.

The greatest excitement prevailed in the streets shortly after the earthquake shock of this morning, whole families remaining huddled together, guarding their most valuable possessions, while they had carried with them in their flight from their homes. Many people fell on their knees in the middle of the streets and prayed, while others seemed too terrified to do anything but rush about and add to the feeling of panic which prevailed. The entire police force of the city was promptly turned out and the authorities did everything possible to allay alarm.

So far as known, the shocks were only severe enough to shake down movable articles from shelves and sideboards, etc., although there was considerable swaying of houses. In certain districts of the city the shocks seemed to have been more severely felt than in others.

DIED LIKE A SOLDIER. Cuban Insurgents Capture and Shoot a Spanish Captain.

Special to the Times. HAVANA, June 6.—A despatch received from Havana, Province of Sancti Spiritus, Cuba, announces the surrender to the Spanish authorities here of the well known insurgent leader, Fonseca Santisteban. Members of the insurgent band commanded by Macco have burned the village of Guisa. A captain of volunteers, named Jaime Torres, was captured by the insurgents and afterwards shot.

SUNDAY FEES AT GRIMSBY. They Will be Collected as Usual Now in the Stationing Committee.

Special to the Times. HAMILTON, June 6.—The Methodist Conference Committee called on Rev. Dr. Philip and presented a Conference resolution in reference to collection of fees at Grimsby Park on Sundays. Dr. Philip informed the committee that he collected on Sundays as usual in spite of the conference. The Conference Stationing Committee met from 9 o'clock last night to 5 this morning in a hot discussion over changes among the ministers. Rev. W. H. Harvey was called to Harrison by the committee sent him to Clifford, a much smaller church. This and similar actions raised quite a row. The session was a stormy one.

DIED IN "HEAVEN." One of Dr. Teed's "Angels" a Subject for the Coroner.

Special to the Times. CHICAGO, June 6.—Mrs. Amanda Taylor, thirty four years of age, while asleep in Dr. Teed's lake house, at Ninety-ninth and Oak streets, Washington Heights, died suddenly at three o'clock this morning.

Little can be learned of the circumstances of Mrs. Taylor's death, except what is given out by Dr. Teed himself, who claims to have had no contact with her. She was sleeping in what is known as the Cottage, a little building in the rear of the house, a private institution, which is used by a number of the female inmates as a dormitory.

New President of Bay of Quinte Conference. PETERBOROUGH, June 6.—The Rev. F. B. Stratton, chairman of the Bay of Quinte Conference, was elected president of the conference.

STRONG DRINK!

Its Terrible Effects

A Shattered Nervous System

Built Up and Strengthened

By Paine's Celery Compound

It is in the combined perfection of sensation, motion, intelligence and speech that man excels all created animals. The brain that grants grand central sensation, and perception, and the whole nervous system, are wonderfully made, and man's happiness and very life depend upon their condition of health.

The human brain and the nervous system, become impaired, shattered and broken down in various ways. Careless living, loose habits and over-indulgences, when persisted in, and continued for a time, tend to wreck and destroy the whole nervous system.

There is no form of disease that can more rapidly shatter the system, or more surely lead to death, than the use of strong drink. Its effects are felt in every nerve and tissue, and its poison can be traced in every drop of blood.

It will plant courage and hope in the hearts of many men who are broken down, and whose nervous systems are completely shattered, to learn that, with a firm determination to avoid strong drink, their bodies can be re-built, their nerves made strong, their blood purified, and life made happy and worth living. This grand work of re-creation can be accomplished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, nature's great life restorer. No medical agency in the world is so well adapted for the re-building of brain and body.

Mr. Samuel R. Guild of Ellershouse, Hants Co., N.S., writes as follows:—

"I wish to express my gratitude for the great good accomplished in my case by your Paine's Celery Compound. I had commenced using strong drink when quite young, with the result that my whole system was run down and shattered. I was under the care of several doctors, but they did not seem to understand my case, and could do nothing for me. I commenced using your Paine's Celery Compound, and it soon made me a new man. My nervous system is completely built up, my appetite is natural and healthy, and I feel better and stronger than ever before. Paine's Celery Compound has done these wonders for me, and I cannot thank you sufficiently."

HIDING FROM MA-IN-LAW. Young Lord Sholto Afraid to Face the Mother of His Music Hall Bride.

Special to the Times. SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Lord Sholto Douglas and his bride are hiding from Mrs. M. J. Addie, mother of Lady Sholto. When asked why her daughter left so suddenly, she replied: "Because Lord Sholto threatened to kill himself unless his wife abandoned this man. Why, his threats were awful, and rather than have him do anything rash, I presume Lady Douglas made up her mind to do as he wished."

A TILBURY SUICIDE. James Burns, a Teamster, Takes His Own Life—An Inquest Called.

Special to the Times. TILBURY, Ont., June 6.—James Burns, a teamster, in the employ of C. F. Smith, Quinn, about four miles from here, was found in an outhouse this morning with his throat cut from ear to ear. It is evidently a case of suicide. He leaves a widow and three children. A REMARKABLE YOUTH. Beloit Workman of Lawless Worked a Most Game in Toronto.

Special to the Times. NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 6.—Beloit Workman is a Lawless, N.Y., youth, aged 15 years. On May 20 he cleaned out the wardrobe of the Rev. Robert Bussey, who boarded with the family, and decamped for Toronto. He collected rent from a man for a house his father owned.

He visited the family of Daniel Forty in Toronto, and succeeded in obtaining from Forty out of a cheque for $500, which had been sent her during her husband's absence. He had the cheque placed to his credit in the Bank of Commerce, representing himself as Mrs. Forty's son, and forging her name. He took $50 and decamped for Reading, Pa., where he spent the money. He sent word to the bank for $150 to be forwarded by American Express. When he landed in Lawless on Monday he was arrested and sent to the State industrial school at Rochester.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time what he mixed with his paints, made the laconic reply, "brains." It is this gray matter located in the upper story of man that moves the world. It is the musical world we have to thank Helmsman & Co., Toronto, for the invention of the transposing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of earnest thought before it was brought to perfection. To-day, however, the transposing piano is so thoroughly practical. With this invention one can now accomplish that which has long been desired by practical men, viz: the adjustability of pitch, especially since the adoption of the French pitch. Music may be played on the transposing piano in the scale of "C" and (its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the 1st of Jan. Helmsman & Co. have placed 60 of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

TWO JUNE WEDDINGS.

The Smith-Downer and Barnard-Rogers Nuptials.

A quiet but most pleasing wedding ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock Wednesday night by Rev. J. J. Rae, joining together in the holy bonds of matrimony Councillor J. H. Smith and Miss Agnes D. Downer. The ceremony took place at the residence of Mrs. Foster, sister of the bride, Murray street, in the presence of immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was prettily gowned in a dress of Swiss muslin, trimmed with lace, and carrying a bouquet of beautiful white roses, was attended by Miss Eva Stevens, attired in a beautiful bridesmaid's costume of silver gray cashmere, trimmed with silk and seal, and carrying a bouquet of lovely pink roses. The pretty little maids of honor were Miss Edith Downer, of Toronto and Miss Alfreda Melrose, of Pittsford, Mass. They were pretty dressed of white muslin and carried pink and white roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Will Blitcher, of Peterborough.

The bride and groom are well known and very popular young people of Peterborough. The bride, who, for a number of years has held the position of saleslady in the establishment of R. Neill, has a wide circle of friends with whom she is deservedly popular. The groom is a highly respected citizen of Ashburnham and for two years has sat on the council of the suburban village. He is well liked and respected by a host of warm friends both in Ashburnham and Peterborough.

The newly wedded pair were the recipients of numerous handsome presents among which was a beautiful banquet presented to the bride by the employees of the establishment in which she recently held a position, and a handsome silver tea service to the groom from his old associates and fellow employees.

After partaking of a wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. Smith left on the 9 o'clock G. T. R. for Toronto and points west. A large number of their friends showed congratulations and well wishes upon them at the depot. Upon their return they will take up housekeeping at 182 Hunter street.

BARNARD ROGERS.

At 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in St. Luke's church a very pretty wedding was solemnized. It was the occasion of the nuptials of Mr. Geo. Henry Barnard, barrister, Victoria, British Columbia, and son of Mr. F. J. Barnard, ex-M.P. for Yale, and Miss Ethel Barnard Rogers, daughter of Mr. Lieut.-Colonel H. C. Rogers, postmaster. The wedding was one of the prettiest and most fashionable affairs ever held in Ashburnham for some time. The ceremony took place at nine o'clock in the presence of relatives and friends of the bride and groom and was performed by the Rev. H. Syme, M.A., assisted by the curate, Rev. C. W. Hedley, B.A. The bride was handsomely attired in a dress of white duchess satin, worn the conventional bloomers and carried a pretty bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Rogers, sister of the bride, Miss Burritt, of Toronto, and Miss Annie Rogers, of Hamilton. The groom was dressed in a white crepon trimmed with yellow ribbon and white chiffon, and each of the young ladies carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Mrs. Rogers, mother of the bride, wore a dress of black silk trimmed with lace and pink chiffon, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids wore a dress of white chiffon with pink flowers, and the groom presented each with a pearl pin. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. D. Archibald, of Hamilton, who escorted the groom, Mr. Guy and David Rogers, brothers of the bride; Percy Rogers, Grafton, Arthur and Charles Caddy, cousins of the bride, and Fred Leferre carried out the duties of ushers. Among those in attendance at the wedding were Mr. Frank S. Barnard, M.P. for Carleton Place, a brother of the groom, and Mr. J. A. M. P. for Yale, Kamloops, brother-in-law, who came from Ottawa to attend the ceremony. The groom, Mr. Barnard, is a member of one of the leading families of British Columbia and is well known in the Pacific province. Miss Rogers has been a popular member of Peterborough society and her removal to the west will create many regrets and Victoria social circles is securing a gifted young lady to preside over one of the Columbia capital's prominent homes.

From the church the bridal party were driven to the residence of Col. Rogers, Ashburnham, where the wedding breakfast was partaken of. The newly wedded pair left on the 11:45 C.P.R. train for Newport. They will take up their home in Victoria, B.C., after a short visit in Peterborough.

WAS SCOLLIE MURDERED?

PROVINCIAL DETECTIVES IN PETERBOROUGH INVESTIGATING THE CASE

The Crown's Theory—David Scollie said to Have Had His Head Sawed Off—Suspicious as the Inquest—The Deceased who was Buried to Death in February, 1894, Probably Met with Foul Play.

Murder will be the charge upon which one man, and probably two men, will be arrested within the next week or as soon as the warrants for their arrest can be served by the officers of the law. The warrants have to have been sworn out on Saturday, but owing to some hitch the proceeding was postponed until this week possibly today. The information charging murder has already been laid before County Magistrate Edmondson, and the warrants will be issued by him.

Provincial Detective Murray and two other detectives, whose names are not known, have been in Peterborough for over a week investigating the case. As the result of these investigations the warrants will be served on the man or men who are suspected. It will be but a verification of the old saw "murder will out," for the man or men who murdered the deceased have slumbered in the grave for over a year. If the suspected individuals are captured and brought before a tribunal, the trial will be one of the most sensational in the criminal annals of Ontario and second only to that of the recent Hyams case, which it will resemble in many essential points.

THE SUPPOSED VICTIM.

Shortly after midnight on the morning of Friday, February 23, 1894, the residence of Thomas Gray, situated about one mile west of Downer's Corner, in Otonabee, was discovered to be in flames. One of the children in the house was awakened by the smell of smoke and she immediately aroused her mother, Mr. David Scollie, who was living at the house with the Gray's. The fire was not extinguished and his charred remains were recovered at daybreak burned almost beyond recognition.

SUSPICIONS AROUSED.

Neighborhood gossip, immediately after the fire, gave rise to grave suspicions. It was broadly hinted that Mr. Scollie's death was not purely accidental, and this coupled with the fact that the deceased was a man, led to the widest rumors. Neighbors of the Gray's and friends of the dead man talked freely of his death, and this was not without cause. The circumstances of Scollie's living with the Gray's was nothing unusual in itself, but the conditions upon which he lived, and the peculiarly significant fuel for suspicion.

It appeared that six years previous to the fatal night, Mr. Scollie had transferred to the Gray's property on which Gray was living, the condition of the transfer being that Gray was to board, clothe and house Scollie until he died, and then to pay to Scollie's estate the sum of $300 insurance on the house and contents. These facts becoming known, the coroner held an inquest and the evidence proved the above to be true.

THE VERDICT.

After a short deliberation the jury returned the following verdict: That the said David Scollie came to his death on Friday morning, about 2:30 o'clock, in the town of Otonabee, Ontario, Canada, while asleep in the house occupied by himself and Mrs. Thomas Gray and family; and that the cause of the fire in the said house is as unknown as, and that, to the best of our belief, his death was purely accidental.

GRAY MOVES AWAY.

After the inquest the affair, which had been the talk of the town, gradually subsided and as months rolled by, became forgotten by the majority of newspaper readers, although the awful tragedy has ever been the subject of talk among the neighbors. About four months after the occurrence Gray sold his property and moved away. This move on his part, gave rise to more talk among the neighbors, as far as can be learned, this suspicious talk reached the ears of the Attorney General's department and led to the recent visit of the Provincial Detectives.

THE DETECTIVES ON THE TRAIL.

For more than a week Detective Murray has been in Peterborough quietly pursuing investigations. The Times was aware of this a week ago, and has been on the alert for affairs to take such shape as would warrant the publication of the facts. Detective Murray has, it is understood, been closely questioning neighbors of Gray and other persons with whom he was in the habit of associating. What he and his assistants learned, is known only to the officials of the county, but sufficient has been gathered by the shrewd provincial detectives to take the step stated in the opening paragraphs.

THE BODY EXHUMED.

The body of David Scollie was exhumed one day last week. A post mortem examination was held upon it by three medical men. It is presumed that additional essential evidence to warrant the laying of the information, was the result of this examination. When the Crown was able to prove, THE TIMES does not know, but evidence of a startling nature must be in the possession of the Crown officers or they would not have a warrant issued for the arrest of Thomas Gray and another, whose name is unknown to THE TIMES, which will probably be done today or some time this week.

GRAY THE SUSPECT.

Thomas Gray, the suspect, is living in Ocala, Florida. Ocala is a town of about 5,000 inhabitants, and the center of the great phosphate mining country. In the land of flowers, of the orange and lemon, he has been eight months. We are informed, for the past eight months, Ocala is the county town of Marion County and the sheriff of the county whose name is Williams, has arrested many murderers. The proceedings in the case of Gray are not known, but it is probable that as soon as the warrant is issued, a telegram will be sent to the Sheriff of Marion county to arrest Gray and to hold him in custody until a provincial officer arrives.

THE CROWN'S THEORY.

If the suspicions of the Provincial detectives are well founded, the David Scollie case will be one of the most gruesome and horrible in detail in the annals of the country. The recent Hyams case, horrible though it was, will pale in comparison with it. The theory of the detectives as to how old David Scollie met his death has leaked out. If the theory is founded on facts, the human brain may well reel in horror that any human being could contemplate and execute a deed of such fiendish character.

It is said that the Crown has some highly sensational evidence in its possession, in connection with the alleged murder, and if the report be verified the crime promises to equal in gruesome horror any case in the annals of crime in Canada.

THE HEAD SAWED OFF.

According to the evidence referred to, it is said that the victim's head was sawed off the trunk with an ordinary backsaw, and that the operator was a woman.

It is further stated that there were grave irregularities at the inquest, that some of the jurors were temporarily incapacitated from bringing in an intelligent verdict.

WEDDING BELLS.

The Conway-Claringbold Nuptials in St. John's Tuesday.

The marriage of Mr. Wm. E. Conway, local manager of Grafton Co.'s store, and Miss Eliza Claringbold, daughter of Mr. H. P. Claringbold, of Sandhurst, was solemnized in St. John's early yesterday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, assisted by the Rev. C. B. Kenrick, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride wore a handsome gown of cream silk, the bodice being prettily trimmed with ribbons and the skirt plain. She carried a large and fragrant bouquet of roses and entered the church upon the arm of her father. The bridesmaid was Miss Eliza Claringbold and the maid of honor little Miss Daisy Mills, niece of the bride, while the latter's nephew, Master Bruce Mills was the page. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Richard Conway, of Dundas.

After the pretty ceremony the wedding party drove to the residence of Councillor Joseph Mills where the wedding breakfast was served. Mrs. Mills is a sister of the bride.

The newly wedded pair left on the 11:45 train on the Grand Trunk for a trip westward. Mr. and Mrs. Conway, who will reside at 358 Stewart street, are popular young people, who will be the recipients of the warmest wishes of a host of friends. The presents were very numerous and handsome, among the array being a silver tray from the firm with whom Mr. Conway is employed, and a valuable clock from his former fellow employees with Grafton & Co., at Dundas.

J. B. Oke & Co. have fresh strawberries and pine apples today.

ARE BAD PAY.

Methodist Ministers Owe the Book Room Thousands of Dollars.

At Tuesday's session of the Methodist Conference in Hamilton, several sensational incidents occurred. It was a day of sensations.

Rev. Dr. Briggs, of Toronto, book steward, fired a bomb by announcing that members of the conference were hundreds and thousands of dollars behind in their accounts with the book room. He intimated that unless some of them settled up right speedy action would have to be brought in the court.

Some of the ministers expressed the opinion that Dr. Briggs had no right to bring such a thing up at the conference.

Dr. Briggs replied by stating that a minister then on the floor of the House owed $400. He had been dunned for it and had written a reply stating that he would remember the account in his will.

NO VOTE ON MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

The conference got all tangled up over the Manitoba school question. Jonathan Ellis withdrew his one school and non-interference resolution and P. E. W. Moyer offered a resolution to the effect that no action be taken.

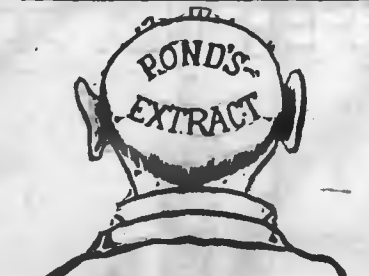

Rev. J. S. Ross moved in amendment to the effect that the Manitoba Public schools must be preserved in their integrity. Finally Mr. Ellis' original motion was restored, but no vote was reached.

TOLD DR. BURNS TO HOLD HIS TONGUE.

While the Woodstock church deficiency case was under discussion, Rev. Dr. Griffin told Rev. Dr. Burns to hold his tongue, and excitement followed to relieve which Dr. Griffin apologized.

SHAREHOLDERS MEETING OF THE TORONTO GENERAL TRUSTS COMPANY.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the shareholders of the Toronto General Trusts Company was held at its office, on the corner of Yonge and Colborne streets, Toronto, on Monday, the 27th day of May, 1895, at 12 o'clock noon, in the absence of Hon. Edward Blake, the President, Mr. John Hoskins, Q. C., L. L. D., Vice-President, took the chair, and amongst those present were: Hon. Sir Frank Smith, George Goodenham, George A. Cox, W. H. Beatty, B. Homer Dixon, T. Seith, and others. The report of the Managing Director of the Company, read the report of the Directors for the year ended 31st March, 1895, as follows:—

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.
The Directors of the Toronto General Trusts Company have pleasure in submitting to the shareholders their thirteenth annual report, with the usual statements showing the operations of the Company for the year ended 31st March, 1895, and its financial standing and condition at that date.

The number of estates, trusts, and other official positions assumed during the past twelve months was greater than in any previous year in the history of the Company, and the volume of work has of course been very largely increased. Owing, however, to the rearrangement of the office work at the beginning of the year, the business has been efficiently and promptly managed with only a trifling addition to the office staff.

The income derived from the various branches of the Company's business is fully set out in the profit and loss statement herewith submitted. It will be seen from that statement that the net earnings of the Company for the year ended 31st March, 1895, amounted to $24,575.21, after providing for all ascertained and estimated losses. Out of these earnings your Directors have declared one half yearly and two quarterly dividends, amounting in all to $24,575.21, being at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum on the paid up capital stock of the Company.

The reserve fund has been increased by the sum of $10,000, and now stands at a quarter of a million dollars. There has also been carried to contingent account the sum of $10,000, which has increased that fund to $45,575.20. In addition to these appropriations the sum of $5,375.21 has been carried forward to the credit of profit and loss account.

Your Directors have in the past adopted the policy of only calling up capital equivalent to the amount of reserve fund. In pursuance of this policy twenty-two and one half per cent. of the subscribed capital of one million dollars has already been paid up, amounting to $225,000. Seeing that $10,000 has now been added to the reserve, thus increasing that fund to $235,000, the Directors, to carry out the above policy, recommended to the shareholders to make a further call of two and one half per cent. on the subscribed capital. When this proposed call has been paid in, the capital stock, the reserve funds, and undivided profits of the Company, taken together, will amount to $1,385,000.71, most ample security to the public for the faithful performance of the Company's duties. The following figures show how this amount is made up:—

Subscribed capital, $1,000,000.
On which 25 per cent. will be paid up.....	$250,000 00
Reserve fund.....	$250,000 00
Contingent fund and unappropriated cash balances.....	45,575 21
Uncalled capital subscribed.....	$524,575 71
Of which is respectfully submitted, JAMES HOSKINS, Vice President.	$1,385,000 71

J. W. LANGMUIR, Managing Director.
In moving the adoption of the report Vice-President Hoskins said:—I think we have reasonable cause for gratification at the result of last year's operations of the Company. As the report sets out, the number of executors, trusts, and other official positions assumed by the Company during the past twelve months have been greater than in any previous year in the history of the Company.

You will see from the elaborate statement which the Managing Director has placed before you that since the Company was organized, thirteen years ago, the estates and work that have passed through its hands aggregate in value over fifteen million dollars; and after the winding up of estates and the distribution of large sums a residuum of over ten millions still remains under the care of the Company. I have merely to state this in order to make clear two points:—(1) The great necessity that existed for the organization of a company like this to assume in a corporate capacity the positions that formerly had to be performed by individuals; (2) that the public have appreciated the establishment of the institution shown in a very marked way by the liberal use that has been made of it in its various official capacities.

I take this opportunity of asking the shareholders to cooperate with the directors in our endeavors to bring before the public the many advantages that the Company possesses for the management of estates and general investment and agency work. The question "Whom shall I appoint as my executor and trustee?" is one of the utmost importance to every person who has property to leave at death and all of us who have observed the workings of the Company for the past thirteen years know there can be no doubt that a trust company and not an individual is best qualified for the purpose. Among the many special advantages which the Company possesses, and which no individual can offer to the same extent, are: (1) Continuity of service; (2) security; (3) effective management; (4) constant supervision; (5) reasonable compensation for performance of duties.

Respecting continuity of service, individuals, fortunately or unfortunately, must die, but a company always lives. In its hands, therefore, a trust, no matter how long its duration, is not liable to be interrupted by death, or to have the person of the trust changed from other causes.

As to security, the large uncalled capital stock of the Company, its numerous reserves, and invested capital, amounting together, as the report just read shows, to $1,385,000, furnish the fullest guarantee to the public of the safety of the investments that may be entrusted to the Company. Without unduly landing the standing and position of your Board of Directors, I may be permitted to say that the various experiences and knowledge of its various members eminently qualify the Company to supervise the duties devolving upon it, and it goes without saying that the Board of this kind and a staff of trained officers carrying on business on carefully considered principles and with a special knowledge acquired from the experience of the best means of winding up estates and investing money the Company is in a much better position to effectively discharge the duties of executors and trustees, as well as all other positions of a kindred character, than any individual possibly can be.

Respecting compensation for management, I repeat what I have stated on previous occasions, that notwithstanding the advantages the Company possesses, the compensation is in no case greater than is allowed to private individuals.

In conclusion, I cannot too strongly emphasize the fact that in the management of the Company's business every species of speculation is avoided, and that the efforts of the Company are devoted exclusively to the legitimate business of the management of estates and the investment of money.

The profit and loss statement which has been submitted to you speaks for itself. You will observe that the reserve fund has now reached a quarter of a million, and that it is the policy of your Directors to certify that reserve by a large contingent fund, now equal to close upon $40,000.

I have pleasure, gentlemen, in moving the adoption of the report.

Vice-President Meredith, in seconding the adoption of the report, said:—Notwithstanding the wave of depression which has passed over the country, and, indeed, all parts of the world, the shareholders of the Toronto General Trusts Company, at any rate, have good reason to be satisfied with the result of the year's work. The continued success that has attended its operations. The chairman, Mr. Hoskins, has gone so fully into the aims and objects of the Company that I feel free to say, in the statements placed on the table are so voluminous that it would require hours to refer with any degree of minuteness to their contents. We will be glad to observe that, with the exception of the revenue from interest, which shows a slight decline, owing to the fall in the rate, the income from all other branches of the Company's work continues steadily to increase. It should also be stated that a very considerable margin of profit is being realized, and that the Company is held in reserve until estates are wound up and passed by the courts.

The rents from the Company's building make a very fair showing, but some considerable outlay had to be made in renewing the elevator services, which, however, will result in a considerable saving in the future.

I would like to refer to the arduous services of the Managing Director and his staff, but I am aware that Mr. Langmuir objects to laudations of that kind, and cannot refrain, however, from extending a word of commendation to his staff, every one of whom discharges his duty faithfully and well.

I beg to second the adoption of the report.

Mr. W. H. Beatty, the chairman of the Inspection Committee, in moving the adoption of the quarterly reports of the Committee, gave full particulars as to the methods of inspection and audit, which constitute such an important feature in the management of the Company's business. He fully endorsed the remarks of the chairman in asking the co-operation of the shareholders in making known any advantages the Company possesses in the management of estates and trusts.

Remarks were also made in the same line by Sir Frank Smith, Mr. George Goodenham, and other Directors. The election of Directors was then held, and resulted in the re-election of the following gentlemen:—Hon. Edward Blake, L. L. D., Q. C., M. P. E. Meredith, L. L. D., John Hoskins, L. L. D., Q. C., W. H. Beatty, W. R. Brook, George A. Cox, B. Homer Dixon, J. J. Foy, Q. C., George Goodenham, H. L. Bowland, C. C. Emmitt, Irving, Q. C., Robert Jaffray, A. B. Lee, J. W. Langmuir, Sir Frank Smith, J. G. Scott, Q. C., James Scott, and T. Southern and Stayner.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board the Hon. Edward Blake was re-elected President, and Messrs. E. A. Meredith and John Hoskins Vice-Presidents.

FOOTBALL MATCH.
On Saturday evening, the 25th. of May, an interesting game of football was played at Indian River, between the Indian River team and a team from Dwyer's corner, more familiarly known as the East End team. There were over 200 spectators present, who were well pleased with the game. The game commenced at 4.15, and during the first half time the home team had to kick against a strong wind, but notwithstanding this disadvantage the ball was constantly kept on the visitors' goal, but their goalkeeper, Dalton, was a slugging, and by his fine work saved his team from getting a severe drubbing. When half time was within two minutes of being up the ball for the first time was shot for the home team's goal, and by a mistake on the goal keeper's part, the ball slowly drifted into the visitors' goal, and was loudly applauded by the many sympathizers of the East End among the spectators. It was during this first half time that the home team stood 1 to 1 and twelve minutes yet to play. When time was within five minutes of being up another goal was scored for the home team, and the score now stood two to one in favor of Indian River.

Mr. Guerin referred the game to the entire satisfaction of both sides.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The home team with one or two exceptions, played a fine game. For the visitors, Dalton, Calder and Quinlan played an excellent game.

One of the spectators was sadly disappointed over the result of the game, "Oh ho, I would like to see the East End 'bats' them."

One of the East End men was severely injured by colliding with the fence.

SPRINGVILLE FIRE SWEEP.

A Fire of Supposed Incendiary Origin Wipes Out the Business Portion.

The pretty little settlement of Springville, situated about 7 miles southwest of Peterborough, was almost totally destroyed by fire Thursday morning. The business portion, consisting of a hotel, post office and general store, blacksmith shop, and the drill shed of the Springville Infantry were entirely swept away. The inhabitants of the little hamlet have no place where they can purchase provisions nearer than Peterborough.

Between three and four o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the stables in the rear of Thomas Smith's general store. The latter is also postmaster and had living rooms over the store. They were awakened to find their sleeping rooms full of smoke, and barely escaped with nothing but their night clothes.

East of Smith's store was a blacksmith shop, also owned by Smith, and adjoining this building was the drillshed of the Springville Infantry. The flames leaped to these and they were entirely consumed before anything could be saved. A brick dwelling east of the drillshed, owned and occupied by Mrs. McCannoe caught next, and in a few minutes was entirely gutted. The occupants barely escaped with only a few articles picked up in their hurried exit.

The flames then spread westward and were soon devouring the Temperance House owned by Mr. John Irwin. This and all the other buildings were saved by heroic work.

Thomas Smith places his loss at $400; insured for $400; lost $1,000; insured for $300. The other losses could not be ascertained but the whole will probably total $5,000. All the arms and accoutrements of the company were in the drill shed, and these with two binders, owned by William Lang and William Clark were consumed.

This is the fifth fire within two years in Springville, and the origin of all them have been a mystery. Circumstances point to this fire as incendiary, and one of the parties burned out states in no uncertain terms, that the fire was started for an ulterior purpose, and that he can place his finger on the person who touched the match.

A Times' representative drove to Springville last night. A group of residents were gathered around the still smoking ruins and discussing the incident. The place presented a forlorn appearance.

It was learned from one of the parties who was burned out, that the insurance company's agent had been made acquainted with the circumstances and regarded them so suspicious that he promised to send a detective to Springville next week to ferret out the matter.

THE ORILLIA EXCURSION.

About 350 Take Advantage of the Cheap Excursion Rates.

The first joint excursion under the auspices of branches 21 and 31 E. B. A., of Peterborough and Lindsay took place to the charmingly situated little town of Orillia Thursday. Although about 300 pleasure seekers were expected to take advantage of the exceptionally cheap rates, only about 230 actually turned out, the majority from Lindsay. This was no doubt the result of the lowering aspect of the heavens in the early morning. Had it been bright and warm the crowd would have all probability, reached the maximum number anticipated by the society. The weather, however, cleared at 10 in the afternoon, and the few who made the trip to Geneva Park in the comfortable and well appointed steamer Littleford enjoyed an exceedingly pleasant little trip. Geneva Park is about 10 miles across Lake Couchiching from Orillia, charmingly situated amidst almost unparalleled lake and wooded scenery in Ontario. Every facility is afforded at this lovely spot for enjoyment, and to add to the pleasure of the day string music was present to accommodate lovers of the light fantastic.

DEFEAT AND VICTORY.

Athletics Won at Beaverton and Lost At Orillia.

A fair crowd attended the lacrosse match at Orillia Thursday afternoon between a team of the Peterborough Athletics and the Orillia stick handlers. The game was very rough and some of the Athletics received severe cuts. The game resulted in 6 goals to 2 in favor of Orillia. One goal was disputed.

AT BEAVERTON.

The Junior Athletics at Beaverton put up a splendid game and easily won from the Beavertons by 4 to 2. The home team made a very creditable showing.

After an extended honeymoon trip through the southeastern states, Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton will domicile themselves in Peterborough. The Times extends congratulations.

IT PAYS TO
The Best

Last week we noted the placing of a student. Here is what a prominent man thinks of our work.
New York, February 13, 1895.
MR. D. McLAUGHLIN, Ont.
Dear Sir:—Having had Mr. A. E. Yates a graduate of your College with me as a teacher, type-writer, accountant, and office manager for three months, it might be said that I am not a fair judge. But I can assure you that I am. I have seen many graduates of your College, and I can assure you that I have never seen one so well equipped for business as your graduates.
It is in my opinion the best preparation for business that can be given. I have seen many graduates of other colleges, and I can assure you that I have never seen one so well equipped for business as your graduates.

Miscellaneous.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to teaching girls the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or break it is almost impossible to thoroughly clean them, and they may really become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left to a woman of genius to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Fether, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal breadboard, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is cheap and of course far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives, this will be forever appreciated, let them send $1.00 to the manufacturer, 101 Bay Street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

SPOTTED BY DETECTIVES

MISS HALL'S BETRAYAL IS LIKELY TO BE PUNISHED.

Prisoners Remanded at Amherstburg—Lang-ford's Bold Bad Record—A Toronto Detective Escorts the Criminal Back to Toronto.
Special to the Times.

DETROIT, June 8.—The police of Southland, London, Eng., have located the Bull, betrayer of Emily Hall, and on his hands they want. This fact is learned from the British consul at Philadelphia, who has been sent to Detroit by the British Government to investigate the case and collect proof of the betrayer's guilt. The evidence procured by Mr. Clipperton gives promise of successful prosecution he will be arrested and possibly extradited. Mr. Clipperton is a son of the British consul at Philadelphia.

A MAN WITH A BAD RECORD.
BUFFALO, N. Y., June 8.—Detective Alfred Cuddy, of Toronto, arrived here late this afternoon and took Prisoner Langford back with him. He says that Langford is a bad man. He has numerous charges against him, and was just entering upon an 18 months' sentence in the Central prison in Toronto when he escaped. Detective Cuddy said that the man had served a term in Kingston for burglary and another in Joliet, Ill., for a similar offence.

STUCK IN.
BUFFALO, June 8.—Following upon the heels of yesterday's announcement of the Astor-Vanderbilt syndicate having secured control of the Depeu Improvement company, is the further announcement of a big strike of natural gas. The gas company which already have one well of 130,000 feet daily coked up, yesterday struck another of 300,000 feet and there are very strong symptoms of oil in their gas territory.

WHITEWASH CHARGES.
ST. JOHNS, Nfld., June 8.—The Whiteway executive held a lengthy council yesterday evening trying to arrange a retrenchment scheme. They find it exceedingly difficult to satisfy the varying interests concerned. It is believed the party will be capitulated to the demand to be reduced to half a million dollars a colonial secretary bond has promised.

The sailing steamer Kite, chartered by the Peary relief expedition, left here early in July for Howden Bay, West Greenland, which expedition expects to find Lieut. Peary with his companions.
The Kite will bring back after two years absence from civilization.

VALLEYFIELD CASE.

Shortie Will be Brought Before Judge Wrote

—Hugh Wilson, One of Shortie's Victims, is Recovering
From His Wounds.
Special to the Times.

VALLEYFIELD, June 8.—The decision will be given this afternoon whether Cath-bert F. V. Shortie, the Valleyfield defendant who committed the triple shooting here on March 1st, will be tried in Montreal or Beauharnois.

Messrs. McMaster and St. Pierre, of Montreal, two prominent criminal lawyers, are retained for the defence and they have put in about $3,000 for the defence. The defendant, who is in near contact with Valleyfield that Shortie will not get a fair trial at Beauharnois.

Mr. Blason, prosecuting C.C., is getting contrary depositions from Couture, Beauharnois and Valleyfield and says that Shortie would get a perfectly fair trial without any doubt in Beauharnois.

The trial will probably take place before Judge Wrote, and there is a rumor that an endeavor will be made to get Mr. B. B.
Oster, of Toronto, to aid in the prosecution.
The French think that if they can prove insanity in the Shortie family the boy is innocent.

Hugh Wilson, the plucky young fellow whose courageous action nearly cost him his life, has fully recovered, and there is nothing even a scar left to remind anyone of his terrible experience.

Beauharnois has a $50,000 jail and M.
Blason wonders why the Government should spend so much for a jail that was not thought fit to hold Shortie.

NAZRULLA KHAN'S WAYS.

QUITE A BOOR IS THIS SECOND SON OF THE AMER OF AFGHANISTAN.

His Queer Conduct Upset all Arrangements—Occupied a Seat Beside the Queen—His Behavior on Board Ship.
Special to the Times.

ONOND, June 8.—The Amir's son, Nazrulla Khan, is behaving as a boor in the social world. The vicinity of Dorchester House, as a consequence, where he and his suite are quartered, continues to be thronged with "eager crowds of curious seekers to whom the unusually "spectacle affords much amusement.
Nazrulla Khan is a difficult young man to handle. The fact that he is a comparatively young prince, as compared with the Afghan brother, Habibullah Khan, the heir of the Afghan throne, should have been sent to the land of the great Queen Empress as a representative of his father, seems to have turned his head and is giving him an exaggerated idea of his own importance and has made him imperious and overbearing to all around him.

CAUSED TROUBLE ON BOARD.
During the voyage from India in the Clive, he gave a good deal of trouble and the officers were very glad when he disembarked. He had a nasty habit of behaving as if he was on his own yacht and it was only owing to the influence of Mr. T. A. Martin, his agent, that trouble was not frequent. On one occasion a ship's company was troubled by one of the Afghan staff because the former, in the course of his watch, happened to cross the path of the young Prince who was walking on the deck. On another occasion he went up to the officers and insisted on having some very rare fruit which belonged to a naval officer, and although informed that it was private property did not desist. He also sent orders to the commander of the ship to increase the speed of the Clive, although by reason of orders and of prevailing haze, it was impossible to do so.

WERE NOT TOO FOND OF SOAP.
His suite, too, for the most part, were not popular on board. They were not too fond of soap, and to see some of his body attendants splashing native oil all over the deck was a sight to be forgotten. The man with an old railway inspector's overcoat, a postman's coat over them was a sight to remember. But the little friction of the deck was nothing to that encountered when the India office officials who went out to Spithead to meet the ship presented the prince the programme of his subsequent movements. For apparent reason beyond "quickness" he refused to do this, that and the other; declined to be shown over the deck yard, refused to quarry everybody in the Government; and said he would not land at the hour arranged, and in fact made himself very disagreeable.

AT LAST HE REFORMED.
The officials were at their wits end, everything—troops, royal carriages and processions—had been arranged and the details settled, and it was only after long and serious talk that the young man finally decided to do what he was told. Everything thereafter went off well, and the Afghan prince is now the hero of the hour in London. So far the reception at Windsor Castle, the greatest impression of his mind. He was most cordially received by the Queen, occupied a seat at her side in the presence chamber, and won golden opinions by his behaviour and princely bearing.

ITS VALUE PROVED.
Opinions Expressed in Quebec with Regard to the New Specific.
Special to the Times.

QUEBEC, June 8.—There has been considerable discussion in this city, both among the members of the medical profession and private citizens, with regard to the numerous undisturbed cures from various diseases of the kidneys through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The matter has been not only discussed privately among the friends and acquaintances of those who have received benefits from the use of the Dodd's Kidney Pills, but has been discussed in the public press. The general consensus written warmly to Mr. William O'Brien repudiating the statement made by the latter in speeches delivered in Cork that he (Healy) has conspired with Mr. Charles will publish a despatch from Rome saying that it is semi-officially announced that Mgr. Satolli, the papal delegate to the United States, and Archbishop Hall of Salem, will be made cardinals at the next papal consistory.

FLOODS IN FRANCE.
PARIS, June 8.—The Dax and Pau districts of France are flooded by heavy rain storms and overflowing streams. Large tracts of territory are submerged, factories are stopped and railway traffic is almost entirely suspended. No loss of life is reported.

M. FAURE IN PERIL.
LONDON, June 8.—A despatch to the Daily News from Paris says that M. Huillat, a commercial traveller who in 1897 attempted to assassinate Marshal Bismarck, at Madrid, was discovered in Paris, during President Faure's recent visit. He was imprisoned by the local police, because he threatened to fire on the President for the purpose of drawing attention to his grievances. Huillat has since been released.

men of the country, who sailed the Vigilant in English waters last year for George Gould, is a patient at Dr. Kingsley's cancer hospital in this city. This morning he had an operation performed for cancer on the face. The operation was successful and the patient is doing nicely. Captain Haaf's wife is with him.

morrow publish a despatch from Hong Kong that the Japs have arrived at Taipei and established their headquarters. The natives submitted readily. The total population in the recent fighting was only eight. The Chinese have lost millions of dollars worth of property. The despatch further says that as the Steamer Arcturion, with an expeditionary force of a number of other refugees passed the Hobortas she was fired on and several of those on board were killed and 17 wounded.</

INFANT MORTALITY CREDITED TO THE HOT WEATHER

There are more weeping and disconsolate mothers in July and August, than at any other time of the year. Mothers mourn for their little ones, but they seldom realize the fact that they are in a measure responsible for the untimely end of their darlings. To young and inexperienced mothers we would say, that infant mortality is directly traceable to the hot weather and improper dieting. The heat is enervating to the young child, and the poor and impure foods used irritate and destroy the little ones' stomach and digestive organs; no wonder the result is collapse and death.

Had these heartbroken mothers seen the thousands of letters sent in by joyful and thankful mothers, whose babies were saved and made strong and healthy by life-giving Lactated Food, we feel certain they never would have made use of the common adulterated foods.

Lactated Food has saved the lives of a host of infants at critical periods, and raised the weak ones to health, strength and vigor. Now is the time, dear mother, to build up your child in flesh, bone and muscle, to enable it to battle successfully with the terrible heat of summer.

IN A JUNGLE STORM.

You Hear It, but Can't See It Until It Can Also Be Felt.

People who have never been in a jungle talk of the sky as a painter talks of the horizon or a seafaring man of the offing— as if when you wanted to see it you only need use your eyes. But in the jungle you don't see the sky—at least you only see a few scraggy patches of it overhead through the openings in the twigs and leaves. Neither do you feel the wind blowing, nor get burned or dazzled by the sun, nor even see that luminary, except by momentary glimpses about midday, from which it follows that a jungleman does not usually pretend to be weatherwise. If he does, he is even a greater humbug than the rest of the weather prophets. On the afternoon about which we are speaking I remember setting forth on my walk in the still glow of the tropical calm and wondering rather at the intense stillness of the surrounding forest. Then the air grew cooler, and the green of the foliage in front seemed to deepen and present there was a sound as of a giant waterfall in the distance. Waterfalls do not, however, grow louder every second, whereas the noise in front did so. Then there was a loud, angry growl, as of a dozen lions. A minute more and the whole jungle began to roar as if 50 squadrons of heavy cavalry were coming up as a gallop. Then came a drop of rain and a peal of thunder which seemed to make the world stop.

Then the storm began. The sky above darkened; the trees clattered; the wood beneath hissed and bowed itself. A deluge of raindrops blotted out the narrow view. Down it came, soaking through the densest leaves under which one fled for refuge, starting, leaping and dodging with millions of dull thuds, dashing furiously against the leaves as if they were so many hostile shields, streaking the air with innumerable perpendicular lines and hurrying itself down with the force of bullets.

In such a downpour one may as well walk and get wet as stand still and get wet. Unfortunately one did not know where to walk to. The "circumbendibus system" presupposes the fact that the wagon wheels and bullock tracks can be seen and noted, but when the cart track is no longer a cart track, but "all turned to rushing waters," such tracks cannot be seen, and unless you have a pocket compass you may as well try to fly as to get back to where you came from. When the roads of travelers lost in the backwoods, they always steer by the sun—and probably very badly—but when there is no sun what are you to do?—Sigmund Freud.

The Books Were Shuffled.

Here is a funny little story which is told of a would be literary young man whose face is familiar around the various newspaper offices and who appears to be witty. Some time ago in course of conversation with a prominent magazine writer the subject of authors and their works was being discussed. The young man, after the manner of all would be literary young men, was criticizing the various writers and among others Ouida, whose works he declared were being laid on the shelf. The journalist, punning upon the well known author's use of Ouida's hair, said, "if her books are not read, her hair is."

This struck the would be literary young man as a most happy pun, and he resolved to appropriate it to himself at the first opportunity. A few evenings later while out in company he joyfully repeated the conversation on the same subject, and when the proper time arrived sprung the pun in this manner, "Well, she's got red hair if her books haven't."

He is still wondering why no one applauded the brilliant bonnet.

Life Worth Living.

Those people who say that life is not worth living find it so because they do not go to work to make it worth living. Why does nature overpower them? Why do they make harder for them than others to see sin and suffering? What right have they to add their weight to the world's burden? Is it a sign of intellect to be cowardly? And do these people not dream that the spiritual power which makes such an intellectual condition impossible is vastly superior to any power that the intellect alone can attain?—Miss Ruth Pennington.

Patience.

"A human life," said the sentimental young man, "is a poem—fragile, comic, sentimental, as the case may be."

"Yes," sighed Miss Pennington, "and so many of us are rejected manuscripts."

Patience's Romance.

A distinguished instance of a complete reversal of feeling over one's first impression is said to be afforded in the case of Miss Adeline Patti. Some years ago she took a pronounced dislike to a Frenchman, allowing her unfavorable impression to influence her professionally to the degree that she refused to sign with him. Gradually, however, she grew able to tolerate, then grew fond of and finally, when she added musical to her name, married him.

Difference.

"I hear," said the claim, "that you are going in for Christian socialism."

"You have been misinformed," asserted the oyster. "It is church socialism that I expect to figure in."

Concord, N. H., was originally called by an Indian name, Muskegetuck, "Dead Stream." It was changed to Concord in honor of a prominent settler, then to the present name in honor of the settlement of an old land dispute.

STRUCK BY HUGE WAVES.

WHAT THE SURVIVORS OF THE STEAMER COLIMA SAY.

Their Arrival in San Francisco—The Third Officer's Fatal Blunder—Women Implore Pity for Their Lives and Those of Their Children.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—The steamer San Juan arrived this evening from Panama and way ports with survivors of the wrecked Pacific mail steamship Colima. As soon as the marine observer reported the ship two miles out the water front became the scene of considerable excitement. The Pacific mail dock was besieged by a curious crowd that blocked the street. As the revenue cutter, bearing the customs officers and newspapermen neared the ship some of the Colima's rescued passengers with bandaged heads were seen leaning on the bow rail. Just prior to the arrival of the reporters the Pacific mail company's tug Miller Griffith came alongside the San Juan and took off this mate Hansen of the lost ship, who more than any one else could throw light on the cause of the wreck. There were general distinctions among the survivors to give any information.

A BOATWAIN'S ACCOUNT.

G. D. Rose, formerly boatwain's mate on the cruiser Olympia, who was on his way to his home in New York gave the United Press representative the following account of the wreck:

"We left Manzanilla Sunday, May 26th, at 4 o'clock p.m. with a fair breeze blowing and towards 9 o'clock in the evening the wind increased a little and continued blowing pretty fresh all night. Next morning at 10 o'clock the wind moderated considerably until about 9 o'clock when it again came up and steadily continued to gain in violence until it acquired the proportions of a hurricane. The wind blew in great gusts causing the ship to leak badly. The Colima labored heavily and it was evident that we were in a very precarious predicament. The greatest excitement prevailed on board and the faces of the passengers plainly showed that they were alive to their perilous position.

Unfortunately, just at the moment a fatal blunder was committed by the third officer, who cut the lashings of a deck load consisting of 32,000 feet of lumber. Some of this was washed into the sea, and what was left on the deck was driven about, knocking down and maiming those whom it struck. A particularly heavy sea struck the ship, tumbling the foremast and smoke stack. Shortly before this, however, a succession of huge waves had panicked a hole in our starboard bow, through which the sea poured. Women screamed and rushed up the companion way, imploring the men to save them. The ship gave a couple of heavy rolls, an enormous sea climbed on us, smashing the hurricane deck, and with one mighty lurch the ship went down. As she was making her last lurch I dove into the sea, and when I came up she was out of sight. People were floating around clinging to all sorts of wreckage, and some sinking under our very eyes. Some who had managed to grasp hold of boxes or planks were knocked senseless and drowned. The force and effect of this floating mass of lumber cannot be described. It caused the death of many who might otherwise have been saved. It is a difficult matter to say to what cause the wreck of the Colima is attributable. She must have certainly shifted her cargo, as her lurching showed. I firmly believe that but for the shifting of the cargo the ship would have rode out the gale. I had been in the water some little time

CLINGING TO ONE OBJECT or another when finally I managed to get hold of a good sized piece of the hurricane deck, upon which I climbed. I drifted about for some time when I observed a rather offensive looking fellow on another piece of wreckage close to me. He seemed about done up, so I seized him and hauled him on to mine. We made the rest of the trip towards shore together. He turned out to be Thornton. We were the closest in shore of any of the survivors and were picked up by the first of the boats of the San Juan after being 23 hours in the water. Rose was severely cut about the head by floating wreckage and had numerous other cuts about the body."

THE SURVIVORS. The following is a list of survivors landed today: Third mate Hobson, R. A. Viles, A. Carpenter, A. Richardson, Thos. Viles, members of the crew, H. A. Sutherland, C. H. Chasing, Jr.; J. M. Thornton, H. H. Boyd, George Rowan, Louis Sanges, T. J. Ortel, Juan A. Ramos, passengers.

Optimism Smuggling.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 7.—Jerry O'Leary, formerly of St. Catharines, who has for some time been under suspicion of leading a clever gang of phonograph and optical smugglers, and "Toon" Williams, a colored barber, also formerly of St. Catharines, were arrested early this morning in company with four Chinamen who had been carried across Niagara river in a small boat, about midnight. It is said that O'Leary got $300 a piece from the Chinamen for getting them safely into the United States and that he has pocketed the trade very skillfully in connection with his other smuggling operations.

Did Not Know His Name.
The men of the light division in the Crimea always spoke of Sir George Brown as "the general," as was then and is still, though in a lesser degree, the habit of soldiers, possibly from not knowing the name of the immediate leader. This ignorance cost Sir George £1 during the worst of the winter. He had seized an opportunity of meeting Lord Raglan to urge the desirability of his showing himself more frequently in the camps.
"What good will it do?"
"Oh, 'twill cheer the men up! Why, sir, numbers of my men don't know your name."
"But they don't know your name, George."
"Every man in the light division knows my name."
"I'll bet you £1 the first man we ask does not."
"Done," said Sir George, and they rode to the light division camp.
"Come here, my man. Who am I?"
"You're the general sir."
"But my name?"
"You're the general, sir," and nothing more could be elicited from him. Sir George Brown paid up on the spot.
No one who saw him ride straight toward the foe, without an indication that he was in any danger, is likely to forget the animating effect of his bearing on the soldiers.—Sir Evelyn Wood in Fortnightly Review.

The Lady of the Plains.
A young woman from the treeless plains of the west had gone to Boston to a music school on her first trip east, and among the first persons she met at her boarding house was a youth from Bangor. As their acquaintance ripened she told him of what had interested her on the journey.
"Why," she said, with an exultant spirit, "I saw at one place in Pennsylvania a hundred saw logs in one pile."
"A hundred?" he asked, with a tinge of a smile.
"That's what they told me. You know, we don't have saw logs where I came from."
"Is that so? You ought to come to Maine once."
"Do you have them there?"
"Do you?" she replied magnificently.
"Do we? Why, my dear young lady, saw logs grow on trees in Maine."
"Really?" she asked in open-eyed astonishment.
"It's a literal fact," he asserted positively.
"Well, I don't believe it," she contended, and, do what he could, he could not convince her that he was telling plain, unadorned truth.—Detroit Free Press.

Twenty Years Hence.
Mrs. Newera (entering kitchen hurriedly about 8 p.m. registration day)—Alfred, don't register every year you've got in the ward they are going to lick us sure! Take off your apron and come along. There's a carriage at the door.
Mr. Newera—Ethelberta, I've tried to be a good husband to you. I've never refused to do anything reasonable you have required of me. I have taken care of the house and kept the children out of mischief while you've been at the club or hobnobbing with the candidates down town, and I've never complained, but I'm right in the middle of the fruit canning season, and if you think I'm going to leave this porcelain kettle full of peaches all ready to put in the jars and let the six gallons of apple butter in this washbowl burn and go to waste just for the sake of going out to register you don't know me, madam, that's all. Now, you get out of my way and go on about your business, or I'll throw a dipper of hot water on you! —Chicago Tribune.

Comparative Strength of Materials.
Cast iron weighs 44 pounds to the cubic foot, and an inch square bar will sustain a weight of 16,500 pounds; bronze, weight 525 pounds; tenacity 3,600; wrought iron, weight 480, tenacity 50,000; hard "struck" steel, weight 490, tenacity 73,000; aluminum, weight 168, tenacity 36,000. We are accustomed to think of metals as being stronger than wood, and so they are, generally speaking, if only pieces of the same size be tested, but when equal weights of the two materials are compared it is then found that several varieties of wood are stronger than ordinary steel. A bar of pine just as heavy as a bar of steel an inch square will hold up 125,000 pounds, the best ash 175,000 pounds and some hemlock 300,000 pounds. Wood is bulky. It occupies 10 or 12 times as much space as steel. The best steel castings made for the United States navy have a tenacity of 66,000 to 75,000 pounds to the square inch. By solidifying such castings under great pressure a tensile strength of 80,000 to 160,000 pounds may be obtained.—Railway Review.

The Old Time Hacking Bee.
A story is told of hacking bee devilry in the pioneer days of Dexter. Captain Small, one of the first comers, after he had grown to the dignity of having a big house, gave a hacking, to which a large and merry party gathered. While the supper was progressing and the coast was clear some of the "boys" drove one of the captain's steers into the barn floor, and attaching a rope to him, lifted him up over the high beams to the top of the hayrack. They were so busy about it that the joke was not discovered. The steer was misad, of course, and a search of all the surrounding country was made without success. The animal was given up for lost when one day, a week after the hacking, the captain was in his barn and heard a long "moo!" up in the ridge pole. Looking up, there was the missing steer gazing calmly down at him over the high beams. Such was the sport the caddies had in their young days. Modern hackings are more prosaic.—Lowell Journal.

Sufficient Excuse.
An exchange remarks of John Quincy Adams, recently deceased, that he was very fond of fishing and not especially fond of his legal profession.
One day a case in which he was counsel was down for trial in a Boston court. Mr. Adams did not make his appearance, but sent a letter to the judge. That worthy gentleman read it and then postponed the case with the announcement:
"Mr. Adams is detained on important business."
The note read as follows:
"Dear Judge, for the sake of old Isaac Walton, please continue my case until Friday. The smelts are biting, and I can't leave."
A Bismarck Custom.

A custom that has existed for several centuries is still maintained in some towns on the lower Rhine. On Easter Monday—easter day—the town clerk or clerk calls all the young people together and to the highest bidder sells the privilege of dancing with the chosen girl, and her only, during the entire year. The fees flow into the public poor box.

HIS PEARL A CHICAGO GIRL.

And She Seems to be all the World to Fugilist Jim Corbett

Special to the Times.
NEW YORK, June 7.—Hattie Clark, or "Pearl," as she is better known, a blonde, with a mass of hair of a golden hue that is almost white, and a figure full of seductive curves, is at the bottom of the divorce suit which is about to be brought by the wife of James J. Corbett, the heavy weight pugilist. The real name of the alleged alien is variously stated as Clarke, Esmond, Williams, Shaw and Percival. Mrs. Corbett herself does not know the actual name. The intimates of the pugilist profess a like ignorance. Manager Brady is equally noncommittal, and it is even intimated that Corbett himself is in doubt on the matter.
It is alleged that the relations between the pugilist and the woman were conducted openly and that his infatuation for her was of such a nature that he has not only introduced her as his wife, but has been, until very recently, living with her in this city without any effort to conceal their relations.
The woman in the case is now about thirty years of age. It is said that she comes of a good Chicago family, but was let astray by one of the most prominent public men in Colorado. Three years ago she cut a dash at Newport and Long Branch, her protector then being the son of a New York financier. She then returned West, coming to Philadelphia in the fall of 1891. Later she met the champion, and then began the liaison of which the pending divorce proceedings are the culmination. It is said that she is remarkably well preserved and has a singular charm of manner.

Opinions Expressed in Quebec with Regard to the New Specific.
Special to the Times.
QUEBEC, June 3.—There has been considerable discussion in this city, both among the members of the medical fraternity and private citizens, with regard to the numerous undoubted cures from various diseases of the kidneys through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The matter has been not only discussed privately among the friends and acquaintances of those who have received benefits from the use of the remedy named, but has been chronicled in the public press. The general consensus of opinion is that the medicine has undergone a thorough test and has proved itself fully deserving of the great praise which has been bestowed upon it.

Glassman yesterday, when the undertakers walked in and informed the mourners that they were weeping over the wrong corpse. Glassman disappeared two weeks ago. A body was found in the river, which was identified as his, with the exception of one article of underwear. His wife paid for the coffin, notified the Foresters, of which Glassman was a member, to conduct the services, and took steps to secure his insurance money. The body was found to be that of John W. Richardson and third mate Hansen it is probable that the cargo shifted below. They admitted that the vessel careened over to the starboard and righted and that the next time she went over she would not right. It is thought the cargo below shifted on the first roll and that the weight prevented her from righting.

CONVICTED OF EXTORTION.
Was Ex-inspector McLaughlin of the New York Detective Force.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Wm. W. McLaughlin, late inspector of police and chief of the detective force of the Metropolis, spent the night in the Tombs under conviction and awaiting sentence. EVANVILLE, Ind., June 8.—For some months Valentine Weisman has been a patient of his wife. Last night, as Mrs. Weisman was nursing their six months' old baby, Weisman entered the room. He snatched the baby from her arms, and dashed it to the floor. Then he got a razor. His wife ran from the room, but was stopped by a high fence. He caught her, and slashed her with the razor. He cut her on the throat three times, several times in the face, and kept on hacking at her throat. He then tried to cut off her hand. He cut through the tendons and severed an artery. In all, her cuts numbered one hundred and twenty-one. She will die, and so will her child. Weisman has been arrested.

LONDON, June 8.—The course sailed over by the Alisa and Britannia to-day was from the Nore Lightship to Dover, outside of Goodwin's Sands, 60 miles. The Alisa crossed the finish line at Dover at 5.25.31, and the Britannia 5.25.44.

BACKED BANQUET.

And Dropped Their Dollars—A New Experience for the Americans in England.

LONDON, June 8.—The Sun, in commenting on yesterday's race for the Manchester Cup, says: The Americans were very cocksure that Banquet would win and planked down their dollars with reckless confidence. The result showed that the cleverness of the visitors is only visible when they are running a third rate horse in tenth rate company. The first time they met a representative English field, both horse and jockey signally failed to realize expectations.

He Knows Something About the Subject.
LONDON, June 8.—Marshall Field, jr., has taken Earl Russell's beautiful little place, Amberley Cottage, at Maidenhead. Purified Blood

Saved an operation in the following case. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail. It makes pure blood.

"A year ago my father, William Thompson, was taken suddenly ill with inflammation of the bladder. He suffered a great deal and was very low for some time. At last the doctor said he would not get well unless an operation was performed. At this time we read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before he used half a bottle his appetite had come back to him, whereas before he could eat but little. When he had taken three bottles of the medicine he was as well as ever." FRANCIS J. THOMPSON, Peninsula Lake, Ontario. Remember

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Wm. Payne Makes an Ineffectual Effort to Cut His Own Throat.

Wm. Payne, a married man who lives on Sophia street in Ashburnham made an attempt to cut his throat early yesterday morning. Payne is subject to fits of melancholia and while in this condition has frequently threatened to take his life. His wife, who is a nurse, has been very kind to him, and his family made it a point to hide all sharp knives in the house, fearing that he would make good his threats.

Early yesterday morning Payne got up and secured a knife made an ineffectual attempt to cut his throat. He would doubtless have succeeded had the knife been sharp, but it was very dull. He cut himself from ear to ear, but the dull knife hardly went deeper than the skin, although he bled very profusely.

Payne's daughter came into the room in time to witness her father's deed. She screamed and made an effort to prevent him doing himself further injury. Payne, however, seemed determined to finish the job, and crawled under the table where he continued to saw away with the dull blade. It was only after several neighbors arrived that he was held down and the knife taken away from him.

Dr. Pigeon attended the injured man and pronounced his injuries very slight.

PETERBOROUGH DEFEATED.

And They Claim It Was Because of the Unfair Decisions of the Umpire.

The Peterborough baseball team journeyed to Port Hope on Saturday and played an exciting game with the Port Hope ball team. The result of the game was a score of 11 runs to 8 in favor of the Port Hope. The Port Hope team had the game that Peterborough would have won the game hands down had the decisions of the umpire been within a stone's throw of fairness. The umpire, who hailed from Cobourg, evidently had it in for Peterborough from the start. His decisions were manifestly unfair. Peterborough's players were called "out" when they were "safe," and unless the pitcher "split the plate" he had "balls" called on him. If there was any doubt on a play, Port Hope invariably won. The rankness of the decisions was acknowledged by everyone who witnessed the game. As it was the Peterboroughs put up a splendid game. McCabe's pitching and Lytle and Edmund's combination work was the admiration of all. The teams were composed as follows:

PETERBOROUGH.

Edmunds Second base
King First base

THE 57TH AT CHURCH.

An Eloquent Sermon on Obedience by Rev. J. C. Davidson.

The annual church parade of the 57th Battalion took place at St. John's yesterday afternoon and was marked by a large attendance.

Rev. J. C. Davidson preached an eloquent sermon from St. Luke, 7th chapter, 12th verse. He said there was no more essential feature in an army than that of division into ranks. Obedience and care of those below were the two main points in connection with an army and the duty of obedience to those above was another. He dwelt upon the importance of obedience. In the text the soldier was told "to go, and he went, and did as he was commanded." He was obedient. Did they as soldiers not see a few qualities in this Roman Centurion for an efficient officer? There was the humility of the man and his affectionate and kind care of his soldiers. At this point the speaker dwelt upon the necessity of this kindness amongst servants, employees and soldiers.

Since the officers of the 57th Battalion had last met in St. John's Church, changes had taken place. As citizens we feel a very rare gratitude to the men who have left the ranks and those still in them who have done many years' work and raised the battalion to its efficiency. The men should endeavor to assist the officers in increasing the battalion efficiency. He then congratulated the members of the battalion, especially those who were on parade for the first time. They had taken a good step that would aid their health, deportment and spirits.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.
A celebrated artist asked at one time what he mixed with his paints, made the colors so brilliant, and the figures so lifelike. He replied, "this gray matter located in the upper story of man that moves the world. In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co., for the invention of the transposing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has been called for years of years, thought before it was brought to perfection. To-day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental interest. It is something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this invention one can now accomplish that which has long been desired by practical men, viz: the ideal duty of pitch, especially since the adoption of the French pitch. Music may be played on the transposing piano in the scale of key of "C" and its relative, and in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the late of Jan. Heintzman & Co. have placed 60 of these instruments in the homes of well known clients throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 11 1895.

The West is a sure foundation.

Admiral Meade, of the United States navy, has been retired in disgrace simply because he talked too much. His fate should serve as a terrible example to some of our too copious talkers at Ottawa.

Ten battalions of Spanish infantry are to sail at once for Cuba. Of course, this indicates that the Government has been meeting with as much success as it claims in crushing the rebellion.

Sanford Fleming has a letter in the Week, reaffirming his belief that a white star on the fly is the proper thing for the Canadian flag. He would give the star seven points that it might be emblematic of the seven provinces in the Dominion. But Mr. Fleming possibly forgets that before long there will be many more provinces than seven in the Dominion, and if each province is to have a point in the star, the device will in a few years look like an advertisement for bicycle wheel.

IMMIGRATION.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal on Monday, Sir Donald Smith declared that the future of Canada depends on the settlement of the North-West.

The declaration is true. The future of this country does depend upon the progress of the territories beyond the great lakes. This being so, it is more than gratifying to know that the progress on which so much is depending is satisfactory. At the very time Sir Donald Smith was making his statement in Montreal the result of an official census was being given in Parliament which showed that the population of Alberta, the Assiniboias and Saskatchewan have increased by forty per cent. in the past three years—a rate which, if maintained until the end of the present decade, will show an addition to the population in these territories between 1890 and 1900 double that of the previous ten years.

Canada's hope rests on the West and

THE VOLUNTEERS.

We are glad to see that the Hamilton Spectator, that the volunteers are getting some attention in the house of commons. It is proposed to cut down the standing force from 1,000 to 800 men and devote the money thus saved to the militia. One thousand men is not a large standing army for Canada. The United States is anything but a military nation, and yet Uncle Sam has one regular soldier to every two thousand people—to say nothing of the big navy he is building up—while in Canada there is only one regular soldier to every five thousand people. The Canadian standing army cannot therefore, be said to be excessive. Nor are we sure that the saving effected by the reduction of the regulars by 200 men will put the militia on a proper footing.

During the discussion Mr. Hughes advocated the arming of the Canadian militia with the Martini-Henri rifle, pending the adoption by the British government of a small bore magazine rifle. We hope that will not be done. There is not enough difference between the Snider and the Martini-Henri to make it desirable to exchange the one for the other as a makeshift. And if the volunteers get new rifles of any kind now, it will be decades before they will get others. The very best rifle in the world is none too good for the Canadian volunteer, and the force should be armed with the Lee-Metford rifle, if that rifle be finally adopted by the British army. It is desirable that the Canadian militia and the British army should use the same arm and the same ammunition—the reason is obvious. And the Lee-Metford rifle will cost but a fraction more than the Canadian government paid for the old Snider. If the government cannot afford to arm the whole force with Lee-Metfords at once, let it be done in instalments. But the idea of accepting anything less than the best rifle for the Canadian volunteers should be banished at once and forever. If only one battalion a year can be armed with the best rifle, it will be better to do that than to purchase a complete outfit of relics like the Martini-Henri.

WITH THE UPPER TEN

LIFE IN THE AUTUMN AT ENGLISH COUNTRY HOUSES.

Resort for Entertainers and Guests.

How the Time is Employed by Ladies and Gentlemen of Leisure—When They Have Their Meals and What They Eat.

With the opening days of September the country house parties nominally commence. August gatherings do not amount to "parties" in the strict sense of the word, being principally composed of relatives and intimate friends asked for a pleasant ten days' rather than for a smart five days' visit, but it is during these friendly visits that ceremony is put on one side as far as may be, and every one allowed to do pretty much as he or she likes. Even at the smartest country house parties the modern hostess takes up this line as against the strict discipline formerly in force.

"Do you like paying visits?" is a question frequently put by those who distinctly dislike doing so, on the ground that the restraints of each day are irksome to them. They do not like the method by which they are to be amused—the fixed hours for pastimes, for meals, for riding, driving, shooting and the rest. There is a good deal in this from the point of view of a jaded and tired individual seeking perfect quiet and repose, and also from that of an idle man who likes his own way and to take his own time for amusing himself.

The general view of such people is much the same on this head—viz., "the liberty of the subject"—although they nevertheless conform to the rules of the house at which they are staying and allow themselves to be taken, say, to luncheon at the houses of people they know only by name in the most courteous manner if their hosts so wills it, when they would far rather be left at home to amuse themselves in their own way, whatever that may be, with a favorite pipe for a companion. Ladies, on the contrary, are not averse to plans being made and carried out for their benefit. They readily fall into their hosts' projects and expect to go somewhere and to do something most days, but a hostess knows from experience that these plans must include the company of one or two of the men of a party, or the expedition will fall flat, and the ladies, left to themselves, will not return in the most cheerful of spirits. The modern hostess invites the guests with due regard to their exigencies, so as not to sacrifice the leisure of the one sex to the demands of the other.

The writer of a recent article in a daily contemporary characterizes a country house breakfast as a "first installment of a day of gorging." It is quite true that many men do "make a good breakfast," but a good breakfast appetite is a sign of a clear conscience and a good digestion, and if a man eats two eggs, half a partridge, two or three rashers of broiled bacon, a mutton and some marmalade and passes by the numerous other breakfast dishes set before him—dressed fish, broiled fowl, omelet, cold ham, cutlets, etc.—he does not consider he has "done himself" too well, taking into account the walking exercise that is before him.

In these days of early rising, walks before breakfast, and the greater portion of the day passed in the open air golfing, playing tennis or croquet, rowing and riding, a breakfast appetite is a rural requisite, and the question so ripe at the present moment as to whether ladies do or do not eat too much answers itself in any case at a country house party.

From 9 to 9:30 is the usual breakfast hour in most houses. Occasionally it is extended to 10, where late hours are kept in the smoking room. Again punctuality at this meal is the rule in some houses. Not so in others, where great latitude is allowed. As to guests shaking hands with each other, this ceremony takes place only in the evening, when good nights are said. In the morning a nod, a smile or a "Good morning!" is all that is said or done by way of greeting.

The next general meeting is at luncheon—1:30—on nonshooting days, or a meeting of ladies only, and though a choice of dishes is generally preferred to a set of one dish only in the meat course—say a cutlet, or a help of chicken, or a slice of roast mutton, followed by a sweet. After a long morning spent in walking over stubble in search of partridges men are equal to making a very substantial lunch out of cold meats and do not despise Irish stew, mutton pie, cold beef, pigeon pie, sausage, rolls and the like, to say nothing of bitter beer, whisky and soda water, and, not seldom, champagne, this latter being more frequently given by bachelor hosts. It is a well known fact that the ladies of a house party are more than pleased to join the shooters at their outdoor luncheons, but it is whispered that the company of ladies is not equally appreciated by keen sportsmen on these occasions, on the ground of loss of time and vexatious delay in resuming sport, the afternoon hours being all too short in which to shoot the wily partridge.

Five o'clock tea in the country is not "4:30 tea," as in town, and amounts to almost a meal in itself, with its hot cakes, rich cakes and sandwiches. In September the shooters seldom return in time to join the ladies at tea, while in November their presence is generally to be counted upon, as daylight wanes, by 4:30, and within doors is far pleasanter than without doors at this hour, but even then the smoking room, joined to genuine fatigue, is a formidable rival to the drawing room, however fascinating the tea gowns and the wearers thereof may be.

The dinner hour, however, is the signal for the whole of the company to assemble as close upon 8:30. When precedence is strictly followed, the same couples are often sent in to dinner together night after night, but a hostess endeavors to introduce a little variety in this respect as far as possible, so that the companions of the hour may not suffer from monotony. A country house dinner is generally so much to the taste of men that they go through the menu gallantly, but the ladies, as a rule, draw the line, say, at half the menu.

A country house visit lasts four or five days, as the case may be—from Tuesday to Friday or to Saturday—only very intimate friends being asked to remain over Sunday.—London Queen.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

FAMOUS ALE.

Editor Morning Times.

DEAR SIR.—Remarkable as it may appear, I claim the trespass of a portion of your valuable space to bear practical testimony to the superior ale brewed out by Messrs. McPherson, Gordon & Co., of Cobourg. Being refused a license in May of 1894, I had then in stock one hoghead of ale brewed by the above named firm, which as a matter of course, I dare not tap. After fifteen months storage in my cellar I tapped it last Wednesday, and to the delight of my old patrons, it proved to be a highly hopped ale, clear as amber and very pleasant flavor. One not acquainted with the makers might very easily be convinced that it was manufactured by the Romans of old, who prized themselves in the art of making ale.

Curiosity prompted me to have an analysis made, with a result that it contains simply pure malt and hops. Being questioned as to what constitutes adulteration, the answer is, quassia, wormwood, ginger, sulphate of iron, alum, salt, or molasses. Had this ale been adulterated in the slightest degree it certainly would not have turned out as this hoghead has, proving that Messrs. McPherson, Gordon & Co. manufacture a pure article, and what they do not know about steeping, couching, flooring and kiln drying, is not worth knowing. Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain,

Yours truly,

Wm. Croft.

Good Health

And a good appetite go hand in hand. With the loss of appetite, the system cannot long sustain itself. Thus the fortifications of good health are broken down and the system is liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Thousands who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla testify to its great merit as a purifier of the blood, its power to restore and sharpen the appetite and promote a healthy action of the digestive organs. Thus it is, not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story and constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. Why not take Hood's Sarsaparilla now!

Stacy sworn in.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Richard Olney, was sworn in Secretary of State shortly before 11 o'clock.

SHE SAW HIM HOME.

Despite His Misfortune, He Was Polite, and She Helped Him.

It was on a Washington avenue car. The time, just before 6 o'clock, when the madding throng commences to rush westward for home, supper and rest.

He is one of the widely known men about town in the city, one whose intellectual brightness is frequently the theme for many tongues, but to offset his many good qualities he has one bad, and that, too, a very bad one, the habit of imbibing too freely of those liquid refreshments which frequently results in one's legs having a falling out with each other.

The car was crowded, and several women were standing clingingly, almost toppling over every time the car started or stopped. One of these was a winsome little beauty, and the wonder only was that one of the brutes sitting down had not offered her his place, but he hadn't.

She was standing directly in front of him, and as she noted him and saw his condition, which was very "jagged," a look of recognition and embarrassment spread over her flow- erlike face.

He didn't see her or any one else for a few moments, but presently looked up and saw the women stand- ing. He appreciated fully the fact that he should offer his place to one of the number, but even more fully that if he tried to stand up he would fall down. He was in a most uncom- fortable predicament.

Presently an inspiration came to him, and his face brightened like a glorious sunset, and he at once pro- ceeded to carry out his idea.

Touching lightly upon the arm to attract her attention, he lifted his hat, and with a Chesterfieldian bow and smile said:

"Miss, I am really too drunk to stand, while I know I should offer you my place, but I can do the next best thing. You may sit in my lap."

There was a spasm of mirth in the car for a few moments, during which the young lady leaned over and said: "Cousin, I thank you for your good intentions and courtesy, but I believe you have as much as you can carry now."

At the word cousin he looked somewhat startled, and when his wits were somewhat collected per- ceived that in reality it was his own fair coz.

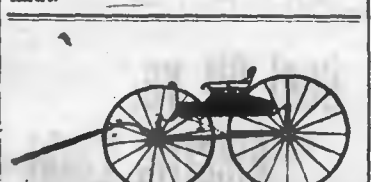

She was true blue, too, for, when they arrived at his getting off place, she also got off and saw him safely home.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Whittier's Way.

John G. Whittier was greatly loved by strangers, who not only called on him, but thrifly insisted on putting up with him all night. "Thoe has no idea," said his sister, "how much time Greenleaf spends trying to lose these people in the streets. Some- times he comes home and says: 'Well, sister, I had hard work to lose him, but I have lost him. But I can never lose a her. The women are more pertinacious than the men. Don't these find them so, Maria?'"—San Francisco Argonaut.

His Virtue.

The late Rev. Dr. Lord of Buffalo officiated at the funeral of one of Buffalo's notoriously rich and wicked citizens. After noting the de- ceased's parentage and date of birth, he closed his tribute by saying, "Our dead friend had one noble vir- tue. He always got up early in the morning."—San Francisco Argon- aut.

WHAT BRAINS WILL DO.

A celebrated artist asked at one time, what he mixed with his paints, made the leucous "body." "Brains," it is this gray matter located in the upper story of man that moves the world. In the musical world we have to thank Heintzman & Co., Toronto, for the invention of the transpos- ing piano, a feature of piano construction that is unique and simple and yet has called for years of earnest thought before it was brought to perfection. To day, however, the transposing piano is no longer a mere object of experimental in- terest. It is not something theoretical but is thoroughly practical. With this in- vention one can now accomplish that which has long been desired by practical men, viz: the adjustability of pitch, especially since the adoption of the French pitch. Music may be played on the transposing piano in the scale of key of "C," and its relative "A" minor and rendered in all the various keys or scales as written. Since the late of Jan. Heintzman & Co. have placed 10 of these instruments in the homes of well known citizens throughout the country. A recent purchaser is Mr. H. S. Kent, of Victoria, B.C.

A SUPERIOR MULE.

RUNT HAS TRAITS THAT WIN PRIVILEGES FOR HIM.

His Ability as a Kicker Is Remarkable Even For an Army Mule—A Gentleman Feels Him at His Best—His Terrible Battle With the White Wolf.

Runt is a mule. His career has been checked, and his life has been full of ups and downs. He is 18 years old. He has long since passed the time in life when even a mule has a fighting show to be beautiful.

Yes Runt is famous, and money cannot buy him. He was born in Mississippi and when 8 years old joined the regular army, going to Fort Bliss, Tex. He served five years there and then was transferred to Fort Stanton, N. M. When the Thirteenth regiment moved to Fort Sill, Runt went with them. He served faithfully until three years ago, when he was retired as a veteran. The first hard service in the field that Runt met was in 1884. In the first skirmish he was wounded by his friends. It was in August. Runt was one of eight mules hauling a wagon of a government train from Carthage, N. M., to Fort Stanton. Two companies of the Thirteenth guarded the wagon. Twenty miles out of Carthage the Apaches attacked the train. As the Apaches circled about, yelling and firing, Runt got nearly finally with a kick and a squeal he broke away from his harness and galloped straight toward the Apaches. The Indians at once bore down on Runt to capture him. The soldiers made ready to fire.

"Don't shoot!" yelled one of them. "You'll kill Runt," said Sergeant Ray. "He's got no business there."

The soldiers fired. The Indians scattered, leaving Runt alone. Runt hesitated, and a second volley poured forth. One of the bullets struck his tail. With a snort he lowered his head, planted his fore feet firmly and began to kick. He kicked until he fell over exhausted. The teamsters then caught him and tied him to one of the wagons. But his first campaign rubbed Runt as a soldier. No matter where he was after that, whether in harness, at the feed trough or in pasture, if a gun was fired Runt would lower his head and kick until he fell exhausted.

Runt lost his ear 11 months ago. The companies at Fort Sill live far better than any others in the army. Beef is cheap and game is abundant. Each company has a party of hunters continually in the field. These parties hunt in the Wichita mountains. In those hills than perhaps in any other part of America. In fact, elsewhere white wolves are seldom seen. The white wolf, so called, is of a gray color, much larger than the common wolf and far fiercer. Hunters dread him equally with the mountain panther.

Runt, of his own accord, joined one of the hunting parties going up into the mountains. Steve Shipper, the most noted bear hunter in the Oklahoma country, was one of the hunters. The men sent their camp about 25 miles from Fort Sill, on the Signal range. Panthers and wolves were so plentiful at night that the men took turns keeping watch. The horses and mules were picketed within the circle. Runt alone refused to submit to the halter. He would back away and threaten to snap the picket line until he was freed. At night he would roam about in the fire light, occasionally wandering out into the darkness, but returning very shyly.

The fourth day before Christmas two wagons loaded with game were sent to Fort Sill. In the evening, after they had gone, Shipper brought in a big buck. It was decided to have a roast. A monster spit was rigged up, a big fire was kindled, and soon the odor of juicy meat, properly cooked, filled the woods. The panthers, the wolves and the coyotes hurried toward it. As the time passed a circle of wild beasts crouched on their haunches or stole softly about on the edge of light, howling, yelping and barking. Old Runt was in great spirits. He cowered about, threatening several times to kick the buck into the fire. As the rich odor floated from the beasts prowling about became bolder, and occasionally a coyote would sneak into the open space, only to retreat before a brand of burning wood. A big white wolf, bolder than his fellows, twice sprang into the circle and snatched once at one of the horses and once at the skin of the buck. Runt was walking slowly and to the shadow far from the fire. Suddenly there was a howl, a snarl, and the white wolf sprang through the air and lit on Runt's shoulders. The mule trembled and squealed. He backed and shivered and shook, but he did not kick. The white wolf sunk his teeth deep into Runt's neck and used his claws, tearing the mule's flesh. As the wolf clawed Runt seemed to become powerless, probably through fear.

The hunters crowded around trying to get a shot at the wolf. Finally Shipper seized a big burning stick and thrust it over Runt's neck into the wolf's face. With a snarl the wolf opened his jaws. His clasp fast with his claws, however. As Shipper thrust forward the burning wood a second time the wolf shifted his position until he was crouched on Runt's back. This gave Tom McGrath an opportunity to shoot him.

"Bang!" went McGrath's rifle. The bullet missed. The wolf was not touched. But with the report a great change took place in Runt. From a frightened, helpless animal he was transformed into a fighting, kicking mule. He bucked and kicked and rolled. The hunters were forced to beat a retreat to the wagon. From there they watched the fight. The wolf held fast, and as Runt rolled, the wolf would creep quickly round or loom his grasp until the mule rose again.

At length Runt in rolling worked the wolf back to his hindquarters. Quick as a flash the old mule sprang to his feet, lowered his head and let fly his heels. He caught the wolf full in the side. The impact of the blow was like the crack of a black snake whip. The clutch of the wolf gave way, and he tumbled through the air, landing in the heart of the fire. He sprang away, but Shipper shot him before he reached the outer darkness. The distance he was kicked was measured by the men and found to be 21 feet. Runt continued to kick until he was lassoed and hobbled and tied to one of the wagons. The skinned skin of the white wolf is in Shipper's possession and is one of the treasures of the old hunter. He shows it to prove that old Runt bested the white wolf. Runt's left ear, or rather what remains of it, and his workless eye bear out Shipper's story. —Fort Sill (O. T.) Cox. New York Sun.

AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN MISSIONARIES ATTACKED AT CHENG TU.

Some Canadians Among the Number, and Much Anxiety Is Felt—There has been rioting and it is spreading.

ONION, June 10.—The Telegraph publishes a Shanghai dispatch saying it is almost certain that all persons connected with the English, French and American missions at Cheng Tu have been massacred. The Chinese admit that telegrams have been stopped by the Government orders. A French gunboat has gone to Wu Chang on the Yang Tse Kiang to inquire into the matter. Virtually the whole Province of Canton is in a state of anarchy, the rival factions raiding each other.

NO DEPOSITE NEWS AT SHANGHAI. SHANGHAI, June 10.—No definite news has yet been received here in regard to the latest report concerning the fate of the missionaries at Cheng Tu, capital of the Province of Szechuan, Western China, who are said to have been massacred. It is known, however, that serious rioting has occurred at Cheng Tu, but affairs there are believed to have been quiet recently although the rioting was spreading in the country southward.

"INFORMED TORONTO." New York, June 10.—The officials of the Methodist Missionary Society in this city are very hopeful that the reported massacre of the missionaries at Cheng Tu is untrue. Dr. Stephen J. Baldwin, the recording secretary, said: "I do not think that these rumors are subsequent to the assurance we received by cable from our mission in Cheng Tu under the date of June 3. The cable read: Property destroyed; all safe; inform Toronto. This would indicate that all our people are safe, although the property has been destroyed."

The missionaries who are at Cheng Tu are Rev. Olin Caddy and wife, H. L. Cartwright and wife, R. E. F. and wife, Rev. J. O. Carraway and wife, and Rev. Dr. H. V. C. Hart, formerly of the Central China mission, and several of his associates in the Canadian Methodist church. In the 70th annual report for last year the property of the Cheng Tu mission including dwellings, schools, etc., was valued at $4,000.

CANADIAN THREE. Much anxiety is felt in mission circles over the account of the massacre received from Cheng Tu. The mission at that place is in charge of Rev. H. V. C. Hart, D.D., of Burlington, Ont., whose wife and family returned from China only a few weeks ago. With him are Rev. G. E. Hartwell, D.D., of Toledo, and Mrs. Hartwell, Rev. James E. Edwards, D.D., of New York, and a medical mission under the charge of Dr. D. W. Stevenson and his wife, both of Milton, and Dr. H. M. Hare, of Halifax. At Yieh Tung, 110 miles south of Cheng Tu, there is a medical mission conducted by Dr. O. L. Kibora, of Kingston, whose brother is in charge of Kingston Hospital. Dr. Kibora married Miss Gifford, of Bedford, a daughter of Grand Trustee Gifford of the Patrons of Industry. Besides these missions there is a woman's mission in charge of Miss Gifford, of London Conference and Miss Brackbill.

LIFE SUDDENLY CUT.

The Awful Sudden Death of William Adams.

Special to the Times. LONDON, June 10.—An awfully sudden death occurred in Delaware township Friday afternoon. Wm. Adams, a highly respected carpenter, residing on concession 2, of Delaware, was driving along the road near Atkin's blacksmith shop, on the second concession and but a short distance from his home, when he was struck by a loaded with sheep and goods. It appears that one of the sheep got under the seat in the rig which was loose and the horse, shying at some object, caused the driver to swerve the seat, throwing Mr. Adams and the sheep on the ground. The unfortunate man alighted on his head and when found shortly afterwards he was dead. His neck had been broken by the fall and death came instantly.

Headache and Sour Stomach.

"I was out of order in general and suffered with headache and sour stomach continually. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and used two bottles, and found that I had gained 15 pounds in weight and was feeling much better." Maxwell D. Shangraw, Celibate, Ont.

Lost in the Long Sault Rapids. WINDSOR, June 10.—The steamer Monarch from Port Franks to Port Franks was wrecked Saturday at Long Sault Rapids. The passengers were rescued, but the freight was lost and the vessel wrecked. This is the third vessel wrecked at the same place within eight months.

A Delaware Farmer Killed.

LONDON, June 10.—Friday Wm. Adams, concession 2, Delaware, was driving when the horse shying threw Mr. Adams on the head road. He alighted on his head and was killed.

The Spanish naval commander at Havana has been authorized to purchase merchant vessels to be used as cruisers.

Lord Lammington, private secretary to Lord Salisbury, who is the latter's son, is to be married in London this week.

A SUMMER INCIDENT.

Yesterday afternoon, as the rays of the afternoon sun kissed the windows of The Times office, and a third compositor dozed over a nonpareil case drawing of a platonic take, and the rest of the hands be-wailed the fact that they were not born blood relations to a cold storage warehouse, the composing room door opened softly and a silvery toned voice that echoed with an ethereal melody inquired:

"Is the editor in?"

The young man with the picnic dreams "pled" a stickful of market reports, woke up and pointed to the apparatus which led to the editorial rooms, and a vision of pink and white beauty glided across the floor in the direction indicated.

The editor-in-chief wasn't in, but the imposing stone editor was there engrossed in the critical examination of a wrong font of corn which had occasioned him considerable trouble and some profanity, ever since the hot weather season commenced.

He looked up as he heard a gentle rustling at the door and the vision that met his bewildered gaze nearly caused another claim on the insurance company.

There was the lithesome figure of a beautiful girl, clad in soft white fluff material, and pretty white slippers that peeped daintily from beneath the wall fitting gown.

The roses had lips were half parted, and the heavenly eyes looked inquiringly at the silvery voice, like the chiming of a fairy bell asked:

"Is this the editor?"

The imposing stone editor nearly set up an answer out of the wrong case, but he didn't. He kicked the spittoon under the table, and his foot coming up in his throat, with a struggle as to which should get there first that nearly deranged the whole of his internal economy, but he recovered sufficient presence of mind to wipe off a chair and ask the visitor to be seated.

"You know," she began "Papa takes the Times and I read it every morning, and I've been writing some poetry and am so anxious to see it printed in the Times. Mama says the lines are beautiful; she says the sentiment raises one's soul above the sordid cares of every day life, and carries it into the ethereal realms of infinite bliss."

"Um, yes, it was real nice of your maw to say that," mumbled the imposing stone editor, struggling with a mouthful of fine cut.

"Yes, wasn't it? And papa says he is sure you will print it. Here it is," and she produced from the mysterious folds of that fluffy whiteness a little roll daintily tied with pink ribbon.

The imposing stone man was getting his second wind by this time, and inquired as to the nature of the poem.

"Well, I'll read it to you," he knew you'll like it; papa said it brought tears to his eyes.

The imposing stone man, don't cry much unless it is when some of the night hands pie an ad, and then his eyes water out of pure vexation, but by way of preparation he drew his sleeve across his face.

Then the vision untied the pink ribbon and with a smile that would have melted an inanimate ham she commenced to read:

"The gladsome summer time is here,
The merry, merry picnic time,
When verdure clothes the hill and dell,
And fields are full of lowing kine."

"Don't you think that's pretty?" said the vision.

"Um, well, it don't rhyme just right," said the stone man. "Now you can't make 'here' rhyme with 'dell.' How would it do like this:

"The gladsome summer time is here
And picnics are on deck,
When froth is on the lager beer
And boys come home full to the neck."

Now that hits the popular idea. You see, if your's going to talk about picnics you've got to work in beer.

"Oh I don't think that would sound nice it would spoil the sentiment."

"No, that's all right. What's the next verse like?"

"The woods are clad in bright green,
The zephyrs away the towering trees,
And whispering branches gently bend Responsive to the cooling breeze."

Same fault as the first verse, young lady, you forget the rhyme; green is Irish and Iri h'wont bend, and you can't make it rhyme. Now I'd write that verse like this:

"The woods are full of picnic fakes,
The zephyrs away the lowering limbs,
While Johnnie fights the crawling snakes,
And doctor says he's got the jims."

You see in a poem like that you want to follow out the picnic idea, and snakes and jim jams always follow."

The young lady didn't seem to appreciate the alliteration, but she went on with the next stanza:

"Beneath the shade a trying place;
A cosy seat beside the trunk,
A youth and maiden fair of face;
In rapturous love their souls are sunk."

Or if you don't like it that way try this:
"Two pair of hands his pockets sought
And stole his watch and mon."
That's how a fellow's always caught
When he hasn't got a gun."

Or if you must follow out the love and marrying idea why here's something that's more up to date:

"To have her bloomers she was fond,
And on a cycle ride,
And vote when 'lection time came round—
All opposition she defied."

"Wasn't that true love's happy course
Was not in perfect harmony,
So be applied and got divorce,
And she got alimony."

"Now, that's what I call the proper denouement for your poem, but—"
And the stone man turned to discover that the vision of beauty had fled, and that he had been reading his last two stanzas without an audience. With a remark about some people not appreciating good advice he resumed the examination of his pet corn.

Good Health

And a good appetite go hand in hand. With the loss of appetite, the system cannot long sustain itself. Thus the fortifications of good health are broken down and the system is liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Those who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla testify to its great merit as a purifier of the blood, its powers to restore and sharpen the appetite and promote a healthy action of the digestive organs. Thus it is, not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story and constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. Why not take Hood's Sarsaparilla now?

No Fruit Famine.
"There need be no fear of a fruit famine," says C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. "As grapes, which were supposed to be the most of the crop, will, even in the districts where late frost hit the hardest, be half a crop. And half a crop in some localities and a fairly good one in others will mean plenty for the needs of the people. Last year, owing to the abundance, vast quantities of grapes were not picked; this year, on account of the scarcity, all will be gathered, and thus will about even things up. Prices may be a little higher for all. And what I have said of grapes holds in regard to fruit generally."

Select Knights of Canada.
Mr. T. L. Lewis, Past Supreme Commander of the Select Knights of Canada, is in Peterborough and will endeavor to organize a branch of the order here. The Select Knights of Canada is a patriotic, benevolent, social and fraternal secret order, inaugurated in the city of St. Catharines, Ontario, on September 7, 1882, with ten members and afterwards duly incorporated and registered under the laws of the Province of Ontario. The order was started in connection with the Select Knights of the United States as an adjunct to the Ancient Order of the United Workmen, and while no connection exists between the two orders, the latter are not members who did not belong to that organization.

County Court.
The June session of the County Court opened yesterday with His Honor Judge Waller on the bench. The following grand jury was sworn in: A. G. Gibson, foreman; Samuel Byrson, R. J. Edmiston, Alfred J. Finlay, Henry Hibbard, Robert Logan, John L. Madill, J. R. Donnell, George Elliott, Joseph T. Green, Ebenezer Jenkins, W. F. Mather, Daniel Young. In his address to the grand jury His Honor spoke of the necessity of a house of refuge for the old and infirm who at present were being sent under the vagrancy act to the goal. He commented on the absence of criminal cases on the docket and spoke favorably of the reduction in the jury system which was a step in the direction of doing away with jury trials. The first case taken up was that of McCormack vs. Howry Co.

FOUND DEAD.

The Body of Mrs. Martha Mann, of Lindsay Found in Her House—An Inquest.

An elderly woman named Mrs. Martha Mann, who lived alone in a neat frame house on Albert street near Durham street was missed from about her premises last week, but was supposed to have gone a short distance out in the country to visit a family with whom she had spent a short time recently.

On Sunday it was found that she had not gone there, and on the house being entered she was found dead on the floor, partly undressed. Chief Constable Bell and the coroner were notified, and on enquiry the circumstances seemed to call for an inquest, which was opened this morning by Coroner Poole, and adjourned till this evening, when it will be resumed at the police court at 7 o'clock. Dr. Burrows made the post mortem. She had been dead about a week.—Lindsay Post.

MISSIONARIES SAFE.

The Stations Destroyed, but the Lives of the Workers Saved.

The following cable received by the Methodist mission office yesterday brings the welcome news of the personal safety of the missionaries in China, who, it was feared had been murdered.
"Kiating, property utterly destroyed; workers safe."
A dispatch from Shanghai says telegrams from Chingki report the missions destroyed by rioters. Officials refused to afford any protection to the missionaries until the mob had finished their work of destruction. Other missions are reported to be threatened. The Viceroy, Liu, is chiefly blamed for the action of the mob.

NO BIKES ON SUNDAY.

London and Picton Methodist Conferences Object to Them.

At the London Methodist conference yesterday the Sabbath observance committee reported as follows: "We are strongly averse to the running of trains, issuance of newspapers, operating of street cars, using our canal, locks, etc., on the Lord's Day. We regret that by family visiting, buying and selling milk, arranging for funerals, pleasure, riding bicycles, and hiring of liveries, the sacredness of the Lord's Day is much infringed upon."

It was recommended that frequent attention be called to the subject from the pulpit and in our Sunday schools, that parents and all our membership be careful not to sanction or practice anything that shall derogate from its sanctity. Also that workingmen use their organizations to prevent grasping and conscienceless corporations from bleeding from their time for rest and worship. This was adopted. The conference expressed its earnest sympathy over the sad calamity reported to have happened to the missionary work in China. Rev. Mr. Cassidy, missionary from Japan, spoke on the possible truth or uncertainty of the intelligence, also urged the importance of a missionary society at every Annual Conference. Mr. Cassidy spoke most energetically and encouragingly of the mission work in Japan.

At the session of the Hay conference yesterday reports of the Standing Committees were read. That of the Sabbath observance sustained John Chastillon, M. P., in his efforts to make prominent Sabbath observances. It condemned generally Sabbath funerals, Sunday day excursions, unnecessary bicycling, Sunday visiting and the like. A long discussion, and the item in reference thereto was amended to show that there was no antagonism between the church and the societies.

Fresh Canadian Strawberries received every day. Prices as low as possible at J. B. Oke & Co.

THE CHEESE BOARD.

Large Quantity Boarded—Mr. Hodgson Lodges a Complaint.

A large amount of cheese was boarded at the regular meeting of the Cheese Board yesterday morning and the price reached 78c. The number of boxes boarded was 5,469 as follows:—

Keene, 214; Warmintster, 15c; Shearer, 217; Westwood, 230; Central Smith, 185; Waring, 171; Norwood, 150; Cherry, 102; Oakdale, 120; Missing Link, 72; North Smith, 257; Lakeland, 170; Melrose Abbey, 157; Pine Grove, 185; Peterborough, 134; Woodbine, 100; Maple Leaf, 130; Gr. monde, 275; Young's Point, 76; Lang, 243; Fraserville, 102; North Dumfries, 102; Bobaygeon, 131; Lakeview, 82; Treeview, 110; Glenfort, 136; Mount Pleasant, 101; Daisy D., 100; Fleetwood, 123; Cardale, 48; Perrytown, 70; Hope, 30; Orono, 140; Newtonville, 30; Myrtle, 30; Milbrook, 12; Geneva, 10; Darlington Union, 173; Brooklyn, 140; Manchester, 73; Blackstock, 132.

The buyers present were Messrs. Wright, Cook, Fitzgerald, Spence, Hodgson and Jones.

MR. HODGSON'S COMPLAINT.
Mr. Hodgson stated to the cheesemakers present that he would not accept any cracked cheese and would go to lay over his matter. Cheese with cracked tops allowed skippers to get in during the warm weather. They had lost a good deal of money through cheese sent out in this way. A cheese factory had sent a saw cheese when ordered to be kept out.

Mr. Drummond believed if the cheesemakers were true it would be of much injury to the Board, and factories should endeavor to carry on business without underhand methods.

Mr. Hodgson informed the Board that he had samples of the cheese he complained of in his warehouse in Ashburnham and they could be inspected.

WITH THE SPORTS

The Port Hope Times comments as follows on the ball game of Saturday: "The Beaver Baseball Team of Port Hope tried conclusions with the Peterborough's at the Athletic Grounds on Saturday afternoon and won the visitors after an exciting and interesting game by a score of 13 runs to eight. The visitors were fairly and squarely defeated, but, in keeping with the reputation of all defeated organizations hailing from the Edison village, charged the umpire with winking the game for Port Hope. The gentleman who acted in that capacity is one of Port Hope's best ball players and is noted for his impartial umpiring and honesty. Yet the Peterborough papers charge him with being anything but honest."

WHAT GALL!
The Athletics, Peterborough's first team, have written for a game with the Ontarios. They do not wish a return game. The first two teams in Peterborough have arranged and this game is, we suppose, for the purpose of seeing what sort of a team they are, as by playing with the Athletics, which by their communication they recognize as a first class team, the Peterborough baseball club will go to Lindsay on Friday where they will cross bats with the Lindsay ball tossers.

NOTES.
The Athletics turned out for practice in force last night. On Monday they will go to Madoc and try conclusions with the team there.

Dr. Carmichael, of Peterborough, supported the wedding party, and Miss Eva Elliott, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The wedding party drove to Peterborough last night and took the midnight train for Montreal from whence they will go to Portland, which will be their future home.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL

In Regular June Session—Warden Pearce's Address.

The County Council met at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon with Warden Pearce in the chair and the following members present: Ashburnham—John Burnham, M. P., reeve; Lakeland—W. H. Cavement, reeve; Havelock—S. S. Joyce, reeve; Belmont and Methuen—J. H. Brown, reeve; L. A. Auger, deputy reeve; Burleigh and Anstruther—Alex. Brown, reeve; Asphodel—Wm. Huch, reeve; S. Scott, deputy reeve; Chaudron—Wm. Huch, reeve; L. A. Auger, deputy reeve; Dumfries—Ed. Hawthorne, deputy reeve; H. A. Moore, deputy reeve; Kilmore—S. S. Joyce, reeve; L. A. Auger, deputy reeve; M. Mansfield, reeve; Harvey—Robt. Shaw, reeve; North Monaghan—Joseph Forster, reeve; Otonabee—Wm. Anderson, reeve; T. J. Johnston, 1st deputy reeve; John Lancaster, 2nd deputy reeve; Smith, James Middleton, reeve; Wm. McMillan, deputy reeve.

Warden Pearce delivered his address immediately after the reading of the minutes. It was a masterly effort and the information it contained is of vital importance to the county. After congratulating the members on the sound financial condition of the county and paying the clerk and treasurer a deserved tribute for their efficiency and the accuracy, system and neatness of keeping the accounts, books and papers of the county, he prophesied better times for the county and stated that the world-wide depression, which Canada had escaped with only a few disastrous effects, is drawing to a close. In connection with this state of affairs he announced that arrangements had been made for securing what money may be required until taxes are paid, at a reduced rate of interest.

In regard to the Kilmount bridge, a communication was received from the clerk of Victoria county asking that action be taken to the effect that the bridge be sold in the wardens' opinion, a county bridge, and section 38 of the Consolidated Municipal Act did not apply to bridges situated as the Kilmount bridge is, and that the county was not vigorously resist any demands for repairs of maintenance of it.

He had great pleasure in reporting the action of the Victoria County Council. The Council had shown great wisdom in abandoning wooden bridges and erecting substantial iron and steel bridges which will stand for years to come.

The changes in the bridge's chambers, giving a separate entrance, as directed, have been completed and the room has been decorated and the new carpet and furniture placed in the same.

Mr. Michael Sanderson, Esq., has tendered his resignation as a member of the Board of Audit and requested that his successor be Mr. John Burnham. Warden Pearce sincerely hoped that this request would be granted.

The question of good roads was dealt with. He said it was high time some change should be made in the way of improving our leading highways through the country. The system in vogue in Hastings had many features commending its adoption.

A feeling tribute was paid to His Honor the late ex-Judge of the County, Robert Denison, J. C. J. Post money would also be reverberated by the Council and the people of the County.

On motion of Mr. Moloney, seconded by Mr. Leach, a resolution was reported to report on the Warden's address, composed as follows: Messrs. Anderson, Forster, Casement, Middleton, Burnham, Hawthorne and Johnston.

The Council will meet at 10 o'clock this morning.

Twenty Thousand Roses.

There are nearly 30,000 rose trees in bloom now at Danlop's conservatories, Elm-st., west, Toronto. Visitors are always welcome. Mr. Danlop is proud of his establishment and takes pleasure in speaking on his business. He ships them by mail and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. See room, 45 Yonge-st., and 45 King street west.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is safe to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter century back. Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure all these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co's for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family as still another wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co's. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King Street, West, Toronto.

The Treaty with the Powers Does Not Satisfy Them—Corea is Demoralized Completely—
Russia Strengthening Her Defenses.
Special to The Times.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 12.

WITH the steamers Empress of China comes the following: Tokio, Japan, May 31.—No event of striking importance has occurred in the past fortnight and none is expected until after the reunion of the Japanese ministry at Tokio.

The people nourish in sullen silence their discontent with the methods by which peace has been secured, and look upon this as a participation in a display of gratification at the close of the war. In many quarters doubts are expressed as to the durability of the settlement with Russia, Germany and France. The newspapers are not permitted to speak freely, but a majority of those who escaped suspension hint at the probability that fresh entanglements are being entered into by the Government, and continue depressed and war bonds are selling at lower figures than before peace was declared. The latest information that the Government is manifesting much interest in reorganizing up to the present time.
The foreign office affirms with regard to either of the three recently hostile European powers that the Government is not prepared to contract with any of them, and that the effect that further trouble is anticipated.

RUSSIA STRENGTHENING.

It is believed to be true that Russia goes on strengthening her defenses at Vladivostok with undiminished energy. But Japan evidently does not look upon this as a warning, for she is disbanding her reserves and is preparing to restore her army divisions to their proper footing. The Government is manifesting much interest in reorganizing up to the present time.

WHAT A PERSON WEIGHS.

It is difficult to determine exactly, even with seemingly accurate scales.

Many persons weigh themselves frequently and imagine that they know their weight. Sweet illusion! Nothing is more difficult than to know one's weight exactly, even with access to first class scales. We hear one say, "I am making flesh; I have increased two pounds," and another, "I am getting into form; I weigh three pounds less," but while I do not wish to make myself disagreeable, especially to people who keep account of their weight, I am convinced that in most of such cases there is really not an ounce of gain or loss, or if there is any variation it is not what the scales record.

A lady goes into a store, weighs herself and receives a card, Aug. 15, 125 pounds. She goes to the country, and returning after several months weighs herself again in the same store and receives a card, on which she finds inscribed, Nov. 22, 125 pounds. She has gained six pounds in three months and ascribes it to the change, the fresh air, etc. She feels happy—good weight, good health. But is this increase real? In nine cases out of ten it is only apparent, due mainly to wearing more or heavier clothes, thicker boots, etc.

The ordinary methods for determining variations in weight give absolutely fallacious results. The causes which influence weight are numerous and it is difficult to take into consideration. For example, was the weight taken immediately after breakfast or long after, or following active exercise attended with free perspiration? Again, many people, even educated people, have extraordinary ideas as to what affects the weight of the body. Have you not been asked more than once if it is true that one weighs less after meals than before? As if every additional weight in the pockets or the stomach were not necessarily revealed by the balance. The fact is that people are in the habit of weighing themselves, for good luck, once after breakfast, another day before dinner, another day with heavy clothes on, another day when it rains, etc. Add to this the errors of the scales, and who can say that he knows exactly his own weight or range of variation?

One's weight is like a mobile expression—it changes every instant. The study of this matter is nevertheless of considerable physiological and hygienic importance, a fact of which I have become thoroughly convinced in the course of more than ten years' investigation of the subject. The inaccuracy of ordinary balances, such as one finds in hotels, at railway stations, etc., determined me to make a portable balance to weigh 100 kilograms (220 pounds), and to be exact to within an ounce, and since then I have weighed myself regularly every day at the same hour, in the morning and under identical conditions, and today I possess a record of five years of experiments conducted with the utmost precision.

Every day when weighing myself I record the barometric and hygienic variations, the temperature and the dimensions of the day. These experiments have convinced me more than ever that our weight is in a perpetual state of fluctuation. After eliminating the errors of the instrument our weight varies, subject to innumerable influences. At breakfast on a warm day one loses more than an hour's weight. How, then, are you to arrive at your true weight when it is subject to such incessant fluctuations? When we remember that 70 per cent of our body is water, there is little difficulty in understanding that our weight must vary continually with the transpiration of moisture; moreover, it varies with the pressure of the atmosphere.

The more variations in atmospheric humidity suffice to account for a change of more than a pound, and other causes may suffice to account for another pound. The person who weighs only at intervals may infer from this that he is growing lighter or heavier, but the conclusion is unwarranted. There are some people, on the other hand, who will tell you their weight never changes. This, too, is an error; it is constantly fluctuating. The fault is generally that the scales are not correctly adjusted to a pound or so. For ordinary purposes this is of no consequence, but for recording changes of weight in sickness it is of very serious moment.

The scales are not without their importance in medical practice, especially with infants. The weight of an infant increases in definite proportion during the first weeks of life, and there can be no departure from this regularity of increase without impairment of health. For adult persons, too, it is good to consult the scales, for they are the barometer of health. Any sudden increase of weight, amounting to a pound or so in a day, indicates a tendency to disease. It is evidence of health when the weight does not fluctuate more than three or four ounces from day to day. Great fluctuations imply functional derangement.—Dr. Farrille in Correspondent.

The Blue Heron.

Wherever the blue heron was he always looked as if he might be going to do something presently. Even when he was on his mind, but at this moment—well, there are times when a heron's strength is to stand still. Certainly he seemed in no danger of overeating. A creature told me that the major made an excellent dish if killed in the full of the moon. The bird, he said, feeds mostly at night and faces east with the moon to help him.

If the reader would dine off roast blue heron, therefore, as I hope I never shall, let him mind the lunar phase. But think of the gastronomic ups and downs of a bird that is fat and lean by turns 18 times a year! Possibly my informant overstated the case, but in any event I would trust the major to bear himself like a philosopher. If there is any one of God's creatures that can wait for what he wants, it must be the great blue heron.—"Florida Sketch Book."

The Difference.

The other night, when the streets were crowded, a dog running along the sidewalk stopped on a crossing, and "pointing" his muzzle in the air began to howl. It was worth while noticing the way in which different people who heard the animal were affected. One woman stopped and began to wring her hands. "I know that my brother is dead. I'm just as sure of it as if I had seen him. I never knew a dog to howl that you did not hear of death."

"Won't somebody shoot that brute?" exclaimed a man, looking for a convenient stick to throw at the offender.

The policeman on the beat had started for the dog when a young lady who was crossing the street stopped and patted the animal on the head. "Poor doggy," she said in a sympathetic voice, "you're lost, aren't you? Poor fellow!" and the dog stopped howling and trotted along after his new friend.—Boston Herald.

The Bay of Quints Conference will meet in Trenton next year.

BURDOCK'S BLOOD BITTERS

MANY LIVES IN PERIL.

OVER FOUR HUNDRED MINERS ENTOMBED.

Result of a Fire Damp Explosion—Nicaragua Commission Report—A Colony of Murderers—Behring Sea Matters—The Cuban Revolution—Gomes Still Alive.

Special to The Times.

ERLIN, June 11.—An explosion of fire damp occurred in a mining pit near Antonsenbute, Prussian Silesia, today, while five hundred men were at work in the mine. Only 40 have been rescued, leaving 460 entombed.

NICARAGUA COMMISSION REPORT.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A favorable report from the government commission which went to Nicaragua a few months ago to examine the route of the proposed Maritime canal, is confidently expected on their return to the United States next month. Private letters received from members state that the commission has already traversed over the route from Greytown to Brito, and that they are convinced from a cursory examination that the plan of a canal is a feasible one. The commission is now preparing to make a second and more careful survey of the route.

TROLLEY VICTIM NO. 111.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Victim No. 111 has been killed by the trolley in Brooklyn for the Brooklyn Heights Railroad was crushed between two cars on Alabama avenue, near Fulton street, where the cars are switched for the return journey to Fulton Ferry. Boys were fixing the gridiron fender of car No. 203, and did not notice the stealthy approach of car No. 224. His right leg was caught between the bumpers. The car was backed, and the unfortunate man, white as a sheet and gasping feebly, was carried to the sidewalk. His thigh was crushed, the torn flesh protruding from the rents in his trousers. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where Dr. George R. Fowler, Surgeon, assisted by Dr. W. C. Wood and House assistant Dr. H. H. Wood, amputated the leg above the thigh. Five minutes afterwards the man died of shock.

REBELLION SEA.

LONDON, June 11.—[In] the House of Commons today, Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, introduced a bill, providing for certain prohibitions and regulations of sealing in Behring Sea in accord with the terms of the treaty.

VICTORIA WOODBULL.

NEW YORK, June 11.—John Biddell Martin, the well known London banker and president of the London Athletic Club, arrived in New York from Southampton, on Saturday. Mr. Martin was accompanied by his wife, which is a first time for him. Woodhull, and who takes as much interest in athletics and other outdoor sports as her husband. Mr. Martin's visit has no special athletic significance.

ANFUL CLOUDBURST.

VIENNA, June 11.—Advises received from Wiener, Neustadt, state that the recent cloudburst in that section washed away a great number of bridges and houses in the town of Schwarzenbach, Schottland, and Hochwetterdorf, in some instances carrying away buildings the entire length of streets, and submerging large tracts of territory. Twelve persons were drowned in the town of Schwarzenbach alone, and it is believed that the total loss of life is very great. The damage done in these places, which peculiarly is over 300,000 florins, cannot be replaced for years.

GOMES ALIVE.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 11.—A cablegram to the Times-Union from Key West says: It is now known that the expedition that left this country Wednesday night landed in the north of Cuba in the province of Las Villas, near Sagua La Grande.

The expedition, under the command of General Roloff, immediately upon landing were joined by 8,000 insurgents. General Gomez, reported killed by the Spanish newspapers, has invaded Camaguey at the head of 2500 of the best equipped men, where he was joined by 700 men headed by a nephew of the Marquis of Santa Lucia. In official circles the death of Marti is denied.

A COLONY OF MURDERERS.

PORTSMOUTH, June 11.—One of the best known lumber men in Ohio is Taylor Davis. He has just returned from Wyoming County, West Virginia, and he says that the state of affairs there is past belief. The county is almost isolated in the State, and being close to the state lines of Kentucky, West Virginia and Old Virginia, it affords criminals a magnificent hiding place. Mr. Davis was told by a Wyoming County official that at the present time there are forty murderers in the County. They are organized and well armed and have a settlement that is naturally a perfect one. Any law officers who would attempt their capture would be killed. Some of them work at logging, but most of them exist on what they can pick up. They come mostly from adjoining States.

Headache and Sour Stomach.

AN AMERICAN EDITOR

CHARLES A. DANA, THE VENERABLE
CHIEF OF THE NEW YORK SUN.The Little Corner Room and Its Place Furnishings—Personal Appearance and Traits of a Man Whose Name Is Known in Every American Household.

The rather naked little corner room in the Sun building, in which Mr. Dana has sat almost daily for 35 years, is a surprise to many persons who see it for the first time. His genuine love of beautiful things, his disposition to acquire them if possible and the extraordinary range and accuracy of his aesthetic appreciations are so widely known that it is quite natural for those who do not understand him to expect to find his tastes reflected in his accustomed place of work. The room might be even better than it is and yet serve Mr. Dana's purpose as well as if it were the gallery of Apollo. On the other hand, if his chair and desk were established in the middle of the vastest and most sumptuous presence chamber to be found anywhere and amid a throng of curious and noisy onlookers, Mr. Dana would work on with the same tranquil efficiency, providing his pen did not splutter and the capacious wastebasket at his feet were emptied from time to time. The process of his mind are neither stimulated nor intimidated by the surroundings. The accessories of luxurious professional habits are absent because they are superfluous to Mr. Dana. If he thought they would help him to make a better newspaper, they would all be there.

In the middle of the small room is a desk table of black walnut, of the Fulton street style and the period of the first administration of Grant; a shabby little round table at the window, where Mr. Dana sits when the day is dark; one leather-covered chair, which does duty as either seat or stool, and two or three extra pairs of spectacles in a case against an easel. These few items constitute what is properly the whole objective equipment of the editor of The Sun. The shelves are probably the newest articles of furniture in the list. They replaced, three or four years ago, another pair of unknown antiquity, brought there by the late Mr. Dana's father, and now occupying alongside of Mr. Dana's desk, the place of honor in that poet's celebrated collection of edged instruments.

Into the corner room described there swings nearly every morning in the year a man of 55, looking 15 years younger, largely built, with a step as firm as a sea captain's, vigorous, sometimes to abruptness, in his bodily movements, but deliberate and gentle in his speech; dressed always in such a way that his clothes seem to belong to him and not he to them; with strong brown hair, rather large, which do not tremble as they hold back or paper, and a countenance familiar to most Americans through portraits or caricatures, whose marked features the caricaturists distort in various whimsical ways without ever succeeding in making the face more either ridiculous or ignoble. Mr. Dana's full beard is trimmed more closely than in former years. It makes as snow white only by courtesy. The last strongholds of the pigment are not yet conquered.

The impression which Mr. Dana makes upon those who come into contact with him personally for the first time or the fourth is that of vigorous and sympathetic to good will, both desirous and capable of pleasing. He is frank and engaging in conversation, and the wonderful range of his intellectual interests makes him equally ready to listen or to communicate. Men who seek him merely to measure their wit against his for a purpose often go away charmed with their reception and well satisfied with results until they begin to reckon at a distance what has actually been accomplished by the interview. If shrewd kindness beams on the stranger through one of the two lenses of his gold-bowed spectacles, kind shrewdness is alert behind the other glass. He has learned how to say no when necessary, and even to say it in Italian, but he has never learned to say an inconsiderate thing. Mr. Dana uses no tobacco, but that is not the reason why he is superior to petulance and never frets himself under any circumstances, whatever his mood. He knows wine and respects it and himself, but that is not the reason why he has never learned to say a good word about beer, even if the good be disguised in camped handwriting and words misapplied, while the bad is displayed in typography beautiful to see. He prefers the mushroom to mushroom and milk, being both a connoisseur and a cultivator of the former, but he is not the reason why, as a journalist, his perception of the interesting, the unexpected, the refreshing, has not been dulled by 50 years' exercise.

Mr. Dana was born with a voracious intellectual appetite which has remained healthy and insatiable all of his life. He shrinks at nothing short of actual dullness or literary deformity so marked as to be repulsive. He is a tireless reader of books, magazines and journals in many languages. Whether print or manuscript comes under his eye, he takes in the ideas seemingly by whole paragraphs rather than by words, lines or even sentences. Unlike most other very rapid readers that I have known, he does not merely sample the page or the chapter or the book.

A glance through his glasses seems to establish a circuit which once puts his brain in possession not only of the essential facts, but also of any refinement of style that may be there, or any novel or felicitous verbal formula, no matter how inconspicuous. When he closes the book or throws aside the newspaper, probability is small that he has missed anything worth having. This process of acquisition has been going on without a break and with constantly increasing speed ever since his early boyhood. It is supported by a memory which seems with disconcerting ease that day, when a second demonstration greeted the appearance of the Emperor. The American adventurer, Howie, who broke his parole to the Japanese, was afterwards captured at Wei Hai Wei, has been sent adrift again after several weeks of confinement at Hiroshima. He was last heard of at Shanghai.

Russia Strengthening Her Defenses.

Special to The Times.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 12.

ITH the steamer Empress of China comes the following: Tokyo, Japan, May 31.—No event of striking interest has occurred in the past fortnight and none is expected till after the reunion of the Japanese ministry at Tokyo. The people nourish in sullen silence their discontent with the methods by which peace has been secured and as a whole refuse to participate in any display of gratification at the close of the war. In many quarters doubts are expressed as to the durability of the settlement with Russia, Germany and France. The newspapers are not permitted to speak freely, but a majority of those who escaped suspension hint at the probability that fresh entanglements are to be disclosed. Government securities continue depressed and war bonds are selling at lower figures than before peace was declared. The latest information that can be gathered from official circles is distinctly reassuring up to the present time. The foreign office affirms with regard to either of the three recently hostile European powers. The diplomatic representatives of those powers contradict all reports to the effect that further trouble is anticipated.

RUSSIA STRENGTHENING.

It is believed to be true that Russia goes on strengthening her defenses at Vladivostok with undiminished energy. But Japan evidently does not look upon this as a warning, for she is disbanding her reserves and is preparing to restore her army divisions to their proper footing. The Government is manifesting much caution respecting public opinion. Public feeling is unfriendly to the administration. The acquisition of Formosa is taken as a matter of course, while the abandonment of Manchuria is bewailed as grievously as if the dearest hopes of the nation had been centered wholly upon that single strip of territory. It is understood that the younger Lord Li, son of Li Hong Chang, who was sent to Formosa as commissioner to arrange for the formalities of the transfer, went there against his will, and that he is now being held in custody and circumstances again direct attention to the alleged precarious position of the Li family. Undoubtedly the victory is now the subject of particularly malignant intrigues, but he has baffled his enemies so often that no extreme consequences are expected from this latest organized opposition.

COREA DEMORALIZED.

The Government of Corea has fallen into such demoralization that no pretenses of reform is now maintained. The ministers give no heed to public business, but scheme only to enrich themselves; some by negotiating with Russia for the sale of opium on the eastern coast; some by offering counter proposals to the European powers which are opposed to Russia's aggression; and others by contriving to sell the titles which were driven from the country for their crimes when China's influence was destroyed. Court intrigues have not yet found a way to bring order out of the chaos and it is reported, that sick and weary of the struggle he is about to leave the country. The Koreans believe that Japan has decided to hand over her task of reconstructing the prostrated kingdom and nothing can prevent the Queen from reviving the corrupt system of former years. She will be supreme for the time being. The Russian who formerly held her in check has apparently gone into decrepitude since her grandson was banished for plotting murder and treason. The old man, who had been a cunningly arranged flight from his palace with a view to joining the expropriated criminal, but a hundred policemen drove him back. The Japanese legation is now quite deserted, owing to the impression that Japan's position in Corea will hereafter depend on Russian discretion, but the Japanese Government denies any departure from the policy preserving Corea against self destruction.

NEW ENVOY TO CHINA.

Tadashi Hattori, the Japanese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, has been appointed envoy to China with special instructions for the settlement of all outstanding questions. Hattori is the present Japanese Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, has been appointed envoy to Russia for the second time. On May 30 the business was suspended in Tokyo and the citizens welcomed the Emperor home after an absence of eight months. The celebration was the finest ever witnessed in Japan. The population was increased by multitudes of visitors from the provincial districts. All the principal thoroughfares were decorated with unparalleled richness and profusion. The people's enthusiasm testified that disappointment with some results of the war had not diminished their loyalty to the emperor. The festivities continued the greater part of the night. Fireworks blazed in every direction, and in many quarters the rejoicings continued to the next day, when a second demonstration greeted the appearance of the Emperor. The American adventurer, Howie, who broke his parole to the Japanese, was afterwards captured at Wei Hai Wei, has been sent adrift again after several weeks of confinement at Hiroshima. He was last heard of at Shanghai.

FROM THE MILKMAN.

IT'S A GOOD THING, HE SAYS, THAT THE FLUID IS WATERED.

Otherwise It Would Have a Tendency to Make People Sick—Why He Has No Scruples Whatever About Diluting It. Frank Admiration.

Of course we do and don't make any bones about telling it right out straight. People generally get it upright about our pure milk from Soho farm. It's the purest milk in the world—the milk that is in—and it's good water won't hurt anybody. I know an old coker once who persisted in swearing that water was unhealthy because it rotted shoes and everything, rusted iron and all that, and then he used to look you straight in the eye, screw up one side of his mouth until you thought that corner was going up to his eye without stopping, and clinch his argument by saying, "Just think what a powerful effect water must have on the coating of your stomach!" But that coker had to drink water, had as it was for his stomach, when he took a milk punch.

I agree with you that Soho was a queer name for me to choose for my farm in my mind. You see, the way it happened was this: My wife is a bright little woman, and when I told her that all the milkmen were selling milk right fresh from their own farms she hunted around for a fancy name that would be to the eye and to the taste. But somehow we could not agree about those coked up, and we agreed to leave it to a newspaper man I know, and when I told him about it he said, "So, you're going to have a farm of your own, in your mind." And I caught on right off. I remember seeing the name on tea caddies when I was in the grocery line, and I clinched it, and ever after that my purest of all milk sold in Brooklyn came from my Soho farm. That's how it was.

Not as long as 20 years ago the milk pump for us milkmen in a certain section of Brooklyn used to be on Kent avenue, near Park, and it was there we all met, after arriving from Jersey City, where in the freight depot were located Soho farm and Soho farm and all the other farms of Orange county, and from this pump, which we as first called on a cow, we drew more than half our milk and three-fourths of our fortune. It was wonderful milk we got there, for if we had been permitted to sell that entirely to our customers it would never have soured, and being one cow's milk, there would never have been any trouble with the babies, and the milk would have been delicious. But the milk we got from that pump in Kent avenue, near Park, did not have a milky color, and both fathers and mothers would have soured on it themselves if our fond hopes could have been realized and we would have gone so far as to have offered the pure spring water at so much a quart. But that wouldn't go, although it was the purest spring water I ever drank and never made me bilious. Some milk will stand more watering than other milk because it is stronger. All milk ought to be diluted, because it is too thick and has a strong tendency to make everybody bilious. That is what I learned from a good Methodist woman named Low, who lived in Flushing when I was a boy and had a few cows whose milk she sold to the neighbors. I never forgot what she told me when I came upon her suddenly one day in the collar of the house to find out when I had to bring her so much water from the well. She told me it would be unwholesome milk, which might make all her customers sick, and so she performed a Christian duty by making it have water, and they liked it all the better. And when I got in the milk business I found other good Christians who had the same doctrine, and, if you will believe me, this diffusion applies to other things among good Christian brethren as well as between dealers in groceries and so on.

I can't say that I ever could countenance making milk out of chalk and spring water, no matter how pure and sparkling the water might be. You see, there is always a sediment from chalk milk, and it is a dead give away, but I have often wondered that there might be an excess of milk made so that we might take it and add water to it and call it pure Soho farm milk. This would save a world of trouble and expense and make life easy for the milkman, instead of a burden, as it is now. We wouldn't have to sort for Jersey at 11 o'clock at night and milk the pump at 5 in the morning, but we could do all the business in the rear of the store, where we sell our milk, just before we open up for customers in the morning. Another great advantage would be that our cow would never give out, and we could always have over a good supply of fresh milk from Soho farm and be able to supply even the largest demands of hotels and others. It is not every milkman you come across who would be as honest and truthful as I am to you, but I do not and never did use any harm in softening up the milk a little with water and giving it a lovely baby blue color. I know from an experience of many years that people will not buy and use what is really pure milk, and I leave it to any man who ever sold a quart of milk to back me up in what I say. You can't sell pure milk. I don't suppose it is without any water when we get it at the freight depot in Jersey, and I'm mighty sure people do not get it entirely pure when it is sold at retail unless they ask for it particularly. I've produced it as pure as it came from the cows on the real farm, and people who wanted it or thought they did didn't want any more of it. You see, it is too rich for the stomachs of most people and too rich for the blood of everybody. If customers would do their own watering, that would be another thing, but they don't know how as well as we milkmen.—Milkman in Brooklyn Eagle.

A SAILOR SWIMS TEN MILES PURSUED BY MAN-EATERS.

Vessel Struck by Lightning and the Crew Thrown into the Sea—The Poor Fellows Kept Afloat by Clinging to Spars Until Rescued—Tip Stanley's Almost Incredible Adventure. Special to The Times.

QUARANTINE, N. J., June 12. THE little British steamer Antilla, which trades between this port and the Bahamas arrived this afternoon from Nassau, N. P., and Governor's Harbor, with 30 passengers on board. Among these passengers were six distinguished seamen, the survivors of the crew of the barque Carrie E. Long, which was struck by lightning at nine o'clock on the evening of May 21 when off Gun Bay, Bahamas. The Carrie E. Long was bound from Philadelphia for Havana with a cargo of crude petroleum and acids. She left the former place on May 6th. When the barque was struck by lightning an explosion occurred, and the vessel was instantly

ENVELOPED IN FLAMES. Capt. Rolf with the mate, and two seamen were burned to death. The other members of the crew jumped into the sea and swam for their lives, grasping spars and other floating material and endeavoring to keep afloat. Tip Stanley, a fine robust looking seaman about 25 years of age, swam to the shore a distance of about ten miles. He had two small ears or rather paddles with him and used them to frighten off the sharks with which these waters are infested. The exertion necessitated by the constant splashing of the oars had nearly exhausted him several times but the fear of the sharks prevented him from giving up. In an exhausted condition after being in the water seven hours he landed at Gun Cay at four o'clock in the morning. A short time after daylight the other members of the crew, five in number were PICKED UP BY NATIVES and brought ashore. Later they were taken to Nassau in a small schooner and there embarked on the schooner Antilla for New York. None of the survivors were able to save a thing. Stanley was entirely naked when he landed.

Headache and Sour Stomach. "I was out of order in general and suffered with headache and sour stomach, occasionally I began taking Blood's Sarsaparilla and used two bottles, and found that I had gained 15 pounds in weight and was feeling much better." Maxwell D. Shengaw, Colorado, Ont.

A NOTABLE EXCEPTION.

A Strong Feeling in Favor of a Canadian Product in the State of New York.

Special to The Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 11.—In spite of a strong sentiment prevailing throughout this state that nothing good can come out of Canada, a feeling is beginning to grow that there are certain notable exceptions and among them is the case of the specific remedy for all diseases of the kidneys and all complaints arising from a derangement of those organs, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. The medicine has received a thorough test and is being prescribed by every druggist but by physicians, whose well known reluctance to admit any virtue in a proprietary medicine makes this testimony to its merits still more remarkable.

Statements that

MOTHERS

Should Consider.

Every group of beads has noticed the small beads that appear near the top of the small. These are indeed miniature plants, and if cut out and planted, just as potatoes are, each will next season produce a perfect beet plant with as large a root downward as one grown from seed. It may seem that there can be no practical object in growing beets thus, for it is always easy to grow beet seed, but it is found that when a high grade young beet has been secured by sowing strains of the sweetest beets there is a tendency to retrograde in quality. Hence some beet growers in Europe are experimenting in growing from the bud. Having once obtained a root with high per cent of sugar, the quality can be maintained by growing stock from buds. It is possible that this process, if continued long, will tend to establish a growth of beet roots with many prongs and shoots. The form of growth would be objectionable as making the beet less compact.—American Cultivator.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is safe to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter century.

Mr. Joseph Sarapilla, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure all these years.

In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that could give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co's for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family as a still another wedding gift to take place. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

Good Health.

And a good appetite go hand in hand. With the loss of appetite, the system can not long maintain itself. Thus the fortifications of good health are broken down and the system is liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Thousands who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla testify to its great merit as a purifier of the blood, its power to restore and sharpen the appetite and promote a healthy action of the digestive organs. Thus it is, not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story and constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for this medicine. Why not take Hood's Sarsaparilla now?

Terrible Condition.

I lost flesh and became depressed in spirits. Finally a friend who had been benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla advised me to try it and I did so. I continued taking it until I used twelve bottles and today I can honestly say Hood's Sarsaparilla has restored me to my former health." JACOB WILCOX, St. Thomas, Ontario.

THE THIRD WARRANT

MAY BE ISSUED IN THE DAVID SCOLLIE CASE.

What This is to the Crown Will Neither Do or Affirm—Mrs. Gray said she smashed the window with an axe—the Cow's Saw Me. Greger on That Fatal Morning.

Developments in the Scollie case may be expected any hour. Yesterday the Crown's solicitor both in Peterborough and Toronto were actively engaged in attending to the small details necessary for presenting the proceedings for extradition.

In Toronto the Attorney General's department communicated with the authorities at Oshawa, Ontario, and Thomas Gray came to his wife under the eye of the authorities there and can be placed under arrest at a moment's notice.

The authorities in Peterborough have been told that the information furnished by the Cow boys of Hiram's was interviewed and from them was elicited the same facts as were given yesterday's issue. This is an important point for the Crown. At the time the Cow's saw old Scollie's body all parts of it were exposed equally to the heat of the flames. The trunk was wrapped in a quilt which he had not been burned away. When they broke the head with the pole, it rolled over and became separated from the body. The deduction is that the body was nearly separated from the body before the fire commenced, for the heat that would have been required to burn it from the trunk would have consumed the trunk as well. The Cow's had excellent reasons for not giving this evidence at the inquest.

The deposition of Mr. J. Graham Weir was also taken yesterday. The substance of it is not known but it will have an important bearing on the case. Other depositions will be taken, but already enough information is in possession of the authorities to enable the extradition proceedings to be taken.

There are good grounds for the belief that a warrant will be issued for the arrest of a third party and that the arrest will entail the extradition of the party concerned. The authorities would neither say or affirm this when questioned by the Times.

Another statement which Mrs. McGreger, in her deposition, said Mrs. Gray made to her is that the morning of the fire Mrs. Gray smashed the windows in their house with an axe which she said she took from behind the sewing machine. Whether she said this to hide the fact that the sewing machine had been removed, is not known, but she was told by Mr. McGreger that several others that she had smashed the windows with the axe. This is another important point for Mrs. Gray. She must have had the axe in the house when the fire broke out, for it was to have been found at a time when even a man would be expected to lose his presence of mind.

WHAT WAS MR. MCGREGOR DOING? The Cow's will be expected to furnish the Crown with another important piece of evidence. They aver that on the morning of the fire when they were a considerable distance from the burning house, they met William McGreger. He was running from the direction of Gray's house, and they believed he was under the influence of liquor, for they said he acted like a drunken man.

Mr. McGreger was in Mr. George Lipsett's store on the morning of the fire in company with a local undertaker. They wanted him to go over to Gray's house with the undertaker, but he appeared to be horrified at the thought of going near the place and had to be fairly shoved out of the store.

THE DOCTORS' STORY. County Magistrate Edmondson will go to Toronto today and take the depositions of Dr. Cavan and Dr. Edmondson. As these are taken Detective Murray will start for Florida. The depositions will then be made public and the facts in the case of the Cow's will be made known to those who have the warrants will be made known.

LIVED IN PETERBOROUGH. Nine years ago Thomas Gray and wife lived at 128 Antrim street, Peterborough, and the neighbors say that Mrs. Gray was a woman of strong passions and violent temper. The local authorities do not furnish any definite information as to extradition proceedings in reference to Gray and his wife.

FELL FROM A ROOF. Alexander Austin Sustains Severe Injuries From a Fall.

Alexander Austin, who lives about four miles from Downer's corner in Oshawa, was with a serious accident shortly after 6 o'clock Thursday night.

Austin was climbing a barn for Mr. James Wilson. The last board upon which he was resting his weight, suddenly gave way and he was precipitated over the side of the barn and striking the ground in his fall he landed on the ground, a distance of 22 feet. He alighted on his stomach.

He was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried into the house where he was regained consciousness. He complained of little pain except in his shoulder.

Dr. Carmichael was sent for and attended to the injured man. He found that Austin's injuries consisted of a bruised head, sprained wrist and a sore shoulder. The bones were broken which is somewhat remarkable considering that Austin fell 22 feet.

Internal injuries may develop from the fall, but Dr. Carmichael does not anticipate anything of the kind. Austin is a married man with a family.

THE C.P.R. PICNIC. The posters for the C.P.R. picnic which will be held in Peterborough on the 27th of this month are being issued from the station office. A splendid program of sports has been provided. About 5,000 people will visit Peterborough on this occasion.

A Man Nearly Drowned. On Tuesday, a boat containing eight men driven against the Trent and one of the number, John Corcoran, of Peterborough had a narrow escape from drowning. The accident occurred at the mouth of the river where the boat was stuck on a "jam" of logs which the men were about to break up. As they approached the "jam" the boat was swung round by the wind current and, as the men were thrown into the water, every one struck out for shore, and soon landed, but Corcoran was carried down to the head of the river, and after a hard struggle was unable to obtain a footing. He was being swept into the rapids and over Sumner's Falls. Both ends of the punt were knocked out, and it floated down the river. The men lost their life poles, sprays, oars and paddles.—Campbellford News.

HER STRAIGHT REPLY.

MANITOBA SAYS SHE WILL NOT ACT ON THE REMEDIAL ORDER.

The Legislature of the Northwest Province Gives the Government an Unquestioned Answer—Her Reason for Non-Compliance. Special to the Times.

WINNIPEG, June 15.—The following is the answer which the Manitoba Legislature, which re-assembled this afternoon, will send to the Dominion Government in reply to the order from Ottawa to restore separate schools. It will be proposed as a resolution, but it is a memorial to the Governor-General-in-Council.

THE MEMORIAL. The memorial first recites at length the clauses in the remedial order and sums up their effect on the legislation of the province. Reply is then made in the following words:

"The privileges by said order we are commanded to restore to our Roman Catholic fellow-citizens are substantially the same privileges which they enjoyed previous to the year 1880. Compliance with the terms of the order would restore Catholic Separate schools with more satisfactory guarantees for their efficiency than existed prior to said date. The educational policy embodied in our present statute was adopted as an expression of the results of the policy theretofore followed under which Separate Roman Catholic schools, now sought to be restored, had existed for upwards of thirty years; said schools were found to be inefficient as conducted under the Roman Catholic section of the Board of Education; they did not possess attributes of modern Public schools. Their conduct, management and regulation was defective. As a result of leaving a large section of the population with no better means of education than was thus supplied, many people grew up in a state of illiteracy. So far as we are aware there has never been an attempt made to defeat these schools on their merits, but they do not meet the demand upon which the expenditure of public money in their support could be justified.

A STRAIGHT REPLY. "We are therefore compelled to respectfully state to your Excellency in Council that we cannot accept the responsibility of carrying into effect the terms of the remedial order.

"Objections upon principle may be taken to any modification of our educational statutes which would result in the establishment of one or more sets of Separate schools. Apart, however, from objections upon principle, there are serious objections from a practical, educational standpoint. Some of these objections may be briefly indicated. We labor under great difficulties in maintaining an efficient system of primary education. School taxes bear heavily upon our people. A large amount of land which is free from school taxes and the great extent of country over which our small population is scattered, present obstacles to efficiency and progress. Reforms effected in 1880 have given a strong impetus to educational work, but difficulties which are inherent in our circumstances have constantly to be met.

WOULD ENACTULATE THE SYSTEM. "It will be obvious that the establishment of a set of Roman Catholic schools, followed by a set of Anglican schools, and possibly by a set of Methodist schools, would so enervate our present system that any approach to even our present general standard of efficiency would be quite impossible. We contemplate the inauguration of such a state of affairs with very grave apprehension. We have no hesitation in saying that there cannot be suggested any measure which, to our minds would more seriously imperil the development of our Province.

HIS EXCELLENCY LACKED INFORMATION. "We believe that when the remedial order was made there was not then available to your Excellency in Council full and accurate information as to the working of our former system of schools. We also believe that there was lacking means of forming a correct judgment as to the effect upon this province of the changes in the directions suggested and that such lack still exists.

A FEDERAL INQUIRY SUGGESTED. "Being impressed with this view, we respectfully suggest that it is not yet too late to make a full and deliberate investigation of the whole subject. Should such course be adopted, we shall cheerfully assist in affording the most complete information available. An investigation of such a kind would furnish a substantial basis of fact upon which conclusions could be formed with a reasonable degree of certainty.

MAJESTY ACTION DEPLORED. "It is urged most strongly that, upon so important a matter, involving as it does the religious feelings and convictions of different classes of people in Canada and the educational interests of a province which is expected to become one of the most important in the Dominion, no action should be taken, but that, on the contrary, the greatest care and deliberation should be exercised and full and thorough investigation made.

"While we do not think it proper to enter upon a legal argument in this memorial we deem it our duty to briefly call attention to certain legal and constitutional difficulties which surround the case. It is held by some authorities that any action taken by the Parliament of Canada upon the subject will be irreparable. While this may or may not be held to be sound, it is in our judgment only necessary to point out that there are substantial grounds for entertaining such an opinion. It is our emphasis the necessity for acquiring the most ample knowledge of the facts before any suggestion of Parliamentary action is made.

THE ESSENTIALS OF RESTORATION. "It will be admitted that two essentials of any effective and substantial restoration of Roman Catholic privileges are: "1. The right to levy school taxes; "2. The right to participate in legislative school grants.

"Without these privileges Separate schools cannot properly be carried on, and without them, therefore, any proposed restoration of privileges would be illusory. It may be held that the power to collect taxes for school purposes, conferred upon school boards by our former educational statutes, was conferred by virtue of the provisions of sub-section 2 of section 92 of British North American Act, and not by virtue of the provisions of section 22, Manitoba Act. If this law be well founded, then that portion of the Act of 1880 which abolishes the said right to collect taxes is not subject to appeal to your Excellency in Council, and the remedial order and any subsequent Act of Parliament of Canada (in so far as the may purport to restore the said right) will be ultra vires. As to the legislative grant, we hold that it is certainly within the control of the Legislature of the province and that no part of the public funds of the province could be made available for the support of Separate schools without the voluntary action of the Legislature.

THE DOMINION POWERLESS IF LEFT ALONE. "It would appear, therefore, that any action of the Parliament of Canada looking

'I AM PERMANENTLY CURED'

The Joyful Exclamation of Mr. Alexander Moffat, of Millbrook, Ont.

Paine's Celery Compound victorious after the Doctors Failed.

Mr. Moffat is of opinion that all his sufferings and troubles had their origin in liver complaint, a terribly dangerous malady that is dragging many a man and woman to the grave. This disease may be acute or chronic. In the acute form, there are violent burning pains conveyed to the shoulder and right arm, short cough, fever, irregular bowels and constipation. In the chronic form of liver complaint, there are many morbid conditions, such as enlargement, softening, abscesses and degeneration. The symptoms are, weight in stomach, flatulence, nausea, bilious vomiting, loss of appetite, thirst, white and dry tongue, bitter taste, and a host of other miserable conditions.

Long experience has fully proved, that Paine's Celery Compound is the only medicine that can successfully grapple with the disease of liver complaint. Honest and able doctors are advising their patients to make use of Paine's Celery Compound; for the great reason, that they know of no other medicine that gives such prompt and effective results. The cure of Mr. Moffat amply proves every statement made in favor of Paine's Celery Compound, and clearly demonstrates the fact, that when physicians fail to cure a rare medicine is sent to do the good work. Mr. Moffat writes thus: "Having been a sufferer for years from severe pains in the side, back and breast, caused, I firmly believe, by a sluggish liver, I received the treatment of eminent physicians, and was compelled to wear a fur coat summer and winter; I was also advised to wear a chamois vest, but nothing seemed to do me good. "At last I was advised by kind friends to try Paine's Celery Compound; and after using six bottles, I find that I am permanently cured. Paine's Celery Compound has indeed done wonders for me. You may publish this for the benefit of suffering humanity.

INS AND OUTS. A young man and a young woman in riding costume boarded a street car the other morning, and as the conductor approached, the young woman remarked in the most matter of fact manner that she had the change. "Oh, no; let me pay," said the man. "Oh, no; I'll do it," replied the girl, and, handing the conductor the dime, she said: "Two. It was a little incident, but it has its meaning. The sexes are getting upon a footing of equality in a few, if not all, respects.

ARRESTED FOR ARSON. The Burning of Gough Bros' Store at Lindsay Recalled.

Three young men named Burke, Walker and Thompson, were arrested at Lindsay upon information sworn out by Chas. Genssewsky, now in goal charged with having set fire to Gough's and Perrin's stores last winter. The young men referred to were the principal witnesses against young Genssewsky, and he accused them of having done the deed. P. M. McIntyre heard the evidence and discharged the prisoners, stating that he could not convict anyone on the evidence of Genssewsky.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE. Wm. Payne Makes an Ineffectual Effort to Cut His Own Throat.

Wm. Payne, a married man who lives at 304 St. John street, in Northampton made an attempt to cut his throat early Sunday morning. Payne is subject to fits of melancholia and while in this condition has frequently threatened to take his life. He would sharpen knives for that purpose, and his family made it a point to hide all sharp knives in the house fearing that he would make good his threat.

Early yesterday morning Payne got up and securing a knife made an ineffectual attempt to cut his throat. He would doubtless have succeeded had the knife been sharp, but it was very dull. He cut himself from ear to ear, but the dull knife hardly went deeper than the skin, although he bled very profusely. Payne's daughter came into the room in time to witness her father's deed. She screamed and made an effort to prevent him doing himself further injury. Payne, however, resumed cutting, stating that he had cut himself from ear to ear, and he continued to saw away with the dull blade. It was only after several neighbors arrived that he was held down and the knife taken away from him.

Dr. Piggott attended the injured man and pronounced his injuries very slight.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

LATEST FROM LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

COUNCIL MEETING.

The regular meeting was held in the Town Hall on Monday last. The minutes of the last meeting and of the Court of Revision were confirmed. The Finance Committee reported accounts amounting to $203.91 and their report was adopted.

The constable was instructed to prosecute boys found robbing birds' nests and to look after owners of dogs who have omitted to pay for tags.

A communication from the secretary of the School Board requesting the sum of $400 was received and a by-law passed to provide for the same.

An application for a grant towards opening a road on the boundary between the village and the township of Smith was referred to the Road and Sidewalk Committee with power to act.

A discussion took place re Electric Light and Councillors Burgess and Hilliard were appointed to examine into the matter.

Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

THE LAKES.

A well-attended moonlight excursion went to Julian's Landing per Steamer Golden City the latter end of last week. Several summer cottages are now occupied and with the change of train service next Monday the busy season will commence for the boats.

LOCK YOUR DOORS.

A resident of the north end of the village was robbed of a coat which was hung in the summer kitchen during the temporary absence of himself and family one afternoon this week.

BICYCLISTS TAKE NOTICE.

The clerk has been instructed to prepare a by-law prohibiting the dangerous practice of bicycling riding on the sidewalks. There have been several narrow escapes from accidents especially to children.

Michael Malone Acquitted.

At the sessions at Lindsay yesterday before Judge Dean, Michael Malone was tried on a charge of setting fire to the Royal Hotel, Woodville, on March 3 last. Prisoner was at the time an hotelkeeper in the village of Woodville, but notice had been given him that his license would be taken away on account of his habit of drinking to excess. The fire at the Royal Hotel was an incendiary one, and all having been thrown on the woodshed roof and then set fire to. The only evidence of any weight was that of a blacksmith named Alex. Corley, who swore that prisoner 3 times offered him $100 to set the Royal Hotel on fire. On these conditions both parties were under the influence of liquor. Strong evidence of good character was given for the prisoner. The jury acquitted him.

THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE

IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE.

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truth; the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Avoid the Pitfalls of Sin, Strife and Avoid Future Pains Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men." The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system. To cure nervousness, lack of self control, dependency, etc.

To exchange a faded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

Write to the ERIC MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is safe to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter century back. Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure all these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co's for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family still. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

Good Health. And a good appetite go hand in hand. With the loss of appetite, the system cannot long sustain itself. Thus the fortifications of good health are liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Thousands who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla testify to its great merit as a purifier of the blood, its power to restore healthy action of the appetite and promote a healthy action of the system.

Thus it is, not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story and constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. Why not take Hood's Sarsaparilla now?

Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The great blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered sensations. At last my physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am still using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart." MRS. DALTON, 60 Alice St., Toronto, Ontario. Get Hood's, because Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story.

LONDON, June 13.—The government of Victoria, Australia, has directed its representative in London to support the proposal to form a joint communication on a Pacific Cable. An intercolonial exhibition is projected for this year. Displays will be made of the products of all the large colonies. The Colonial agents generally at London favor the scheme. The Canadian Gazette is authorized to deny the story that General Booth, the head of the Salvation Army, would send 10,000 immigrants to Canada in the autumn. An official of the army will go to Canada to look for a location for an army colony and to negotiate with the Government for procuring the land, but the further plans are as yet incomplete.

The Senate has passed a bill authorizing the government to raise 600,000 men should that amount be necessary to put down the insurrection. A 16-YEAR-OLD GIRL'S REVENGE.
She Cuts Her Enemy's Throat on the Public Streets.
Special to The Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y., June 13.—Justice Grill avenged herself upon her recent lover, Pasquill Muschio, on 7th Avenue, today by cutting his throat in the public streets. The girl is only 16, and is quite pretty. Yesterday she saw Muschio push the girl aside. Justice then sprang upon him controlling his neck with her left arm, and drew a razor from her pocket. The blood dripped from the girl's hand as she cut the man's throat. She stood above him as he lay writhing and bled aloft the razor dripping with blood. A policeman took Justice to the station house and her victim was removed to Mount Vernon hospital where he will probably die. The girl said she was a native of Naples and the named Muschio had ruined her under promise of marriage.

EIGHT LIVES IN PERIL.
A Young Man Rescues Several Persons From a Watery Grave.
Special to The Times.

KENTVILLE, June 13.—What nearly proved to be a fatal drowning accident happened here about 8 o'clock this evening when Thos. Mayhew, driver for Calvin Patterson, came to the river just opposite Clotier's mill to fill up two or three barrels with water. He was unfortunately caught to select a spot where there was a large hole immediately upon entering the water. The wagon suddenly dropped into the hole and the weight of the load drew the mules back, precipitating the driver and Martha Patterson, Mary Shaw and two of Alfred Dake's children, who were taking a jaunt into the river. Just at this moment a party of young people composed of Misses Rachael Clotier, Mattie Hyndman and Messrs. J. McDiarmid and R. Lalag, who were starting out for a sail, witnessed the accident, gave the alarm and immediately started to their rescue. Upon reaching those struggling in the water their boat was upset by Miss Patterson. Then the number of lives in danger was increased to eight. Messrs. Lalag and McDiarmid hastened to save those who could not swim, saving the following: Miss Hyndman, Martha Patterson, Mary Shaw and the two little Dake girls. Miss Clotier fortunately was able to swim to shore. Martha Patterson and Mary Shaw were carried to the residence of Mr. Jerome, where Dr. Jones who had been telephoned for and quickly responded, revived them after considerable work. The rest of the party did not need assistance as they were not long in the water. Great credit is due those who were in the boat in hastening to the scene, thereby endangering their own lives, especially the gentlemen who were instrumental in saving five lives.

CHRONIC CHILLINESS.

The Remedy Suggested is Outdoor Exercise at All Seasons.

How many people suffer in winter! They are constantly having chills. A feeling of cold water trickling down the back or some local stagnation of blood, with altered nervous sensations, is experienced. The hands, feet, nose or ears are especially likely to give inconvenience. Such individuals cannot get warm even in bed, and, as a consequence, often suffer from insomnia, for sleeplessness is often caused by cold feet. Many such conditions arise from the fear of taking outdoor exercise, because the weather is too cold. Hence the circulation is not kept going, and the blood, vitiated by the close, impure air of the house, has no chance offered it of being allowed to purify itself. The feeblest river or stream of water is rendered pure by exposure to the air as it comes along, and after a run of a few miles becomes fit for consumption. Why, then, will delicate people deny the stream of life an opportunity to purify itself as it comes through their veins? Here is the secret of how to keep warm in winter—outdoor exercise in pure air.

Many individuals mistake the feeling of cold for "catarrh." But feeling cold and "taking a cold" are different things. A shiver from exposure to cold—indeed a half frozen condition—is not in itself likely to end in a so-called "cold," so long as the exposure has been in the open air. But we hold that by breathing the impure air of badly ventilated rooms a chill may be very easily contracted that will end in a "cold."

In cold weather we distinctly recommend the ordinarily healthy man or woman to try the effect of outdoor exercise, especially when the feeling is strong that it is too cold to go out of doors. Exercise under such circumstances will usually act as a tonic to the whole frame and brace up the nervous system, the special function of which is to regulate the heat of the body. The skin should be freely exposed to the air before dressing in the morning, and after the morning washing or cold tepid bath rub the body into a glow with a coarse towel, and you will be very nearly cold and waterproof.—Philadelphia Times.

Staying to Please.

He had been particularly fortunate in his business and felt in the mood for tipping the waiters at his hotel rather liberally. As a result, every time he entered the dining room half a dozen willing waiters rushed for him like football players in a big match. This he found to be annoying after awhile, so he called the head waiter to him and said:

"Now, see here, I don't want all the waiters in the place bothering me every time I get something to eat. Settle on one man and let him attend to my wants."

Then his eye roamed around at the assembled attendants, and without any particular reason he said:

"There, let that fellow with a wart on his nose look out for me."

So it was settled, and for some time the designated waiter was on hand. One day, however, the man with the wart found another attendant at his table. He motioned to the head waiter.

"Didn't I tell you to let me have the waiter with a wart on his nose?" he demanded.

"Yes, sah, but this one will be better, sah. He has two warts on his nose."—Philadelphia Press.

Making the World Homelike.

In an address before the W. C. T. U. convention at Cleveland Miss Frances E. Willard said:

"I remember that no one subject puzzled or vexed me more in my early days than why it was that men could range the whole world at their will and then have the home beside, while women did not have the world, but the home only. I did not think this fair, and I resolved to build in my life to help to make the world as homelike as women could truly go out into it everywhere, side by side, with men, and also to help bring it about that men should share in larger measure than they have ever yet done in the hallowed ministrations of the fireside and the cradle side, through which, as I believe, they are to reach their highest and holiest development."

To Do Up a Shirt.

In order to do up a shirt properly from every part of it before the bosom, between careful not to stretch the neck. Then slip in the bosom board, and with a cloth wring out of the hot water, rub the bosom well, cleaning off the surplus starch. If the bosom wrinkles anywhere, rub them toward the bottom. Iron quickly with a hot iron, but not hot enough to stick and scorch. Raise the plate with the blunt edge of a table knife and iron again, polishing until there is an even gloss over the entire surface.

Daughter's Wife as a Grandmother.

Mme. Daudet is always pretty and charming. As you see her sitting at her breakfast among the hundred official knick-knacks of a modern interior, with her little daughter Edmée on her knee, she seems like a young mother, but this young mother is a still more youthful grandmother. It seems incredible, but her eldest son, the writer of some very remarkable and original scientific romances, has been married for two or three years to a granddaughter of Victor Hugo.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The German empress thinks that the root of the servant problem lies in the fact that mistresses are too little concerned about their comfort. They ought, she says, to do everything they can to make the leisure hours of their servants as agreeable as possible.

"Window gazing" is a profession in London. A couple of stylishly dressed ladies pause before the window of merchant, remain about five minutes minutely gazing at the goods displayed inside. Then they pass on to another store on their long list of patrons.

Butter, when put in a hot pan, will brown and become crisp, while "oleo" will remain clear and have a white scum on the top. It matters not how hot the pan is, you cannot brown oleomargarine.

Vaseline should never be allowed to touch the hands. It turns the skin yellow and leaves a stain on the nails that is hard to clear away.

One of the most famous folk-lore of the world is Miss Mary Alice Owens of St. Joseph, Mo.

Married women in Japan shave off their eyebrows and blacken their teeth.

When asked for his married experience, La Bruyere replied, "Few wives are so perfect that they do not give their husbands cause at least once a day to repeat of matrimony."

Which Is the Cheaper?

When you are willing to pay for brains in your kitchen, the servant girl question will solve itself. Which is cheaper—to employ a girl at $8 per week, who will probably waste, spoil or throw away $10 worth of food, or to pay a competent cook $6 or $8 per week and have all the left overs saved and served up into the most palatable of dishes? One you can trust with your purse and the care of your refrigerator; one who will not only cook, but relieve you of marketing and the worry of each day contriving a new bill of fare.

Unfortunately the demand for such girls is far in excess of the supply.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Pyrometer.

Some remarkable claims are put forth in behalf of Professor Austen's new pyrometer for the more accurate measurement of high temperatures. It is a thermo junction of platinum and of platinum alloyed with rhodium, this being attached to a galvanometer. The spot of light from its mirror is received on a revolving drum covered with self-timed paper. The curves exhibited give a 24 hours' record of the variations in the temperature of the blast supplied to furnaces smelting iron. In this way it is possible to account for the variations in the working of these large structures, and, by insuring regularity of work, so avoid the occurrence of such variations; also to effect economies of fuel, which it is anticipated will attain very large proportions, proving, it is claimed, to be of great industrial importance in conducting this branch of metallurgy.—New York Sun.

A Rhine Custom.

A custom that has existed for several centuries is still maintained in some towns on the lower Rhine. On Easter Monday—no other day—the town or clerical calls all the young people together and to the highest bidder sells the privileges of dancing with the chosen girl, and her only, during the entire year. The fees flow into the public poor box.

Differences.

"I hear," said the clam, "that you are going in for Christian socialism."

"You have been misinformed," averred the oyster. "It is church socialism that I expect to figure in."—Indianapolis Journal.

Concord, N. H., was originally called by an Indian name, Masketook. "Dead Stream." It was changed to Rumford in honor of a prominent settler, then to the present name in honor of the settlement of an old land dispute.

Headache and Sour Stomach.

"I was out of order in general and suffering with headache and sour stomach continually. I began taking Dodd's Kidney Pills and used two bottles, and found that I had gained 18 pounds in weight and was feeling much better." Maxwell D. Shagraw, Coleridge, Ont.

A NOTABLE EXCEPTION.

A Strong Feeling in Favor of a Canadian Product in the State of New York.

Special to the Times.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., June 11.—In spite of a strong sentiment prevailing throughout this state that nothing good can come out of Canada, a feeling is beginning to grow that there are certain notable exceptions and among these is claimed the new specific remedy for all diseases of the kidneys and all complaints arising from a derangement of those organs, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. The medicine has been thoroughly tested and is being prescribed not only by druggists but by physicians, whose well known reluctance to admit any virtue in a proprietary medicine makes this testimony to its merits still more remarkable.

Statements that

MOTHERS

Should Consider.

The mortality statistics furnished by health boards of cities and towns in Canada, clearly disclose the fact that during the hot summer months, the great majority of infants die from cholera infantum, dysentery and diarrhoea.

It is now generally acknowledged that these deadly infantile troubles result from imperfect feeding and poor food. Unhealthy and nameless forms of food are administered to babies with weak organs of digestion, that would soon sicken the strong stomach of an adult.

The perfect substitute for healthy mother's milk is Lactated Food, and for the excessively hot weather this food is a strength giver and flesh-builder for every delicate infant. Lactated Food keeps the bowels and organs of digestion in a natural and perfectly healthy condition, and wards off those diseases so much dreaded in summer by all mothers.

Lactated Food is the only infant food that truly "saves babies' lives."

A HUGE WASTE OF MONEY.

It is doubtful if it ever before cost a government so much in hard cash to dodge an issue as the Federal Government has had to pay for that little Prohibition Commission it took refuge behind some years ago. Nothing under the sun was gained by it, but delay. The report is so cumbersome an affair that an elector, whose time is worth more than that of a setting hen, will read it. And if he should read it, he would find little save a mass of opinion. A plebiscite would have been immeasurably more valuable; but even it would be very far from settling the question. Prohibitionists and anti-Prohibitionists both understand that the only way to carry Prohibition is to elect a majority of Prohibitionists to Parliament; and until the people get ready to do that, our politicians should waste no more public money in playing with the question.

GREENWAYS REPLY.

This Journal agrees with the Hamilton Spectator, a leading conservative newspaper, that the reply of the Manitoba government to the remedial order is exactly what was expected. That government respectfully and firmly declines to obey the order, and gives excellent reasons for the refusal. It is set forth in the reply that the legislature which abolished the separate schools in Manitoba followed a careful investigation of the status of the separate schools; that it was found that these schools were defective in conduct, management and regulation, and that illiteracy was the result. The Manitoba government is quite satisfied on that point, and intimates that the federal government does not care to take its word for it, it might not be out of the way for the latter to appoint a commission and investigate for itself. The Manitoba government points out the fact that, in a new country like Manitoba, it is difficult enough to maintain an efficient school system when all classes of the community are united to that end, and that separate schools for Catholics would undoubtedly be followed by separate schools for the Anglicans, and possibly the Methodists and Lutherans, and the result would be that the public schools would necessarily be poorly supported and consequently defective.

Mr. Greenway makes claim, and quotes the support of it, that any remedial legislation passed by the Dominion government for the purpose of restoring the separate schools in Manitoba, must, "to be of real and substantial benefit, be supplemented by the voluntary action of the provincial legislature."

It is quite clear that Manitoba means to defend her school laws from attack and interference, and it now remains to be seen whether Quebec can force the Dominion government into further blunder. The remedial order was a grave mistake to attempt to enforce that order would be suicidal. Manitoba cannot be coerced, and it is better to acknowledge that fact now than after further futile attempts at coercion.

If there is any good thing that Russia hasn't got as the result of Jap-Chinese war, the reason is that she has forgotten to demand it.

In future we hope to see the maple leaf on the fly of the Canadian flag; but there will never be any flies on the maple leaf.

The Manitoba government has asked the question: "What are you going to do about it?" in a dignified and courteous manner.

Giving Without Money.

The poor give more than the rich. This proposition holds good as a general principle. Money is by no means the only thing to give in this world. Neither do large gifts necessarily contribute more to the happiness of the receiver than small gifts.

Go into any country community and converse with the people. Ask who ministers most to their happiness. You will very likely be told of some venerated clergyman whose salary has never been more than enough to barely support him or of some poor widow who goes from house to house like a ministering angel wherever sorrow and suffering demand consolation or relief.

It is astonishing how much one without money may give—a kind word, a helping hand, the warm sympathy that rejoices with those that do rejoice and weeps with those who weep.

No man is so poor, no woman is so poor, as not to be able to contribute largely to the happiness of those around them.—New York Ledger.

A Book Agent's Logic.

A book agent once stopped at a house in the country where he told the owner that he had been recommended to her because she already had so many books. "I should think that was a curious reason," she said. "Now, there is my next neighbor. You should have gone to her instead, for she has no books at all." The wily agent shook his head. "Ah, we know better than that," he answered. "Those who have no books never buy any. Those who have many already are the only ones we can hope to appeal to."—Philadelphia Press.

Horror of Solitude.

Mr. Minks (reading)—The captain's wife was the only one who escaped, and she was thrown by the waves upon the beach of an uninhabited island.

Mrs. Minks—Poor thing! How did she ever button her dress in the back the next morning?—Philadelphia Times.

Lamps almost identical in shape with those employed a century ago in India by the native population have been discovered at Nineveh. It is believed that they have an antiquity of at least 4,000 years.

The widow's cap is as old as the days of Julius Caesar. An idiot of Tiberius commanded all widows to wear the cap under penalty of a heavy fine and imprisonment.

Electrical Treatment

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment: When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the base of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

INDIAN GAMBLERS.

ALWAYS READY TO RISK THEIR ALL IN A GAME OF CHANCE.

Sometimes Whole Villages Are Improver led by a Stroke of Bad Luck—They Rely Upon Chance and Their Ability to Chase—They Are Good Losers.

As eagerly as a duck hops into the water does an Indian jump into a game of chance. Unbounded belief in luck and perhaps the natural devilry of the race make Indians not only gamblers, but they are nothing in an Indian's possession that he will not readily wager on a game of chance. Nearly every noble red man is the possessor of an individual charm or fetish which enables him to do things that other Indians cannot do. This fetish is of value exactly as the owner, and according to the value of the fetish, he is of more or less advantage to any other Indian. No person besides the possessor knows what the fetish is, and he is not to be known. It is immediately lost to the power of good.
No Indian will knowingly steal another Indian's fetish. Such theft visits upon the power of the thief's fetish and casts over him a hoodoo.

Having full faith in the ability of his charm to bring luck to him, the Indian never fails to place all his possessions in the balance when there is a bet on. If he loses, he takes it philosophically and attributes his bad luck to the greater power of his adversary's charm. If he wins, he has added faith in the power of his own charm. Indians have been known to wager all their earthly possessions, even to their squaws and children and horses, on the fall of a stick in one of their games.
Indian villages have become pauperized and dependent upon charity for months because the inhabitants bet everything they had on the results of games with other villages. Such occurrences were common several years ago, and were not for the restrictions of government regulations would be so still.

Gambling is a secret vice among the Indians. It is indulged in by all the members of the tribe, and the more expert the gambler the higher he stands in the estimation of his fellows. To have the fame of being a successful gambler causes an Indian to look up to almost as much as if he were a successful warrior. There is no fear of shocking the morals of even the highest chief by proposing a game with him—in fact, the invitation pleases him.
One point of advantage held by the red man over his white brother is in the fact that when he loses everything he possesses he is not much poorer than he was before, and he can readily recoup himself by making and upon some unfortunate white settler or upon a weaker tribe. The white man may commit suicide, but the Indian simply looks for a victim and seldom fails to find him.

Before the government tightened the moral lines on the Indians professional Indian gamblers were plentiful. Of late years their number has decreased rapidly. The most famous Indian gambler of today is Quelpah, a Comanche.
His game is monte. He is about 30 years old, tall and straight, with a thin, narrow face. His eyes are sunken like those of a consumptive. He never smiles and seldom speaks. Like all Indian gamblers, his dress is rich in bright colors.
He usually rides a white pony and is attended by two Apache Indians, both famous for deeds of prowess. He travels from village to village and from tribe to tribe. Everywhere he is well known.
When his approach is made known, the Indians wait for him to appear, saving their money to play with him, for it is an Indian maxim that "in the game of Quelpah the play is honest, and the stakes are what you please."

Quelpah once appeared at the Cash creek village. He rode into the village shortly before sundown. One of his companions spread a bright red blanket on the ground. Quelpah knelt before it. As he settled down on his haunches and brought forth a new deck of Mexican monte cards the blanket was surrounded by Indians crouching three and four deep.
And behind them stood other Indians eager for an opportunity to play. The long,
lean fingers of Quelpah shuffled the cards with marvelous rapidity. The Indians in the game waited in the light waited. Candles were procured as night fell and were fastened in sharp pointed green twigs stuck in the ground.

By their flickering light Quelpah could be seen playing his game and predicting his gain. He was both dealer and banker. Behind him on his right and on his left crouched his two Apache fellows. As dawn was breaking Quelpah looked about him. He had stripped off save two Indians. One deck of Mexican monte cards the blanket was surrounded
by Indians crouching three and four deep.
And behind them stood other Indians eager
for an opportunity to play. The long,
lean fingers of Quelpah shuffled the cards
with marvelous rapidity. The Indians in the game waited in the light waited. Candles were procured as night fell and were fastened in sharp pointed green twigs
stuck in the ground.

Squaws also are inveterate gamblers.
It is a common sight to see a dozen squaws, young and old, their paces lying neglected on the ground, crowded around an old shawl, busy over a 10 cent game of monte. Their play is persistent, and many of them are marvelously clever gamblers. But they seldom have money of their own sufficient to play for high stakes.

One peculiarity of Indian gambling games is their intricacy. In several tribes the writer has seen Indians playing games with sticks and stones for hours at a time.
Notwithstanding the closest attention he has been unable to discover the system used, nor has he ever met a white man who could explain the game. There are several games of this kind, and among the Pacific coast tribes they are common.

In addition to his faith in his charm the Indian places great dependence on his ability to cheat. It is the best cheat he can employ. The highest honors when gambling is indulged in. There is no more a thought of getting angry over deft tricks or unfair methods so long as the perpetrator is not caught in the act. If he is caught, he refuses his gains and is laughed at for cheating.

Since playing cards have become common, games taught by the whites and Mexicans are generally the favorites among the red men. Monte is played for large amounts. Sometimes an Indian with hundreds of dollars will become imperished in a single evening by trying his luck against a skillful player. An especially deft monte dealer, more skillful even than Quelpah, has been known to go from tribe to tribe in the mountains of New Mexico and return home loaded down with his winnings. Many Mexican gamblers devote almost their entire time to traveling among the various tribes in the Sierra. They win large sums, but lose them again in Mexican cities.—Fort Hill

THEIR MEAGER SALARIES

MISSIONARIES DO NOT RECEIVE SUFFICIENT SALARY TO LIVE UPON.

The Matter Discussed by the Presbyterians
—A Suggestion to Give Students $4 a Week in Summer and $7 in Winter.

Special to The Times.

London, June 14. ONSIDERED Friday morning at the General Assembly was an invitation from the members of the Assembly to visit the Asylum on Saturday afternoon. The first business of the day was a discussion of the proposal of the Home Mission Committee to reduce the salaries of missionaries in that year. Mr. Buchanan appeared in the chair of the overture. It was that the minimum salary of ordained unmarried missionaries be $700 and not $700 as proposed by the committee. The Assembly is very much interested in the other parts of the mission. The same applies to students who receive only $500.
The Synod asks that they receive $600. The Assembly further asked that the salary of the end of the year. The overture was further asked that the Home Mission Committee shall allocate the funds each year to each field as formerly, and not send a lump sum to the North West as last year. The Synod wants the sympathy in interest of the Church as well as the money.

DON'T WANT A REDUCTION.
Mr. McQueen addressed the Synod, protesting against the reduction of salaries, especially in the West. Eight years ago he paid $1 a gallon for coal oil. Since the railway came in five gallons for $2.50.
Many things necessary for decent living are proportionately high. Mr. McQueen moved and Y. K. MacDonald seconded the adoption of the overture.

Dr. Warden moved that the matter be referred to the H. M. Committee. W. K.
He explained that the action of the committee in making reductions was forced upon them by the insufficient revenue of the fund. Having no right to incur debt, Dr. Warden asked how the reduction in the case of students compared with the reduction of salaries in their case.

Dr. Warden—"It is much greater."
Many members of the committee wished to make the weekly allowance, $5. Dr.
Bryce proposed that for this year the salaries be reduced to $700 in British Columbia and Manitoba and the North West Territories be $800 more than that proposed by the committee, and that in the case of students be for this year $5 in summer and $7 in winter.

Dr. King, while expressing the gratitude of the West for the liberal support received from Ontario, yet felt that so sweeping a reduction as had been made was ill advised. The part of the salary coming from the field was a far more uncertain quantity in the West than in Ontario. During the twenty years he was convenor of the Home Mission Committee in the Presbytery of Toronto students' salaries had been reduced, but it is often very different in the Northwest. He thought it perhaps inadvisable that a lump sum should be sent to the two Synods and the mission of other two or three Synods be dealt with separately.

J. K. MacDonald supported the overture because he could testify from experience to the truthfulness of the statements made with regard to the cost of living, but he thought the time had come when instead of reducing the salaries of the home missionaries the church should take steps to equalize the salaries of the home with the foreign missionaries.

WANT THE NUMBER REDUCED.
H. Cassels thought the remarks threw out, several of antagonism between home and foreign missionaries. (Cries of "No, no.") He thought that the action of the Home Mission Committee should have been in the direction of reducing the number of laborers rather than reducing the salaries below decent living rates.

Mr. Buchanan withdrew the overture in favor of Dr. Warden's motion which included Dr. Bryce's suggestion. Dr. G. O.
Matthews, secretary of the Presbyterian Alliance being present was invited to the platform and addressed the assembly.

Get Up on the Blind Legs and Kicked.
CHICAGO, June 14.—By the breaking of a grip on a Milwaukee avenue cable car here, over a dozen persons were killed, three of them seriously. The car had stopped to receive passengers, and when the grip man tried to start, the lever refused to work.
It tried to start, and the lever worked too well, for the front end of the car rose up in the air, throwing some passengers into the street and piling those on the inside in a confused heap.

"At the age of 18 I commenced to ruin my health. Later on as 'ONE OF THE BOYS',
I contracted a serious blood disease—
SYPHILIS. I was weak and nervous, despondent, dispirited, unable to work, sleep, digest, or enjoy life. My hair turned grey, my eyes became inflamed, my nose bled, my throat was sore, and I was in a constant state of nervous prostration. I was a wreck. I was in the last stages when a friend recommended Dr. Kennedy & Kegan.
I at once obtained a copy of their book, and after reading it, I was convinced that I was in a fair way to recovery. I followed their advice, and in a few weeks I was able to resume my usual life. I am now a healthy man, and I am able to perform my usual duties. I am a great debtor to Dr. Kennedy & Kegan.
I would advise all who are suffering from any of the above diseases to obtain a copy of their book, and follow their advice. It is honest and reliable."

BRUTALLY MURDERED.

No One to the Assassins—Great Excitement
Over the Awful Deed—Firearms in Toronto—
Dr. Ross Expelled by the Medical Council—
New Election in Nipissing.
Special to The Times.

ONTARIO, June 14.—A horrible murder was committed this afternoon at St. Henri, a town adjacent to Montreal. Melina Denis, wife of Napoleon Denis, a carriage maker, was found brutally murdered in her home, 3401 Notre Dame street, about 3 o'clock. The murder had evidently been committed several hours previously. The woman's neck was terribly smashed and there were wounds in other portions of her body, evidently inflicted by means of sharp instrument. The only other soul in the house at the time was the young woman's infant. The front door of the house was found carefully locked and the key was missing. No weapon could be found and the case is shrouded in great mystery. The coroner was notified and will open an inquest tomorrow.

N. KHAN STAYED ABED.

Broke His Engagement to a Function at Glasgow—City Officials and Guests Had to Beg Him to Get Up to Attend the Luncheon.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.
GLASGOW, June 14.—All arrangements were made for the Afghan Prince, Nasrullah Khan, to visit and inspect the thread works at Paisley, and the shipbuilding yards in the Clyde today, but this morning Nasrullah positively refused to leave his bed in his hotel when he was summoned, and informed that everything was in readiness for his coming. An elaborate luncheon had been prepared, and a large number of notable persons, who had been invited, with the exception of the Afghan prince, were waiting for his arrival. The Afghan prince, when they were notified that he was still in bed, a deputation of guests and officials proceeded to the hotel and begged him to get up and keep his engagement to inspect the shipbuilding yards, which he did. The hour being so late, the visit to the thread works was not made.

Nasrullah acted in a similar manner in Liverpool, when he kept the guests waiting two hours on the occasion of his inspection of the electric railway in that city. The visit of the Afghan Prince has cost the English and Indian taxpayers 50,000 pounds, but Nasrullah's only donation since his arrival in Great Britain has been a gift of 20,000 pounds to the Moslem Mosque in Liverpool.

A Horror at Fall River—Boiler Explodes and Demolishes the Place—Over Thirty People Lost Their Lives.
Special to The Times.

ALL RIVER, June 14.—The worst catastrophe that has visited the city since the granite mill occurred this morning at the Langley shoe harness shop on County street. A new boiler of the Kendall make exploded in the basement of the two story wooden building, blowing out the entire end of the building, knocking the supports from the side, and allowing the upper floor to settle into a mass of ruins.

There were 45 persons at work in the shop, and only nine are known to have escaped alive. Among these were Henry J. Langley, the proprietor, George E. Davock, the foreman, and two girls, named Champagne and Desrosiers.

The bodies communicated with the ruins and they began to burn briskly. The firemen rushed to the scene and made heroic efforts to rescue the imprisoned workmen. Shrieks from the girls in the ruins were mingled with the agonized cries of their fathers, who hurried to the scene when the first news of the catastrophe spread.

There was about 50 persons employed in the shop, the greater portion of this number being women. A girl says that none of the girls or men knew what happened.

At 9.45 o'clock the names of the rescued were as follows: given out as follows: Alice Tremblay, Mattie Desrosiers, Miss Jalbert, Leah Horton, Adele Dube, Ada Lepage, Henry F. Langley, George E. Davock, Engineer Tripp and Foreman Warren. Mr. Langley is in a critical condition.

The building is a total wreck, but the flames are under control. It is estimated that there are at least thirty persons in the ruins. The third body, that of a woman, could not be recognized.

The Sheriff's Trial.

BEAUBARNON, June 14.—Justice Belanger rendered his decision at ten o'clock this morning on the petition which was made by Messrs. St. Pierre, Greenhalgh, and Foster, on behalf of C. F. V. Sherida, for a change of venue. His Honor refused to make the change. Sherida therefore must be tried in this district at Beaubarnon Court House.

His Honor, in delivering judgement, began his remarks by stating that it was pretended on the part of the accused that the population of this district is prejudiced against the accused to such an extent that he cannot have a fair and impartial trial; that the crime has produced an effect in the minds of the people quite adverse to the accused, and that the community is not in a position to judge the case without fear or favor. "The principle deposition," said his Honor, was given to Mr. St. Pierre, who relates the facts which took place at the preliminary investigation, and he mentions, moreover, that he had heard of a plot being organized on his arrival at Beaubarnon. He has not the least doubt that this deposition was in good faith. As to the plot, there are the depositions of many prominent residents of Beaubarnon, who say that they never heard of such a plot and that there was no such organization.

Pinebush Find.

GOODERHAM, Ont., June 14.—A valuable deposit of plumbago was discovered within two and a half miles of the town last spring by the Ontario Mining Company's prospector, E. F. Coxwell, and the vein is now being opened to ascertain the extent of the deposit. The vein has been laid bare for a distance of 17 feet, by 4 feet in width, showing a very fine deposit of this valuable mineral. Some beautiful samples have been taken out for assay. Samples which have been assayed run from 60 per cent. up to 84 per cent.

The Wooded Black Flag.

LONDON, June 14.—A special despatch from Shanghai says that a remnant of the famous Black Flag is entrenched at Chung Wa, Island of Formosa, and these Chinese warriors are expected to make a determined stand against the Japanese who are taking possession of that island according to the terms of the treaty of peace. This despatch also says that a British gunboat has been ordered to the Yangtze Kiang in China. The despatch of the British gunboat to the Yangtze Kiang is said to be due to the probability that trouble will arise there over the Russian outbreak. In conclusion, the despatch states that the Chinese ministers at Peking hold the officials of Chang Te responsible for a part of the outrages against the foreign missions there.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

Good Health.

And a good appetite go hand in hand. With the loss of appetite, the system cannot long sustain itself. Thus the foundations of good health are broken down and the system is liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Thousands who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla testify to its great merit as a purifier of the blood, its power to restore and sharpen the appetite and promote a healthy action of the digestive organs.

Thus it is, not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story and constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. Why not take Hood's Sarsaparilla now?

Relief from Head.

"Three years ago at the age of 16 years I left Ontario and went to California, where owing to change in climate I was troubled with frequent headaches and dizzy spells. I began taking Hood's Pills and Hood's Sarsaparilla and found relief. As a blood purifier I believe that Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal." Herbert Schwarz, Pool, Ontario, Can.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths; the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life: Who Would Attain for Peace, Prosperity and Future Well-Being Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self control, despondency, etc.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, as, unless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

"If you dumped a carload of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the FAIR MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

REMOVAL OF THE REMAINS OF JOHN HOWARD PAYNE.

Brought From Tunis to His Native Land
Pathetic Scene in the Little Protestant Church—Something About the Last Days of the Sweet Singer.

I chanced upon Mr. John Worthington the other day just after his return from Malta, where he has been United States Consul since his appointment to that position by President Arthur in 1888. From time to time I have noticed extracts from his consular reports in the newspapers, but I particularly remembered his connection with the removal of John Howard Payne's remains to this country from Tunis at the instance of Mr. Corcoran of Washington.

Mr. Worthington said that one of the earliest and most interesting duties he had to perform as consul was to go to Tunis and exhume the body of John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home." This was on Jan. 4, 1888. Payne had been the American consul at Tunis and died there in 1844. His body lay in St. George's cemetery, in the heart of the town of Tunis, for 44 years, when Mr. Corcoran, the Washington banker, obtained permission from the state department to take it up and bring it to America.

"When I arrived at Tunis," Mr. Worthington continued, "it was noon—the examination was to take place at 1 o'clock. At the grave I found assembled Sir Thomas F. Roade (the British consul general), one or two gentlemen connected with the American consulate and about 50 other gentlemen, some of them Tunisians, dressed in the costume of the country. Among the latter was Payne's old dragoman, who had been present at his death and funeral.

"There was nothing whatever left of the body except the skeleton, and in removing this skeleton from the grave to a coffin we had to put some of the earth in with it, as the coffin in which the body had been buried had crumbled away, the earth and bones becoming mixed.

"In stooping over the grave I noticed that the root of a tree—a pepper tree—had just begun to creep over the fence. This I pulled away, and in so doing exposed a piece of bone as white as ivory, which, together with a branch of the pepper tree, I sent to Mr. Corcoran at Washington. I also obtained five or six brass buttons from the uniform in which Payne had been buried, one of which I sent to Mr. Corcoran, one to the secretary of state—in fact, I gave them all away, not keeping even one for myself.

"The body was then taken to the little English Protestant church at Tunis, where, the coffin having been covered with an American flag, we placed it on a table at the foot of the chancel and directly under a window which had been erected to Payne's memory by English and American residents, and on which was inscribed: 'To the memory of John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home."'

This was just about sunset. The ceremony which took place was of a simple nature. An English naval officer played the air of "Home, Sweet Home" on a little American melodeon which stood there, and after considerable urging I induced my wife to sing the words. This she at last consented to do, and standing there in the beautiful twilight singing helped to make one of the most pathetic scenes I have ever witnessed. At first she sang in a hoarse voice, but gradually, as she began to think how this little scene might some day become historic, her voice trembled and trembled—which only added pathos to the scene—until there was not a dry eye in the church. Arabs, foreigners and all were wiping away the tears. It was simply overwhelming.

"There we left the body all night. The next day, at noon, we again assembled, when the coffin containing all that was left of Payne was carried to the Marianne, whence it was put aboard a French ship bound for Marseilles. It was then transferred to a ship coming direct to the United States, where it was taken to Washington and buried.

"Over the grave in Washington Mr. Corcoran dedicated a handsome monument, with appropriate eulogies.

"The people of Tunis, as I learned afterward, felt aggrieved that even the old tombstone which had covered the grave for 80 odd years had been taken away to America. This was done by a mistake. Mr. Corcoran wrote, and when he was informed of their feeling he at once authorized me to have a monument put up over the empty grave in Tunis. This I did, duplicating the one in Washington, except instead of putting a bust, as on the Washington monument, I had a little group of symbols on the top, one a ribbon, on which were carried the first few notes of "Home, Sweet Home," and the inscription (from Mrs. Ray Riley Smith's poem, "Sometime") "Then Be Content, Poor Heart," and the others a lute and a book."

"I suppose Mr. Worthington has obtained considerable information regarding Payne's life in Tunis."

"Yes, I did, particularly from Mr. Alfred Chappell, the present United States vice consul in Tunis. He knew Payne very well and was very kind to him. It was through Mr. Chappell largely that Payne was enabled to receive the assistance which made his last days comfortable without Payne knowing that it was charity. He was proud, he fancied—and his friends led him to believe—that his money was his living on was his own, whereas, as a matter of fact, his friends were helping him. He supposed it was his money which had been saved for him out of his own income.

"Payne lived in a fine large house in Tunis, which he had succeeded in getting the key to let him occupy in his capacity as a servant of the United States. As he began to fail he staid in the house a great deal, sitting in a large chair, well wrapped up, with a hot fire burning—this, too, in the hot climate to be found there—concealing himself with brandy and soda. He finally died from exhaustion from inability to eat or retain anything, living on brandy altogether during the last few days of his life."—Philadelphia Press.

Friend—And is trade so very bad?

Shopkeeper—I didn't say so. On the contrary, it is just booming. I said it was not what it used to be. But that's no reason I should give $1 to the church when I can stand them off with $1.—Boston Transcript.

ITALIAN GENERAL DECLARE A COM-
FLICT IS INEVITABLE.

Sir Ed. Grey's Behring Sea Bill—A former British Commissioner's Objection—Canada's Consent Not Given—The Grand Old Man at Hamburg—China Still to Accept Russia's Financial Aid—The Duke of Fife's Residence in Russia.

Special to The Times.

of seal fisheries came up in its second reading. Sir George Baden-Powell, who was British commissioner in the Behring Sea case, said he approved the general principle of the bill but it did not go far enough in affecting some deliberations of the Behring Sea tribunal of arbitration.

Mr. Thos. Gibson Bowles offered an amendment declaring that no bill would be satisfactory that withdrew British protection from British subjects on the high seas and that rendered British vessels liable to search and seizure by foreign naval officers.

Sir Edward Grey said that the bill was only intended to affect the existing agreement with Russia. It contained no clause for other purposes. Canada's consent to the measure had not been expressly given but every endeavor consistent with fulfilling the agreement with Russia had been made to satisfy the Dominion. He believed that the restrictions imposed were reasonable ever in the interests of Canadian seamen.

Mr. Bowles' amendment was rejected by a vote of 78 to 11. The House then adjourned.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

THE COST OF A FUNERAL.

THE LATE PREMIER'S COST THE DOMINION A LARGE SUM.

Parliament Votes the Late Sir John Thompson's Widow $25,000—What is Going on in the Capital City.

Special to The Times.

OTTAWA, June 15.—Since Confederation three great Canadians have been given state funerals: Sir G. E. Cartier, Sir J. A. Macdonald and Sir J. S. D. Thompson. The Public Accounts show that the Government paid $386 on account of the funeral of D'Arcy McGee; but that, of course, was only a part payment. For Sir Geo. Cartier's funeral the amount in the Public Accounts is given as $10,000; for Sir John Macdonald the expenditure was $6,981.02; and for Sir John Thompson the unprecedented sum of $25,000.

This represented an extravagant expenditure—Quimet admitted it—but the Government, it was claimed, had been carried away by its grief.

The fact of the matter seems to be that the officials of the Public Works department who was sent to Halifax with carte blanche allowed himself to be imposed upon shamefully by a grasping board in the city by the sea.

DR. CARMAN JUSTIFIED.

One of the items is, approximately, $3,000 spent in drapery. A cathedral for the funeral service of one hour's duration. Another and very much smaller one—about $400—is for the memorial service in the Ottawa Basilica. This last is interesting in view of Sir Mackenzie Bowell's statement to Rev. Dr. Carman, that this service was not held at the expense and under the sanction of the State.

The Halifax undertakers, charges were exorbitant, and the bills for drapery, flowers and the like were immense. Fourteen undertakers' assistants had to be supplied with new hats, coats and knee boots—all of the best—at the public expense. The funeral car alone cost $1,000. And the light of day was excluded from the Provincial building throughout the lying in state, electricity taking its place.

"Twenty five thousand dollars is too much to spend on any man's funeral," said D. C. Fraser. And L. H. Davies showed that he agreed with him by moving in amendment yesterday the reduction of the funeral estimate to $10,000. The item had passed unopposed in Committee of Supply on the previous evening, and the amendment was presented when the concurrence of the House in the committee's report was asked.

D'Alton McCarthy was the first man to record his vote for the amendment, and the members who followed his example numbered 47. Leader Foster polled the first negative vote, and 67 other members agreed with him that $25,000 was not too much. So the original estimate carried.

LADY THOMPSON'S GRATUITY.

Then the proposed gratuity of $35,000 came up. Leader Laurier looked worried when Macdonald of Harco, moved that it be struck out; for on the previous evening he and Cartwright had both endorsed the proposal, and the amendment emanating from the middle benches was evidence of poor discipline. The amendment was lost and by a large majority those that were swamped by Davies on the previous item. The vote against Macdonald stood 76 to 30.

WITH LEVELLED RIFLES

DID CANADIAN REVENUE OFFICERS
CHASE AN AMERICAN TUG.

Captain Dunn and Eight Marines of the Canadian Revenue Service Chase Some Excitement at Niagara.

Special to The Times.

UFFALO, N. Y., June 15.—There was considerable excitement caused on the Niagara river yesterday when, armed with repeating rifles, Capt. Dunn and eight members of the Canadian revenue service, aboard the yacht Nautilus, made a seizure of the Canadian officers was to stop the Buffalo Dredging Company from dumping on the banks of the river. About 5 o'clock the tug H. J. Warren came steaming down the river, towing two mud scows. It was captured by Thomas Green, with two brothers named Whalen an engineer and fireman. A man was on each scow. Just as the Warren passed the required distance beyond the water-works crib, the scows dumped.

AT THE POINT OF THE GUN.

The Nautilus was moored at Fort Erie. In an instant she slipped her moorings and sped after the American tug. When she came alongside of the tug Captain Dunn called for the tug to stop her engines. The marines levelled their rifles at the crew. There was excitement aboard the tug, but she obeyed the commands and in another instant Captain Dunn and his men boarded her. She was taken to the Sherman docks on the Canadian side and tied up over night. Capt. Green and two Whalens were hustled off to Fort Erie and placed in jail. The two men on the scows escaped. An attempt to bail the prisoners out proved unsuccessful. This morning they were taken before a Welland magistrate.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 18, 1895.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is safe to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter of a century. Mr. Joseph Leale, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks so. Twenty two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure all these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leale decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co.'s for the continued experience of the first brought piano was satisfactory. A third piano was purchased. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leale came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family as still another wedding gift to take place. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King Street, West, Toronto.

Special to The Times.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Shortly after midnight H. R. Jacobs' Third Avenue Theatre was gutted by fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The theatre was built in 1877 by McKee Rankin. Its present owner, H. R. Jacobs, is now in Chicago. Among the property lost was the scenery belonging to James H. Mackay's "Wages of Sin" and "Cellar Door" companies, and the Flora Bloddy "Pay Train" combination. There was no watchman in the building, which was condemned as unsafe some weeks ago.

Diagnosed by Telephone.

The beneficent uses of the telephone are not as yet fully understood. The other night young Smythe awoke about 3 a. m. with an excruciating pain in his stomach. The more he squirmed the worse he grew. Finally the terrible thought flashed upon him that he had been poisoned. In a moment he dashed out of bed, down stairs to the telephone, and demanded to be switched on to his physician's number without delay.

"For heaven's sake, doctor, come at once! I'm poisoned!"
The M. D., who had also crawled out of bed to answer the summons, growled back, "What makes you think so?"

"Frightful pain—awful cramps—insides on fire—hurry up, or I'm a dead man!"

"Humph! Does—er—does your stomach make any noise?"

"Yes. Kinder growls. Must be arsenic or something."

"Growls, eh? Just put the 'phone against the pit of your stomach. Ah! I thought so. You've been to the French hospital fete this evening, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Exactly. You're suffering from a general fermentation of lemonade, crab salad, fruit cake, pickled oysters and Roman punch. You're all right. Just take a little peppermint and ginger, then go to bed and grin it through."—San Francisco Examiner.

A Treacherous African Makes an Attempt to Poison Sir Francis de Winton.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.
ZANZIBAR, June 17.—Advises have been received from Uganda, stating that Sir Francis de Winton, the British agent at Uganda, recently had a narrow escape from death by poisoning at the hands of a native, who resented the official posting of a number of desertions from his camp. Sir Francis was very ill for several days but his recovery is thought probable.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

Montreal Men Fined for Impersonating—More to be Arrested.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.
OTTAWA, June 17.—Vigorous steps have been taken by the Board of Civil Service Examiners to punish parties guilty of illegal practices at examinations. Several offenders at Montreal were proceeded against and fined for impersonation. There are others who are at present engaged by the Government who will be tried on the same charge. The Board comment on the growing practice of candidates copying from one another at examinations, and declare that they shall disqualify the offenders from writing at all future civil service examinations.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths; the Plain Facts of the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Avoid for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Marriage and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that will work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self control, despondency, etc.

To exorcise a faded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiously seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man who had applied to us, about eight weeks ago, wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had come back and my new self was born to day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way!"

And another thus:

"If you damped a carload of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the FREE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MARRIAGE." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney trouble and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realized great benefit from these medicines, more than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier." Miss C. Conroy, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

WELTER GOES INSANE.

HIS MIND GIVES WAY AND HE MAKES A RAMBLING STATEMENTRemembering Henderson's—The Other Published Story is not Substantiated—The Two Condemned Men Will Hang Today.
Special to The Times.PRELIMINARY message has been received by the sheriff notifying him
to continue preparation for the double execution here on Tuesday, and de-patches from Ottawa announce that the Cabinet decided not to interfere with the sentence of death passed upon Welter and Henderson. The scaffold was completed Saturday.Norman Macdonald, the counsel for the accused, appeared this afternoon at the court and stated that they must die.
Welter was the first to hear the news with calm and composure, and asked to see his sister, Mrs. Henderson. The news, and Mrs. Landon, of Halifax, who were admitted.Welter asked his lawyer if Mary Henderson and Charles Welter had been arrested as concerned with the murder, and on the reply that the story was probably intended to get a confession, remarked,
"They have not held the wrong man."Henderson was reading his Bible when Mr. Macdonald announced his fate to him. "My God," he said, "it is a awful position to be placed in." "Yes," answered Mr. Macdonald, "death is awful in any form, but there is little material difference whether you die today or twenty years hence. There are many people here who would gladly exchange places with you." Henderson tried to smile as he said, "I would like you to produce some of them, and I would trade positions with them mighty quick."He asked to see his daughter, but she was not admitted.Mrs. Henderson fainted immediately upon hearing the news, but the other women of the family were not so much moved.Welter stated to Rev. Mr. Spencer and Crown Attorney Donahue that he was the man who committed the crime, and that he was not a murderer, but a man who was driven to it by circumstances.
He was present, but that Henderson was not and did not know anything of the crime.Welter said the reason why he did not tell this before was that the man who committed the murder threatened to kill him if he told. Mr. Donahue declined to state the name of the third party implicated, or for what motives the crime was committed. Mr. Donahue will send the statement to Ottawa this morning, but no reference is placed on it to Welter.THE INTERVIEW DENIED.
St. Thomas, Ont., June 17.—The alleged interview between Welter and Macdonald, his lawyer, published in the morning papers is absolutely untrue.Mr. Macdonald today told me the following story: "Welter has not made a confession, but he has made a statement.
On Saturday evening, after learning that his reprieve had been denied, he came to the Rev. Mr. Spencer and in my presence made a rambling and incoherent statement. What that statement is I will not tell you, except that—"HE EXHIBITED HENDERSON.
I called on Judge Hargrave and he listened to the statement and discussed the matter with the jail surgeon, both concluding that Welter's mind was completely unbalanced.
The shock and strain had been too much for him, and he is a mental wreck. His story was wild, rambling and wholly improbable.
He seemed like a drowsy man grasping at a straw. We went for Mr. Henderson, and Charles Welter, to the jail, and in the presence of the jailer, and they thought that we ought to notify the Minister of Justice, but Mr. Donahue decided that it would not be wise to build up the Minister with this cock and bull story of Welter's.Henderson, when asked about it, said he had never heard the story before, and told his lawyer, Welter, that he made no statement whatever to Lawyer Macdonald."THE LAWYER HAS NOT BEEN PERMITTED to see the prisoners. Rev. Mr. Spencer has the statement in writing and duly signed it, and Welter, on his refusal to make it public until after the execution or until he should hear from Ottawa. Both men are all broken up. On hearing that a reprieve had been denied, Henderson simply collapsed, and Welter showed unmistakable signs of insanity. He has been very anxious to see his father and is pleading continually to have his friends near him.Henderson is mute, pallid, feeble and all but dead. The watch has been reduced on Welter as they doubt his mental condition and they dread his doing some desperate deed.All connected with the jail are laboring under a severe strain. The town is filling with American newspapermen, who have given the sheriff a bad forenoon.THE SCAFFOLD is a low squat affair, as is not to show over the wall. There is a pit five feet deep beneath the scaffold, and the men will actually drop into their own graves.
Many people, chiefly ladies, will leave the town tonight, and remain away all day tomorrow. Welter puts on a brave face, and is a witness of it; but his story is so rambling that his hearers could make neither head nor tail of it.

SAYS SHE WAS ENTRAPPED.

Remarkable Story of Abduction and Robbery Told in a Police Court.

Special to The Times.

LONDON, June 17.—The sensational story of abduction and robbery recently told by the Hon. Mrs. Gordon has been made the subject of a police enquiry. She was the widow of Hon. George Gordon and was the unnamed woman whose appearance in the Court of Chancery last December was chronicled in the cable despatches at the time. She then said that she possessed £40,000. She was living apart from her husband. An intimate friend of hers was an alleged American named Camp, to whom she had handed £2,000 and valued securities, and who took his departure for the continent. She now charges a wealthy publican, Henry Crane, laced thereto and aided by Camp, with conspiring to kidnap and rob her.Mrs. Gordon says she was engaged to go to a house in Clapham Park; the doors were fastened and she was locked in alone, either a Basman or Turkish Jew whose name is known to Mrs. Gordon.
This man seized and robbed her. The men also took the keys of her house and robbed it.Crane states that he lent Camp £1,400 and the latter brought Mrs. Gordon to his house in Clapham Park to arrange for the repayment of the money. Mrs. Gordon made a row, and he put a handkerchief to her mouth to stop her screams. He then left Camp and Mrs. Gordon alone, and on returning later got £200 in English notes.
She was kept locked up in the house for two nights in an effort to get her to pay the balance of the money due. This scheme failed and she was released.BURDOCK

WAS IT MURDER?

Was Mrs. Nelson Poisoned—She Lived with A Man Named Foote, Who Took up with Another Woman—The Body Examined by Detective Murray's Orders.

Special to The Times.

COLBOWIE, June 17.—Inspector Murray, of the Ontario Detective Department, returned to the city on Saturday from Col-bowie, where he was investigating an alleged poisoning case, which promises some interesting developments.Mr. Murray was down east looking into the incendiary fire at Newcomb Mills, and Crown Attorney Kerr laid the facts of another case before him, which he proceeded to investigate. Mrs. Nelson, a woman about 45 years of age, who lived with a man named James Foote in the township of Canby, died under mysterious circumstances on May 10th last. There was a good deal of talk at the time, and it was suspected that she had been poisoned. The story goes that Mrs. Nelson lived with Foote for a number of years.
About May 15th Foote met a woman named
Mrs. Pilkey, who was keeping house for a Mr. Spencer. Mrs. Pilkey went to live with Foote, and it is alleged that the two women quarrelled. On May 10th Mrs.
Nelson became very ill, and word was sent to Foote, who said it was only jealousy that was the matter with her. She had heartburn and pain, and Mr. Ansley, his employer ordered Foote to go for a doctor, and he promised to do so, but did not keep his word. That night Foote went to a neighbor's house for some straps to tie Mrs. Nelson to the bed, and next morning she was dead.Dr. R. Thorburn was called in, and he refused to give a burial certificate, and sent a message to the Crown Attorney, which, however, did not reach its destination. Mrs. Nelson on the following Tuesday was buried at the expense of the municipality. Foote borrowed a pair of boots from young Spencer for the funeral, and when the burial was over he boarded up the cottage and together with Mrs.
Pilkey disappeared, forgetting to return the footgear. During the period that elapsed between Mrs. Nelson's death and her burial, Mrs. Pilkey told a neighbor that she supposed the deceased had poisoned herself by taking a dose of sugar of lead. Detective Murray broke into the deserted cottage and found a package of this poison. The symptoms pointed strongly to poisoning by this drug,
and the detective had the body exhumed,
a post mortem held by Dr. Thorburn and the Stinson, and the intestines sent to Dr. Ellis for analysis. He then located Mrs.
Pilkey and Foote, and arrested the latter on a charge of stealing the boots belonging to Spencer, and locked him up in Colborne Gaol.It will be several weeks before Dr. Ellis will be able to give a report on the contents of the stomach."THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is safe to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter century back. Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty-two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure all these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co.'s for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family as still another wedding was to take place. He selected a style 10, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest-toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

The Wignmore Case.

A Toronto paper states that County Magistrate Edmison, of Peterborough, has laid the facts in connection with the Wignmore mystery before the Attorney General and that it is very probable the case will be reopened and thoroughly investigated. This step is warranted, it is stated, by an array of circumstances and facts of a very suspicious nature.

Twenty Thousand Roses.

BADE IN A WELL.

Rescued From Almost Certain Death by a Neighbor.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Ont., June 18.—John Treseman heard a child screaming this morning, and hurrying to the rescue, Mr. Treseman found Mrs. John Marshall, the baby's mother, already at a well where the child had fallen in. She had thrown a stick to the drowning child, but it was useless. Without a moment's hesitation, Mr. Treseman tore up the remaining boards covering the well and began to climb down the brick wall of the well. In a manner that he cannot himself explain, the rescuer reached the bottom safely and secured the half-drowned baby. There was over three feet of water in the well, and a few moments more would have sufficed to end the little one's life. Strange to say, it was but slightly injured by the headlong fall of nearly twenty feet.

Russia and France.

PARIS, June 18.—Baron Mohrenheim, Russian Ambassador to France, accompanied by the chief officials of the embassy and an escort of cuirassiers went to the palace of the Elisee today to hand to President Faure the insignia of the Russian Order of St. Andrew. Baron Mohrenheim was received with applause at the ceremony and addressed the president in a speech at some length. I consider this pledge the sentiments with which the Emperor invariably has been animated towards France and her venerable chief who personifies the generous character and pacific spirit of the great nation which vested him with his power. I myself am happy to testify to this memorable occasion the continuity of the relation so happily established between the two countries.

Cardinal Gibbons.

LONDON, June 18.—A despatch from Rome to the Central News contains an interview with an exalted prelate at the Vatican concerning Cardinal Gibbons and the Papacy. The prelate says that unless Cardinal Gibbons had been elected pope in Europe at the moment of Pope Leo's death it would be impossible for him to share in the election by conclave. An absent cardinal had never been elected pope. It was virtually certain that no foreigner could be elected.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 20 1895.

A preacher who does not pay his debts is a bad asset that the Methodist church can well afford to write off its books.

Lord Colin, fourth son of the Duke of Argyll, a captain in the Bombay Rifle Volunteer corps, is dead. He was forty-two years of age.

The dread of a massacre of Christians in China, which prevailed all through the war, seems to have been realized now that the struggle is over.

An increase of $41,000 in the C. P. R. earnings of last week, as compared with the same week in '94, is still another indication of trade improvement.

With a majority reduced to four, Lord Salisbury can tell how Sir Oliver felt on June 27 last. Possibly the two might come together in London this week and sympathize with each other.

The King and Queen of Denmark and the children of the Royal family visited Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone yesterday at board the steamer Tantalion Castle at Copenhagen. Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone are on their way to the opening of the Baltic and North Sea canal.

The Turkish Government has made a weak reply to the note of the powers outlining the reforms insisted upon for Armenia. The impression that prevails in Constantinople is that this last reply is tantamount to a refusal, and it is feared the powers will have to adopt urgent measures to enforce their demand.

The offer of one hundred and forty-five thousand dollars for the water works plant in Chatham, made by the City Council, has been accepted by the Water Works Company, and all that is now required to place the city in possession is the assent of the ratepayers to a by-law giving effect to the purchase.

Anton Lipp of Miskolcz, the last Hungarian survivor of the battle of Leipzig, died lately at 102. For some years he had been the only living person wearing the "cannon cross," made of the guns taken in the battle, the emblem of the military order established by the Emperor Francis of Austria for the campaigns of 1813 and 1814. His cross was buried with him.

MINISTERS SHOULD AT LEAST BE HONEST.

The Toronto News says: At the Hamilton Conference several ministers were charged by the book steward with being very poor pay and the threat was made that the law might be appealed to as a means of compelling the delinquents to respect their obligations.

At the Toronto Conference something of the same kind was alleged when it was asserted that some of these present had not even paid the notes given on account of connexional funds, and when it was stated that only about one-sixth of those in attendance had paid the paltry dollar called for on billings account.

It is not well for Methodism, it is not well for Christianity, to have such reports go out. Their tendency to destroy the respect of ordinary people for ministers of the Gospel generally, and when respect for the ministry is shaken confidence in the doctrine preached by the ministry must be weakened.

The Methodist Church should remove what is a grave scandal and disgrace upon it in doing so it is necessary to expel preachers whose practice in everyday life is so strongly at variance with the precepts they enunciate with such solemnity on Sundays.

WITH FIRE CHISELS.

Thirty Pounds of Stone Broken by One Pound of Wood.

At Bangalore, Southern India, the quarrying of granite slabs by means of wood fire has been brought to such a perfection that an account of the method is interesting. The rock forms solid masses uninterrupted by cracks for several hundred feet, and when quarried over an area is treated as follows: A narrow line of wood fire, perhaps seven feet long, is gradually elongated, and at the same time moved forward over the tolerably even surface of solid rock. The line of fire is produced by dry logs of light wood, which have been left burning in their position until strokes with a hammer indicate that the rock in front of the fire has become detached from the mass underneath. The burning wood is then pushed forward a few inches, and left until the hammer again indicates that the slit has extended.

Thus the fire is moved on, and at the same time the length of the line of fire is increased and made to be convex on the side of the fresh rock, the maximum length of the arc amounting to about twenty-five feet. It is only on this advancing line of fire that any heating takes place, the portion which has been traversed being left to itself. This latter portion is covered with the ashes left by the wood, and with thin splinters which have been burst off. These splinters are only of about one-eighth of an inch in thickness and a few inches across. They are quite independent of the general splitting of the rock, which is all the time going on at a depth of about five inches from the surface.

The burning lasts eight hours, and the line of the fire advances at the average rate of nearly six feet an hour. The area actually passed over by the line of fire is 400 feet, but as the crack extends about three feet on either side beyond the fire the area of the entire slab which is set free measures about 740 square feet. All this is done with, may be, about fifteen hundredweight of wood. Taking the average thickness of the stone at five inches, and its specific gravity as 2.65, the result is thirty pounds of stone quarried with one pound of wood.—Nature.

LOOKING AHEAD.

Thoughtful Mammy kept the Floor Walker on Pins and Needles.

It was a little dried-up, stop-shouldered, thick-lipped, white-eyed, black-haired woman, who went into a big dry goods emporium the other day and said to the affable floor walker as he met her at the door:

"Got any yarn knitting thread?"

"Yes; step this way, please."

"Wait a minute, honey," said the old woman, grabbing the floor walker by the coat tails, much to the amusement of all idle clerks who began to gather around her to see the fun, says the Philadelphia Times. "I ain't as you yit: Got any pins an' cotton stripes an' silk dresses an' par'ols an' bleached burrstone an' blue ribbon an' piller cases an' undershirts an' sewin' machines an' bustles an' crimpin' pins an' table cloths an'—an'—"

"Step this way and I will show you what we have," interposed the floor walker, thinking she was about to break down, but she had only paused for breath.

"What mak you won't lemme as you what I want?" she went on. "Got any cooking stoves an' lace curtains an' lamp chimbleys an' carpets an' chany cups an' hairth brooms an' pitcher frames an' writin' paper an' Bel'mals an' kid gloves an' head handkerchiefs an'—"

"Step this way."

SEEING LONG DISTANCES.

How Far Away Has the Human Eye Seen Another Object on Earth?

The recent claim of the United States signal service to have transmitted heliograph signals over a distance of 153 miles, of the United States coast survey and geodetic survey to have shown that many years since between Mount Helms and Mount Shasta, over 12 miles, has started mountain climbers to make all sorts of guesses and assertions about the distances they ought to measure the distances they do see. It would appear that one of the enthusiastic climbers of Mount Hood, in Oregon, made the statement that from the summit he saw the peak of Mount Shasta, 570 miles to the southward. Of course he was doubted, but principally because the curvature of the earth would prevent the intervisibility of the peaks, and so an appeal was made to a young officer of the United States engineering corps, who computed the distance at which these peaks would be intervisible. Mount Hood is given as 11,153 feet above the sea level and Mount Shasta 14,440, and the distance on the latest charts is 578 1/2 miles. By his computation the "total visible distance" was 577 miles, which gave "one mile to spare" over the assumed distance of 576 miles, upon which the Oregonian and some of the New York papers have assumed the intervisibility of the peaks, and that the mountain climber was right in his declaration of seeing Mount Shasta.

That is all very pretty, Professor Davidson says, if the ocean intervened between the two peaks, when the line of intervisibility would be tangent to the surface of the sea at a point nearer to Mount Hood, but unfortunately the surface between these two peaks is the backbone of the Cascade range of mountains, and the intervisibility is an absolute physical impossibility. We must turn to Alaska if we expect to obtain the longest lines of intervisibility, because the great mountain peaks like Kilas and Logan of the St. Elias range immediately dominate a carrying coast line. The greatest authenticated distance at which these great mountain peaks have been visible from sea was by Captain E. E. Nichols of the United States navy when commanding the United States gunboat Finta. He was close upon Middleton Island, off the approaches to Prince William sound, in a well determined position, when he had a view of Mount Kilas to the east northeast and Mount Wrangell to the northwest. The former was distant 187 statute miles and the latter 218 miles. It may have been possible that Mount Kilas was only part of the mass he saw, and Mount Logan, 50 miles to the north by east from Mount Kilas, 18,515 feet elevation, was the summit of the visible mass. In this case the distance was 204 miles.

It may be mentioned that the consensus of opinion of men who have been through Alaska and have seen Mount Wrangell is that the highest mountain mass is just under 69 degrees latitude and between 147 and 148 degrees longitude, or 166 miles west northwest from Wrangell. This would put the mountain Kilas to the west of Mount Kilas, Fairweather, Cook, Crillon, La Perouse, etc., of the Mount Kilas range in one line extending through nearly 680 miles.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Japanese Maidens.
Now the Chinese or Japanese maidens are becoming fashionable on account of her picturesque possibilities. If she wears her native dress, she is about as attractive as a $1,500 vase or a rare piece of bric-a-brac. Visitation like to look at her, and consequently the popular and more graceful girl the higher was the Japanese command. Long, narrow eyes, thin, black brows and a clear complexion are the things desired. An oriental girl's hair is always shiny and well arranged, and everything about her is invariably neat. A part of her duties is attendance on the door. This is where the spectacular feature counts. After the ring of the electric bell has died away there is a pattering of slippers feet or the clack of little Japanese wooden stilts, and the door swings back, revealing a small, brilliant figure, with a card tray concealed in the depths of her sleeve or kimono. It is all very fetching.

Another function that the maiden from over the sea is expected to perform is serving a cocktail. She is to be properly appropriate and hands on a tray to the beverage. It never seems the same afterward, when a Gretchen, with a face like a platter, or a Hibernian carries the tray. The first started in New York and has naturally reached its height in San Francisco, where the maidens are not able to supply the people who call upon them. The maidens, in fact, require references before they will allow their girls to go out. There is too much trouble in rearing them to have them slip back again, as they are quite likely to do if they are not carefully watched. It will not do to give them the liberties that other serving girls have, for they are like wax in the hands of designing people.—New York Correspondent.

Counterfeit Compliments.
Truth telling people are not so pleasant to spend a quarter of an hour with as flatterers, but they wear better to the end of the 24, writes Mrs. Hamilton Mott in The Ladies Home Journal. I know a woman who has the art of accidentally carrying in conversation the nicest things, things that make you want to put your arm about her or kiss her hand in thanks. You hear her say openly one day that she is fond enough of hearing pretty things not to care whether they are genuine or not, and your folly is not so superstitious that you can take much comfort in her favor after that. You come to know the counterfeit, no matter how bright it is.

Tommy's Refreshed Memory.
A number of years ago in the superior court for New London county, Conn., a witness whose first name was Thomas, and who was the son of the plaintiff, testified to a certain important date, and on cross examination, having testified that he refreshed his memory as to the date by a memorandum made at the time, was asked to produce the paper, which he did. The paper was seized by the cross examiner and read aloud. It was as follows: "Tommy, do not forget. It was July 25." The value of Tommy's testimony was destroyed.—Green Bag.

How the Tables Don't Turned?
"I heard one of the waiters say that the other waiter, 'By the way, I wonder if they ever served you stuffed with burritos in those days!'"—Cincinnati Tribune.

The lake dwellers of Switzerland, who are believed to be the contemporaries of the Greeks who taught at Troy, had a small grain called wheat apparently much harder than the kind now in use.

PROHIBITION FAR OFF.

MR. FLINT'S PROHIBITION MEASURE
KNOCKED OUT IN THE HOUSE.

But When Prohibition Comes up Again It May Carry—Hon. David Mills Voted Against the Measure.

Special to the Times.

TTAWA, June 18.—Prohibitionists occupied the attention of Parliament yesterday. Mr. Flint moved "That in the opinion of this House the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors in Canada, except for sacramental, medicinal, scientific, manufacturing and medicinal purposes, should be prohibited by law." Mr. Craig seconded the motion. Mr. Flint spoke to his resolution for more than an hour pointing out the evils of the liquor traffic. Mr. Craig followed in the same strain.

A SIDETRACKING AMENDMENT.
Then Mr. Guillet, the representative for West Northumberland brought on an amendment to sidetrack the original motion. He said that unless the Provincial Government were prepared to enforce a prohibitory law there would be no use in passing one. The question of jurisdiction was now before the Privy Council, and he was opposed to action being taken until a decision was rendered. He moved in amendment to defer consideration accordingly.

Mr. Taylor, the Conservative whip, moved in amendment to the amendment that until the members had had time to properly digest the report of the Prohibition Committee and until the appeal now before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council had been decided, that it would be inadvisable to legislate further concerning Prohibition. This was defeated by 70 to 15.

FOR AND AGAINST.

The amendment of Mr. Guillet carried by the small majority of eleven. Hon. David Mills, who voiced the sentiments of a small section of the Liberals who might have turned the scale, said that while he approved of the resolution he would have to vote for the amendment until he knew the Privy Council's decision.

SKIRMISH WITH REBELS.

Desperate Encounter With the Daring Leader Maceo.

Special to the Times.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, June 18.—There was an encounter in Juncos near Guantanamo between a force of rebels and a detachment of government troops. A rebel captain named Castillo was killed and a Spanish lieutenant was badly wounded.

HAVANA, June 18.—Col. Connel reports from Guantanamo that the forces under his command have captured the rebels under the command of Pedro Paredes and Jose Maceo. The Spanish troops captured the rebels' camp. The government lost one killed and three wounded. Capt. Heredia had an encounter with Jose Maceo's band at Jamaica. The rebels were being pursued by other Spanish troops.

Relief in Hood's.
"Three years ago at the age of 16 years I left Ontario and went to California, when owing to change in climate I was troubled with frequent headaches and dizziness. I began taking Hood's Pills and after a few days the headaches and dizziness were relieved. I believe that Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal."—Herbert Schwarz, Pool, Ont., Canada.

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills.
Britain and Venezuela.
LONDON, June 18.—In the House of Commons today, Sir Edward Grey, under Foreign Secretary, stated that in January last United States Ambassador Bayard informed Lord Kimberley, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that the United States Government would gladly lend its good offices to arbitrate and dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela. The position was explained to Mr. Bayard, and the British Government was ready to submit to arbitration within certain limits, but they could not agree to the extensive reforms upon which Venezuela insisted.

Discriminated by a Grindstone.
ALTOONA, Pa., June 18.—Jacob Laub was caught by the crank of a steam propelled grindstone, and before he could be stopped he was dismembered and his body scattered. He survived for some minutes, begging pitifully for his comrades to shoot him.

Lord Colin Campbell Dead.
BOMBAY, June 18.—Lord Colin Campbell fourth son of the Duke of Argyll, a capable soldier in the British Indian army, is dead from pneumonia. Lord Colin Campbell was born in 1828. He was a Liberal in politics and sat as member of parliament for Argyllshire.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 21 1895.

Mr. Gladstone's visit to Germany is made the occasion of hearty demonstrations of popular admiration for this distinguished British statesman. It is safe to say that no matter what civilized country he chanced to enter there would be the same intense desire to wring his hand with cordiality and vigor. If, however, he were absent-mindedly to drop into Constantinople one of these fine June evenings this attention, we fear, would be paid to his neck.

Russia has secured some valuable exclusive privileges from Japan by treaty, use of them being the right to export petroleum under conditions that will undermine the American trade with Japan. For years past the demonstrations of mutual affection between the great Republic and the great despotism have been most edifying, but it remains to be seen whether the bond of union will stand the petroleum test.

M. Laloe, a very rich man, died in Paris the other day and provided in his last will and testament that he should not be given an ostentatious funeral. His body, on the contrary, was to be given the cheapest burial, like that of a pauper. To everybody's surprise, a shabby little one-horse vehicle appeared at the portals of his "palatial abode" and carried away this sensible rich man's remains to the common graveyard, where in a year his bones will be thrown out to make room for some other corpse. The cost of this funeral was $1.50.

THE IMPERIAL BANK.

Elsewhere will be found the report presented at the twentieth annual meeting of the Imperial Bank, which took place in the banking house of that institution, in Toronto, on 19th instant.

Like all great monetary institutions, the Imperial Bank, to borrow the language of the President, has "suffered somewhat from a long spell of easy money and general dullness in trade, accompanied by low prices for almost all commercial products, particularly for those of the soil."

Mr. Howland referred in hopeful tones to the improvement which has set in, both in trade and prices, and of the excellent position the bank was in to enable it to avail itself of any further revival in business.

Indeed it is almost safe to say that few of any of the Canadian Banks make a better showing than does the Imperial for the year just closed. The profits for the year, after deducting charges of management and interest due depositors, and making full provision for bad and doubtful debts (including balance brought forward of $32,638.27) amounts to $236,295.15. After paying two half yearly dividends of 4 per cent. each, and a bonus of one per cent. amounting to $176,649.60, there is a substantial balance of $59,589.55. Deducting $25,000 which was written off bank premises and furniture accounts the splendid sum of $34,589.55 is carried forward for next year.

The rest account amounts to the magnificent sum of $1,152,252, indicating a very high degree of capable management for many years past. During the banking year, circumstances have not been conducive of large earnings; on the contrary, it has required every effort of intellect combined with the closest application, and experience, to employ the great resources of an institution like the Imperial Bank to advantage. It is therefore, especially complimentary to Mr. Wilkie, the popular and efficient manager, that the Bank has made such substantial progress.

CAN NEVER BE ONE PEOPLE.

The Inhabitants of India Divided by the Iron Lines of Caste.

That the 280,000,000 inhabitants of the continent of India should ever become one nation is so wild an improbability, and, even if possible, a matter of so many centuries, that its assumed realization cannot be made the basis of practical politics, says the National Review. England and Ireland are an example of the slowness of growth of a common national sentiment in closely allied peoples forming one state, and the national unification of medieval Europe would have been a problem analogous to that of India today. For Latin then, as English now, in India was a common tongue for the educated classes, yet the former did not supplant, as the latter is now not destroying, the popular languages. And the ideal of a temporal head of Christendom in the holy Roman emperor, with its attendant aspirations, was a sentiment counteracting local or tribal feeling stronger than any that has yet arisen in India from the superimposed authority of the Queen's government, while there is nothing in India to correspond with the religious unity of Europe under the pope.

For Hindooism and Islam show no signs of decay, and the antagonism between their followers is on the increase. In the traditions of history one of the most powerful elements of national sentiment, the pride of the one is the shame of the other. The Mussulman glories in avenge; the followers of Gubind Singh and Sivaji desire his memory. Inter-marriage is impossible, and is a sin even among the myriad castes of Hindoo. There is no historical example of such a nation of such a multitude of diverse elements, and if it is to be effected the first steps have yet to be taken.

Sweeter than Sugar.

A discovery of extraordinary interest has been recently made in the Kent Laboratory at the Chicago University. A new compound has been found which has sweetening powers in excess of those possessed by saccharine, which has hitherto been considered the sweetest substance known to chemists.

While working upon a series derived from the coal-tar products, Dr. H. L. Wheeler happened to touch his pencil to his tongue. He was astonished that it had a very sweet taste. Upon looking for the cause, Dr. Wheeler found that he had done some writing on a piece of filter paper, upon which there was a very small quantity of the material which he had been working with. This led him to look into the matter and he found that a taste like that of licorice was noticeable.

God Save the Queen.

A Queen's college student occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church, Cape Vincent, recently and created a sensation as with closed eyes he prayed fervently for the establishment of the throne of Great Britain in righteousness; for divine protection to her majesty, Queen Victoria, that peace might reign within her borders and righteousness everywhere all her lifetimes. The invocation concluded with prayers for the good of all the royal family. A Yankee going out was heard to remark: "That fellow's a Britisher from his head to his heels."

CAN WE ASPHYXIMATE MICROBES?

A French Scientist Believes that Argon May be the Food of Bacteria.

A French scientist is making investigations regarding the part the newly discovered gas "argon" plays towards bacteria. The new gas which has so long been a part of our atmosphere without our knowing it, has been combined with oxygen, hydrogen, chlorine, phosphorus, sulphur, potassium, sodium and many other elements without any result. So far as the scientist can ascertain, "argon" has no effect chemically upon the higher animals. It may, however, be necessary to the nourishment of bacteria, and this is what he proposes to find out.

Supposing "argon" not to be necessary to man and necessary to bacteria, sterilization will be rendered much easier and the door be opened to all sorts of bacteriological possibilities.

In a Buffet Car.

The famished man fell into the arms of the relief committee, gasping for food. To the miserable man they brought soups, fishes, loaves and other things, and for six steady hours he devoured all they brought.

Doctors clustered round him and finally announced that he would live. Then they gave him brandy and bade him tell his awful tale.

"I was there five days," he whispered hoarsely, "five days. If you had not rescued me I would surely have starved to death."

He sat back, exhausted at the effort, which had evidently been too much for him. All the members of the committee clustered around him and pleaded with him to tell where he had been. At last he revived sufficiently to murmur:

"In a buffet car." All, everyone there present who had traveled in a buffet car and tried to get something to eat shuddered and covered their hands with their faces. Even strong men turned away their feet and cried.

Who Was the Sleeper.

"There, my love," said the young husband, as he placed a large bundle on the table, "I've bought you a pair of sleeves."

"Oh, you darling," exclaimed the delighted wife, "I'm so happy. Anything will do for a dream."

No Crops This Year.

A startling announcement, founded upon the new rule of the Kennel Club, is to the effect that after March no crop-eared dog can win one of the K.C. prizes. "Hooey!" quoth the dogs. "Full ears and no crops!"—Punch.

Electrical Treatment

810 Cowan Ave., Toronto.

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment: When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the nape of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

THE ARIZONA KICKER.

To Editor Daily Trenchantly With Ven-erous Manners.

Another Failure.—Some time since, our readers will remember, we erected a tower on the Kicker office. It was the first and only tower on a newspaper office in this territory. It wasn't as wide and tall as a New York newspaper office tower, and we didn't have an office up there and require a caller to send his card up through thirteen different information bureaus, but it was a tower which men could fifty miles to gaze on. Our idea was to put a bell or a clock in the tower, but we kept very quiet on that point, and nothing was done until last Saturday.
Then, suddenly believing that our innovation would excite no alarm, we got out a bell which had been hidden away for three months and had workmen hoist it up and hang it in place.

At 8 o'clock in the afternoon, all being ready, the jocular notes of our bell sounded forth on the winter air, and we felt that a great victory had been won. No for long, however. We heard the tramp of feet and the murmuring of voices outside and went out to discover a very solemn looking crowd packing the street in front of the office. A sudden every body who had been begun shooting, and some were so enthusiastic that they used two guns. We did not need to ask for explanations. We had but to look into the faces of those nearest us to know that our latest attempt to move the pointer on the dial of civilization was a failure.

HE HAD A GENTLE DISPOSITION.

Bullets into the bell rope. Bullets hit the bell. Bullets clipped and splintered the woodwork of the tower. By and by, when almost the last cartridge in the tower had been fired, the crowd melted away and left only ruin and desolation behind.
The fragments of the bell had been gathered up and laid away for future generations to gaze at, and the last of the tower had been removed from the roof to the wood pile. There will come a day in this town when towers will be as familiar sights as telegraph poles, and when the clang of a dozen bells will provoke no comment, but we must bid our time. When the workmen were hanging the bell, we bent our head to the east and thought we heard the roar of the wave of progress breaking against our iron-bound shores, but it seems we were mistaken. We tender our regrets to the public and drop back into the Nineteenth Century with a sigh.

Apologizing.—During the two days we were in Prescott last week our horse editor was in charge of our signal service bureau. We know of no particular reason why a horse editor shouldn't be a successful runner of a weather bureau, but the truth remains that our man made a flat failure of it. For Wednesday we predicted a warm wave and before noon of that day the thermometer was down to the lowest point reached this winter.
Thursday morning a committee of indignant citizens started out to wait upon him, but he got word in time and was not to be found. We reached home Friday noon and for several hours were kept busy explaining matters to different delegations and committees. Our horse editor came out of his hiding place about 10 o'clock at night, looking more like a ghost than a man, and it will be a week or more before he will feel easy in his mind. As near as we can figure, he got the weather for the Sandwich Islands mixed up with the weather for Arizona.
We are extremely sorry that anything of the sort should have occurred, and our readers can rest assured that it will not happen again. We have labeled the different pigeon holes and shall hereafter keep each weather by itself and thus prevent mistakes.

Newsprint.—In the issue of last week the Pine Hill Recorder gave notice of suspension, and we understood that Rev.
Barbery, its editor and proprietor, had shipped his material East and will run for a location in Iowa or Indiana. When he stopped here five months ago on his way to Pine Hill, we were sure that disaster awaited him within a few weeks.
He had been running a cheese factory, newspaper in Ohio and was absolutely opponent of the great West. When we asked him if he could shoot, he looked at us in astonishment. When we mentioned poker, he helped us to his horse.
He had the gentle disposition of the chickens brought to life in his insensate and was as mild as the new cider which poured from his press in the autumn days. How he ever managed to get out twenty issues of the Recorder is a puzzle to us. People used him for libel until it would have taken $10,000,000 to satisfy claims. People called on him and moped his stomach floor with his body until the floor was worn out. He was dragged out of bed and carried around on a rail, and he was led out of the office at high noon and hung up until he couldn't avail anything but soap for days at a time. He couldn't shoot, and he couldn't use a club, and the result was what might have been expected. On several occasions we rode over to Pine Hill and cleared his office of a mob and in one instance out him down as he was hanging and kicking at the end of a rope, but he had no mind and was a plaything for the Pine Hillers. The right kind of an editor could have been Postmaster over there, had a private graveyard and been elected Mayor by a whooping majority, but Rev.
Barbery made a failure of it all round and has finally escaped the mud of the Territory off his feet.

GAUDON'S VICTIMS.

Killed His Beautiful Wife and Her Boy Admirer.

Special to the Times.

LOUNSVILLE, June 19.—Arthur Gaudon late this afternoon killed his wife at Rollington, near Pewee Valley, and mortally wounded her boy lover "Tom" Murphy.
Gaudon's wife left her husband three years ago on account of his intemperate habits, taking her three children with her. She was a very beautiful woman and had many admirers. Reports which reached her husband's ears aroused his jealous rage, and he repeatedly declared that he would kill anyone whom Mrs. Gaudon favored.

Tom Murphy, a young college student, has of late been frequently mentioned by gossips as ardently devoted to her. This afternoon, Gaudon, while riding, met Murphy, who was on horseback.

Gaudon at once drew a revolver, and without a word fired, killing Murphy's horse. The college boy fell with his horse, and Gaudon shot him through the head.
He then left Murphy lying in the road, and coolly riding to where Mrs. Gaudon was boarding, killed her with a bowie knife.
He then gave himself up and is now in the lockup at Pewee Valley, fourteen miles from Louisville.

Mrs. Gaudon was about thirty two years of age but looked ten years younger. She was a daughter of Mr. James Schuler, who has been a squire of his district and one of the most prominent men in the country for twenty years. When his pretty daughter Jocelyn eloped with Gaudon, who is an Alsatian, the father told her never again to speak or write to him. When the separation came he refused her shelter.
She was too proud to work, and her fall was the direct result. Gaudon was insane, jealous of the attentions paid his wife, and the tragedy was not unexpected.
His only explanation or defense is that he got tired of his wife's disgrace and put an end to it as he thought best. He says he is ready to pay the penalty.

Summer Slaughter
of Innocents.

The slaughter of innocents will soon begin. The hot enervating weather of midsummer will quickly lay low the young babes who are weak, puny and sickly.
At this time there is hope and salvation for every weak and sickly child. The saving of life is not accomplished by medicine;
the work is effectually done by feeding the child on pure and life-giving Lactated Food.

When Lactated Food is used as a diet at this season, babies escape all the dangers of diarrhea, dysentery and cholera infantum.
Babies when fed on Lactated Food, thrive and flourish as well in the hot weather as at any other season. Thousands of mothers have given testimony that their babies have been saved by Lactated Food. Mother, see that you are fully supplied with Lactated Food for at least three months.

Mr. Taylor was largely instrumental in organizing the band and has contributed largely to the instrumental fund himself as well as securing a large part of the contributions, and the serenade Thursday night was a grateful acknowledgment of his services. Changes in Time Table.

A change in the time table of the Grand Junction road into effect on Monday. The mail car from Belleville will arrive in town at 8.15 a.m., and return at 8.40 a.m., instead of 10 p.m., as formerly. In the evening a train will leave here for Belleville at 9 o'clock. This latter change is made so as to accommodate travellers between Peterborough and Belleville, who desire to visit Toronto and return on the same day. At present it takes two days to make a return trip. It is rumored that the 1.40 o'clock afternoon train is to be cancelled.

Leave the Jurors Alone.

A circular has been sent out by the Attorney General's Department to the various sheriffs of the province to be posted up in the corridors of the court houses, reciting the penalties imposed by the statute upon persons convicted of tampering with jurors, and upon jurors accepting bribes. The detectives of the department have also been detailed to investigate several alleged cases of tampering with jurors in the northern and western section of Ontario. A determined effort will be made by the committee of a few of the guilty parties to come to prevent them from driving on the bridge. Their horse had to be unhitched and the vehicle turned around before they could return.

Lost Their Bearings.

Two residents of Ennismore drove to Peterborough Thursday and while transacting business incidentally imbibed too much liquor. They were very much intoxicated when they started for home and this fact nearly caused them serious injury. When they reached the C.P.R. crossing on George street they lost their bearings and drove down the track. When they reached the spur line they mistook it for a road and drove along it. A citizen who happened to see them got up to them just in time to prevent them from driving on the bridge. Their horse had to be unhitched and the vehicle turned around before they could return.

THE NORTH STAR.

Commodore Calcutt's New Steamer was Launched Yesterday

The new pleasure steamer which Commodore H. Calcutt has had built, was launched yesterday in the presence of quite a number. The new boat glided gracefully off the "wheels" and as it touched the water Miss Adèle Calcutt broke a bottle of wine on its bow and christened it the "North Star." The boat rode gracefully in the water and gives promise of great speed when under steam.

The "North Star" is 34 feet in length with a 124 foot beam, and is built of the best white oak. It has a draught of 44 feet at the stern with about three feet at the bow. It will be propelled by a 30 horse power engine and will easily accommodate 150 passengers.

Mr. Charles Calcutt will be master of the new steamer and C. Grylls, engineer. It will be completed by July 1st, and will ply between Harwood, Dewdney, Idyl Wyld, Hastings and Peterborough. Mr. T. W. Hickey of Port Hope is the builder.

MONDAY'S VOTE.

The School By-law Carried and the Bridge By-law Defeated.

Monday's voting on the two by-laws resulted in the carrying of the school addition by-law by the small majority of 54 votes and the defeat of the Auburn bridge by-law by a majority of 54 votes. The vote by Wards is given below:

THE SCHOOL BY-LAW.
For.	Against.
Ward One	44
Ward Two	24
Ward Three	46
Ward Four	51
Total	165

Majority in favor of by-law..... 165

THE AUBURN BRIDGE.
For.	Against.
Ward One	37
Ward Two	21
Ward Three	33
Ward Four	75
Total	166

Majority against by-law..... 54

The vote cast was very small and is an evidence of the indifference of the ratepayers in matters involving the expenditure of the municipal funds. Even those Wards directly interested in the by-laws polled a very small vote. An analysis of the vote shows that the ratepayers of Ward 4 helped to a very large extent to carry the school by-law, while the voters of the South Ward undoubtedly defeated the Auburn bridge project.

HIS RESIDENCE BURNED.

"Walkerfield," the Residence of Mr. Geo. Hutton, Destroyed by Fire.

"Walkerfield," the handsome residence of Mr. George Hutton, was totally destroyed by fire Monday. Just about noon an alarm first by telephone, and the brigade, which had not been long back from the fire at the I.X.L. laundry, made another quick response and were soon at the scene of the fire. It was a long run, "Walkerfield" being on the corner of road at the western end of Weller street, and when the firemen arrived they found that they were going to be powerless to prevent the house from being consumed by the flames as there was no water at hand. The house stands about 900 feet from the road and the nearest hydrant would be 1100 or 1200 feet further back. There was not hose enough for such a long stretch. The steamer was taken to the scene but it was of no use, as there was no water supply from which it could pump.

The fire, which started in the kitchen, is supposed to have originated from the chimney, but it is not exactly known. The flames did not make progress very rapidly at first and from one stream of water the firemen would have confined the fire to the kitchen. But slowly and surely it ate its way into the front part and when it got a good grip of the roof the flames which he thought would be beneficial to the growth of the organization.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by the Mayor and aldermen to the visiting delegates, and a cordial invitation was extended for them to meet in the same place next year, and giving them the freedom of the town.

Interesting reports on the extension and growth of the society were received with applause from the organizers, J. Rose and H. Clarke, and the grand master, J. H. Clarke, stated that during the year the demise of only ten members had been reported, and the death rate was 4 per cent. The reports from the grand secretary and grand treasurer, together with the statements from the secretaries of the various districts were very encouraging, and plainly showed that the order was in a highly satisfactory state.

Through Eastern Canada there are few lodges of the society, and the Committee on the State of the Order strongly recommended that increased efforts be put forth to promote organization in that district. They also suggested that a memorial day be set apart to decorate the graves of deceased members.

Complimentary resolutions were passed to the grand master, grand organizer, grand medical referee, and the editor of the Canadian Oddfellow for the interest displayed by them in the interest of the order. The delegates were then treated to a trip to Starvation Point by boat.

CANNOT AGREE.

The Presbyterian Assembly Debates the Manitoba School Question.

When the debate on the Manitoba school question was resumed Thursday at London, Principal MacVicar as second of Principal Caven's resolution, confined himself to a defence of the resolution, and attacked the amendment of Principal Grant.

Rev. Prof. Bryce, of Manitoba, reviewed the facts of the case and made an impassioned appeal for support for Manitoba. He denied that the public schools were such as to preclude the attendance of Roman Catholics. They had granted permission to Roman Catholic teachers to teach in the public schools, and the report of the inspector of French schools moved that out of 90 French schools 37 had been closed and 53 disbanded in favor of the public schools. If they had been tyrannical this result could never have been achieved, and the vast majority were prepared to acquiesce in the final decision of the majority. He said that the public schools and they were determined to hold their own and see the thing through to an end. For the Ottawa Government to make any proposition to Manitoba that would take the interests of the latter into consideration was a proposition that was preposterous. In a stirring peroration he urged the Assembly to play the part of John Knox before Queen Mary, the defender of the faith, and to face the Scottish reformer had.

All the resolutions and amendments were finally referred to a committee consisting of the following: Rev. Dr. McLaren, Rev. Dr. Moore, Rev. Mr. Munro Fraser, Rev. Mr. Wright, Rev. Dr. Fletcher, Rev. R. G. McBeth, Rev. Dr. Macdonnell, Rev. Dr. Bryce, Rev. Dr. Morrison, Walter Paul, R. McQueen and John A. Patterson. The duty of the committee is to unite on a motion and submit it to the Assembly.

THE GRAYS IN JAIL.

They Were Arrested in Ocala, Florida, on Saturday

As predicted would be the case, Thos. Gray and his wife have been arrested at their farm near Ocala, Florida, and Monday night Detective Murray started for the south to bring them here for trial for the murder of David Scollie.

There are five children, the oldest about 10 years and the youngest a mere infant. It is hard to say what will become of them. The Crown's case is summed up thus: The Grays went to live with Scollie under an agreement that they were to keep the old man as long as he lived. In consideration of this Scollie decided to transfer his Gray told her sister, Mrs. W. J. McGregor, that she intended to get rid of the old man, that she supposed having him (meaning her husband) was a nuisance, and by using fire no person would suspect her.

The night the dwelling of the Grays' was burned, Gray was absent and Mr. Gray was a number of houses before giving the alarm at her sister's. Had the nearer neighbors been notified, the fire could have been extinguished.

When the body of Scollie, who slept in a bedroom upstairs, was found in the ruins the head was missing, and is still. The body was lying on its back, with arms outstretched, and the legs were bent. The body was found in the ruins of the house, and the straw of the mattress remained underneath. Neither the quilts nor underclothes of Scollie were found. The body was found on the ground, it is claimed he could not have fallen with the collapsed flooring without the position of the body changing.

After two or three after the fire, when suspicions had become aroused, Mrs. Gray visited her sister and asked her not to say anything respecting the fire, and she was not to say anything as possible after Scollie's death. Gray and his wife collected the insurance, sold the farm and left quietly for Florida. An examination of the body was made by the coroner and the body was found to be that of the old man, and the remains were subsequently buried.

THE DOCTOR'S REPORT.

Dr. John Caven, who made the post mortem examination of the body of Scollie, who is alleged to have been murdered in Peterborough county one year ago last February, will hand in his report to the Attorney General's Department this morning. It will show that death was not produced through burning but that the head was almost cut from the body before the fire broke out in the building, and the remains were subsequently buried.

PLAYED WITH SCOLLIE'S JAW BONE.

The accused have five children, who may possibly be brought back with the parents. The most recent story in connection with the case is that the Grays played with Scollie's jaw bone after the fire. In February, 1893, one of Gray's little boys was riding with a farmer named Muse. The youngster had a jawbone in his hand, and he was asked to what it was called. "A piece of Old David's jawbone." This object was afterwards turned over to the coroner.

ODDFELLOWS AT LINDSAY.

The Annual Meeting of the Order—Encouraging Reports Presented

About one hundred grand officers and delegates attended the opening of the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Oddfellows Grand Lodge in the Town Hall at Lindsay Thursday. At the conclusion of the opening ceremonies a Credential Address was made by the grand master, J. H. Clarke, and the grand master, J. H. Clarke, stated that during the year the demise of only ten members had been reported, and the death rate was 4 per cent.

The reports from the grand secretary and grand treasurer, together with the statements from the secretaries of the various districts were very encouraging, and plainly showed that the order was in a highly satisfactory state.

THE SCOLLIE CASE.

The Sheriff Will Hold the Prisoners for Ten Days.

Both Drs. Caven and Primrose in their deposition made in possession of the Attorney General, stated that Scollie's head was not burned off. They expressed the opinion in no uncertain terms that the head could not have been completely burned off of the old man without the hair on his chest being singed, the underclothing burned and the trunk of the body showing more signs of the fire than it did.

WOULD HOLD THEM 10 DAYS.

Detective Murray did not start for Florida Tuesday morning as was expected, but intended leaving last night. He was all ready and only waiting the instructions of Acting Premier Hardy. He received a despatch from the sheriff of Marion County stating that he would hold the prisoners for ten days, and then give them their liberty if not taken in custody by the Canadian officer by that time.

A FLORIDA GOAL.

Any person who knows what a Florida goal is like and especially the goal at Ocala, would deem 10 days incarceration in its cells sufficient punishment for any crime. The goal building is a low two-story affair, surrounded on one side by a low board fence. The front part is occupied by the sheriff and his family, and the cells are in the rear. At these cells are the most filthy, foul smelling stench pits conceivable. They are in dimensions about 6 feet by 4 feet, with dirty bunks built one above the other, containing rough shake down of Spanish moss (matted) and reeking with grease and vermin. As many as a dozen negroes are confined in one of these wretched death holes at one time, and there they await the decision in the heat which is almost intolerable in the summer months, for the goal is unprotected by shade, and the fierce rays of the tropic sun beat with unrelenting power upon its thin walls converting the interior into a veritable bake oven.

The food provided these poor wretches would kill most people. For the most part it is fat bacon, for the most part it is fat and shrink the meat. In consequence a chunk of this nauseating meat is served to the prisoners, and is taken in the hand, and by a slight squeeze the grease will fairly spurt out in all directions like the juice of an orange. The prisoners frequently do this, and the grease is never cleaned. This meat is placed in long flat pans, filled with plain boiled hominy, a few chunks of cornmeal "pudding" is spread on top, and if the prisoners have been especially well behaved, the whole is covered with cane syrup, as a sort of a treat. The pan is shoved under the door of the cells and the hands go to work with their fingers. The one who eats the most, also eats the most grubs, for the cells fairly swarm with this species of Southern insect life. Strong healthy men who have been incarcerated in this jail awaiting trial, have come out at the end of one month, reduced to skeletons and physically wrecked for life, craving for food, even, as an excuse from the torture of further confinement.

HE WORKS MARKETS.

A Slick Fakir who Will Probably Come This Way.

The old story of the fool and his money was practically told in Lindsay the other evening. A slick looking joker, with a tongue that is hang in the middle and at both ends, struck town and took up his stand on the market square, where under the glare of the gasoline torch he held forth for a couple of hours. He was accompanied by a good looking body, presumably his wife, who assisted him in doing up by an invitation on the part of the "business" to remove to the "best of the town" with the but and of a whip, but he neglected to state whether he would pull the teeth out or shove them down the victim's throat. The invitation was not accepted. Sundry packages of alleged "wart exterminator" were then disposed of at 25 cents per package, then the line was drawn in and the book freshly printed for "fakirs." It was a little out of season for this class of fakir, but it was simply remarkable the number that were around just the same. Producing a green and only catnip remedy in a quite a large number of bottles at $1.00 per bottle, saying he would give every purchaser a present from a hat he had for holding his money in. When this played out he as a number and his initials on the wrappers of the bottles and whatever number was on the wrapper the purchaser got that number in as much of a present as an "ordinary buyer." After selling all he could in this way he called the "greenies" up to receive their "presents," which consisted of box seats of the "wart exterminator." By this time the investors began to get onto the scheme and were getting a trifle wild around the place. The man with the tongue in the middle had quietly stepped out of the carriage and was quickly lost among the crowd, leaving the woman busily engaged in selling dried and scented Irish beans, worth about 50c. a bushel, at "six for ten cents," guaranteed to grow 40 feet high and sent even the whole East wide. Truly the fakir is not all wet. The man is heading for Peterborough.

Diamonds Lost and Recovered.

Mrs. George A. Cox, wife of the Manager of the Central Canada Loan & Savings Co., was in the office of her husband Tuesday morning and was called to the telephone. While there a little girl known in all business houses, where she offers bouquets of roses and other flowers for sale, entered the room. When Mrs. Cox returned she missed her purse, which had been left on the table. As it contained several diamond rings, as well as some gold and paper money, a search was at once made for the little girl by employees in the office. She was eventually located in the market, confessed the crime and volunteered to go with the men to recover the jewellery. They were all found seated in a radiator in the hall of the Union Loan building. Detective Burrows was put on the case, and with the girl's guidance, found the balance of the money except two dollars. The girl was subsequently arrested. She is aged sixteen, and named Florence Beadle, 157 De Grand street, Toronto Globe. The Toronto News says: Florence Beadle, the little girl pedlar who stole Mrs. George A. Cox's diamonds from the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company's office yesterday and was arrested later on pleaded guilty in the children's court and was remanded for a week to the Children's Shelter.

How to Cure All Skin Diseases.

Crops in this county never looked better. Fall wheat is in the pink of condition, while peas, oats and barley promise a large yield. Rain is badly needed and cannot hold off much longer. A couple of days more would put dollars in the pockets of the agriculturist, and make his heart glad. If the present high price of wheat holds out until the grain crop is harvested all will be well and business men will enjoy a rattling fall and winter's trade. When the farmers are making money all things are prosperous.

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is pleasant to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter of a century. Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty-two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure all these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more a piano was ordered as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co.'s for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third place of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family. He still another wedding was to take place. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

THE PICTIC REASON.
Coe Hill Sunday Schools held their annual picnic on Thursday, June 20.

ELECTION TIME WILL START IT.

It is time the government was commencing work on the road across the river. It was to have been opened by May 1st. We supposed it will be started about the middle of July, when all the residents will be busy with hay and unable to assist. Now this is not justice to the people of this back country who require and should receive every dollar expended by the authorities. As it is now other laborers are imported and the money is taken to other places—a loss to every inhabitant, whether laborer or tradesman.

THE ONTARIO BANK.

The annual general meeting of the Stockholders of the Ontario Bank was held at the banking house, Toronto, on Tuesday, the 18th day of June, 1895.

Among those present were: Col. Sir C. S. Gzowski, A.D.C., K.C.M.G., G.R.R. Cockburn, M.P., Hon. G. A. Drummond, (Montreal), Donald McKay, D. Ulyot, (Peterborough), W. R. Miller, (Montreal), G. M. Rose, A. S. Irving, R. D. Perry, A. Harvey, C. S. Gzowski, Jr., J. K. Macdonald, Thomas K. Fraser, F. B. Folsom, H. B. Taylor, J. Richardson and others.

On motion Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn was called to the chair, and Mr. Holland, was requested to act as secretary.

Messrs. J. K. Macdonald, W. R. Miller, and C. S. Gzowski, Jr., were appointed scrutineers.

At the request of the chairman the secretary read the following REPORT.

The Directors beg to submit to the Shareholders the accompanying statement of the accounts of the Bank, made up to the 31st of May, 1895, including the profit and loss account for the twelve months ending at that date:

The net profits, after payment of all charges of management, interest due on deposits, etc., were $27,215 00

Balance of Profit and Loss, May 31st, 1894, $123,343 32

From which have been deducted—

Dividend 1894, paid in full $12,000 00

Dividend 1895, paid in full $12,000 00

Written off Bank Premiums $10,000 00

Transferred from Bank Account $10,000 00

From which the following appropriations have been made—

For paid and doubtful debts $10,000 00

In reduction of interest on deposits $10,000 00

In reduction of other liabilities $10,000 00

Leaving to be carried forward $10,000 00

The year just closed has been one of exceptional difficulty for the profitable conduct of monetary institutions. Trades of all kinds, not only in Canada, but throughout the whole world have been active and depressed, while the demand for money has been correspondingly limited, and its full employment was obtainable only with difficulty and at remunerative rates.

From these causes the bank, in common with other institutions, has suffered a proportionate diminution of profits, necessitating a reduction of the dividend for the last half of the year to three per cent, but it had, in addition, to contend against a series of exaggerated and otherwise prejudicial rumors, which entailed, as a precautionary measure, a considerable contraction of the loans, and the holding of largely increased reserves.

While these influences have not affected the stability of the bank, or had any permanent influence upon its earning power, they have been prejudicial to its earnings during the period under review, and have depressed the quotations of the stock to a figure much below its real value.

In view of these circumstances, and the important changes which have taken place in the board, your Directors deemed it advisable to make a careful examination and revision of the bank's entire assets, both at the head office and the branches, and after much earnest consideration they decided to take a more conservative view of a number of accounts in the bank's books, and to write off all ascertained losses (a portion of which it had been hoped, until within the present year, would not require appropriations) and to make due provision also for any other losses deemed doubtful, as well as to provide liberally for any shrinkage in value or loss that might occur in disposing of the real estate and other securities.

To accomplish this it was necessary, as will be seen by the balance sheet appended, to appropriate a sufficient sum from the reserve, a step your Directors regret exceedingly, but they deemed it, as well as the reduction of the dividend, to be the proper course to pursue under the circumstances.

They are also of the opinion, that as there are indications of a gradual and general revival of business, the present time was an especially fitting opportunity for making this appropriation, and of thus placing the affairs of the bank upon a satisfactory basis.

The business of the bank is good, and its earning power substantially unimpaired, and your Directors believe it to be more to the true interest of the Stockholders to show a smaller Reserve Fund and less unproductive assets.

Your Directors desire to place upon record their sense of the great loss sustained by the Bank in the deaths of their esteemed colleagues, the late Mr. M. Smith and the Hon. C. F. Fraser, whose sound judgment and influence were at all times so freely given in the interest of the Stockholders.

The vacancies in the Board caused by their deaths, and by the retirement of the late President, the Hon. Sir William Howard, have been filled by the election of Mr. A. S. Irving and Mr. R. D. Perry, both of Toronto, and Mr. D. Ulyot, of Peterborough. Mr. Donald McKay was elected to fill the vacant office of Vice-President.

The usual inspection of the Head Office and of the different branches of the Bank have been continued throughout the year, and in order to familiarize himself with the position of the Bank, the President has also visited the different Offices, a policy which your Directors recommend should be observed in the future.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE B. R. COCKBURN, President.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

June 21.—There was not much excitement in the live stock circles today, partly owing to the fact that very few calves were received from the other side. A message was received from Glasgow yesterday and trade was reported to be a little more encouraging, and dealers are in hopes that Liverpool and London will show a still further improvement over last week next Monday. At the last quotations received from those markets shippers calculate that they will just come out about even, and that is all. There is no appreciable change in the local situation, and freights and insurance rates remain about the same.

There were about 400 head of butchers' cattle, 500 calves and 1,000 sheep and lambs offered for sale at the East End Abattoir today. The butchers were out in large numbers, and there was an active demand for good animals of all kinds, but there were no really choice cattle and very few good ones on the market, and these sold at about 40c per lb. with pretty good stock at from 40c to 45c and half fat calves from 30c to 35c per lb. while some of the heavier heads would bring very little over 30c per lb. Very few good calves are offered, and these are in demand at from 35c to 40c each. Common and inferior calves are rather numerous and sell at from 25c to 30c each. Mutton offerings were much more plentiful than usual, and were generally lower in price, quality considered. Good lambs sold at from 32c to 35c each, and good ones from 35c to 40c each, with a few extra ones up to 45c each. Shippers are paying about 40c per lb. for good large sheep and others are bought by the butchers at from 30c to 40c per lb. Mr. Joseph Richard bought 20 lambs at from 30c to 35c each and six calves for 35c. Fat hogs are slightly lower in price at from 45c to 40c per lb.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Niblo's Garden, one of the historic theatres, has seen its last performance. It will be torn down right away.

Yvette Guilbert, the French music hall singer, about whom foreign correspondents have raved for a year or two, is coming over next fall.

The all conquering Brady will raise from prize fights to comic opera next year. He has hired Julian Edwards to write the score of an Irish opera to a libretto by Stanislaus Brangie.

Theodore Thomas, the orchestra director, will celebrate his golden jubilee in July. He was born in Haverhill sixty years ago, and came to America a lad of ten. He played in New York while a youngster as a kind of juvenile prodigy.

A 24. Louis man has organized a pedestrian drama company, which proposes to walk all the way from New York, giving a show every night at some small town by the way, and carrying their scenery, costumes and baggage with them.

There is a good deal in a name sometimes. Mr. Deboy, who has been singing tenor songs in Daly's company a little while under the name of Deubigny, has now joined the Abbey & Grant company to sing tenor parts and will be known as Deubigne, which sounds very French indeed.

Louie Cyr's little daughter recently made her debut as a strong girl in Montreal. She is only seven years old and weighs 65 pounds, yet she lifted two dumbbells of 800 pounds, a 35-pound dumbbell above her head, a 150-pound one with one hand and two weighing 90 with one finger.

ABOUT WOMEN WOMEN.

The Queen of the Belgians is usually attended when on horseback by one of her favorite dogs, of which she has a dozen, with a preference—just as Queen Victoria has—for Spitz-terriers.

Lady Florence Dixie has accepted the presidency of the British Ladies' Football Club. The members of the club do not play in fashion's dress, but in knickerbockers, blouses, caps and football boots.

Mrs. H. H. Kilton of Boston has been selected to execute for the City of Providence a statue of Ezekiel Hopkins, first admiral of the Revolutionary Navy. Her husband is a sculptor of prominence and she has exhibited some highly creditable work at the Paris Salon.

"The late Lady C. Schreiber was a great patroness of London cabmen," says the London (Eng.) Queen. "They were indebted to her many years since as the kind donor of the cabmen's shelter outside the Langham Hotel, of which she sheltered there are forty. Once a year she invited about 300 to a magnificent tea and entertainment. She was a warm supporter of the Cabdrivers' Benevolent Association."

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths; the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Attain for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Mankind and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self control, despondency, etc.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born today. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would do it this way."

And another thus:

Write to the RAIR MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANKIND." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

FARM & GARDEN

CONTINUOUS LIME KILN.

It Does Not Cost Very Much to Build One on the Farm.

Limestone is a carbonate of lime, and lime is the oxide of the metal calcium, which has such an intense avidity for oxygen that it takes fire and burns with intense heat and light when exposed to air that is at all moist. Thus it is a rare metal, and used only for chemical purposes. The great abundance of limestone, which is more or less diffused everywhere in the soil, and in places is very abundant, being found in vast beds of marble and other forms of it, might lead to the supposition that plants might procure all they need without any help. But it is quick lime they need, and not the inert carbonate of it; and thus it is that the stone is burned to drive out of it the carbonic acid, and make it into lime, which is an acid, caustic substance that exerts a most energetic action on all organic matter; and considerable action on mineral compounds in the soil, dissolving silica and thus setting free such plants foods as potash, magnesia, soda and phosphoric acid from insoluble compounds. Limestone is insoluble in water, but lime is soluble in 700 parts of water. Thus it is that while the roots of plants may possibly decompose to some extent the common carbonate, and get a little lime in this way, it is found very useful, some think indispensable, to apply the actual lime to the soil.

It is not much of a job to make lime. The limestone may be put in a heap with wood or coal, and a wall built up around the heap to confine the heat. The fuel being fired, the stone is made into lime in three or four days. But this is a costly way, and thus where there is a demand for the lime, kilns are used, some temporary ones, but little improved on the home, or clamps, as they are called, and some strong structures called permanent kilns of which the one is an example. This is made of any kind of hard stone, and lined with fire brick. It is egg-shaped, because as the stone is burned, and the coal or wood used as fuel is consumed, the bulk decreases, and thus what will fill the belly of the kiln, only fills the throat at the bottom. This kiln may have three or four throats or openings for drawing out the lime, but each is made in the way shown. The lime when it reaches the bottom being fully burned, is drawn out into the hearth, a through the opening into the kiln, &c. In burning the stone is broken into convenient size for handling, and a way is made to the top of the kiln, which is most often built in a

KILN FOR LIME BURNING.
A small sloping track some distance made to the top of the kiln, and a platform around it, so that the small cars of lime and fuel may be drawn up and dumped into the kiln. The fire is started in the bottom by filling in dry wood, from the throat at the bottom, and wood or coal (the cheap slack being used), is dumped in at the top, then some lime, and then alternately fuel and limestone until the kiln is full, when it is fired, and goes on when after day as long as lime is required. About the third day, the lime is ready for raking out, which is done with long bars of iron with a right angled hook at the end. It is only necessary to start it, when it fills the hearth, when it is left to cool. When it is taken out, more lime comes down, or if it lodges, the hook is used to loosen it. After the kiln is first charged, the stone sits down steadily, and as this is always to be kept heaped at the mouth, as soon as it has sunk down to a level, a fresh supply is heaped up. As the fumes from the kiln consist of carbonic acid, which is a deadly gas when breathed, it is necessary for the man in charge of feeding the kiln to keep on the windward side, so that the gas is blown away from him.—Rural New Yorker.

Repairing at Home.
On all well-conducted farms where much machinery is used, farmers spend a great deal of time running to and fro from the blacksmith shop. There are so many different tools used that something gives out almost every day. Now a great deal of this expense may be saved by having a small shop on the farm. A portable forge can be had for $10. This will answer every purpose, although it is not advisable to get one too small. Secure a hand saw weighing about 100 lbs., a good hammer, a ten-pound sledge, a steel punch and a good blacksmith's vise, and you are ready for almost any job but horseshoeing. Of course a beginner cannot expect to do skilled work at first, but with a little practice, time and money can be saved. A farmer should not be without an assortment of good carpenter tools. Many a dollar can be saved by their use. If the farmer does not care to do his own repairing, perhaps the boys (if there be any) will take hold and to them it will soon become more of a pleasure than a task.

Reclaiming Swampy Lands.
No dwelling house ought to be built near a swamp. If such an estate either the house should be removed or the swamp should be drained. There are many places where the deepening of ditches already made is all that is needed to make dry land fit for cultivation of what has been an eyesore to the neighborhood. This making of an outlet is such the most expensive part of the reclamation. It will improve the neighboring upland also, for that equally needs under draining, but cannot get it itself a safe reliable outlet has been provided. All swampy lands have been for ages the source for vegetable matter from upland. So soon as the latter is undermined the water falling on the upland runs down to the tile and carries the soil, instead of washing away its fertility.—Rural World.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

"At the age of 15 I commenced to ruin my health. Later on as 'ONE OF THE BOYS' contracted a serious blood disease. SYPHILIS. I was weak and nervous, despondent, playful, unable to work, bone pain, slow, hair loose, nose long and mouth, drops in urine, varicocele—I was a wreck. I was in the last stages when a friend recommended Dr. Kennedy & Kergan. A dozen other doctors had failed in curing me. Dr. K. & K. cured me in a few weeks by the New Method Treatment. I would now advise all diseased men to consult Medical Friends. Dr. K. & K. are reliable, honest and skillful physicians."

We treat and cure—Varicocele, Syphilis, Emissions, Dropsy, Catarrhs, Discharges, Kidney and bladder diseases, 16 years in treatment. See our book, "Cure No Pay." Write for free literature. Send name for treatment. Books Free.

LIFE.

And life, at best,
Is vague unrest—
A shadow ever moving,
A little rare,
A little prayer,
A little hopeless being.
A breath of light
Blown through the night,
Inaugurable and fleeting;
The sun of years
Is in our tears,
Our parting and our meeting.
And some sad day
We pause and say
We're tired of its keeping,
A little sigh—
The world goes by,
And leaves us to our sleeping.

KING OF THE SEA.

By M. Quad.

We had four boats out for the school of whales, which were slowly making their way to windward, and the three or four of us left to mind the ship were heaving slowly against the last breeze, when the carpenter suddenly uttered a shout of alarm and pointed to the north. The sight we saw made every man hold his breath. A great bull whale, fully ninety feet long and of enormous girth, was breaching. He shot out of the water, until it seemed to us that he rested on his tail alone, and being not over a quarter of a mile away, it was as if a great pillar of stone had been shot up from the bottom of the sea by some mighty power. The huge body held its poised while you could have counted thirty. Then it leaped to the south and toppled over like a giant tree under the blows of the air, and the crash was like the collapse of a brick building. There was no sea on which he appeared, but directly after his fall three great waves came rushing down upon us, and the ship was tossed and buffeted for the moment as if facing a howling gale. It was not that the monster had breasted so near as that turned every face white with fear as he fell, but it was what we had seen during the half minute his gray-black body was exposed. There were two harpoons sticking into him, with their lines coiled many times about

"THE BOAT, THE BOAT—HE'LL COME BACK!" his bulk, and just back of his right eye was a great splinter imbedded in the flesh to prove that he had attacked a boat or ship. That the whale was alone was proof enough that he was in ugly mood, and as he rolled to and fro on the surface and beat the water into foam we realized that he must be in pain as well. No man moved hand nor foot for five minutes, but the creaking of the yards and the slatting of the sails betrayed us. With a single sweep of his flukes the whale slewed himself around until he was head on, and as we stared at him it was like looking upon a great bowlder lying upon the foaming surface of the sea. He seemed to be deliberating for two or three minutes on a plan of attack, and then slowly swam to windward, as if he had decided to attack the boats. At the distance of half a mile, and just as we had begun to feel relieved, the monster slewed about and came for the ship under full headway. Every man cried out in terror and sprang into the mizen shrouds, but before anyone was thirty feet high the whale had passed us astern. The wheel having been deserted, the ship had broached to, and this action had upset the plans of the whale. It was run a close shave, however, that he carried the rudder away as he passed and rolled a sea over her quarter which flooded the decks two feet deep.

"The boat, the boat—he'll come back!" shouted the carpenter as the ship tossed about like a cork, and we clung to the rigging with iron grip.

There was no time to launch the yawl hanging to the stern davits. Not one of us had set foot on deck when the whale, which had run a mile or more to leeward, turned for another rush. He came with greater speed this time, and he had the ship broadside on and could not miss her. We had him full under our eyes, but were helpless to avoid the danger. We saw the wave in front of him grow larger and larger, the great head loom up higher and higher, and he must have had a speed of thirty miles an hour as he struck us on the port side and fairly amidship. Let a rock weighing three or four tons roll down a hillside for a mile or more and strike a farmhouse, and the crash could not equal that which we felt and heard as the whale struck the vessel. It was a stout-built craft, but the blow shivered plank and rib and timber and opened a cavern, into which the water rushed with such volume that she lurched and staggered and settled away right under our feet. We went overboard as we felt her sinking, and all were drawn into the vortex and cast up again with the wreckage. Each man seized something to support him, and when we could see about us the whale was lying quietly on the surface, and we were rubbing along his side with the run of the sea. With one sweep of his flukes he could have killed us all, but fortune was with us. He made no move until we were all clear of him, and then he settled away into the sea so slowly and quietly that scarcely a ripple was raised over the spot. No one saw him after that. Man had hunted him down and sought his life, and he had revenged himself by sending a noble craft to rest on the bottom of the sea and leave her crew in open boats 2,000 miles from land. Anything less would have been unworthy of a king of the sea.

How Thoughtless of Him.

Jack—Oh, grandma, a telegram has come to say that Harry has broken the record at college.

Old Lady—Dear me! how careless of him! If it cannot be mended, I suppose he will have to pay for a new one.

A Safety Match.

Cora—Was it a love match?
Dora—Well, as her money paid his debts and kept him out of prison, I should say it was a safety match.

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truth; the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Attain for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pains; Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."
The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.
To cure nervousness, lack of self control, dependency, etc.

To exchange a faded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men who need it.

A despairing man who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

Write to the EMERALD MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any name, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE INTER-STATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

An interesting statement of Railway Affairs—Rate of Casualty Between Employees and Passengers. Special to the Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission makes interesting reading. It says that on June 30, 1894, 108 railroads in the United States operating 41,000 miles and representing one-fourth of the total railway capitalization, were in the hands of the receivers. The total mileage was 178,908.

The increase in the mileage is smaller than during any previous year being 2,947, whereas during 1893, the increase was 4,807. As against this there were 25 more companies whose numbers now amount to 1,984, 745 of which were independent. Seventy seven roads were not in operation. Ninety roads control 72 per cent of the entire mileage.

EQUIPMENT OF THE ROADS.

There are 55,000 locomotives, of which 704 were built during 1894. Of these 9,208 were passenger, and 30,000 freight. These engines hauled 1,778,079 cars, of which 38,000 were passenger cars, which carried 619,089 passengers.

The freight cars conveyed 608,198,000 tons of freight, as against 745,110,400 during the previous year. To operate these roads required 178,600 employees, a decrease of 68,000 as compared with 1893. For 1894 the average daily compensation was: For general officers $6.71, other officers $5.75, general office clerks $3.34, station agents $1.75, other station men $1.05, conductors $3.61, firemen $3.04, conductors $3.04, other trainmen $1.59, machinists $3.21, carpenters $3.04, other shopmen $1.59, section foremen, $1.71, other trackmen $1.19, switchmen, flagmen, and watchmen $1.75, telegraph operators and dispatchers $1.97, and employees of floating equipment $1.07.

In all, employees on American railways then earned a total of $34,271,527 per day.

CAPITALIZATION AND VALUE.

The total amount of railway capital was $10,706,413 an increase of $208,228,408. The debt owing was $6,326,558,018. The amount of stock paying no dividend was $3,000,000, 004, or 63.61 per cent of the whole. Of the stock paying dividends 4.31 per cent paid from 4 to 5 per cent, and 5.43 per cent paid from 5 to 6 per cent. The total amount of dividends was $85,575,978, an average of five per cent.

The gross earnings were $1,073,321,297, a decrease of $147,890,077 compared with the previous year. Passenger revenue declined $14,142,323, and freight decreased $129,233, 92.

ACCIDENTS IN A YEAR.

During the year 1,888 employees were killed and 28,322 injured, while 324 passengers were slain and 3,304 injured. In other words, one employee out of every 248 is killed and one out of every 33 injured. As to the passengers only one in every 30,322 was killed and one out of every 30,322 injured. Apparently no direct cause was killed, but they always travel on their own trains with the "line cleared."

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 25 1895.

The captain of the schooner Ellen Johnson, which arrived at San Francisco last week from Nicaragua, reported that he had been compelled to abandon three sailors on a barren coral atoll, three miles in diameter, and raising but two of three above the ocean level, off the Pacific coast of Nicaragua. The reef is rich in phosphates, and the schooner went there with twenty-five men to get abroad a cargo. There is no harbor, and vessels are loaded by lighter. The sea was very rough, and when the vessel was nearly landed the line parted while three men were ashore. The Captain had to put to sea for safety and leave the men. The men have plenty of food, but will have to depend on rain for water, and will have to remain on the barren reef until another schooner may chance to take them off. There are birds on the reef and sharks in the sea surrounding it, and altogether the men must be having as unlovely a time as could well be imagined.

AFRAID OF QUEBEC.

We agree with the Toronto Telegram in the statement that interference with Manitoba will embitter the relationship between the people and the province of Canada, and must be destructive of that principle of provincial rights which must be respected if Canada is to grow in greatness and unity.

Interference will be deplored by all who think first of the public good, but it is not certain that those who think first of party success have the slightest reason to regret the Government's decision to interfere with Manitoba.

Quebec supplies one and Ontario the other formidable element in Mackenzie Bowell's following. The rights and wrongs of the question have no place in the calculations of a politician. Mackenzie Bowell has simply to decide which element he can best afford to defend, and unfortunately Quebec is not the home of the crowd that he can fool.

There will be remedial legislation, because politicians believe that Ontario can be fooled, and they are afraid to try to fool Quebec.

GERMANY'S GREAT CANAL.

The opening of the Baltic and North Sea Canal is an event of enough importance to Germany to justify the elaborate celebration which is being made. The canal means more than a mere shortening of the distance which ships must traverse in going from Baltic ports to the Atlantic. It opens the entire Baltic coastline of Germany to Western commerce.

The canal is about 64 miles long, 30 feet deep and 210 feet wide. Vessels of 1,000 tons burden can pass at any part of it, and in places it has been so widened that ships of 10,000 tons can pass in safety. The walls have been constructed of such strength that a speed of six miles an hour can be permitted, and the entire time taken for the passage will be six hours. The canal will be lighted by electricity throughout its length, so it can be used in the night as well as in the day. It is on the sea-level, but there are locks at the two entrances to keep out the tides. The work of building has required eight years and the cost has been about $20,000,000.

The plan of the canal has been several centuries in forming. A smaller waterway across this isthmus was completed in 1784 and was used for over a century by vessels of light draft, but it was too shallow and too crooked to accommodate much of the commerce of the Baltic ports. Through primarily a work of peace, the Baltic canal will add greatly to the strength of Germany as a naval power.

SUMMER MILLINERY.

GORGEOUSNESS SEEMS TO BE THE KEYNOTE OF THE STYLES.

There are all manner of New Fancies in Flowers and Plants for the Adornment of Early Summer Hats—The Favorite Straws are the Hough Straws.

Oh, for a host of adjectives, new and strong, and with the accent on the first syllable! Until these are found, all descriptions of the summer fancies of millinery must fall far short of the reality. Gorgeousness seems to be the keynote of the prevailing styles. Such colors as we find on fashionable hats and bonnets can be found nowhere else save in old-fashioned gardens and on the palette of the scene-painter; yet, for all this, there is great harmony in the grouping of them, and even when a bonnet boasts a half-dozen different shades, the cunning of the skilled milliner is evinced by the manner in which lace and leaves and feathers prevent all danger of clashing.

It does not seem possible that a yellow, almost orange, and a marked magenta should harmonize; but on a very pretty bonnet recently seen the two were combined, black velvet and feathers keeping them from too close juxtaposition. There are all manner of new fancies in flowers and plants for the adornment of early summer hats. Leaves and sprigs of various evergreens are made into bunches intermingled with brown stems; wild-grass is gathered into clusters with half-dead leaves of greenish-brown covered with a gray, furry growth. Clover in its natural colors looks so real that one instinctively tries to smell it, and pansies and violets are so lifelike that one expects to see them drop as they lie without water heaped up on the centers.

Of all flowers, roses promise to be the favorites, appearing in their own beautiful colors, and in sports of very conventional tendencies. Violets hold their own; they, too, are highly conventionalized, coming to the fore in their own colors and in some very eccentric tints, with blossoms in tufts and garlands of wind-blown appearance and magnified size. Poppies are arranged very attractively on many hats; they are of velvet and silk. The same materials are used to make wonderful rhododendrons and orchids, which cannot be more weird in shape and color than their living prototypes. Charming little bonnets have the edges trimmed with silk butterflies and velvet myosotis; many-colored dahlias of delicate tints, frequently replace the rose, and garlands of ivy-leaves, with and without their pretty red berries, make a charming background for the brilliant blossoms and gaudy ribbons.

But let us again come to the front, used in single pieces or arranged in strings. Cashmere ornaments of jet are almost as popular as those of glistening gold and silver. They come in pairs, and often to the number of six and eight joined together. There are also new designs for crowns, tulle, buckles, clasp and stick-pins. In jet, cut steel and rhinestones. The Greek key pattern is conspicuous among them. The favorite feather is the plume of the heron, of the bird of paradise, and of the rifle-bird of India. Wings are used principally to produce the Casimir effect. They are placed in the front of large and small hats and on the popular Dutch bonnet. Often they are hidden under loops of net or chiffon.

For a deep-mourning bonnet, this model is as pretty a one as can be found. The crown is small and cut well up in the back, so as to rest comfortably against the chin. The bonnet is covered with silk bobbinette of large mesh; the bows in front are of plain crepe, and the veil starts from them and is folded closely to the bonnet, being fastened at the back by dull jet-pins. The veil is of bobbinette about a yard in width, bordered by a plain band of applied crepe about four inches wide. The use of net makes the bonnet much less expensive than if it were of crepe, and yet allows it to be much lighter than if nun's veiling were used, at the same time preserving its air of deep mourning. By the addition of white ruche it would be a dainty bonnet for a widow.

The favorite straws this summer are certainly the rough straws. The combinations of satin and chenille, and of velvet and satin, which were the favorites during the winter, paved the way for all manner of fancy straws; and among these we find many of coarse fibre and of the new material known as wood-silk, either used alone or in combination. Lace braids figure chiefly as borderings or in sections for models in plain straw. The English split straw seems to be the most popular among the plain braids, although Milan straw is also a favorite. French chip is seen in many attractive shapes, and the Neapolitan horsehair braids are found in imported models and in all the quaintest of domestic concoctions.

Shapes are conspicuous for their simplicity and moderation. For hats, those of medium width of brim and medium height of crown are most in demand—not so flat as the miller, and generally turned up in the back. All the new bonnet shapes are curved so as to fit the top of the head, and as the hair is worn lower they are somewhat deeper than last season. The conventional capote seems to be reappearing, but its general character is less obvious when it is no longer has strings. Jet and those of all colors are the favorite materials for them.

The beauty of the floral ornamentation of hats is greatly enhanced by the immense improvement made of late in the manufacture of leaves. The fabric chosen is generally that which most closely approximates nature—some of the best, particularly among glass leaves, being made of satin.

In arranging trimmings the tendency is towards symmetry, but without stiffness.

How Gillian Phillips Got out of Jail in a Car of Garbage.

Special to The Times.

MEADVILLE, Pa., June 22.—A most remarkable escape from the Meadville jail, which the authorities have succeeded in keeping quiet for a course of days, has just leaked out. Gillian Phillips, a prisoner held to court for robbery of freight cars, got into the garbage can early in the evening, allowed himself to be covered with potato parings and other garbage and remained in the can until morning, when he was carried out by two companions and dumped in the general garbage vat, from which he crawled out and escaped. He is still at large.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths; the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Modern Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Attain for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men. The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power. A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system. To cure nervousness, lack of self control, despondency, etc. To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power. To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc. To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body. Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references. The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it. A despairing man who had applied to me, soon after wrote: 'Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born today. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?'"

And another thus: 'If you dumped a carload of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done.' Write to the KIRK MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called 'COMPLETE MANHOOD.' Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

IS SHE HIS WIFE?

An Ottawa Marriage the Subject of Some Unpleasant Doubt.

Special to The Times.

OTTAWA, June 24.—Able Rivard and Alphonsine Labille were married last evening in the Basilica, but whether the bonds that united them are binding or not is a question yet to be decided. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock, and immediately afterwards the officiating clergyman heard a report to the effect that the groom was a married man, had a wife and two children in St. Henri, a suburb of Montreal. He was rather astounded at the report, and took means to have it communicated at once to the bride.

In the course of a short time she made her appearance at the Bishop's palace. She was greatly excited and embarrassed, and wished for advice as to what to do under the circumstances. She did not believe the report, because Rivard gave her his word of honor that he was a single man, but agreed not to live with Rivard until further enquiries had been made regarding the report. Today Rivard's mother, who lives in Rimouski, will be written to for information.

CORNWALL, June 24.—The canal here, which has been closed since the propeller Ocean destroyed three lock gates last Wednesday, was re-opened yesterday morning. The Acadia was the first vessel to pass through the first dam.

There were waiting five steamers, seven barges and schooners. The first dam was up, and the Melbourne the first down. There were waiting five steamers, seven barges and schooners. The first dam was up, and the Melbourne the first down.

Nothing could be done in the way of repairs until Friday evening, and the vesselmen gave the canal staff credit. The Ocean was floated Saturday by means of steam pump. Part of her cargo was left at Cornwall, and after she had been caulked and canvassed she was taken to Montreal for repairs.

Weak and Nervous

Whenever the body has been weakened by disease, it should be built up by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this:

"About two years ago I suffered with a very severe attack of inflammation of the bowels. When I began to recover I was in a very weak and nervous condition, and suffered intensely with neuralgia pain in my head, which caused loss of sleep, and having no appetite, I

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 26 1895.

These rains have saved the crops from immediate danger at all events.

It is hinted that the wearing of Glacé shoes has afflicted Lord Rosebery with corns.

The per capita wealth of Great Britain, according to Mulhull, was, in 1890, $1,260 per head; France came next with $1,130; Holland third with $1,080, and the United States fourth with a per capita wealth of $1,038.

Mr. Herbert Spencer's refusal to accept the Prussian Order of Merit bestowed upon him by the German Emperor is creating some angry comment in Berlin. It is curious that a man has to furnish better reasons for declining a title than he has to give for accepting one.

Should a programme of religious instruction in public schools, such as some Protestant bodies have recently favored, be carried into effect, Roman Catholics would not fairly be blamed for objecting to have their children educated in the public schools.

If the government insists upon remedial legislation and the Ontario Conservatives support the government we do not think that many of them would be defeated at the general election. And the reason is that they couldn't get the nominations.

The dispute between Brazil and Italy, growing out of Admiral Mello's insurrection, has only just been settled, and now a conflict has occurred between parties of Brazilians and Italians, in which a number of men were wounded. It seems to be impossible for Brazil to keep out of trouble.

They were getting ready to bury Miss Madie Walsh near California, Ky., early this week, when Madie entered an objection. The funeral services had been held in the Mount Moriah Baptist Church, on Bell-street, and friends were taking a last look at the girl. Suddenly she "went up" in her coffin, exclaiming "Thank God!" Madie declared she was conscious all the time, but was able to give no sign.

The Dominion Government is laboring under a tremendous mistake if it supposes that the present season of calm in Ontario is an indication that all interest in this Province in the Manitoba school question has died out. It is true not very much has been said on that matter just now, but there is a fixed determination on the part of our people that the hands of Manitoba shall not be tied by Ottawa. And the Dominion Government will realize the futility of this fact if it attempts to supplement its remedial order with remedial legislation.

ILLUSTRATION OF THE WASTE.

An illustration of the waste under the compensation system is afforded by the case of Mr. A. Dingman, of Stratford. Thirteen years ago this gentleman was appointed inspector of Indian Agencies and Reserves. Now it is announced that the office is to be abolished and the compensation granted a retiring allowance of several hundred dollars a year for life.

During the short period Mr. Dingman has held office he has received full pay for all the work performed by him. Why, then, should the country now be called upon, in addition to this, to present him with an annual allowance for doing nothing?

This whole superannuation system is a fraud on the people, and should be abolished at once.

The river Rhine, at three times the rate of the Thames.

The grown worn by Queen Victoria weighs forty ounces.

The population of the German empire is increasing at the rate of 800,000 a year.

The heaviest of the foreign woods are the pomegranate and the lignum vitae, and the lightest is cork.

Up to the present time the Necropolis company, the biggest undertakers in England, have buried 130,000 bodies.

The long-distance telephone between Paris and London has over two hundred calls a day. At the rate of two dollars for each call it pays.

In all, it has been estimated that over two million acres are devoted to the maintenance of deer in Scotland, and that about five thousand stags are annually killed.

In 1881 the cold was so severe in eastern Europe that packs of starving wolves entered Vienna, and all the canals of Venice were frozen, and the principal mouth of the Nile was blocked with floating ice for a week.

THE ARMY AND NAVY.

All officers in the Austro-Hungarian cavalry must hereafter learn telegraphy.

In time of war France puts 870 out of every 1,000 of her population in the field; Germany, 51; Russia, 31.

Some of the ocean steamers are so constructed that they can be converted into armed cruisers in thirty hours.

The Russian War Office has decided to use henceforth exclusively grey horses for artillery purposes, the reason given for the innovation being that animals of this color have been found by experience to be stronger and more enduring than the brown ones now used.

The terror inspired by the Japanese armies in the east is greatly enhanced by the fact that they make no noise. They march with no drums, no drums beat, revolve or tattoo, and in action the Japanese utter no shouts. The officers have a code of signals by whistling that serves to direct the movements of the troops.

OBSERVATIONS.

If the world were a whispering gallery, it is hard to say whether one would experience the more concern about the things he spoke or the things he heard.

The man of tact and courtesy will not talk above the head of his less gifted friend. It is a dealer for the one to come down than for the other to climb.

The robes of humility often deceive, and the shoe-maker's downcast look may indicate simply a wish to find out how long the wayfarer can go without ordering a new pair of shoes.

Conscience flourishes best on continuous hard service, and should not be allowed to take a holiday for a single afternoon.

Since a man's thoughts must be his lifelong companions, he should strive to keep them bright and agreeable.

It is better to represent the best end of a short pedigree than the fine point of a long one.

WORLD PROVERBS.

Where money makes the man it sees not metal.

Had Napoleon acted wisely before Moscow he need not have sought consolation in talking wisdom after Waterloo.

Deceit is the devil's deputy.

Difference of opinion is the motive power of progress.

Electrical Treatment

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

210 Cowan Ave., Toronto.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Bells, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment. When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the base of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

ONLY A LITTLE SHARP THORN.

I am only a little sharp thorn,
Hidden beneath the rose.
Only a thorn,
But the rose is shorn.
Of half the pleasure it gives to me
Who pluck it forgetting me.
I was born, just that little sharp thorn—
To hide here, under the rose,
Only a thorn,
But quite sufficient.
For my heart and nobody knows,
And the world can have its.
Do they think that I chose my part?
We couldn't each have a rose.
But in sudden smart,
From hidden dart,
I repay the world for my woes:
For I'm only a thorn, you see—
And the world is ripe to me.

A SHAKER MAID.

To say that the two occupants of the room entirely corresponded with the room is much better than to say that they were of the same color. The Shaker maid was tall and vigorous, with keen gray eyes under shaggy brows; that the Shaker also had gray eyes, illumined by a soul of exalted piety and deepened by many sorrows.

The Shaker's voice, though full and deep, had a hard judicial tone as he spoke. "Hannah, you had been called by Mother Ann to fill a most exalted position. Heretofore you had been most exemplary in your conduct, instructing, admonishing and comforting. I have no fault to find with this in this instance."

He arose in displeasure and regarded her sternly. Sister Hannah, the leader of the women in the village, as Elder Charles was of the men, was more a mother to them than an elder. Her patient face could be very stern, and her soft voice was sometimes very authoritative.

She sat by her open window, her hands folded in her lap. "How could I, Sister Charles continued, 'and I cannot' with thy vows to maintain the virtues and follies of the world, and to add others in so doing, and yet allow the little maid to wear that gay and worldly ribbon?"

A soft knock interrupted them. The door swung open and the little maid in question stepped into the room. Sister Hannah, in her propriety, averted her face, while Elder Charles looked uncomprehending.

The girl looked in doubt from one to the other. She had never before come to either of these when they had not welcomed her, always, indeed, in their unemotional way, but with none the less pleasure. "I think I intrude upon thee; thou wert speaking of those things which I might not hear," she ventured timidly.

"Say, my child," replied the elder, "were the subject of our talk, or that worldly ornament that thou wear?"

"This Elder Charles began rebuking thee, Sister Hannah," she cried impulsively; "and because of me? See, rather than have one word of blame rest on thee."

She untied the glossy blue ribbon, smoothed it slowly through her fingers, trying to keep it taut back while she folded it neatly, and laid it in the elder's outstretched hand, then stood with hands folded over her breast and eyes cast down, the meekest of Shaker maidens.

For a moment a look of satisfaction shone on the elder's face. "Now I see that thou art a thoughtful girl, and one who is not afraid. Hast thou an errand with Hannah?"

"Only to tell her that my work is done, and to ask permission to go into the garden."

A grave bow dismissed her and she returned, closing the door behind her. She passed a moment in the corridor. There was no one to see. The sisters were in their rooms at that hour, and the men were occupied with their work. She was only human and hardly pitied herself. She glanced around to see the door was shut, then ran lightly down the length of the corridor and back again and again, then down the stone steps and out on the smooth lawn. She jumped up and down, swinging her arms in perfect abandonment, then sank breathless on the cool green bank.

"There! I feel better," she ejaculated. "I do not think I was meant for a Shaker." Her restless kitten came purring around her. She stretched it up and tied its ears and its tail with bows of ribbon green. She gathered its long fur into Turkish knots and tied each with the striped garter.

"There, my gay and worldly cat, thou art now far too wicked to mingle with the decorous cats of the village. Thou must go with me into the apple tree."

She climbed lightly to her seat on a low limb, too heavily engaged to notice Sister Hannah, as she stood for a moment in the open door.

Sister Hannah smiled, then sighed and turned quickly back. "Poor little maid," she murmured, "poor little maid! The bottle will be strong with her. She has not been like other maidens since her mother first gave her to my care. Oh, that I may have of thy wisdom, Mother Ann, to guide safely into the household of Faith this child of my dear—"

She paused a moment, then continued her prayer: "—that I may teach her to subdue all carnal desires within her and to live wholly without thought of worldly pleasures and without loss of gain."

Her lips moved in prayer again, and over her face spread a calm, so holy and so beautiful the martyr might have envied.

Once more she went to the door, and this time she called the little maid: "Hannah, wouldst thou like to bring the mail? The stage from Lebanon has long ago arrived."

Hannah, coming herself from the long promptly: "Thou art kind to me," she said, earnestly. "I crave thy pardon if I offended thee."

"Nay, child, I am not offended. I am deeply troubled by my instructions, but what thou art in need of, and that, through my inability, thou wilt fail to find the true faith at last."

Her eyes fell to the cat which Hannah unconsciously still held in her arms, and she smiled involuntarily.

The little maid, blinking confusedly, with one sweep of her hand removed the few green knots which the cat had allowed to remain. The kitten jumped to the ground and Sarah turned to the street.

"I am wicked," she said slowly, nodding her head emphatically at each word, and her eyes filled with tears of vexation.

Her path lay along the maple shaded street connecting the three villages of the settlement.

CAUCUS OF FORMER.

At Ottawa as Sir Charles's Reply Resolves the Caucus.

Special to The Times.
OTTAWA, June 24.—There will be a caucus of the Conservative party on Sunday after the reply of Manitoba reaches here as is possible, doubtless by the end of the week. The impression is growing that any legislation that may be introduced this session on the school question will not be carried to its final stages, but will be allowed to stand after the second reading for a year as a notice to Manitoba of the danger of relief which Parliament thinks should be enacted.

PATERNAL VENGEANCE.

Accomplished in a Cowardly Manner—Tragedy in Alabama.

Special to The Times.
MOBILE, Ala., June 24.—Bennett Chester, a farmer living five miles from here, accused C. F. Wilson, of New York, with improper behavior with his step daughter on Saturday. Chester, a friend of Chester, entered Wilson in a swing, and when they were dressing Chester approached with a shot gun, told him it was his last day on earth, and shot and killed him. Chester then cut Wilson's throat and stabbed him in several places. Chester's wife was arrested and brought to town as an accomplice. Chester is still at large. It is said Wilson was the son of a New York banker.

Y., to General Wesley Merritt, at Chicago, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon, having made his trip, over 1,200 miles by bicycle in 13 days, 7 hours and 45 minutes. This beats the previous record by one hour and fifteen minutes.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

"There! I feel better," she ejaculated. "I do not think I was meant for a Shaker." Her restless kitten came purring around her. She stretched it up and tied its ears and its tail with bows of ribbon green. She gathered its long fur into Turkish knots and tied each with the striped garter.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

WITH THE SPORTS.

This afternoon there will be a baseball match on the Driving Park grounds, between the Peterboroughs and a team from Belleville.

The Chicago and Cleveland National League teams played a Sunday game in the former city last Sabbath, and the Chicago players were arrested during the match. They were released on giving bonds and allowed to finish the match.

The score in the Springfield-Rochester game yesterday was 11 to 5 in favor of the former at the end of the eighth inning.

If the game had been played out after Springfield had won, which would probably have been the case, Toronto would have stepped up a place and Rochester gone down to the foot of the list.

The Inter-Collegiate four-oared race between Columbia, Cornell and Pennsylvania Universities, took place at Poughkeepsie on the Hudson yesterday afternoon. The race was rowed in a heavy wind and during a downpour of rain.

The Pennsylvania boat was swamped, and the Columbia crew defeated Cornell by 4 lengths, in 21 minutes 25 seconds. The Ontario was four miles.

Only two Eastern League games were decided yesterday. At Providence the home team beat Syracuse by 5 to 3, and Rochester defeated Springfield in the latter city by 9 to 0, owing to the leaders not supplying sufficient balls to play.

At Scranton only three innings were played with Toronto, the score being 3 to 2 in favor of the home nine. The game was then called on account of rain.

Japanese Maidens.
Now the Chinese or Japanese maidens are becoming fashionable on account of their picturesque possibilities. If she wears her native dress, she is about as attractive as a $1,000 vase or a rare piece of bric-a-brac. Visitors like to look at her, and consequently the prettier and more graceful the girl the higher wages she can command. Long, narrow eyes, thin, black brows and a clear complexion are the things desired. An excellent girl's hair is always shiny and well arranged, and everything about her is invariably neat. A part of her duties is attendance at the door. This is where the spectacular features count. After the ring of the electric bell has died away there is a patter of slippers, first on the clock of little Japanese wooden clogs, and the door swings back, revealing a small, brilliant figure, with a cord tray concealed in the depths of her sleeve or kimono. It is all very fetching.

Another function that the maiden from over the sea is expected to perform is serving 9 o'clock tea. This is positively appropriate and lends an aroma to the beverage. It never seems the same afterward, when a Grubben, with a face like a plaster, or a Siberian carries the tray.

She stands in New York and has naturally reached his height in San Francisco, where the maidens are not able to supply the people who call upon them. The maidens, in fact, require references before they will allow their girls to go out. There is too much trouble in raising them to have them slip back again, as they are quite likely to do if they are not carefully watched. It will not do to give them the liberties that other serving maids have, for they are like wax in the hands of designing people.—New York Correspondent.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is made to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter of a century back.

Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty-two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto.

That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure to these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co's for the continued experience of the first purchase.

Mr. Leslie's piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and brought the fourth instrument to his home. It is still another wedding was to take place. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos that have ever been made. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

Mr. Jacob Wilcox of St. Thomas, Ontario, is one of the best known men in that vicinity. He is now, he says, an old man, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has made him feel young again.

"About a year ago I had a very severe attack of the grip, which resulted in my not having a well day for several months afterwards. I was completely run down and my system was in a Terrible Condition.

I lost flesh and became depressed in spirits. Finally a friend who had been benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla advised me to try it and I did so. I continued taking it until I used twelve bottles and today I can honestly say Hood's Sarsaparilla has restored me to my former health." JACOB WILCOX, St. Thomas, Ontario.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 27 1895.

ONTARIO VERSUS QUEBEC.

The Dominion Government will lose the confidence of nearly all of Canada if it shows its weakness by yielding to the pressure from the French-Canadian members who are without reason or argument urging on the immediate settlement of the Manitoba school question.

If the Quebec members insist on immediate action without facts or consideration, there is but one commendable course for the Government and that is to resist their demands. This would mean the retirement of Sir Adolphe Caron and Hon. Mr. O'Brien, from the Cabinet, but neither of these is so learned in statesmanship or sound in political morality that his presence at the Cabinet Board would be greatly missed.

To be sure the withdrawal of these two individuals would weaken the Government in Quebec, but if the French province labors under the impression that it can go on strike and secure every insane idea which may enter its feverish head, then there is to be a big struggle between Quebec and the rest of Canada, and it might as well come now as in the future.

Ontario is at least opposed to hasty action on this question and the Ontario Liberals can be relied upon to unite with the Conservatives to support the Government against French coercive methods. Quebec Conservatives and Liberals would doubtless combine, but the Government could be upheld.

Ontario Liberals have frequently expressed their desire to keep the troublesome question free from politics, and as their own political salvation depends on their opposition to at least to French coercion, they will probably vote against Mr. Laurier on this question. There is more involved in this Quebec stroke than mere political expediency and the triumph of the right requires the union of Ontario Liberals and Conservatives to oppose the Quebec combination.

LORD ROSEBURY'S RESIGNATION

That a government should resign on account of defeat upon a minor issue in which less than one-half the members of the House voted (132 to 125 was the vote) is a novelty in constitutional methods, and the fact that the vote was the result of an intrigue is proven by only one Radical, Sir Charles Dilke, and three of the Parliaments members having supported Mr. Rosebury's resignation.

In 1873 Mr. Gladstone's Government took the opportunity to relinquish office when an amendment to the budget was carried against them by 264 to 252, but this is the smallest vote which has been responsible for a change of Government in modern times.

The cause for seizing the first excuse resign the burden of office lies deeper, and the significant remark of Lord Rosebury that in the present state of affairs it was not well for England to have a weak ministry is probably the true key to the situation. And this view is borne out by the readiness with which Lord Salisbury has consented to take office.

From a tactical point of view experience has shown it to be injurious to a party to take office and then dissolve; in the electoral battle the opposition has always an advantage, its own errors and internecine quarrels are forgotten or condoned and it has merely to plead a negative without formulating a definite policy. In 1873, when Mr. Gladstone in the fifth year of his administration resigned upon the Irish University education question, that master of political strategy, Mr. Disraeli, absolutely declined to take office before a dissolution and his unprecedented victory at the polls in 1874 was the outcome of his action.

No doubt with this precedent in view Lord Salisbury will insist upon definite pledges from the official Liberal leaders that they will assist him in avoiding controversial issues and passing the necessary estimates so that a dissolution may take place immediately, but unless there has been some deeper reason than these publicly announced it is not probable the Liberals would have accepted office before the dissolution had given them a definite majority over all other sections of the House.

MILES OF FROZEN FISH.

QUEER PHENOMENON ENCOUNTERED IN BEHRING SEA.

Singular Condition in Which a Fishing Crew Found Tons of the Silver Mackerel—The Occurrence Without a Parallel—A Wonderful Sight.

The recently returned salmon fishers, whalers and sealers from the Arctic tell of a strange thing—an occurrence without a parallel in the experience of those who sail to the far north, says the San Francisco Chronicle. A sea captain who was a passenger on the salmon schooner Glenn tells the story with much circumstance. The Glenn left this city in March last bound for Behring sea, which was reached on May 1. In the latter month there is usually a little drift ice, but seldom enough to interfere materially with the progress of the many whalers, sealers, and other craft which make for the sea at that time of year.

This season, however, the sea was literally covered with drift ice extending from the Alaskan peninsula clear across northward to the Yukon. The southeast winds usually blow off shore, and driving the ice further from the land, leave a passage between ice and land. The Glenn intended to make Bristol bay and stood to the eastward, but was unable to reach it on account of the ice and so had to put back toward the peninsula to await the delayed southeast winds.

It was while the Glenn and four others passed up toward Bristol bay that the phenomenon was encountered. The vessel had just emerged from Unimak pass, about half way between Amoukha island and Bristol bay, when a vast quantity of dead fish was encountered. They were in the water as far as the eye could see on each side of the vessel, and for sixty miles the Glenn traveled through the shoals of fish.

On examination they proved to be silver mackerel, a kind of codfish, but narrower and smaller and having only two dorsal and anal fins. They weighed between four and five pounds and were perfectly fresh, the gills being still red. Some of the sailors were afraid to eat them, thinking perhaps they had been killed by some subterranean upheaval, or, possibly, through the overflow from the volcano of Weyaminoor, which was active last fall. Other sailors less fastidious did not hesitate to cut the fish open, and then a peculiar condition was revealed. Although the fish were fresh and had not stiffened, the gills and intestines were found to be full of ice. This was not the case in one instance, but every fish which was opened, and apparently accounted for their death in such large numbers.

The anomalous condition of the fish was the subject of much talk and speculation. That the fish should be comparatively limber and that there should be ice within them seemed to indicate that a shoal of them had been suddenly overtaken and frozen to death, and on the thawing out of the ice the carcasses had been released, but had not risen in temperature sufficiently to thaw out the ice in their bodies. Those of the sailors who cooked the fish said that they tasted as good as ever, and that they were not tainted by sulphur as they might have been in the event of their death being due to a sudden subterranean upheaval.

The gentleman who is authority for the story has been traveling every season to the Arctic since 1888, and never had seen such a shoal of dead fish, nor yet discovered fish with the intestines frozen as these had. He also drew attention to the fact that in the seven years of his traveling, though he had often seen black smoke issuing from the Weyaminoor volcano, near Port Moller, he never saw it or heard of its being in active eruption until 1894, in the fall. Then it belched hot ashes and flames, and the roar was like artillery. This volcano is close to the shore, and the line of fish extended almost as far north as to a point opposite it. The captain does not maintain that there was any connection between the facts of the eruption in the fall and the finding of the fish in the spring, but merely states the facts as they existed, leaving to others to trace any connection or reject any association of the phenomena.

The area of the frozen fish was not less than half a mile wide and sixty miles long. When the Glenn, on its homeward journey, reached Unimak pass again, on August 28, every sign of the fish had disappeared. Many had doubtless been eaten by the gulls and other birds, and others had sunk in the warm water. As for the captain could state, there was no other fish of any kind except the silver mackerel in the shoal. The carcasses had been perhaps almost as suddenly released from their bonds of ice as they had been entangled.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Somewhere it is said to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter century back. Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure at these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than the piano and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co. for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family as still another wedding was to take place. He selected a style and one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

WHY THE WATER IS LOW.

U.S. Gen. Has Tapped Lake Michigan to Furnish a Chicago Drain Canal.

Special to the Times.

MONTREAL, June 26.—The directors of the R. and O. Navigation Company have decided to memorialize the Federal Government, calling its attention to the action of the Americans in tapping Lake Michigan for a drainage canal at Chicago, and to suggest that they confer with the Americans regarding the appointment of an international commission to investigate the theory which is being set forth that such canals are destined to have a disastrous effect on the navigation of the lakes and the St. Lawrence by unduly lowering the level of the water. Others are to be asked to second the movement.

Similar action is being considered at Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. C. F. Gilderleeve, manager of the company, states that the water of the St. Lawrence today is lower than it has been in 35 years at this time. It is nearly a foot lower than last year. The regular line boats of the company come down the canals, and the passengers are transferred at Coteau to light draught boats to run the rapids.

BOON FOR COTTON MEN.

An Invention That is Likely to Revolutionize Cotton Pressing.

Special to the Times.

JACKSON, Tenn., June 26.—There is now at the gin of the White Brothers, in this city, an invention of an Englishman, which, if report is true, is the greatest discovery in cotton machinery since the invention of the cotton gin.

This invention will revolutionize cotton pressing. It takes the cotton from the gin on an iron spindle, winds it, like batting, keeping the fibres untangled, compresses the lint so that the 100 pound bale is about the size of a flower barrel.

It is said cotton compressed by the new invention will be worth at least half a cent more a pound.

Sowed up his Ball's Eyelids.

SYRACUSE, June 26.—Mr. Casey, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has arrested Pries Parson, an Olcott farmer, for inhuman treatment of an unruly bull, which persisted in knocking down fences. Parsons sowed up the eyelids of the animal with two pieces of wire, and chained at the point, while he inserted as a physician would a needle. After he had taken three or four stitches in each eyelid he twisted the ends of the wire together, and in this condition the bull was found, with his eyes terribly swollen and bleeding. A justice of the peace at South Onondaga fined Parsons $10.

Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The great blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered sensations. At last my physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am still using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart." Mrs. DAVISON, 45 Alice St., Toronto, Ontario. Get Hood's, because Hood's Pills set harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Nervous Diseases

Thousands of people suffer from a variety of nervous diseases, such as General Weakness, Loss of Memory, etc., that the old system of treatment fail to cure. There is a loss of nerve force or power that cannot be restored by any medical treatment, and any doctor who tells you to accomplish this by any kind of treatment is practicing a dangerous pretence. Properly treated, these diseases can be as applied by the Owen Electric Belt, which will most assuredly do so. The only power that will supply itself in building, namely nerve force or power, is lost and vigor to the organs and tissues of the whole nervous system. It is the only successful cure.

Positively Cured

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 28 1895.

The conservative members in this district should resign in a body if the government does not proceed at once to complete the Trent Valley Canal. Their resignation will save them from an awful whipping when the election comes round.

The Cuban revolutionists are talking of importing dynamite to blow up the forts and forces of the authorities. If this does not make it hot enough for the Government, the insurgents can always borrow our Manitoba school question.

The tremendous effect of the late depression on the American railway interest will be judged from the fact that nearly one-quarter of the railway mileage in the United States was last year in the hands of receivers and that close on sixty-four per cent. of the capital paid no dividends.

The cheerful liar, once a rare chap, is becoming dreadfully common. One of the most cheerful of the species has just written the TIMES from Bobcaygeon. He desired to tell about a hen of his acquaintance which is bringing up a family of pups. It is not claimed, though, that this could happen anywhere but in Bobcaygeon.

INDIAN RIVER.

Correspondent of the Times.

The water is very low in the river at present.

Mr. Thos. Maguire is blacksmithing again. The Douro and Indian River, football teams will play at Warsaw for a silver cup on July 1st. Four teams are going to strive for the championship. The Douro and Indian River boys stand a good chance.

GRAND PICNIC.

Wednesday, the 19th inst., broke out fair and easy. Never was a day more adapted for the occasion than this, and before ten o'clock crowds might be seen gathering at the place where they were to spend one of the pleasantest days in their life. By one o'clock the crowds had assembled and a jolly gang they were. Mr. Fox, the manager, was here and there and every where, looking after the comfort of the picnickers; but this was needless, they were determined to spend the day pleasantly, come what may. A fine platform was erected for dancing, and the youngsters tripped the fantastic toe until the wee sma' hours. The music was furnished by Messrs. Quinn and Elmhurst, on their violins, while opposite them sat Thos. Dakon, with his fine Highland pibroch. At these the platform was cleared to make room for the older lightfooted individuals of the audience.

Then came John Duff, in his favorite, the Highland fling. Mr. Duff is losing some of his old time vigor, and in his different evolutions, brought forth shouts of applause from the spectators. James Prescott danced the "Irish Washerwoman" in a manner to knock the famous old times into insignificance.

One of the principal attractions of the day was football match between the Douro and Indian River Juniors. The game lasted one hour and a half, and resulted in a score of 1 to 0 in favor of Indian River.

A nice little programme of sports was then gone through, for which liberal prizes were offered. In the hundred yard race, Michael Allen took first prize with much difficulty, the prize being a Walking Cane. In the standing long jumping John Lynch took first, the prize being the works of Deas Swift. Putting the heavy weight, Michael Regan took first, and was awarded a Merchants Pipe as a prize.

The day being now almost spent the crowds made arrangements to disperse, at the same time wishing Mr. Fox, a merry good bye, and success in his future undertakings. Hank is a jolly good fellow and sang "Old King Cole" for the boys, before their departure for home. FRITTERING AWAY OUR TIME.

Whatever a Girl Attempts She Should Do Thoroughly.

That woman fritter away a deal of time is unquestionable. Born with the gift of patience far greater than that possessed by men, so many seem to lack a sense of system by which many things can be well done, or the sense of application to any one particular thing. Mrs. Lyman Abbott spoke of this in the Ladies' Home Journal.

What she said she said well. It is a pity she did not extend her remarks to girls, who are really notorious offenders in frittering away time. We speak now, of course, of girls who have time to fritter away.

Take the amount of time, for example, which girls really fritter away, you really waste, on music. Every girl who has a desire to play the piano, and every girl who can make the attempt to learn the art. But how many succeed in becoming good players? Take any gathering of girls, either in a winter company or at a summer resort, and the case is rare where a girl is found who really plays well. It is more frequently the case where not a girl is found who can play even fairly. They can all drum on the piano and play a few popular melodies. In fact, one is forced to believe that this latter is the sole end of most girls who study piano-playing.

The real reason is, however, I think, that girls, for the most part, take up piano-playing simply because they consider that they must know something about it, be it ever so little. And, for the most part, it is ever so little. They consider it necessary to be able, at least, to sit down and play a waltz perhaps—and play it badly and out of time as a rule—or one or two of the melodies of the day. But beyond this they do not go. They fritter away their time on acquiring a part of an art, instead of investing their time in acquiring the art itself.

French lessons are taken the same way—the French spoken by some girls being enough to give a Frenchman a creeping chill. China-painting, needlework and all the other accepted "accomplishments" of a girl are treated much in the same way. Either two or three are taken at the same time, or one is dropped in order to take up the other. But not one is learned thoroughly. The result is that the average girl can paint, play and sew—more or less as badly as the other, but not one of them can do well.

Too many girls nowadays have a wrong notion of what it means to be "accomplished." They seem to have the idea that it means to distribute themselves over all the different attainments and graces of society, forgetting that an "accomplishment" is only what the word implies and means: an acquirement, an attainment, something is perfected. The trouble is that we are too apt to speak of a girl having "accomplishments"; if we used the word more in the singular sense we would come closer to our true meaning.

It is presumed that the many girls who read this will think we are severe in saying all this. And perhaps we are. But if one wishes to be candid, and really criticise the girl of the period not for a score of fancied faults which are not hers, but for a fault which is peculiarly hers, it is that she fritters away a deal of time on many things, and does not give enough time to any one thing. One advantage which this fault has is that she can overcome it. And she should. She should learn the art of application. What-over she starts out to do let her do it well.

If she wants to play let her learn to play, not indifferently, but well. If her taste is for china-painting let her concentrate her mind to that, and learn to paint well. If she is fond of needlework let her train herself to be expert of the needle. If her tendencies lead her to languages let her take up that tongue the study of which attracts her most. But if she takes up French let her content herself with French, and not study French one day and German the other. Nor should she forget that to know the English language well is her first duty. Whatever she attempts to do let her do it thoroughly, not content with learning it half, but all.

Another Record Broken. Ten days and two hours is now the record from Bombay to Brindisi. The Peninsular and Oriental steamer Calcutta, which held the previous record, made it on April 2. The time includes all stops and the transit through the Suez canal.

One True Admirer. "Mr. Timmins," said the old-fashioned girl, "I hope you are not an admirer of the New Woman."

"Oh, but I am," confessed Timmins. "She is good for at least three jokes and a poem every week."

The average after-dinner speech will explain to you the meaning of the phrase, "Too full for utterance."

derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your appli-

we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs

FOREIGN NOTES.

The estate of Tatarinov, the old historical residence of Masaroff, the Hetman of the Ukraine Cosacks in the government of Kieff, once famous for its beauty and splendor, has now fallen into ruin and decay.

Boonies and protective tariffs appear alike powerless to sustain the ship-building industry of France against the competition of England. Out of ninety-six sea-going vessels registered at Bordeaux only twenty-two are of French construction.

London has called the roll of deaths by starvation in 1894 and they number fifty-one, from which it would appear that London charity is too much occupied with the heathen.

NATIONAL FINANCES.

With a population of hardly 2,500,000 Greece has a debt of $144,000,000, or about 57¢ per capita.

MARTIN ANSWERS QUIMET

HE SAYS THAT MANITOBA WILL GIVE WHAT IS ASKED

By the Minister of Public Works—Fighting
Joe takes up Hon. Quimet on his interpretation of What the Ministry will be satisfied With.

Special to the Times.

OTTAWA, June 28.—A few days ago Hon. Mr. Quimet said that all the misery in Manitoba asked was to be at liberty to add the secular education required in the public schools such religious teachings as would meet their religious views. If that had been provided for in the act of 1890 the school case would never have been heard of.

In reply to this Hon. Joseph Martin has written a letter. He says: "There has been all along a very serious misunderstanding between the Roman Catholic Church and the people of Manitoba. If the above is an accurate statement of the position of the church, I believe the people of Manitoba would be willing to give the Roman Catholics all that is asked for."

BELIEVES IN SECULAR SCHOOLS.

"When I introduced the school bill of 1890 I pointed out that in so far as it provides for religious exercises in the schools it was, in my opinion, defective. I am one of those who deny the right of the State to interfere in any respect in matters of religion. I said then and I still think that the clause of the 1890 act which provides for certain religious exercises is most unjust to Roman Catholics. If the State is to recognize religion in its school legislation, such a recognition as is acceptable to Protestants only, and in fact only to a majority of Protestants, is, to my mind, rank treachery."

"What Manitoba has insisted upon is that the Roman Catholics shall not have a system of separate schools such as existed prior to 1890, which were exempt from the general laws as to education. If the Roman Catholics are willing to accept the schools as they exist at present and as they may from time to time be modified, with the addition of such religious teachings as they may desire, then there should be, and I am sure would be, no difficulty in reaching a settlement of the whole question without any legislation on the part of the Dominion Parliament."

The Talbot stables in Cincinnati were burned this morning. Three of his two year olds were burned.

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths; the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Modern Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Avoid the Pitfalls of Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls
Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders
with this generation of men."
The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.
A method by which to end all unnatural
drains on the system.
To cure nervousness, lack of self control,
depression, etc.
To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and
power.
To cure forever effects of excesses, over-
work, worry, etc.
To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of
the body.
Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific,
useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable
to men only who seek it.
A despairing man who had applied to us,
soon after wrote:
"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them
my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way."

And another thus:
"If you damped a carload of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."
Write to the KRIS MEDICAL COMPANY,

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." Cholera Infantum Has no Terrors where Lactated Food is Used.

When mothers are unable to properly nurse and nourish their babies from nature's font, it should be known to all that Lactated Food is the only safe and perfect substitute for mother's milk. Cholera infantum has no terrors where Lactated Food is used. With this best of all prepared foods the little one gains strength from day to day, rests well and sleeps well at night, and every member of the family is assured that the darling baby will pass with safety all the dangers that come so fast and thickly in the heat of summer.

The baby that is daily fed on Lactated Food has no trouble or sickness when passing through the teething period. Instead of fussiness and fretting, baby is healthy and happy all day long. Lactated Food alone does this great work.

HIS CAME SAVED HIM MONEY.

And That is Why the Young Lawyer Never Goes Without It.

A prominent young lawyer was recently recommended with a friend because he invariably carried a case in business hours. "It has a frivolous appearance," said his friend, "professionally," said his friend. "People will not credit you with sufficient steadiness and application if they see that you are addicted to such a childish habit."

The young lawyer replied that he did to on the score of economy. "Before I carried a case," he said, "I lost on an average a dozen umbrellas a year, which at $10 a piece means $120. This case cost me $1.50. I have not lost an umbrella since I bought it over a year ago. You see I got used to having something in my hand, and when I leave a restaurant or card I instinctively look around for that something. Before I got used to the case I never thought of the umbrella unless it happened to be raining, and if it chanced to be a borrowed umbrella I was using, the indignation of the lender when I told him I had lost it was worse to bear than the pecuniary loss. I have come to the conclusion that this case is worth its weight in gold to me every year."

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is safe to let our children profit by the family experience of a quarter century back. Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty two years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure to these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another member entering the ranks of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano at wedding gift and bought it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co. for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks ago Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought the fourth instrument to go into his family as still another wedding gift to take place. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The great blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered emotions. At last my physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am still using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart."—Miss Dailley, Alderbury, Toronto, Ontario. Get Hood's, because

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

Band Concert To-night.
The Fire Brigade Band will give a concert in Inverlea Park to-night.

The Weather.
Foggy. Moderate to fresh west and northwest wind; fine weather; a little lower temperature.

Excursion to Jubilee Point.
The steamer, City of Peterborough, will run an excursion to Jubilee Point Saturday afternoon, June 28th. The boat will leave the wharf at 2 o'clock, returning at 3:30 p.m. Those desiring a pleasant afternoon's outing should take in this excursion. Tickets 50 cents.

The Boy Soprano.
The concert held in St. John's church last night, at which the wonderful boy soprano, Master Michael Young, of Toronto made his appearance, was well attended. Master Young fully sustained the reputation which had preceded him, and delighted those present by his clear sweet voice and wonder range of expression.

High Court I. O. F. Postponed.
The session of the High Court of the I. O. F. fixed for August by the High Court itself has been postponed by order of the High Standing Committee until the 8th of October. Considerable dissatisfaction has been caused by the postponement and there is talk of some of the members resigning of the session at the time first fixed.

A Painful Accident.
Yesterday morning John Milne, a young man, went into the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company's foundry and in attempting to plane a piece of wood on the planing machine his hand slipped and got into the knives of the machine and the four fingers of the left hand were almost completely torn off. Medical aid was called in and the wound dressed. The unfortunate young man will lose the four fingers.

Coal to Come Down.
There is a likelihood that the price of all domestic coals will be reduced next month. The war between the railway companies on the one side and the coal dealers on the other has been so severe as to force the coal dealer to reduce the price of coal at an actual loss, so bitter is the cut-throat competition. A meeting of dignitaries representing the rival contending roads is being held in New York to-day and unless the trouble is patched up coal will take another tumble next week of probably half a dollar a ton, which will reduce the price to consumers to $4.50 per ton. Hamilton dealers who are in the inside have already made the reduction.

PERSONAL MENTION.

The Times invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival and departure of guests, the movements of well-known people, business men, etc. All that is required is to send a post card to our Editor, The Times.

Mr. H. R. Dryden, Editor of the Evening News, was in town yesterday.

Mr. E. S. Horkins, of Stony Lake, is in town.

Miss Mattie Owen, daughter of Ex-Warden Owen, of Campbellford, is visiting her friend Miss Edith McKee.

The Times had the pleasure of a call yesterday from Mr. A. E. Williams, who is travelling in the interests of the Canadian Trading and Shipping Company (Ltd.), of Montreal, and who is at present on a tour of the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and the Western States. The firm Mr. Williams represents is probably the largest of its kind in America, dealing in the importation and sale of wines of French and foreign vintage, comprising the most famous port, brandies and wines made in the world. These goods, including the costly sacramental wines, by this company are almost inconceivably and the business secured by Mr. Williams is really enormous. Mr. Williams is a jolly and popular gentleman and his ready humor is as sparkling as the best vintage wine of sunny France. His friends in Peterborough were delighted to shake hands with him again.

MR. C. McGILL HONORED.

HE HAS BEEN APPOINTED GENERAL MANAGER OF THE ONTARIO BANK.

A Deserved and Popular Mark of Recognition
Given an Esteemed and Respected Citizen—Something of Mr. McGill's Career of Success in Financial and Business Circles.

The Directors of the Ontario bank met in the City of Toronto on Wednesday and unanimously offered the General Managership of the bank to Mr. Charles McGill, who for 14 years has so ably managed the Peterborough branch. This position, rendered vacant by the resignation of General Manager Holland, has been accepted by Mr. McGill who will assume his new and most responsible duties the first of next week. Mr. McGill, who has been in Toronto since Monday, returned to Peterborough on Wednesday night and verified the current rumor which had preceded the actual and official change of management.

While it is generally conceded that the action of the Directors of the Bank in placing Mr. McGill at the head of this reliable financial institution, was prompted by the belief that in no doing they were placing the management in wise and capable hands, it is also felt by Mr. McGill's wide circle of friends in business and social circles in Peterborough, that he is especially deserving of this mark of recognition and appreciation, and this renders all the more sincere the congratulations of those, who in business relations with Mr. McGill, have ever found him worthy of the great confidence and respect and possessing largely that rare ability, quickness of perception, and caution so essential to a successful financial career.

The impression which prevailed when the rumor was first heard, that Mr. McGill's appointment would mean a severance of his connection with his many interests in Peterborough, has been dispelled by his assurances upon his return, and citizens will be extremely gratified to learn that Mr. McGill will largely retain his business connections here. It is his intention to devote special attention to the branch which, under his 14 years' management, has prospered and grown in Peterborough, and being a life member of the Nicholl's Hospital trust and one of the executors of the Mrs. Nicholl's estate, the laudable work which he has carried on with Mr. Richard Hall, in the making, maintenance and beautifying of the park, will still continue, and as far as his new business relations will render possible, Mr. McGill will render the benefit of his advice, aid, and experience in these and other directions. In the past his services to Peterborough in connection with the park, and his advice in financial affairs, have been deeply appreciated by the citizens and recognized by his appointment for a number of years as town treasurer and appointment which Peterborough has greatly benefited by. Mr. McGill's family will continue to make their home in Peterborough, for the time being at least. At present Mr. McGill cannot speak positively of the changes that a year's time may necessitate in this respect.

Mr. McGill entered the service of the Ontario Bank as an accountant in the Guelph branch 27 years ago. Since then he has passed through all the different grades of positions, and in connection with the bank has acquired an extensive experience in every detail of banking. Fourteen years ago he assumed the local management of the branch at this place. At that time the business of the branch was small, and its growth and prosperity began since the year in which he took charge. Today the Peterborough branch is one of the most prosperous and transacts as much business as any of the bank's branches in Canada.

Mr. W. D. Parker has been appointed local manager and the bank will continue as usual without any change, while Mr. McGill will devote special attention to it. Mr. Parker is personally liked in local business circles and has the fullest confidence of the business men of Peterborough. It is fortunate that one who is so liked and popular as well as so well qualified, is to step into the shoes of Mr. McGill. At that time the business of the branch was small, and its growth and prosperity began since the year in which he took charge. Today the Peterborough branch is one of the most prosperous and transacts as much business as any of the bank's branches in Canada.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

GENTLEMEN,—As instructed by a resolution of the Board, the Property Committee advertised for tenders for the addition of four rooms to the South Ward school, and received and opened the tenders which we received from the following firms: Wm. Blackwell, Esq. We met on Monday, 24th, and opened the different tenders which we received. The whole work is for the complete work which is very completely specified for. The whole work is included in the plans and specifications excepting the Smead furnaces, heating and painting or coloring of the brick walls on the outside. This will be a separate tender. The lowest tender we received was from Thomas Rutherford, Esq. The whole work as per plans and specifications for the sum of $6,635.00, and we recommend that the Board accept this tender, and that the contract be let to him. The contract with Mr. Rutherford completed agreeable to and including conditions specified as to securities and time of completion required by the Property Committee. All of which is respectfully submitted.

A CITIZEN COMPLAINS.

From E. Sutton as follows:
GENTLEMEN—I wish to call the attention of your honorable body to an occurrence that took place in one of the rooms of the school this afternoon (June 26th). Principal Smith came into said room to make investigation about some throwing some boys had indulged in and in the course of his enquiries he drew his open hand and struck a boy of mine on the side of the face and ear.

I respectfully ask the Board, or a committee of the Board, to investigate the matter. If teachers have authority to punish after such a manner, I can see no way out of it for me but to take my child from the school.

Lost His Parents.

A little French boy from Montreal, who accompanied his parents on the C.P.R. train yesterday, got separated from them and after the train had left was found wandering around the C.P.R. depot crying. The conductor on the through Montreal train said he knew who the child's parents were and took the little fellow by the train.

C.P.R. EMPLOYEES' DAY OFF

THREE THOUSAND OF THEM SPEND THEIR ANNUAL OUTING IN PETERBOROUGH.

It was a Gala Day for the Knights of the Thistle, Punch and Brak—interesting and exciting Games and Sports on the Driving-Field—Full List of Events and Prize Winners.

Three special trains from points east and west between Toronto and Montreal, profusely decorated with flags, bunting, mottoes and flowers, and with heavily laden coaches, steamed into the C.P.R. depot yesterday morning with the C.P.R. employees, who with their friends numbered fully 3,000 or more, all on pleasure bent and anticipating a gala day for their annual picnic.

The gods of the weather smiled approvingly upon the day's outing, for the weather was beautiful, balmy and in every respect all that could be desired. The excursionists invaded the business streets of the town in the forenoon and during the noon hour visited the parks. The hotels were crowded with the excursionists and the streets were thronged with them. The excursionists were divided into two main groups, the one group being the Knights of the Thistle, and the other group being the Punch and Brak. The Knights of the Thistle were the more numerous of the two groups, and they were the more prominent of the two groups. The Punch and Brak were the less numerous of the two groups, and they were the less prominent of the two groups.

After dinner the street cars had a busy time of it conveying the visitors to the Driving Park Grounds where the sports and games were to take place, but they proved equal to the task and a large crowd assembled within the splendid grounds by 1 o'clock. The refreshment booths and several fairs did an immense business there. The employees seemed to be well satisfied with the day's outing, and they were ready to spend it freely. Without a doubt several thousands of dollars were left in the town yesterday.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION.

There is a pleasure in remembering the past and acting on it, when that past has been pleasant and successful. Sometimes it is safe to let our children and grandchildren know the experience of a quarter century back.

Mr. Joseph Leslie, a leading and highly respected resident of Georgetown, evidently thinks this. Twenty years ago he bought a piano from Heintzman & Co., Toronto. That instrument is still in the old home doing good service and proving a source of delight and pleasure all these years. In the course of time a marriage took place in the family. He knew nothing better to give as a wedding present than a piano, and his experience told him that there was no piano that would give more satisfaction than that of the Heintzman & Co. Some years later again the family circle was broken by another marriage, and the rank of matrimony. Once more Mr. Leslie decided on a piano as a wedding gift and again it was an instrument of Heintzman & Co. for the continued experience of the first bought piano was satisfactory. A third piano of Heintzman & Co. was bought under like conditions. And a few weeks since Mr. Leslie came to Toronto and bought a fourth instrument to go into his family as still another wedding was to take place. He selected a style 19, one of the most beautifully finished and sweetest toned pianos manufactured by this well known and celebrated firm of piano makers. The address of Heintzman & Co. is 117 King street, West, Toronto.

Twenty thousand roses.

There are nearly 30,000 rose trees in bloom now at Dunlop's conservatories, Bloor-st. west, Toronto.

He ships them by mail and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. BEST ALE ON THE MARKET!

THE TENDRIL'S FAITH.

Under the snow in the dark and the cold
A pale little tendril was humming;
Sweetly it sang 'neath the frozen mold
Of the beautiful days that were coming.
"How foolish your song," said a lump of clay;
"What is there, I ask to prove them?
Just look at these walls between you and the day—
How can you have power to remove them?"
But under the ice and under the snow
The pale little sprout kept singing,
"I cannot tell how, but I know, I know—
I know what the days are bringing;
"Birds and blossoms and buzzing bees,
Blue, blue skies above me;
Bloom on the meadow, and buds on the trees,
And the great, glad sun to love me."
Then a pebble spoke up: "You are quite absurd."
It said, "with your song's insistence;
For I never saw a tree or a bird.
So of course there are none in existence."
But "I know, I know," the tendril cried
In beautiful, sweet unreason,
Till lo, from its prison glorified
It burst in the glow of the spring season!
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

A RIMAU DAHAN.

Near the southeastern point of Sumatra, one of the largest islands of the East Indian archipelago, there lived a few miles inland from the coast, two English families whom I will call respectively, Mowbray and Sherwood, the head of the former owning a coffee plantation and that of the latter a large area of ricefields.
The Mowbrays had but one child, a fine manly boy of sixteen, while the Sherwoods were the happy parents of two charming little girls, the elder named Lillian and the younger, Lulu.

Many years ago, while making a prolonged stay in southern Sumatra and an exploration of some of the smaller adjacent islands, I became acquainted with both these families, and was much surprised to find that neither knew of the other's existence, though their estates were separated only by a wide bayou, running not very far inland.

This state of things I determined to remedy on the earliest opportunity, feeling sure that these "strangers in a strange land"—my own countrymen—would take much comfort in each other's society.
But the pleasant task of introduction was taken out of my hands in an unexpected and rather singular manner. One day Lillian and Lulu Sherwood, over in search of novelties, had wandered, unattended, nearly a mile from home and were gathering flowers along the edge of a bridge path, which ran through a luxurious grove of coconut palms and wild orange trees, when they were startled by the sudden appearance of a horseman, coming around a bend in the path on a gallop, that they involuntarily screamed out in affright.

The rider, a bright-faced boy, carrying a silver-mounted rifle and bestriding a beautiful Arab mare, instantly drew up, raised his hat, and said: "I beg your pardon, young ladies. I'm very sorry to have frightened you, but I did not see you at all. My name is Ernest Mowbray. My father is a coffee planter, and we live about six miles from here, on the other side of the big bayou."

"Oh, we're not a bit frightened, now," replied Lillian. "We are Mrs. Sherwood's little girls. Our papa owns those rice fields over there, and it's only a little way to our house. We were just picking some of these flowers; they're so different from those in our own country. We came from Canada only two months ago, and everything here seems very strange to us."

While the child was speaking, Ernest removed his hat entirely, and when she uttered the words "Canada," with such evident pride he smiled delightedly, bent almost to his saddle bow, apologized
once more, and rode slowly away.
"My! what a nice, polite boy; he speaks English, too; not that horrid Dutch, Malay and Chinese we hear every day!" exclaimed Lillian.

"Yes, and he called us young ladies!"
chimed in Lulu.
"Well, I'm sure we are young ladies!
I'm past ten and you're nearly nine," angrily rejoined Lillian. "But I do wish the boy had stayed longer, so we could have a good look at his pretty gun and that lovely horse! I don't suppose we'll ever see him again, though,"—wherein the small maid was greatly mistaken.

After a little, the children left the path, and, always finding something new to admire, strayed deeper into the wood. By and by they came to a cleared space, evidently an old Malay yard or maize field;
whereon grew only a few huge wild orange trees and a clump of two giant cacti. As they carelessly approached one of the latter, Lulu cried out: "Oh, sister, see that curious-looking dog lying under the big cactus. He's got a pretty red bird between his paws and is going to eat it. Let's go and drive him away." And the two innocents walked straight toward a full-grown "clouded" or "tortoise-shell tiger!"

This creature, really a species of leopard, and found only in Sumatra, is called by the natives "rimau dahan," a name which means, I believe, a climber of forked trees. During my stay on the island I saw but two specimens of this, one of the rarest and most beautiful of the cat family.

The animal is nearly as large as the leopard of India, and of similar arboreal habits, though ordinarily not so fierce and dangerous. Its markings are quite unique, somewhat resembling those of the true tiger and leopard, and yet not precisely similar to either, repeating, as they do, a strange admixture of tiger-like stripes, leopard-like spots, and hollow, diamond-like patches, resembling those of the jaguar. The general ground color of the fur is gray, and along the back of an adult rimau dahan run two bands of glossy black, extending from the head to the root of the tail, which last is very long and covered by dark rings, not greatly dissimilar to those of the southern recon. The creature's legs are singularly powerful and its talons long and sharp, so that, if so inclined, it can prove a terrible foe to man or beast, though it usually preys, I was told by Sumatran hunters, only upon birds, monkeys, the young of deer and other weak animals.

When the little flower pickers got close to the supposed dog, Lillian said:
"Why, Lulu, that is not a dog at all!
It looks like some of those wild horses I've seen in picture books. See how its back is bristling and its tail puffing out, just like our old cat when she's angry;
and oh! it's beginning to snarl and growl, too. Let's run away. It might eat us up!"

But as soon as the children turned to fly, the rimau dahan, which would prob-

Stormy Weather.
LONDON, June 27.—Violent thunder storms prevailed today in England and Ireland. A tramway depot at Hull was struck by lightning, set on fire and destroyed. Lightning also struck a tree adjacent to the Royal Pavilion at Darlington.
A number of persons here sought refuge under the Pavilion and two of them were killed and three were injured. The Duke and Duchess of York had just departed from the Pavilion when the bolt fell. A number of deaths caused by the storm are reported from other places.

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths: the Palm Facts; the New Discovery of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Attain for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls
Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and
How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders
with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly
power.

A method by which to end all unnatural
drains on the system.
To cure nervousness, lack of self control,
depression, etc.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature
for one of brightness, buoyancy and
power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, over-
work, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development
and tone to every portion and organ of
the body.

Age barrier Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific,
useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable
to men only who need it.

A despairing man who had applied to us,
soon after wrote:
"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just beamed with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them
my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it
this way?"

And another thus:
"If you dumped a carload of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into
my life as your method has done."

Write to the BIRK MEDICAL COMPANY,
Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to Game Fish Take the Fly at Night.

That game fish commonly take the fly at night, I take it is conceded. I personally know it to be a fact. I have taken with various flies both trout and bass at night on many different occasions, when too dark for me to see the fly strike the water thirty feet distant. It is true, on the other hand, that I have, when a boy, often fished at night for catfish and eels with bait, and caught hundreds of them. I am, of course, on one near the bottom, and never caught, or knew to be caught, a scale fish in that way at night. I think the bass and trout, when feeding at night, not only keep in shoal water, but swim in the surface. As long as there is any light I do not doubt they see the fly, and when too dark for that, they see and probably hear the fly strike the water. I am, of course, in my experience, bass take the fly on the surface as gamely as trout—Forest and Stream.

Strange Visitors in 'Kaygeon.

On Thursday morning last, two moose entered the outskirts of the village of Boboygon and left a trail of considerable signs of their presence by breaking down the trees and browsing on their tops. Dr. Bonnel saw their tracks and at once investigated the matter. He is confident they did not travel far and expects a return visit will soon be made. This speak well for the law abiding citizens of Boboygon who permit these noble monarchs of the forest to roam at large, unmolested. They are evidently true sportsmen and if these fine animals should again revisit the village in the year nineteen hundred, when the present Ontario game law will permit their slaughter, we trust their many observations of the law will be fully regarded, and that it will not be the pleasure of any yanket ranger to bring them under the star and stripes. The "people's Charlie" will no doubt see to it that the law against exportation will not be changed.

Railway Notes.

A ballast train is at work on the line between Kilmount and Haliburton, putting it in thorough repair.

The Victoria Road ballast train is working on the line between Lorneville Junction and Midland.

The Grand Trunk ballast train, with a large gang of Italians, has been removed from Haliburton to Fenelon Falls. They will fill in McLaren's creek bridge, which is about four hundred feet long.

Railway people say that the Grand Trunk has not been as busy in twelve years as it is at present, as far as freight is concerned. It has been found necessary to procure a number of brakemen to the position of conductor, and a large number of new hands have been taken on.

The Grand Trunk last week laid another spur line for Messrs. Oronook & Denman, contractors for the Balsam Lake section of the Trent Valley canal, who have taken the canal off their list of work and are now about to begin the blasting of the rock. They have two immense travelling derricks in position for the work.

BRINGING THEM BACK.

The Grays Will Stand Their Trial for the Death of David Scollie.

The Attorney General's Department have received a despatch from Government Detective Murray, who is in Florida. The despatch was to the effect that Thomas and Hiesale Gray would return and stand their trial for the murder of "David" Scollie in Oronoke, provided that their children were brought to.

"It was cheaper to do that than extradite them, so I wired him to bring them all," said Deputy Attorney General Cartwright yesterday, "and I expect the party will reach Peterborough in a couple of days."

CANADA BUSINESS COLLEGE.

A Great Business and Short-hand School at Chatham.

The demands for the graduates of the Canada Business College of Chatham, must be gratifying to Mr. McLachlan the principal. Nearly every week we have been called upon to chronicle through his advertisement, some fresh graduate or undergraduate placed in a good position.

We are just informed of four other fresh demand for his pupils, two of them are for teachers in other business colleges. One is for a man well up in penmanship and thoroughly qualified to teach penmanship, shorthand and correspondence, the other is for a first class penman, capable of lending assistance in junior arithmetic and bookkeeping. The two other positions are in commercial offices, as stenographer, and stenographer and bookkeeper. The last two positions are now filled. Not one of the four positions is worth less than $50.00 per month.

The unprecedented success which the pupils of this school have been meeting with during the past year, will undoubtedly bring forth good fruit for the new school year which opens on Monday, Sept. 3rd, and we expect the college will be taxed to its utmost capacity to accommodate the students seeking admission next fall.

It richly deserves the success which is attending it.

That Third Feeling
Is a common complaint and it is a dangerous symptom. It means that the system is debilitated because of impure blood, and in this condition it is especially liable to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for this condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of seasons, climate, or life.

ONTARIO'S GOLD DEPOSITS.

A Rich Field of Gold Discovered in North Hastings.

A Buffalo man, Mr. O. R. Sprague, is said to have discovered a rich gold field in North Hastings, and a late issue of the Buffalo Express gives a description of the find from which we take some extracts:

Mr. Sprague is a man who is, apparently singularly blessed by fate. He did not look for gold. He was not thinking of gold when he ran across it. He was looking for something far more plebian, far more unattractive to the average staking prospector, than gold. He was looking for a mineral point that was the object of Mr. Sprague's quest when he went into the rural districts of the county of Hastings, Ontario, last fall, and it was while digging for land, that he discovered the signs of gold that were as infallible, in his judgment as if he had the gold in his hand.

Mr. Sprague was not content with signs, however. He dug down into the ground 10, 15, 20 or more feet and found that the lead developed as he went deeper. He took a few samples out to have assayed and look steps to secure the mineral rights to the land on which the find was located. These rights he got for a mere song. The simple minded farmers were too ignorant of the value of the mine to charge any exorbitant price, and for several months Mr. Sprague kept up his quest for gold leads and the acquisition of the mineral rights to land, until now he owns the rights to a mining area of about 3,000 acres of what he says is the finest gold bearing country in the world, in different tracts throughout Hastings and adjoining counties in Ontario.

Mr. Sprague has a partner, Mr. Blackman, an experienced miner, and in an interview the latter said:

"We are sinking a shaft near Bannockburn in Hastings county. Mr. Sprague is now on the ground, and a letter I just got from him says he has got down 20 feet and has found a rich vein of gold. He has also found a rich vein of silver. He has also found a rich vein of copper. He has also found a rich vein of lead. He has also found a rich vein of zinc. He has also found a rich vein of iron. The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JULY 1 1895.

The Trent Valley Canal boom is evidently broken.

Rebellion, supported by Bulgarian sympathizers, has broken out in Macedonia, and the government of Armenia is about to pass practically into the hands of foreign states. It looks as if the total collapse of the Turkish empire is at hand.

Father Paradis has been paid $300 by the Federal Government for his work in connection with the removal of French Canadians from Michigan to Nipissing. That is all right. This payment is altogether different to that made to Rev. Manly Benson. Father Paradis earned the money.

Toronto is annoyed because an alleged baseball team bearing its name, but composed of aliens, who are managed by a Rochester man, and floated by Buffalo money, desecrated the Sabbath while on a tour, by playing a game. There is no cause for alarm. The Torontonians didn't play ball on Sunday. They can't play ball on any day of the week.

The statement is made that when China has borrowed all the money needed to settle accounts with Japan, no less than two-thirds of her entire customs revenue will be pledged. This is one of the disadvantages of being a barbarous country. Civilized communities are not compelled to put up collateral for payment of their debts.

There is a certain relief in knowing that the St. Thomas murders confessed their crime before being hanged. It will remove a prop from the philanthropists who object to inflicting the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. Until the same worthy persons are able to maintain, by other means, the safety of society and provide the necessary gaol accommodation for unhanged murders, the majority will continue to employ Jack Ketch.

A BOGUS AGENT.

One Who Has Falsely Represented Himself as Agent for Messrs. T. Milburn & Co. of Toronto.

The firm of T. Milburn & Co., manufacturers of proprietary medicines, have at some time past been in receipt of letters from correspondents in and about Orangeville and Meadowdale, stating that a man has been operating in those districts, representing himself as their agent, and has been peddling medicines from house to house offering them as the medicines—Burdock Blood Bitters, etc.—put up by this well-known and reliable

A Globe reporter, having been placed in possession of these statements, called at the office of Messrs. T. Milburn & Co., in Colborne street, and was shown a number of communications from merchants in the localities indicated, all of which confirmed the information at first received and as given above.

Not only had his firm been in receipt of communications, Mr. Milburn said, but some of his customers from Peel County had called at the office in Toronto and had informed him that this bogus agent had sold stuff at several houses which had necessitated the calling in of the doctor to treat the members of the families who had used his compounds.

In closing the interview, Mr. Milburn, the head of the firm, said: "We have no such agent, nor do we sell our medicines through peddlers or agents other than druggists and general merchants, and on this account we are desirous that consumers and others buying our remedies should understand that any persons peddling from house to house cannot represent us. They should, therefore, be on their guard against bogus medicines being thrust on them for those of our manufacture. I may say that we are willing to defray any expenses incident to the detection and conviction of this man, or of anyone falsely representing himself as our agent."

TO PREVENT COLLISIONS AT SEA.

A New York Electrician has Invented a Compass That Will Give Warning.

P. P. O'Brien, a New York electrician, has invented a compass which he says will avert all danger of collisions at sea.

"There is one thing connected with my invention," he said to a New York World reporter, "which I cannot make public. That is the component parts of a chemical fluid which is placed in the base of the compass. This fluid, by the way, will go a long way towards proving that in the very near future chemistry will play a very important part in the work of utilizing the enormous forces of electricity."

"It is only three years ago that I made a recipe, if it may be called such, of this fluid. I had known something of the action of electricity on certain chemicals, and in the course of my experiments with my compass I made several fluids, all of different strengths. One day, with several friends, I went to Lake Mahopac to test the compass. The affair worked perfectly when the contents of one of the bottles was used, very badly with others, and again not at all with some."

"I was delighted when I found that the compass was a success with one of the mixtures. One of my friends casually asked me how the contents of that bottle differed from the others. Then I realized that I had made a fatal error. I had not marked the bottle, and was as much at sea about it as my friend. That was three years ago. I set to work at once to rectify my mistake and spent several thousand dollars in having the contents of that bottle analyzed, but all to no purpose. Perseverance pays, however, for several months ago I succeeded in getting a formula for the successful mixture."

"The compass is about two and one-half inches in diameter and three inches high. Under the needle is a strip of metal. Beneath the face of the compass is a saucer, in which the chemical I spoke of is placed. The whole is connected electrically with an enlarged horseshoe magnet 10 feet long made of soft iron bars 18 inches wide. The poles of the magnet are connected by wire with the ship's dynamo, thus giving us the electrical power."

"The moment a ship enters the magnetic field of the vessel which carries my compass, which I calculate at six miles, the needle of the compass is deflected in the direction of that ship. In turning it passes over the metal plate on the face, and as it does so it closes an electric circuit which sets alarm bells ringing, telling of the approach of the other vessel."

"When I first brought my compass to the notice of shipping men the cry was raised that the magnet would seriously affect the ship's steering compass. Such is not the fact, for this can be protected in the way usually adopted in all steel and iron ships. This is done by laying narrow strips of brass, flush with the deck, around the compass. These strips act as a fence, as it were, against all magnetic influences on board."

"I was on the steamer La Gasconne six years ago, looking at the compass. Suddenly I noticed the needle shake and turn half way around. Capt. Santelli, who was near me at the time, and of whom I asked an explanation of the matter, pointed to a steamer four miles off. 'That steamer,' said he, 'is loaded either with steel rails or cannon goods. It has deflected our needle by magnetic attraction.' That set me to thinking, and my magnet is the result."

"Two weeks ago I made an appointment with certain persons connected with the Navy Department, and before going I decided to make a final test of the magnet and compass. With a couple of friends we hired a tug. We steamed up, down and across the bay, the magnet and compass working perfectly all the time."

"I am not at liberty to tell whom I saw in Washington, or what was said, but I do not think that I violate any confidence when I say that this summer experiments will be made in rough water on a vessel furnished by the navy. More than that I cannot say at present."

"Friends have advised me to part with my invention for a lump sum offered by a syndicate of local steamship men, but I refused thinking that the Government ought to put it to better use, as it will not seek to monopolize it, but will aid in placing it on the ships of every nation. Of course, I am selfish enough to believe it will be better for me in the end."

BEWARE OF SKINS.

An Important Caution with Regard to the Eating of Fruit.

Fruit skins carry germs and are no more intended for human sustenance than potato skins, melon rinds or pea pods. The bloom of the peach is a luxuriant growth of microbes, that of grape only less so; and when these skins are taken into the stomach they find most favorable conditions for their lively and rapid development which cause the decay of the fruit before it is possible to digest it. This is the reason many persons think they cannot eat raw fruit. If they would in all cases discard the skin they could derive only good from the fruit itself. Nature provides the skin for the protection of the fruit from the multitude of germs which are ever ready to attack it, as is evidenced when the skin is bruised or broken in any way. The microbes at once begin their work of decay, and the fruit is unfit for food. Children are chief offenders in respect to this rule and should be carefully cautioned. A disinfectant as to the condition of fruit should also be cultivated, to prevent its being eaten unripe, or too old, on the verge of decay. Remember that it is sweet and ripe fruit, in prime condition, only that is recommended.—Farmers' Voice.

Electrical Treatment

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment. When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the nape of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

A WORLD'S WONDER.

THE ESCURIAL, BUILT BY PHILIP II.
OF SPAIN IN 1563.A Temple, a Palace, a Treasury, a Tomb and a Museum—here are Buried the Rulers of Spain and Their Children—The Builder Lived Here Like a Monk.

The Escorial, built by Philip II. of Spain, between 1563 and 1584, was called "the eighth wonder of the world." It was at once a temple, a palace, a treasury, a tomb and a museum. That is to say, all these were included in the huge building which Philip erected on the slope of a spur of the Guadarrama range, thirty-two miles northwest of Madrid. The builder's object was to carry out the will of his father, Charles V., by constructing a royal burial place, and also to fulfil a vow he had made during the battle of St. Quentin, when he implored the aid of St. Lorenzo, on whose day (August 10, 1557) the battle was fought. A correspondent of the Boston Herald writes from San Sebastian describing this eighth wonder:

The edifice stands about 8,000 feet above the sea, facing the mountains, with its back toward Madrid. It is a rectangular parallelogram, 740 feet from north to south, and 580 from east to west. On the east side is an advanced portico which breaks the facade. This gave rise to the vulgar impression that Philip's idea was to make the building in the shape of a gridiron, an allusion to the manner of St. Lorenzo's martyrdom, he having been boiled to death on a slow fire in the reign of the Roman Emperor Valerianus, A. D. 201. There seems to be no other ground for the fanciful invention.

The building covers 800,000 square feet of land, or nearly 19 acres. It has 16 court-yards, 36 staircases, 15 cloisters, 88 fountains and 8,000 feet of painted fresco. The church, which occupies less than a sixth of the whole space, is 320 feet long, 280 feet wide and 220 feet high to the top of the cupola. The redempting quality of the enormous structure are size, simplicity and situation. It seems to be part of the mountain on the slope of which it rises. It still looks grand even among mountain buttresses. Otherwise, it disappoints. Its architecture has little in form or color to commend it. It lacks the prestige of antiquity, and it does not express any religious sentiment. It might be a vast manufactory. Its cold granite walls, blue slate, leaden roofs and small windows give it a commonplace appearance.

Of course, it is now little more than a skeleton of what it was. The living monks who swarmed in its courts are here no longer. The revenues on which they lived have been taken away. The French soldiers stole and carried away many of its golden ornaments in 1808. Its best pictures have been removed to Madrid. The building has suffered from neglect, exposed to hurricanes and winter snows. Better care has been taken of it in later years. It is now used as a seminary, where about 300 youths receive a secular education. The fanatic Philip lived here, half king and half monk, for fourteen years after the building was completed. His last end was miserable, for he was harassed by doubts as to whether his seal in burning heretics would secure him a passport to heaven.

The family vault under the high altar, as built by Philip, was severely plain, at once impressive and unimpressive. His successors, Philip III. and Philip IV., built the gorgeous subterranean chamber which has become the Spanish Pantheon. Here repose the remains of kings and queens who have really reigned, and the severe etiquette of the Spanish court does not stop at death. The chamber, to which we descend by some sixty steps, the stairway lined by green and yellow-colored jasper, is an octagon thirty-six feet in diameter and thirty-eight feet high, terminating at the top in a pointed dome. The materials of which the walls are composed are dark polished marbles and gilt bronze. There are twenty-six niches hollowed in seven of the eight sides, the altar occupying one, with black marble sarcophagi, all exactly alike. The reigning sovereigns are on the right of the altar and their consorts on the left. The names of the occupants are written on the urns, beginning with Charles V. Several are empty, awaiting future kings and queens. The last to rest in the vault was that of Alphonso XII., who died in 1885. An empty one awaits his wife, now Queen Regent, and another his son, the present boy king, not yet ten years of age.

Perhaps the most interesting part of this huge pile is the suite of humble apartments where Philip lived the monk-like life which he preferred to royal luxury for the temple. He was still one of the most powerful monarchs of his age. His armies carried the flag of Spain half over Europe. Rich argosies brought to his ports the treasures of the new world. He lived here a slave to bigotry, and in his reign were sown the seeds of death, from which may be traced the sad decay of one of the great powers of the earth. We are shown in the small, dark cabinet where he carried on the business of "Most Catholic King," the desk at which he wrote on little scraps of paper—for he had his pen economies, the chair in which he sat, another in which he rested his weary leg when he gave audience to his ministers and foreign ambassadors, and some of the utensils he used. From his dismal sleeping room a door opens into a small chamber which overlooks the high altar of the church. To this he was carried in his last illness and here he died after languishing long with a loathsome disease.

After seeing all worth seeing in the interior and wondering at the mass of chambers, cloisters and courtyards in which a stranger might easily get lost, we went outside on a grand terrace, the whole length of the building which overlooks toward the south formal gardens and fish ponds. The slopes below are well planted, the fine clime having been brought from England. The view extends over the rolling plain, which looks level in the distance, as far as Madrid. We then ascended a neighboring height, one of the spurs of the mountain range, the summits of which are white as this season, to take in the grand building as one view. In spite of the defects I have noted above, it is a very impressive pile, being one of the largest of human constructions. The gray-stone village clustered beside it, and climbing by steep streets up the slope above it, contains a population of about 1,500. Pure streams of sparkling water flow impetuously down the ravines which mark the mountains, making the Escorial a fresh and verdant spot.

The profits of the United States leather trust are said to be $1,000,000 a month.

A NEW REBEL LEADER.

THOMAS ESKRADE PALMA OF CEN-TRAL VALLEY, N. Y., OFFERED
THE JOB.More Troops are Required in Cuba to Undertake an Offensive Campaign—Spaniards Had the Best of a Recent Engagement.
Special to the Times.

MADRID, June 28.—THE Premier, Senor Castillo, announces that the Ministry has received a cable dispatch from Captain General de Campos, notifying the Government that 14,000 additional troops will be required to enable him to undertake an offensive campaign in Cuba after the rainy season is over. The statement has caused some excitement, although the Government has been making preparations for some time past to send additional troops to Cuba.

VOTING FOR A NEW LEADER.
TAMPA, Fla., June 28.—Col. Fernando Figueredo states that on July 10 all over the Americas the Cuban colonies will hold local conventions of representatives from local clubs to vote for a delegate to elect a successor to Jose Marti as leader of the Cuban revolutionary party. Two weeks ago the nomination was tendered to Thomas ESKRADE PALMA, principal of the ESKRADE Institute, Central Valley, Orange County, N. Y. Palma was the last president of the Cuban Republic in 1878, and during his term was taken prisoner by Martinez Campos near Canto River while going from Las Tamas to Bayamo to quell a counter-revolution in January 1878. He was sent to Spain and imprisoned on May 23, 1878. After his release, Palma came to this country. He is a very learned and practical man. Immediately upon the nomination being tendered him, he sought the Cuban element in New York city, which included many who were not in accord with Marti, although at heart in favor of the independence of Cuba. Palma will be strongly supported. The will be no change in the general policy now followed. Palma is now virtually president of the Cuban Republic, his successor never having been elected.

SPANIARDS HAVE THE BEST OF IT.
Havana, June 28.—It is given out here that the loss in the engagement between the insurgents commanded by Gomez and the company of guerrillas commanded by Aguirre, was on the part of the Spaniards 14 killed and 8 wounded, while of the insurgents it is said 19 were killed and left on the field when the band retired with their wounds.

DA GAMA IS DEAD.
The Brazilian Admiral Killed Himself to Escape Torture.

Special to the Times.
RIO JANEIRO, June 28.—The report of the death of Admiral Balthazar da Gama is confirmed. After the defeat of the rebel forces near Santa Ana, Rio Grande do Sul, by the Government troops Da Gama committed suicide to escape Gen. Castilho, who, he feared, would torture him.

Montevideo sends word that members of the Brazilian revolutionary party confirm the news of Da Gama's death, but say the manner of it is a mystery. Some of the fugitive insurgents who escaped across the frontier told Uruguayan officers that the Admiral was taken prisoner by the Government soldiers, put to death and his body horribly mutilated, while others say that Da Gama ended his own life.

AN UNFAITHFUL SERVANT.
Left in Charge of His Master's House he Makes It a Red House.
Special to the Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 28.—Hans Von Oertzen, of the Dry Goods Economist of New York, returned from Europe on Monday to find his household effects and his horses and carriage gone.

Six months ago Mr. Von Oertzen sailed for Germany. He hired William Billings to take charge of his place in his absence. He had been gone less than a month when Billings threw the house open as a road house, and laid in a stock of cigars and liquors. Disorderly characters frequented the place.

Suspicion was finally aroused, and as soon as Billings learned that an investigation was probable, he closed the house and disappeared.

When Mr. Von Oertzen got home he found that his piano, most of his furniture and carpets and his silverware had been carried away. His horses and carriages were also missing, and his lawn was cut up by carriage wheels and rained. The loss will amount to $4,000. No news of Billings' whereabouts has been learned.

IMPRESSED ON THE MEMORY

That Pond's Extract is without equal for relieving pain, and that no remedy should be accepted as "just as good." And unscrupulous druggists will insist on trying to force upon purchasers weak imitations which are irritating, uncertain and even poisonous, very different from genuine Pond's Extract, which is universally known as a great healer, pacifier and comforter. Nature's own remedy for all pain is genuine Pond's Extract.

Avoid substitutes; accept genuine only, with buff wrapper and yellow label.

THE TRADE OUTLOOK.

The Globe Says it has Greatly Improved in Peterborough.

In a review of the trade and business outlook of the province, the Globe has the following to say of Peterborough: "Business in nearly all departments has improved of late in Peterborough, and there is more hopefulness than has been felt for some time. Conversation with the gentlemen who have their fingers on the financial pulse, the bankers, reveals the fact that there has been a decided improvement in business within the past few months. Mercantile paper has been well met this year so far, and depositors show a more buoyant disposition and a willingness to make investments that have long been wanting. Three bank managers who have dealings with farmers report that advances and loans have been, as a rule, promptly met. There is a general opinion among bankers that times have much improved, and that the prospects for future, though gradual, improvement are good. All agree, however, in saying that a continuance of the present improvement is dependent upon the coming crop, which at present is suffering from want of rain, and unless rain speedily comes they will all be, as hay is practically now, a failure.

The leading merchants report a business for this year far in excess of the corresponding period last year. The improvement consists in large sales of better classes of goods, and a general feeling of confidence upon the part of customers. Most merchants are making larger purchases, in anticipation of brisker trade. On the whole the outlook in Peterborough is encouraging, though it is not believed that there are unduly large numbers out of employment.

So far the crops, with the exception of hay, have really not suffered from the drought, and there is every prospect of a good crop in this section if rain comes shortly. If it is long delayed the consequences to the coming crop will be serious.

A CASE ON.

The Lakefield Council Has Been Instructed to Remove Obstructions.

Reeve Casement received the following letter from Peterborough a day or so ago, which looks as if business was meant:—

PETERBOROUGH, June 22nd, 1895.
The Reeve and Council of the Village of Lakefield.

GENTLEMEN.—We are instructed by Mr. William P. Gray to call the attention of the Council to certain obstructions placed upon Smith street and adjoining streets by Mrs. Chamberlain, and request the Council to have the same removed forthwith. Kindly inform us if this request will be complied with, as we are instructed to take proceedings in the event of the Council declining to act.

Yours truly,
DENNISTOWN & STEVENSON.

The obstructions which are no doubt referred to, is a part of the street in front of Mrs. Chamberlain's residence, which has been fenced in and flowers planted. We understand that the Council will look into the matter at once, and if there are obstructions as stated they will no doubt have them removed.—Lakefield News.

ENLARGES THE USES OF MUSIC

There is a good deal in the old saw that music will charm the savage beast. It always was possessed of a magic power over individuals. To the present age, however, must be credited the greater triumphs in musical directions. And not only of these in the transporting power of Beethoven & Co., Toronto, which opens out for vocalists a wide arena of delightful study. The instrument is unique in every particular, and ought to command the study of everyone interested in music, whether professionally or for its individual delights.

Fire at Bobcaygeon.

The alarm of fire was sprung on Monday night, at about a quarter to eleven, and it was at once plainly in evidence, being the stables, storehouses and outbuildings at the old residence of Mr. Wm. Black, near the site of the Shingle Mill, that was destroyed some years ago. The buildings were 20 x 84 feet, and reached within a few yards of the house. Mrs. Anthony Lawrence and her young daughter occupied the house, and were awakened by the blaze and cracking of the fire. Assistance quickly arrived, and was soon followed by the two hand engines. Fortunately there was no wind, and the good work of those early on the ground protected the house from catching. The steam engine made a quick run, and did its work well. How the fire originated is unknown. It was first seen at the end furthest from the house, no fire had been on the premises after six o'clock, and there were no children to play about the place. Mrs. Lawrence will lose by the breaking of her furniture in removal, and general upsetting of the house. There was an insurance of $250 on the buildings destroyed, held by the Western Co.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JULY 3 1895.

It would be interesting to know what the Minister of Justice thinks of the defence of St. Louis by his colleague in the Cabinet.

The excess of United States Government expenditure over receipts during the fiscal year ended on Sunday was forty-two million eight hundred thousand dollars.

There's something wrong at Ottawa. Twenty-four hours have passed since anybody proposed a plan whereby parliament might shirk the Manitoba school question.

The certificate of character Hon. Mr. Oimmet sees fit to give St. Louis should be a strong piece of evidence in defence of the contractor whom the Government is suing.

Many United States journals will be surprised and grieved to learn that the Manitoba legislature has adjourned without taking the necessary steps to secede from the Dominion.

If you look for it you'll find the law of compensation in everything. Thus, although the drought has spoiled the quality of the raspberries, you get more of them to the quart than you would have got if rain had swelled them.

The employment of convicts to build rural roads would solve the problems of good roads and prison labor, but it seems almost useless to hope for the experiment being made. Our governments and parliaments seem to have an innate hatred radical reforms and a prejudice against discussing practical social problems.

Germany spent 8,000,000 marks in celebrating the opening of the Kiel canal. But then the canal itself cost $10,000,000 less than the estimate. If we in Canada could attain the same success in carrying out public improvements we would also be justified in a liberal outlay on the after ceremonies.

In discussing an amendment to the insurance act the Senators touched the question of child insurance. Any life insurance other than on the supporters of a family has a questionable appearance. While restrictive legislation is not always the best means of reforming abuses, the law could be used to give a publicity which would be restraining where restraint was necessary.

Her Majesty has been pleased to confer the Order of the Thistle, one of the highest honours of the kind that it is in her power to bestow. It is an order that had no distinct existence previous to 1687, when a warrant for its restriction was issued by James VI. of Scotland and II. of England. It fell into abeyance after the abdication of James, but was restored by Anne, and is now worn by the Sovereign and Sixteen Knights.

Dr. R. Beverly Cole, the newly-elected President of the American Medical Association, has just returned to San Francisco after visiting the leading medical schools of the continent. "Speaking without any notes, much upset as I am, and no reference whatever to the intellect governing these colleges, I think," he says, "if I remember rightly, the institution which impressed me as the best equipped was the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York. Second, I think probably McGill University of Montreal was the most perfect; then, perhaps, Toronto, Harvard, Ann Arbor, the University of Pennsylvania and Rush Medical College, Chicago."

FOR A TAX ON NOBLENEN.

An Ingenious French Idea to Help Pay the National Debt.

French marquises, counts and barons are growing as common as asparagus in the month of May. Every well-dressed man in Paris thinks himself dishonored if his buttonhole is not ornamented with a decoration of some kind, or if on his visiting card a coronet is not engraved. Never have there been more aristocrats in France than under the third republic.

One of the remarkable things about this is that the great majority have no right to prefix a title to their names, but as the offense is a harmless one no serious objections have been raised so far by the authorities. On the contrary, it seems as if the Government were rather inclined to countenance titles. Such is the opinion of a learned Deputy, M. Girault, who when Parliament reassembles, intends to introduce a bill by which all noblemen shall be taxed.

The tariff will be levied according to the rank of nobility selected by a party in quest of aristocratic glory. A peer will be compelled to pay the maximum tariff, a duke will come next on the schedule and all the titles will be submitted to an inflexible law, which M. Girault has carefully prepared, and which is destined to ameliorate the financial condition of the nation and facilitate in years to come the equilibrium of the budget.

However revolutionary M. Girault's plan may appear, no one will deny that it is a most democratic resolution, for a noble title being anything but an article of absolute necessity, only those with money to spare will have anything to pay. It is an original method of making the rich bear a larger share of the burden of taxation. Without doing this by taxing their incomes direct, it taxes their titles as an article of luxury and as something which gives the possessors a certain homage in the eyes of the people for which they ought to be willing to make compensation.

"M. Girault's law, notwithstanding its originality," says a French writer, "has been turned to ridicule in France before it has been read for the first time in the Chamber of Deputies. There are some who ask if it would not be better to organize an immense lottery, the grand prize of which would be a title of prince and the lesser ones titles of lower order. The journey to Rome would be avoided, and all titles possessed by Frenchmen would be strictly national."

A Rome Thruist. Mme. De Stael had fallen out with the Viscount De Choiseul owing to certain malicious reports circulated by the latter. One day the lady and the Viscount met in company, on which occasion good manners required that they should speak to each other. Mme. De Stael commenced: "We have not seen you for a long while, Monsieur De Choiseul."

"Ah! Madame l'Ambassadrice, I have been ill."

"Seriously, Monsieur?"

"I had a narrow escape from being poisoned."

"Alas! Possibly you took a bite at your own tongue."

This little joke fell like a thunderbolt on the Viscount, who was a notorious backbiter and mischief maker. The lesson was a severe one, but he richly deserved it and had not a word to say.—Le Savoir Faite et Savoir-Vivre.

Trifles of Real Interest.

The New Woman may buy her shirt waists, neckties and all that sort of thing at gentlemen's furnishing goods stores.

"I met the champion absent-minded man the other day," said a young woman. "I called at his office on a matter of business, and as I talked I laid a small box of bonbons on the desk in front of me. The gentleman, who is very fond of sweets, spied it. 'Why,' said he, 'some one has left some candy for me. Have some!' and he calmly extended my candy and insisted that I take two pieces instead of one."

A woman at the bottom of 12.

A woman was in a hurry to board a Wabash avenue cable car. At the same time a one-legged man was in a hurry to leave the car. The woman collided with the man, knocked his crutch from under his arm and he fell upon the pavement. After the woman had made herself secure in the seat of the car she turned and made a profuse apology. The man was in no mood to accept it. He shook his crutch before her and cursed her. The woman's face grew crimson. The conductor enjoyed the occurrence. In doing so he stepped on a man's corn. The man toppled and fell against another man, knocking off the latter's silk hat. In scrambling to catch it he fell off. He raved and swore, and the man who had knocked off the hat, being pugnacious, jumped from the car and there was a fight. The conductor was heard to mutter: "Always a woman."—Chicago Tribune.

The Turtle's Annual Visit.

A land turtle that without fail for twenty-six years has regularly appeared at the home of Michael Mackey, at Parkers Ford, Chester County, came to time a few days ago and was being proudly exhibited around Pottstown by Mr. Mackey yesterday. That gentleman asserts that there can be no mistaking his turtle, as the initials of his name are emblazoned on its shell. He says that its training has been so well developed at his home that at the sound of the dinner bell it comes into the dining-room to receive its allotment of food. It stays around the Mackey premises until September, and then goes off to its winter quarters.

ELECTRICITY AND CROPS

THE CURRENT HELPS THINGS TO GROW WITH GOOD RESULTS.

Frenchmen Know the Secret—Seeds, Flowers, Grapes, Strawberries and Vegetables Showing Extraordinary Vigor When Electricity is Applied.

It has long been known that the electricity in the atmosphere plays an important part in the stimulation of vegetable growth, but hitherto no practical use has been made of this knowledge.

The results recently obtained by some French scientists, who have been experimenting with the effects of electricity on plants indicate that a most valuable aid to agriculture has been discovered. A plant deprived of atmospheric electricity by covering it with a network of fine steel wires soon withers away and dies; when artificially stimulated by an electric current it blooms with far more vigor than in a normal condition.

With these data to work upon, the experimenters moistened seeds with water and then subjected them to the influence of an electric current. The seeds thus treated grew with far more vigor and came to maturity sooner than those not so treated. They even succeeded in making date stones germinate, which is a very unusual thing to happen in France.

Pears, peaches and nectar grew with astonishing swiftness when treated with the powerful current of a Ruhmkorff coil and the yield was greater than ordinary. Experiments with batteries were not so successful when the current was passed through the earth, because of the difference in the resistance of the soil in various places to the passage of the current. The resulting crop was uneven in character, according to one particular section received more or less of the electric current. With the powerful electrical machines much more satisfactory results were obtained. Strawberries in particular were ripened in a remarkably short time.

Electrical machines are far too expensive, however, for a farmer to use, and though all right in theory they are too costly in practice.

The new invention is called the geomagnetifier, and consists of an ordinary pole forty or fifty feet high, surmounted by a chival or frame of copper spikes, designed to act as a collector of atmospheric electricity. This collector is insulated from the pole by a porcelain knob, and connects with a copper wire (also insulated from the pole), which transmits the current to a network of wires which are laid under the soil at a depth of about six feet. These wires are made of galvanized iron, and their cost is not large.

By the use of this apparatus the production on a given area has been increased 50 per cent. The grapes from vineyards in which the geomagnetifier is used are richer in sugar and alcohol than ordinary grapes. Flowers have a stronger perfume also when stimulated in this manner.

The exact chemical action which the current has upon fruits and vegetables cannot be determined. It is only certain that such action takes place. Some hold that it acts by aiding the plants to assimilate the azote of the atmosphere, while others think that it favors the assimilation of certain mineral salts in the soil.

The experiment can be tried on any lawn or flower bed so long as the pole is away from the house. If too close it acts as a lightning conductor, but without giving any protection.

It is estimated that a geomagnetifier sixty feet high will enrich the soil to the same degree as ten times its cost in manure. At the present time a successful farmer has to be something of a chemist, and it now seems as though he will have to be an electrician, too.

A NEW CURE FOR ERYSIPELAS.

Colorless Liquid With an Extraordinary Name Dr. Marmorek Has Made.

It is reported that a Parisian physician, Marmorek by name, has discovered a new serum for the cure of erysipelas, puerperal fever and bronchial pneumonia. This recently discovered remedy has been given the peculiar and lengthy name of Anti-streptococcique. It has been seen at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, and is a thin, colorless liquid, resembling water in almost every detail. No word has come so far as to its success or whether any really definite cures have been made.

As a matter of fact, there is only a very small quantity of it as yet in existence—little more than a tiny vialful, indeed, but this is sufficient to have aroused a pretty nearly all Paris—that section of it is least which takes an interest in medical affairs and in the science of curing disease—into making frequent inquiries and regarding the discovery as of great practical importance. Dr. Marmorek says that he is best on every hand with requests for a small quantity of the serum on the part of both physicians and sufferers, and he has been obliged to shut out the public and the medical fraternity for a time until he has prepared more of the precious liquid.

His reason for so acting is his remembrance of the time of the discovery of the antitoxin cure, when the Institute was besieged by anxious crowds demanding the new remedy and offering large sums of money for even a little of it. When the doctor then explained to them that it was impossible to give them what they asked for because there was no supply of it on hand, the crowd returned and upbraided the Pasteur physicians violently, calling them unhuman and brutes. Dr. Marmorek is anxious that such a scene shall not occur in connection with his discovery. In a month and a half Marmorek claims that he will have an ample supply and will meet all demands that may be made upon him.

Deadly Work of the New Hullet.
Sir Benjamin Baker, in a paper on "War and Engineering," calls attention to the devastation which the small-bore rifle effects in the human body. He says: "The magazine rifle bullet, though no larger in diameter than a lead pencil, does not simply perforate a bone, but 'the part is always pounded; fragments are frequently carried out through the wound of exit, which is commonly converted into a gaping orifice, the muscles are pulsed, and, in fact, the limb mangled and damaged beyond repair.' It may not be unreasonably contended, therefore, that by supplying soldiers with a weapon which kills or maims for life everyone a bone of whose body is touched by a bullet even at a mile's distance and further, by making victors and vanquished suffer equally, and the cost of killing a man to be incomparably greater than of old, engineering science has done more to make war unpopular than all the army tailors of the world will ever be able to undo, however much they may endeavor to distract attention."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE PRIEST CHALLENGED.

REV. MR. TIGHE'S STRICTURES ON THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS RESISTED.

Reported Assassination of the Duke d'Aumale—The Whiteway Cabinet Tangle—An Old Country Eleven Coming to America, Special to the Times.

HAMILTON, June 29.—About 4 o'clock this afternoon a row occurred in the Tremont hotel, on Stuart street, during which James Wall, proprietor of the hotel, shot James Neelson in the stomach. After the shooting Neelson was removed to the City Hospital, where the wound was examined and found to be of such a serious nature that but little hope is entertained for his recovery. Wall was placed under arrest, and if Neelson dies he will be charged with murder. Neelson is a young man, employed in Downswell Bros' manufactory, and lives with his parents at 236 Bay street north. In company with Mike and John Connor and Frank Roach, Neelson went into the hotel this afternoon and purchased drinks, tendering a two dollar bill in payment. A dispute arose over the amount of the charge, in which both Wall and Neelson used strong language, and the former became so enraged that he drew a revolver and shot Neelson. Mrs. Wall says one of the men grabbed her husband by the throat and he pulled the revolver to frighten them, but the others say that Neelson was shot without provocation and deny that Wall was abused.

CLOSE QUARANTINE.
BERLIN, June 29.—The Bundesrath has decided to order all swine and cattle imported from infected countries to be quarantined for four weeks before landing and thereafter to be subjected to five months veterinary supervision at the various places of destination of consignments of live stock. Cattle and swine imported from countries where disease among animals is still existent will be subjected to ten days quarantine. The regulations will go into effect on October 1st.

A TERRIBLE FALL.
SACIT ST. MARIE, Mich., June 29.—While walking along the new lock last night Morris Killis, an employee of the Cleveland Iron company, lost his balance and fell into the pit a distance of 44 feet. He will die. Killis is a resident of Orillia.

SUSPECT ARRESTED.
MONTREAL, June 29.—The Montreal police were notified tonight from Toronto that a man named Trudeau had been arrested in that city at the instance of the Montreal detectives. He is charged with robbery from a Montreal merchant named Cuddy, by whom he was employed.

PATRONS CAMPAIGNING.
SEAFORTH, June 29.—The Patrons of Industry held a grand gathering this noon in Lonsborough Grove, St. Tuckers mill, about three miles from Seaforth. The gathering was a most successful one; the day was delightful and there were over 1,000 people present, the largest half of whom were ladies. Addresses were delivered by Messrs. J. L. Haycock, Patron leader; T. O. Currie, grand vice-president; Joseph Stratford, president of the Farmers' Union; and Mr. J. H. Twine, president of the Common, the Patron candidate for South Huron at the Dominion election, and Mr. M. Y. MacLean, M.P.P., South Huron.

SNATCHED $2,000.
HAMILTON, June 29.—A young lady clerk employed in the office of Chisholm & Logie, barristers, while going to the bank this afternoon, was robbed of the firm's bank book, containing checks amounting to over $2,000 and about $35 in cash. A man stepped up to her just at the alleyway between King and Main streets and snatched the book from her hand. He ran off immediately and has not been apprehended yet. He will be unable to use the checks as they have been cancelled.

"GODLESS SCHOOLS."
Hon. Wilfrid Laurier declares he does not favor them.

Special to the Times.
MONTREAL, June 29.—Mr. Laurier has written a letter in reply to the statement of Bishop Lafrance, of Three Rivers, stating that he considers his Lordship's interpretation of his remarks on the subject of the Manitoba schools. Mr. Laurier says that that night at Three Rivers, and several days later at St. Jerome, he explained himself on the subject in that most accurate and vocal manner. He never under any circumstances expressed himself, he says, in favor of Godless schools.

THE STORY OF A POEM.

Rob Waldron was one of the best fellows in St. Mark's parish; and by that I do not mean that he was merely a good fellow in a convivial sense, but that he was a thorough man. One evening Rob, trudging alone to the last ball at Cluny's, dropped in on Frank Dexter as he passed the Rexford, where Frank lives. Frank Dexter was a rather dry-minded young man who had a ready fund of language and a pretty imagination, out of which he concocted airy bits of verse which read well and occasionally sold, and society, therefore, after the fashion of society to build reputations on nothing, called him literary, though he was nothing of the sort. On this particular evening, when Rob opened the door of the poet's sitting-room, he found the young gentleman with his feet on the fender, a dressing gown wrapped around his shapely form, writing a poem on the back of an unrecalled bill. He greeted Rob with a wave of his hand, and a caution to "sit down, smoke, put your feet on the mantle, break the furniture—do anything, but don't disturb me until I get this poem finished." So Rob obeyed by doing the first two things mentioned and in a moment or two the poet ran his hands through his hair, brought his feet down with a bang and said:

"How are you?" Then without waiting for an answer, he went on:

"If I had all the world to choose,
And all the gold and jewels rare
If all the wealth of man was there—
With all to gain and nought to lose
What would I do?"

"Well," drawled Rob, "I think you'd make a grab and abscond." The poet went on:

"If on the other side I saw Alone, alone—a heart so true,
A love that over would endure,
That love that knows no mortal law—
Your love so true—
The gold and jewels scattered wide
My hands would fling. Their splendour
Before the light of your dear eyes;
And hastening to your dear, dear side—
I'd choose that you!"

"Frank, that's good," whereupon the author murmured something about being overpowered, promptly locked the poem up in a drawer and filed a bye.

Mrs. White, the charming mother of the celestial, was Rob's greatest admirer. One of his favorite places was in front of the fire in her sitting-room, with the lady herself smiling placidly at his side. Rob had no mother, and Mrs. White had "adopted" him, so it was to her he went with his troubles and his confidences, those confidences that a young man likes to give to an older woman. She was a philosopher in many ways.

"I may be worldly," she used to say, "but I thoroughly believe that a man is the better for knowing something of the sunny side of life. It broadens him, gives him something in common with other men, and does not permit him to set himself up above his fellows. There are very few who have the common sense to refrain from exploiting their virtue, and to me a man who is conscious that he is a little better than other men soon becomes obnoxious."

Nevertheless, Mrs. White was perfectly willing to have Rob Waldron remain unmolested, for Rob was one of the few with good sense enough to obtrude his goodness, and was apparently no better nor worse than the young men of his set. So when he sat beside Mrs. White she used to think of the adage which says that we must keep our friends unworshiped, unjudged, loved, trusted, faithful to the end, and was content.

On this particular evening, after Rob had left Frank Dexter, he found that he had come before the hour to appear at Cluny's, so he dropped in on Mrs. White. His mind had been upset a little by the poem, and he wanted advice. Rob had done one thing that all men must do sooner or later—this was the better, perhaps—that he had fallen in love. The French say that a woman never knows what it is to live until she has experienced the grand passion, and I believe the same is true of a man. The young woman who had secured a first mortgage on Rob's heart was a very practical sort of girl, red-haired and blue-eyed. The hair, however, was of that rich shade that Titian loved to paint, and the eyes were as deep as the sea. She was pretty—undeniably so—and she and her mother lived together in one of the prettiest houses on Van Buren Avenue. Mrs. Materson was a widow, president of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Mark's, was strong minded, and offered her ballot at the polls on every election day, only to have it regularly refused. Rob inherited none of her mother's idiosyncrasies, though she had nearly all her good qualities. The trouble in the case was that while Rob was as sure as a man can be that she returned his affection, yet she gave him no opportunity of telling it; so there, on the threshold of the greatest happiness that can befall a young couple, they had stopped for several years. Rob was a very high-spirited man, but even the charge of the Light Brigade would never have been made had there been no opportunity for it, and so matters stood still between Rob and Rose.

So this evening he told his troubles to Mrs. White as they sat, as usual, by her coal fire. He was looking very handsome in his evening suit, as big men always do, his blonde hair, carefully smoothed down, breaking out into rebellious curls around his forehead in the heat of the fire. Mrs. White listened to him, looked at him a long time and then said softly:

"Rob dear, if I were twenty years younger I'd make believe that this February had twenty-nine days." He looked up. "But then," she went on, "I'm a foolish old woman and every man has a right, yes, it is his duty to fall in love with some worthy girl, and I think you have done it. I suppose I ought to be able to advise you, my dear boy, but I declare I cannot. Philip did just what I told him not to do, and he has proved to be the best judge, so I suppose it is the nature of young men to be so similarly perverse and successful. But you may also have given you no opportunity. It's all very well in this world to say that we must wait for them, but if we make our opportunities very soon have the world at our feet." Rob jumped up.

"Mrs. White," he said, "you're an angel, and I've been letting an opportunity slip now. Mrs. Materson is at the Cluny ball chaperoning some St. Margaret's Hall girls, and Rose is at home alone. I'll cut the ball and go over there now."

And with a rush he was gone, leaving Mrs. White to smile pensively at the fire and dream of thirty years ago, until St. Mark's chimed twelve o'clock. Rob Materson had not gone to the Cluny ball for two reasons. One was that she had a slight headache and the other (Concluded next issue.)

FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

THE AWFUL DEATH OF JOSEPH YATES, OF THE YORK RANGERS.

A Toronto Wife Murderer Pardoned—The Mysterious Death of a Little Toronto Girl—Chapman and His Chumps. Special to the Times.

ORONTO, June 28.—There was no brighter child in the neighborhood yesterday morning than Ethel Ryan, the nine-year-old daughter of Michael Ryan, who lives at 46 Edward street, but by midnight she was a corpse. Coroner Young, of College street, was called to hold a post mortem on the remains, and on the result will depend whether an inquest will be held.

The child complained of a headache and diarrhoea yesterday morning, and her mother gave her a dose of Extract of Wild Strawberry and afterwards took the child out and bought a pair of boots for her. On the little boy's little one was put to bed and she never held up her head afterwards. In the evening she was carried to her own room and drank a small part of a bottle of champagne.

The mother is in a state of grief bordering on frenzy, bemoaning the fact that she did not know her child was really sick. HIS SKULL FRACTURED.

A 12th Battalion volunteer named Joseph Yates returned with his brother from the Niagara camp yesterday and the pair set out to walk on the railway line to their home at Aurora. At Thornhill they boarded a freight train which overtook them to steal a ride for the remaining distance. When Aurora was reached the train did not stop and Joseph leaped. He fell upon his face, fractured his skull and lower jaw, and died soon after. He was found by the agent. At Newmarket the train stopped for water and the surviving brother alighted and walked back to Aurora.

WILL PLAY SUNDAY BALL.—The decision of the Proprietor, Manager Chapman, of the organization known as the Toronto Baseball Club, to play Sunday games in defiance of public opinion seems to indicate that he doesn't care a fig what Canadians think about him so long as he pockets their money. But the cold shoulder that will be given the team when it plays here will show Mr. Chapman that it is always advisable to conciliate rather than antagonize the public.

A PARDON FOR WHALE.—Daniel Whale, formerly keeper of a hotel at the corner of Richmond and Church streets, who was sentenced to Kingston for life for the murder of his wife at Mitchell four years ago, has been pardoned and has gone to Chicago. Whale, who had been drinking at the time, undoubtedly struck a blow, which was followed by death, but it is said that he had been drinking and that the main cause thereof.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths of the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Attain for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men." The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system. To cure nervousness, lack of self control, despondency, etc.

To exchange a faded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power. To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body. Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it. A despairing man who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way."

And another thus:

Write to the S.M. MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Be sure to send this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any mark, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

ENLARGES THE USES OF MUSIC

There is a good deal in the old saw that music will cheer the savage breast. It always was possessed of a magnetic power over individuals. To the present age, however, must be credited the greater influence in musical direction. And not the least of these is the transposing piano of Heintzman & Co., Toronto, which opens out for vocalists a wide arena of delightful music. The instrument is easily understood by particular and ought to command the study of everyone interested in music, whether professionally or for its individual delights.

Tired but Sleepless

Is a condition which gradually wears away the strength. Let the blood be purified and enriched by Hood's Sarsaparilla and this condition will cease.

"For two or three years I was subject to poor spells. I always felt tired, could not sleep at night and the little I could eat did not do me any good. I read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before I had finished two bottles I began to feel better and in a short time I felt all right and had gained 31 pounds in weight. I am stronger and healthier than I have ever been in my life." JOHN W. COUGHLIN, Wallaceburg, Ontario.

THE STORY OF A

looked right square into its muzzle, and the countenance of his former prisoner behind it looked like trouble. He was caught. The conditions were reversed, and he was too shocked and surprised to say a word.

"Get down off that horse," These words rang quick and sharp.

The deputy was a brave man, but he was sensible and not foolhardy. He got down.

"Walk out there in the road ten feet; turn around and stand still."

The deputy walked ten feet as near as he could estimate, and, turning around, stood at attention like a well-drilled soldier. While he was doing this the man dismounted.

"Throw the key to these things over here to me."

Really the deputy ought not to have thought that key along, but he had it, and he threw it over. It fell in the dust at the man's feet. The man knelt down, laid the gun just in front of him, picked up the key, and, using his teeth, unlocked the handcuffs. They dropped to the ground and he was free. The deputy watched him in a dazed kind of way, trying vainly to think of something to say or do. He wasn't given time.

"Go over to that fence on your right!"

Over the deputy marched.

"Put one hand over that second strand of wire as far as your wrist and the other under it."

The deputy obeyed.

Then the man walked up with the pistol in one hand, and with the other he snapped the handcuffs on the deputy's wrists and on the inclosed strand of wire. The deputy was sealed to that wire fence as tight as if he had been frozen there.

Meanwhile the horses were quietly grazing along the roadside. The free man dismounted them from each other, and, mounting his own, rode up to the deputy, shook the key at him and said:

"When you arrest a man treat him as a gentleman. I'll keep this key as a memento and wear it as a watch charm. Adios and au revoir." Off he cantered down the road.

Two hours after old man Peabody came riding along on his saddle mare Sally. He noticed a loose horse grazing down the road and a man near by standing close up against the fence. The man at once began to "holer" to him. He noticed the man didn't wave his hands, so he rode down and investigated.

The old man had a pocketknife with a file blade, and with some loss of sweat, released the deputy from the wire. But he could do nothing with the handcuffs. Nobody could but a blacksmith. The deputy's horse was captured, the deputy mounted, and together they rode to Buster City. The appearance of the deputy, handcuffed as he was, created no end of excitement and inquiry.

That night one of the biggest poses in the history of Buster county struck out, but it found no trace of the man who was wanted. To this day if you should tell the deputy of a man read before the Society of Arts. It is a colorless gas with an intensely penetrating smell resembling garlic, so that the smallest leakage would be quickly detected. Five cubic feet of the gas will give a light equal to 240 candles for an hour. It is made by mixing thirty parts by weight of finely ground chalk or lime with twenty-four parts by weight of any form of powdered carbon in an electric furnace and adding water; the product is lime and chalcide carbide, a pound of which will yield 5.8 cubic feet of acetylene. The carbide can be made for $80 a ton; the gas would cost about $1.00 a thousand feet, but its illuminating power would make its cost equal to coal gas at 12 cents a thousand.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

A New Illuminant.

Acetylene, the most powerful illuminant of the hydro-carbons, can now be produced on a commercial scale, says Professor Lewis in a paper read before the Society of Arts. It is a colorless gas with an intensely penetrating smell resembling garlic, so that the smallest leakage would be quickly detected. Five cubic feet of the gas will give a light equal to 240 candles for an hour. There is more to be hoped from coarse extraction than from late degeneration.

In certain personal matters it is more satisfactory to be displeased by one's self than pleased by another.

Sign Language.

Women can talk the whole length of a jaw and understand each other's meaning—or think they do. A case occurred in a London church, Philadelphia, a few Sundays ago. An occupant of a pew formed the words: "How sweet you look," to another, and then put her finger to her lips as though to chide the finger thoughts in a sacred place. At the close of the service her friend said: "I did not know what you were saying until you put your finger to your mouth; then I knew it was: 'Come home to lunch.'"—N. Y. Times.

Unpublished Manuscript.

It is estimated that about 75 per cent. of book manuscripts offered to book publishers never become books at all. A member of a Boston publishing house once said that if one manuscript in a hundred of those offered proved acceptable he thought it a very good average. Yet the vast mass of literary productions continues to grow vaster every year. It is at present a fashion to make more little books than formerly, and among the newest books are half a dozen which may be read through in an hour.—Boston Transcript.

Boats Made of Aluminum.

Some of the boat builders in New England have discarded the use of aluminum in the building of shells. At first the extreme lightness of this metal made it a favorite, but it has been found that it will corrode, and the shell will then be full of pin holes. On the other hand, wooden instruments makers are using aluminum in the manufacture of drums. Shells of this material, they are not only of light weight but give out a better tone than the ordinary article.—Hardware.

TAUGHT THE YANKEES TO LAUGH.

So Said an Eminent Frenchman of Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Discussing the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, an eminent Frenchman once said that it was he who had taught the Yankees to laugh. The poet's wit was such as put every one around him in the best of humor.

It was Holmes who said that although it was Eve who tempted man to eat, he had an idea that she had nothing to do with his drinking, for he undoubtedly took to that on his own account. Then the poet removed his cigar from his lips and remarked:

"I really must not smoke so persistently. I must turn over a new leaf—a tobacco leaf—and have a cigar only after each"—and as most of those present imagined he was about to say "meal," he continued—"after each meal." Leaning back in his chair he added—"A foreigner is an alien; a foreigner who drinks too much is an ascetic; and why should not a foreigner who smokes too much be called a tobacco-cannibal."

When dining with Lord Coleridge, the subject of lawyers came up, and referring to the American man of the Bar, Holmes said that the poverty of the American lawyer and the wealth of his client was his glory. On another occasion Mrs. Siddons was being discussed, and some one said that the statesman Fox had been smitten by the great actress. To this the poet replied that from all he had ever heard of her he could not understand a man falling in love with her. His reason was that she was so grand that a man might as well fall in love with the Pyramids. She might have been loved by the Worshipful Company of Coachmakers or a Board of Aldermen, but it was beyond the range of possibility that one man could ever love her.

After he had been lionized by a delegation of Westerners, some one asked him how he liked it. "Like it?" he said, "I felt like the small elephant at the Zoo with a cheap excursion party on his back."

Professor Agassiz, he used to say, was the Liebig's extract of the wisdom of ages, "and," he would add, "whenever he goes off on long voyages to remote islands I can't help thinking what a feast the cannibals would have if they boiled down such an extract."

A VENERABLE STUDENT.

Having Fought and Frenched, Dr. Stevens is Now Studying Law at Seventy.

There are many queer people in attendance at the Kansas State University at Lawrence, Kan., but probably the most interesting of these is a law student who is at least seventy years of age. He is Dr. Martin Van Buren Stevens. This is his second year at the university, and he expects to graduate this spring and become a full-fledged lawyer.

The doctor's life has been one of much education. Wilkesbarre, Pa., was the place of his birth. He married at twenty a pretty Pennsylvania German girl. Soon after this he enlisted in Company D, Fifth New Hampshire, and went to the war.

The old gentleman has received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Oberlin College, in Ohio, and that of Doctor of Medicine at the Adelbert College, at Cleveland, O., 1871. His first wife having died, he married again, this time selecting a Michigan girl, a niece of "Fighting Jim" Richardson. At one time he studied theology and preached for awhile, but gave it up, and studied phrenology under Fowler, of New York.

In a cozy little house on the side of the hill this queer old man lives alone. He keeps everything about the place scrupulously clean. One warm meal a day he considers sufficient; the other two he carries to school with him in a small shoe box. Very little meat passes his lips, in fact he might almost be called a vegetarian. "People eat entirely too much," he says.

Last year he was somewhat conspicuous on account of the number of badges and emblems he wore on the front of his coat. They were badges of the G. A. R., Christian Endeavor Society, Phrenological Society, the Y. M. C. A., a medical society and C. L. S. C. Another of his peculiarities is that he carries a watch which is fully four inches in diameter. He winds it with a pair of six-inch pliers.

Dr. Stevens has been in every State and Territory of the United States. Every summer he goes out on a lecturing tour, and tells the people all about phrenology, physiology and physiognomy.

Grief from a Medical Standpoint.

The nervous system requires complete rest after blows caused by sorrow. Recent medical observations show that the physical results of depressing emotions are similar to those caused by bodily accidents, fatigue, chill, partial starvation, and loss of blood. Birds, moles, and dogs, which apparently died in consequence of capture, and from conditions that correspond in human beings to acute nostalgia and "broken heart," were examined after death as to the condition of their internal organs, and it was found that the nutrition of the tissues had been interfered with, and the substance proper of various vital organs had undergone the same kind of degeneration as that brought about by phosphorus or the germs of infectious disease. The poison of grief is more than a name. To urge work, study, travel, the vain search for amusement, is both useless and dangerous. For a time the whole organism is overthrown, and the recuperation is imperative for proper readjustment.

Grief cannot be ignored, neither can it be cheered up. It must be accepted and allowed to wear itself away. Readjustment comes slowly. Sorrow, grief, and all great misfortunes should be regarded as conditions similar to acute infectious diseases, which they resemble in result; and later, as convalescence from such diseases. Sedation, rest, sleep, appropriate food, fresh air, sunshine, interests that tax neither mind nor body, these are the requirements in this class of illness.—The Charlotte Medical Journal.

THE BOYS AT WATERLOO

HOW THE MEMBERS OF THE C.W.A. ARE ENJOYING THEMSELVES.

Franks and Jokes Without Number—Some Tricks the Jolly Who'man Played—Notes From the Scene of the Meet. Special to the Times.

WATERLOO, July 2.—If there is any more fun lying loose around here after the bicyclists take their departure, natives will not recognize it. Since early Sunday—somewhere in the neighborhood of 2 o'clock—when the advance contingent struck town, there has been one continual round of merriment. And there is no cessation. Unlike the members of some city police forces, bicyclists never sleep, at least they have not since they came here, and anyone who would suggest that the crowd should sit down quietly, and have a good square meal would be looked upon as a charge of insanity.

WANDERERS THE KING PINS.

The Toronto Wanderers, they of the winged arrows, are looked upon as King Pins of them all. And they are. Their "Hungarian Brass Band" is a revelation. Never in the history of music has such a conglomeration of sounds been produced from such a variety of apparently useless instruments. Their grotesque uniforms resemble almost everything in general, but nothing in particular. And then Frank Wright, the imitable Irish humorist, and George Sharkey, a companion in fun, with two antiquated street car horses, furnished enough amusement to satisfy the most fastidious. What the Wanderers see they take, and what they don't see they don't ask for—they look for it themselves and usually find it. Sunday night they took possession of two cars, and after hitching up their apologies for horses, drove leisurely—they couldn't do anything else—up to Waterloo. Then they unblinded the "plugs" and ran a race with the cars, down the grade. Nobody was hurt, but the cars which are lying in a ditch near by, were badly wrecked.

HAD BEDS TO BURN AS WELL AS MONEY.

The Royal Canadians, of Toronto, were billeted in a hotel where they understood they were to have a bed each. When they arrived they found that the alleged beds were laid out in a ball room on the top floor. A straw tick and a sheet comprised each bed. The boys danced for a while then amused themselves by throwing ticks out of the window. The Wanderers came along and set them on fire. After the blaze had subsided some one rang an alarm of fire and the brigade turned out, but although they enlisted the services of Wanderers and others, they could find no bigger fire than that which blazed out of the eye of a policeman who during the evening had turned a couple of very undignified comments on the Queen's highway.

SARNIA HAS AN ALLEGED POINT.

Sarnia, the town which has turned out two champions, sent up a delegation loaded up to the neck with circulating poetic effusions which dealt with the prowess of their townsmen to the disadvantage of those from Toronto, which they dubbed, in a Hamiltonian fashion, "Hogtown." Nevertheless they were a gay lot and out for a good time.

Pranks were innumerable, and the best of it all was that those on whom they were played took exception to none of your boys of the fellows who cut up the capers. Waterloo likes wheelmen and wheelmen—well, they like Waterloo.

Did You Ever Think

That you cannot be well unless you have pure, rich blood? If you are weak, tired, languid and all run down, it is because your blood is impoverished and lacks vitality. These troubles may be overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure, rich blood. It is, in truth, the great blood purifier.

Sherburne, Who Killed J. H. Hull, Attempts a Second Murder.

Special to the Times.

SHERBROOKE, Que., July 2.—Sherburne, the crazy murderer of J. H. Hull, of Lenoirville, while under treatment in a ward in the General Hospital, nearly killed his nurse, named Durdin, by breaking his skull with a three legged stool.

Sir Charles and Lady Tupper entertained a large and distinguished assemblage at a garden party in honor of Dominion Day Monday.

A murderer was baptised in the river at Lexington, Ky., on Friday morning just previous to his execution. People camped along the river bank all night to witness the emersion.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JULY 5 1895.

Norway and Sweden are the most thoroughly Protestant countries in Europe. Out of a population of 6,000,000 only 1,000 are Catholics.

Indians in the United States have never taken kindly to white civilization, as ours have done. This is due largely to differences in treatment. The unruly Kakes of Alaska are now on the warpath, and menace the white settlements. Troops will have to be sent out to take the Kakes.

In Spain nearly three-quarters of the people are unable to either read or write. A country steeped in such dense ignorance has no right to hold in subjection an important colony in North America, and the sooner she is relieved of the charge the better for humanity.

Nothing illustrates better the entire freedom from ingrained prejudice which colonial politics have achieved, as compared with British opinion, than the simple announcement that the English Liberals are short of candidates, because they disdain "poor barristers and impecunious local politicians." Here such material would be valued at its true worth. The English Liberals would do well to remember that pride goeth before a fall.

IS MANITOBA RIGHT?

Under the above caption the Winnipeg Tribune has issued a forty-five page pamphlet giving a review of the Manitoba school matter as a question of ethics, politics, facts and law.

In this pamphlet says the Toronto News, the fact is clearly established that the original settlers of the Red River valley never asked for Separate schools. It is further and justly contended that, even if they had done so, it would be a monstrous thing to assert that the 12,000 half-breeds who happened to occupy part of what is now Manitoba in 1870 had the right to say what the educational policy of the 300,000 people of to-day or the 2,000,000 of a generation hence shall be. The difficulty of providing an efficient system of education in a sparsely settled country, unless the State is to devote all its energies to the maintenance of a single system, is made clear. The injustice of the contention that 20,000 Roman Catholics have the right to a separate educational system while 30,000 Anglicans are refused this right is brought out in bold relief. All this and much more is set forth in regard to the moral aspect of the matter.

The legal question is stated with equal clearness and force. It is proved by extracts from the report of the final hearing of the school case before the Privy Council in London that the one point considered there was whether or not there was a right of appeal by the Roman Catholics of Manitoba to the Governor-General-in-Council and that the latter body and the Parliament of Canada are the only authorities outside of Manitoba that have the legal right to interfere with the educational policy of the Province. The pamphlet places beyond all doubt two facts: (1) That Parliament is not legally bound to force Separate schools on Manitoba; (2) that if Parliament does take such action it will be guilty of a gross injustice and commit itself to a policy that will render the work of building up an enlightened, united and prosperous commonwealth beyond the great task almost impossible.

To the unprejudiced citizen who carefully reads the Tribune's pamphlet only one conclusion is possible—that Manitoba is right and that the Dominion will be guilty of a foul wrong if it attempts to check the Province in the course the latter has determined upon.

WHAT THE PALLIUM IS.

A Sacred Vestment That Every Priest Cannot Wear.

The ceremony of investing Archbishop Langevin of St. Boniface, Man., with the pallium at the Basilica was perhaps one of the most interesting ecclesiastical events seen in Ottawa for some time. The pallium is an ecclesiastical vestment peculiar to archbishops in the Roman church. In the east the pallium is worn by all bishops, and one or two instances have occurred in the Western church also in which it has been conferred by the pope on prelates of less than archiepiscopal rank. The canon law forbids archbishops to wear this vestment until it has been solemnly asked for and obtained from the holy see; even then it is only to be worn on certain specified occasions, such as at high pontifical mass or at an episcopal consecration. Every archbishop must apply for it within three months after his consecration, and it is buried with him at his death.

The pallium is never granted until after receipt of considerable dues. The pallia are prepared by nuns from white wool, obtained from lambs which have been consecrated on St. Agnes Eve, in the church of that saint in Rome; the vestments are blessed on the festival of Saints Peter and Paul, and deposited for a year in the tomb of St. Peter's tomb; they are afterwards taken charge of by the subdeacon and given out as required.

Son is a Lucky Suffix.

The curious in the science of names should have their attention drawn to the singular favors extended by the muses to writers who possess in their name the syllable son. It might be another indication of the preference of ladies—even when they are muses—for the masculine, even in an appellation, but, of course, in this case the poetess as well as the poet can boast the magic syllable. Tennyson set the wheel spinning, but he and Robert Louis Stevenson are of the past. But the name of Austin Dobson has been given as that of a possible laureate. So has the name of William Watson, who has for fellows on the list of Bodley Head poets Francis Thompson, John Davidson, Mr. Benson, Newton Robinson, Graham R. Thompson, Miss Dora Sigerson and Lionel Johnson. If the muses love a man or woman born out of the name they arrange an inheritance, or marriage, and Frederick Locker becomes Mr. Locker-Tyson turns to Mrs. Hinkson. Ladies, on the contrary, who were born to the son, and have abandoned it in marriage, cease to be known at the sign of the lyre, and take mainly to prose, as Miss Alice Thompson did when she became Mrs. Meppell, and Miss Mary Robinson when she became Mrs. Darneston. The muses work the whole thing so obviously and openly that one wishes any other article of belief could be so clearly proved and illustrated by patent fact, by rewarded achievement, by punished apostasy.

Certainly it is a little odd, in face of this utterly overwhelming contemporary preponderance, to find an almost equally conspicuous absence of the syllable from the names of the poets of the past. Until Tennyson began the run in England, and Emerson in America, we had only had a bare half dozen such on all the long list of the bards who composed in the English tongue. There were Ben Jonson, and Samuel Jonson, and Allison, who wrote "There is a garden in her face," and such "meaner beauties" as Addison, Macpherson and Mason. The amazing number of sons of the muses in modern days is mentioned here as a mere coincidence, but there will not be wanting students of race to see in it the poetical superiority of the bearers of early English surnames over those who bear Norman surnames.—Fall Mail Budget.

Edgely Explained.

Lady (to her husband)—I am growing so fat that I am beginning to feel quite alarmed about it. I have just discovered that I weigh two hundred and forty pounds.
"Two hundred and forty pounds! And where did you get weighed?"
"On the butcher's scale."
"Oh, then, calm yourself! You weigh exactly half."—Le Figaro.

Electrical Treatment

A. NORMAN, ESQ.

210 Cowan Ave., Toronto.

Dear Sir:—We think we ought to acknowledge in some way that may become public, the very great benefit our daughter has derived from the use of your Electro-Curative Belts, and your application of Electricity in the Bath and from Dry Treatment: When we brought her to you she was a picture of unhealthiness, her limbs were shriveled up, and as thin as limbs could be; she had no strength even to play with other children, in fact she was dying of consumption. Besides this, there was a hard lump on her spine at the nape of her neck, which caused her neck to be so stiff she could not move her head. Although it is only three months since we brought her to you she is sound and well.

CONCERNING SLEEVES.

The French say they're getting smaller, but we don't believe it.

French fashion writers tell us that sleeves will grow smaller during the summer, and that they will gradually diminish until they are the arm once more. In place of the ruffs to which we have been accustomed there will be little flounces set on top of the sleeve, and they give us pictures to show us what we will be wearing six months from now. But right there is where they have made a mistake, because if any woman had been inclined to adopt the fashion these pictures would have been sufficient to prevent her from doing anything so rash. To the eye that is accustomed to a full, fluffy sleeve, the close-fitting, skin-tight style of five years ago is positively hideous.

This much is true, however. Sleeves are all tight from the elbow down, and not many of them are stiffened. The draped sleeve is preferable to the puffed, unless it is a puff with a tucked heading that follows the curve of the arm at the shoulder. One dinner sleeve shown by the French as a sort of transition from puffed to tight-fitting sleeves, follows the shape of the arm from the shoulder to the wrist, but a draped puff is set on at the back of the sleeve, stemming from the shoulder and being caught up to the sleeve proper just above and just below the elbow with large rosettes.

The sleeves of the gown pictured here are draped and have the appearance of being buttoned to the shoulder with a large button. The bodice is made with a yoke, the faience below being gathered into a girle. Girle and yoke are ornamented with large buttons. The skirt is trimmed with three circular flaps that resemble ruffles at the bottom.

ALL DIFFERENT.

The Designers keep on giving us new styles in waist.

One could describe a new fancy waist every day in the year, and then begin all over again for another year and they would all be different. This may not seem so remarkable, but when one considers the limitations which fashion imposes one must conclude that a great deal of ingenuity is displayed by designers in devising all the varieties which are seen day after day on the streets and at the numerous informal parties which held now in lieu of something more elaborate.

Time was when fancy waists could only be worn indoors and for some dreary occasion. But now they are considered correct for street wear and often appear in church. A pretty spring waist, worn by a spring shopper, in the jam which fills the stores now, was made of black and blue checked velvet. The check was about a fourth of an inch in diameter, and the blue was a robin's egg shade. The bodice fitted close in the back, with some rosettes as a finish at the bottom. In front was a regulation box plait, and on each side from the bust down the waist were folds of blue chiffon which also formed the collar.

Clothes for the Little Ones.

The warm weather is here, and the children are as anxious as the older people, even if they do not make as many complaints.

Don't make the mistake of loading a child with the exaggerated long frocks of the Kate Greenaway style, to make her look picturesque and attractive to your relatives and friends.

Give her a sensible attire, in which the little maid can scamper about the fields or rocks, and plump herself into the sand or dirt without being hampered with clothes.

Fine feathers make fine-looking birds. Out the little maid in a blue denim gymnasium dress, with a free use of all her limbs is often more interesting, even with dishevelled locks and mud-stained fingers, than the picturesque child with the fine clothes, who must take her exercise in as moderate a way as her elders.

The Home Dressmaker.

Very often indeed the amateur dressmaker finds herself face to face with some difficulty which she thinks is impossible to surmount, and becomes discouraged and almost willing to give the whole thing up.

One of these self-confessed difficulties is the adjusting of hoods and eyes so that they will not unfatten and leave an unsightly gap.

This difficulty is obviated by sewing on the hoods and eyes alternately, instead of the hoods all on one side and the eyes on the other. Sewed in this way and placed close together, not more than half an inch apart, the dress will stay hooked. This is the method employed by the best dressmakers.

Mating Hats.

Use the mats that come inside of tea chests, or buy a rice bag at a Chinese store. Out onto a circular piece the size you want your hat, and another circular piece the size of the crown from the middle of it. With the machine sew a narrow tape or piece of muslin around each raw edge to keep it from fraying, and line the rim with mulla, crespoline or cheese-cloth, covering the edge as by a binding; fasten the small round piece to the rim by means of a full row of the material, thus forming a "Dum O'Shanter" crown. Line it and add springs.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

HE DISCLOSED A CRIME.

A TRAVELLING SALESMAN'S STORY OF MURDER.

The Alleged Toronto Murderer—President Cleveland's Letter to the Tammany Society.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 3.—Rev. Mr. Miller of the German Lutheran church of this city had a strange visitor on Monday morning who may be a crank laboring under the impression that he is a murderer or he may be a murderer stricken with remorse. The man gave his name as Frank Lang, said he was a travelling salesman and that his home was in Toronto. Two weeks ago Lang said, he came home suddenly and found his wife in company with a strange man. He shot and killed the fellow and then going to Buffalo whence he came to this city, Lang says the man he killed was the son of a prominent Toronto citizen and a noted church choir singer. Throughout the interview the self-confessed murderer was very nervous and constantly wrung his hands, tears flowing from his eyes. The story, as told above in brief was related to the clergyman, a sealer man and the corner of the country. These gentlemen placed Lang in charge of the Associated Charities but some time during last night he left the building and has not since been seen. A telegram which Agent Preston sent to Toronto to Lang's sister, to the number Lang gave, was returned this morning with the information that the person named could not be found. It is supposed he escaped to kill himself. Inquiries are being made however to find him, but up to a late hour not a trace of him had been found.

GROVER TO TAMMANY. New York, July 3.—President Cleveland has written a letter to Tammany which will be read at the fourth of July celebration in the Wigwam. The President was invited to be present and take part in the celebration and in response to the invitation he has written a letter from Gray Gables in which he touched briefly on financial commerce and political situations. Senator Hill has also written a letter. Some 400 other letters and telegrams from prominent Democrats have been received.

AROSE FROM THE SEA.

SAN MIGUEL, CAL., INCREASED IN AREA BY AN EARTHQUAKE.

An Unexpected Gift From Nature—Capt. Waters' Strange Experience—Sandy Beach Replaced by High Cliffs and Deep Water.

There is something new on the face of the earth. It is a piece of land which rose out of the sea by the agency of an earthquake and became part of the territory of the United States.

The Mexican volcano Orizaba was in eruption last month. At the same time a seismic disturbance was felt in a small group of islands off Santa Barbara County, in the southern part of California. The principal islands are San Miguel, Santa Rosa and Santa Cruz. The water separating them from the mainland is the Santa Barbara Channel. San Miguel is the island to which the new land is joined. It is the property of Capt. W. G. Waters, an old sailor. According to his narrative, he was reading E. Z. Roe's novel, "The Earth Trembled," in his ranch house on San Miguel when the thing described in the book happened.

It was in the evening of March 9 that the captain felt the first shock of the earthquake. The following day, Sunday, he walked out in the direction of the small harbor of San Miguel, called Cuyler's Harbor, to wait for his sloop, the Liberty, which he expected to arrive then. To his amazement the harbor had disappeared. He could scarcely believe his eyes at first, and looked around for marks to assure himself of his position. He found some of them. Prince's Island, which had stood a short distance outside the harbor, was still there.

Three hundred feet beyond the old shore line a cliff faced the sea. The same distance inland the captain found a boat house and sheep corral, which the day before stood on the shore. More than half of the crescent-shaped harbor had been replaced by high and solid land. The captain's mind was not in a condition to realize at once all that had happened. He advanced on the newly appeared land and found to his alarm that it was still quaking. He retreated swiftly, but not before he had observed that rocks and seaweed formed the greater part of the added area.

He then saw a new reef which had risen some six hundred feet out to sea, against which the waves were breaking vigorously. His curiosity overcame his alarm finally and he went to the edge of the cliff. The great mass of rocks was still moving slightly, a fearful grinding sound being produced. Weevils and strange fishes and sea creatures were scattered about. Looking over the edge of the cliff he saw sea lions gamboling with their young. They had not been in the habit of venturing into the harbor. The added area was about 34,000 square yards in extent.

The boat-house had been turned around so that it faced north instead of southeast. The cliff that rose back of the boat-house had disappeared and the ground had become level. The sandy beach that was before it had given place to pebbles. On Harris Point a large alkaline spring that made its way in a strong stream to the ocean, had disappeared.

On Monday morning the land was found to be still moving. In the afternoon the Liberty was sighted, but did not reach the entrance to Cuyler's Harbor until dusk. The usual entrance is through the left-hand channel, between Prince's Island and the mainland. Capt. Daily, who commanded, was naturally startled to find there the new reef. He steered clear of it with some difficulty, and arrived in the harbor. There he anchored off the rocky cliff, which had arisen in the middle of what he had known as the harbor.

His feelings and impressions he conveyed to Capt. Waters next morning when he landed. The two, however, continued to make notes, according to the precept of Capt. Cuttle. They set up marks and on the following Wednesday morning found that since Tuesday the new coastline had encroached on the sea about fifteen feet.

The harbor was sounded. From the cliffs the bottom steadily deepened until the Liberty's line could not touch bottom. The greatest depth had previously been six fathoms. The geological formation of the island is said to be volcanic. It is stated to be partly crystalline and partly fragmental. The crystalline formation is found on the face of the new cliffs. Elsewhere the island consists of molten igneous rock formed into interbedded sheets, with alterations of coarse-grained tuff. There has been as yet no reliable scientific opinion on the nature of the disturbance.

A piece of anchor chain and some pig iron were picked up on the cliffs. These were believed to have belonged to a ship that sank in the harbor in 1861. A human skull inhabited by a family of crabs was also found.

Other disturbances have occurred on San Miguel, but none is remembered so serious as the last. From time to time large stretches of cliff have disappeared on the southern shore, and it is possible that this was due to volcanic action.

One of Garibaldi's bravest. One of the bravest of Garibaldi's "Thousand" was Torrisi, a young Venetian, who, as her husband's boy brother Antonio, fought by his side in the campaign through Sicily to Naples and Capua. She wore the Garibaldian uniform, and her slender figure was so much like those of numerous youths in the ranks that her sex remained unknown to all but her husband and two of the colonels. She was said to have been "ever the first to volunteer for some dangerous duty, and the last to quit her post until that duty was fulfilled," the general decorated her on the field of battle for valor. She went through the campaign without a wound, only to die of poverty and consumption shortly after. Her condition having been discovered too late to save her life, all ranks combined to do her honor after death, in one of those picturesque torch-light funerals which are a feature of Florence life. Her arms and her faded red shirt were placed amid the flowers of her coffin, and her grave looks out from the church terrace at San Miniato upon the towers of Florence.

Reminded to Petaloea With a Pension. After the civil war a familiar figure upon the streets of a city in Tennessee was a gigantic negro upon crutches, whose extensive crinoline and voluminous skirts lay consorted with the short board which somewhat sparsely covered her chin. She had a "swathing and a mardal outside," and had enlisted as a soldier in one of the colored regiments. Having lost one leg in an engagement her sex was discovered, and she was remanded to petaloea with a pension.

A Woman Gets $7,000 by Law from Her Husband's Murderer.

Special to The Times.

OWENSBORO, Ky., July 3.—In the celebrated case of Mrs. Helen Iglehart v. Wm. McClung, a wealthy farmer, for $15,000 damages for killing her husband, the jury has rendered a verdict for $7,000. McClung is in jail awaiting trial of the criminal charge.

Stafford & Rudd's Furniture Warehouse and a Brick Store Gutted.

Special to The Times.

ANPRIOR, Ont., July 3.—About one o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the rear of an unoccupied brick store owned by McMaster & Co. of Toronto. The building was gutted. The flames spread to the adjoining furniture warehouse owned by Stafford & Rudd and both building and contents were badly damaged. The cause of the fire is unknown. The amount of loss or insurance cannot be ascertained at present.

HIS LOVE UNREQUITTED.

So He Stole Dynamite and Got What He Called Revenge.

Special to The Times.

LEXINGTON, Ill., July 3.—In the village of Rome, yesterday, a house containing five women were blown to atoms by dynamite placed beneath it by the rejected lover of one of the women. All the inmates were injured, three perhaps fatally. Luke Hoyle and Tim Hoise both aspired to the hand of Mollie Biers, and when Hoise was chosen Hoyle stole enough dynamite from the Drainage Canal works to revenge himself in this manner.

ASSERTED HIS INNOCENCE.

Dr. Buchanan Made no Confession—Warden's Statement.

Special to The Times.

SIXE SING, July 3.—Warden Sage said today he felt as if he had been relieved of a heavy burden by the execution of Dr. Buchanan. There has been considerable talk that Buchanan made a full confession before he went to the electric chair. Warden Sage said as far as he knew, Buchanan made no confession, but asserted his innocence up to the very last. Warden Sage is not worried about Buchanan's lawyers bringing proceedings for damages in case they secured a reversal of judgment which sent Buchanan to his death. The Warden says if it came to shouldering the responsibility the state would have to do this, and not he, as the state's agent.

Robbed the Mail.

QUEBEC, July 3.—A young mail carrier at New Carlisle has been arrested on a charge of breaking open the bags and stealing money, letters and documents. He has confessed and received the minimum punishment of three years in penitentiary.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every man who would know the Grand Truths; the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life; Who Would Attain for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men." The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power. A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system. To cure nervousness, lack of self control, despondency, etc. To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power. To secure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc. To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body. Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men who need it. A despairing man who had applied to me, soon after wrote: "Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way."

And another thus: "If you damped a carload of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done." Write to the KEM MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company will send you the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.
